WANT PIDGEON CREEK BRIDGE RECONSTRUCTED

Local Authorities Have Been Interviewed in Regard to the Matter—Old Bridge Gone.

FLOATING STRUCTURE

An effort is being made to interest Peterborough authorities in the proposal to reconstruct the Pidgeon Creek bridge. Sixty years ago this water course could be spanned by an ordinary log. The Department of Railways and Canals came along, so it is said, and by the construction of dams and other work on the Trent Canal the span was increased to over one mile in length. This necessitated the construction of a floating bridge. J. C. O'Leary, of King's Wharf, was in the city a few days ago and interviewed Mayor W. H. Taylor and others in an effort to secure their immediate co-operation. It is contended that the reconstruction of this floating bridge would mean a natural oulet for the traffic stream from that section of Victoria County. As it is the traffic is compelled to go the other way. The old Pidgeon Creek floating bridge has been demolished and parts of it have been removed. The Indians at Curve Lake got one section to span their reserve with the mainland.

Those who are interested in the reconstruction of this bridge believe the Government should bear a substantial share of the cost as it was through their activity on the Trent Canal that such a long bridge became necessary.

LATEST REGULATIONS COVERING OLEO SALE

Importation and Manufacture Must Be By Licenss.

Regulations governing the importation, manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in Canada, effective from date of publication, are issued in the current issue of Canada Gazette. Importation and manufacture, it is provided, shall be by license only, such licenses to be approved by the Minister of Agriculture. Manufacturing of oleo will not be allowed in any premises used for, or connected with, the manufacture or reworking of butter and materials intended to be used for its manufacture must be inspected and approved by an inspector of the Department before their use.

Provision is made that the words "butter," "creamery," "dairy," or the name of any breed of cattle shall not be used in advertising or describing oleomargarine, nor shall any of these words be placed on packages. Sale provisions include one that oleo must be sold in the original package, stamped with the official inspection mark and that each package shall bear the word "Oleomargarine" as a conspicuous label.

Hotels, restaurants and public eating places serving oleomargarine are required by the law to announce that fact in a prominent notice to the public. Fines running as high as $500 are provided for anyone violating the new regulations.

FINE'S $ DAY

Mr. Fine has made greater preparations for Dollar Day this time than ever. That's saying a good deal, because his bargains in Ladies' and Men's Clothing, and Bedding, are well known as extra good. Here is a sample snap—Iron Bed, iron frame, Spring and Felt Mattress, complete, in 3ft. 6in. size, only for $13.00. Come to Fine's at 427 George Street for real bargains tomorrow.

Flirting is unknown among Korean girls; indeed, an unmarried girl in that country is so disgraced by even speaking to a male not of her own family that she often kills herself rather than endure the shame.

Automobile Chances

There are many of them for the carefully planning, prospective purchaser who takes advantage of the Want Columns in the Examiner.

What makes appeals to you most—would you like to get some particular style or kind of auto at a special price? Would you like to pick up a second-hand or a re-built car at a sacrifice price?

See what the Wants can do for you in accomplishing any of these automobile desires.

You may keep in close touch with automobile owners who will be interested in a chance to trade or sell their cars if you make the fact known through the Want Columns of The Examiner.

TRADES AND LABOUR CONGRESS IN SESSION

Delegate Tunney Takes Exception to Ex-Premier Meighen's Statement That Civil Service Workers' Salaries Had Been Increased a Hundred Per Cent.

DELEGATES SQUEAL

MONTREAL, August 22 (Canadian Press).—Ex-Premier Meighen's statement to organised labour, in reply to the latter's plea for reorganisation of the Civil Service, was labelled "Complete mis-statement, a fabrication, and not in accordance with the true facts in the case," by Delegate Tunney, of Ottawa, representing the unionised Government employees at this morning's session of the Trades and Labour Congress.

Mr. Tunney declared that they had not been granted a Board of Appeal against the decision of the Civil Service Commission. It was also untrue, he said, that Civil Service workers' salaries had increased one hundred per cent.

As a matter of fact, many of them had received only five dollars' increase in two years.

Plea for Generosity.

A plea by J. W. Wilkinson, of Vancouver, for more generous support for the "Congress Journal," precipitated a spirited beat, and Delegate Watson, of Nova Scotia, condemned an editorial in the Journal which attacked the Radical Workers' Party of Canada.

President Moore left the chair to take part in the debate, and declared his amazement that delegates went there "to squeal because we have said something they don't agree with." It was all right for them to caluminate, abuse, villify, and misrepresent us, but we, as the executive, were supposed to take it all, and say nothing.

"Let me say that so long as I am a member of organised labour, I will fight any untruth or calumy, whoever it comes from," concluded President Moore.

P. M. Draper, secretary, in a fighting speech, supported President Moore.

Question of Principle

ute ago," said Mr. Draper, "if all our advertisers were union shops. No more so than every trades union ist, who supports the Journal. Furthermore, do you think that any labor paper could exist on its circulation support from Labor"

Jas. Simpson, Torouto, defended the editorial policy or conduct of the paper, inasmuch as it represented the policies dictated to the executive last year by delegates to the convention. "If the majority of the rank and file of the organized labor movement disagreed with the editorial policy of the paper, they should elect other delegates to the Congress, delegates who would give different instructions to the executive," he said.

Not Bilingual

Delegate Robbilard, Montreal, criticized the Journal because it was not completely bilingual.

Secretary Draper replied that the only reason why French and English were not as yet evenly represented in the Journal, was because the paper was only on its infancy yet; the ultimate aim as to make the paper "fifty-fifty".

Gus Francq Montreal, asserted that seventy-five per cent. of French Canadians, could read English readily.

Senator G. D. Robertson, representing the railway telegraphers, dealt with the policy which the Journal should pursue. He urged that more particular attention be paid to what was going on in the Canadian Parliament and in various Provincial Legislatures.

HARD COAL STRIKE STILL UNSETTLED

Rumors Were Circulated That Agreement Might Be Reached To-Day.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22. — (Canadian Press.)— Although prospects of the anthracite coal settlement still hung fire last night after a late adjournment of miners and operators' representatives who were in conference for about two hours, rumors were current about the offices of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, where the meeting was held, that possible settlement would be affected to-day.

The conference will be resumed today at 3 p.m.

While no official word was given out it was understood that the operators insisted still upon a resumption of mining at the old wage scale until April 1, 1923, and the miners want a so-called long-term contract —probably two or three years— at the scale in effect when the suspension was called last April.

The Lure of Dollar Day

City Folk Should Avail Themselves To-night of the Opportunity to Inspect Irresistibly Attractive Show Windows Which Foreshadow To-morrow's Values Within.

Let the weather man only be kind; in hundreds they'll come to town to-morrow, from the north, south, east and west—by rail, motor car and boat — all sorts and conditions of men, women, misses and youths, bargain hunters every time, attracted by the far-flung fame of Peterborough's semi - annual Dollar Day.

And the leading stores—those business houses really worth while—are literally teeming with snaps in ladies' and gents' toggery, boots and shoes and all kinds of near-body and outer wearing apparel, not forgeting home furnishings, groceries, provisions and the hundred and one essentials which constitute the component units of every-day human needs.

The handsome, brilliantly illuminated and irresistibly attractive show windows will tonight foreshadow the story of to-morrow's Dollar Day offerings; and city folk will do well not to miss a glimpse therein of combined qualities, style and prices which, as customary here on such occasions, present an Eldorado of dollar-saving opportunities for Peterborough's August Dollar Day.

But half the story cannot possibly be gleaned from a scrutiny of these really inviting window displays: for they simply reflect, and barely so, the values, measure full, heaped up and overflowing, so to speak, in the stores' crowded interiors.

And so, the Examiner's readers are advised to dip thoughtfully into the Dollar Day advertisements inviting their attention this evening; to make a trip up-town, and take in the snappy delights of window Dollar Day exhibits; and, above all things, take advantage tomorrow of startling offerings in so many commodities you need —all extraordinary values, both in price and quality.

MUSIC DAY AT THE EXHIBITION

J. M. Greene of This City is a Director on the Board

Elaborate preparations for Music Day at the Canadian National Exhibition are peing made by the Canadian Bureau of Music, Mr. J. M. Greene ,of Greene Music Co., who is director on the board, representing the retail section for Canada, and the only retailer on the board, has received word that a pageant chorus of trained singers is being rehearsed to provide music on Music Day.

This chorus was originally intended to number 1,000 voices, but applications came so plentifully that there are 1,645 members and over 300 applicants had to be refused for want of room at the Exhibition.

J. S. Atkinson, secretary of the Music Bureau, says that the effect when this wonderful chorus is singing ies really inspiring. Rehearsals are being conducted by Mr. Linden, and the final rehearsal will be conducted by H. A. Fricker, M.A., Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., the most noted musician in Canada. A genuine treat awaits all visitors to the Exhibition on Music Day, August 31st, when this, the greatest chorus of trained singers ever organized on the American continent, will render a high-class programme as the feature entertainment of that day.

Announced by the United States Steel Corporation

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press). — The United States Steel Corporation to-day announced that the wage rates of day labor at all its manufacturing plants would be increased 20 per cent. on September 1, and that other rates would be equitably adjusted.

SPECIAL RATES FOR THE WEEK END AT Y.W.C.A. CAMP. APPLY Y.W.C.A. 1d-44-4976

May Locate Pumping Station On Otonabee Shore Opposite Park St.

The pumping station for the sewage disposal plant will probably be located on the Otonabee side of the river opposite the foot of Park street, Ald. Crowe, referring to the editorial comment in the Examiner, said that this site had been approved by the engineer of the Provincial Board of Health when the plans of the whole project were recently submitted to him by City Engineer Parsons.

This proposal which will have to be ratified by the Council, will obviate the necessity of buying property for the pumping station which will be erected on part of the land bought from the Wilson estate for the disposal plant. Ald. Crowe also stated that the sewer on King street will not have to be altered. It was provided with a 22 inch pipe and the grade or fall from Park street to Lock street is only 18 inches. This would leave a clear passage of 15 inches at its lowest point when the Lock street sewer is diverted to King street to connect with the Park street sewer and the disposal plant.

A DUMMER TOWNSHIP MAN WAS ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

CHILD INVOLVED

Marital troubles in the Russell Hill household in Dummer Township came to a dramatic conclusion yesterday afternoon when, on information laid in the city previously in the day, Russell Hill was placed under arrest by a bevy of officers and brought to Peterborough to face charges of assault and threats against the life of his young wife. Mrs. Hill complained to the officers that on Saturday her husband brutally attacked her and occasioned serious bodily harm, and at the same time made the threats against her life as set out in the information.

Russell Hill is alleged to have stated: "I will kill you. I won't leave you to tell stuff on me as you did on my brother to get him where he is. I will drag your body to the woods and nobody would ever find you. I don't care whether I get hung or not so long as I get satisfaction." Russell Hill denies such statements, and he did not elect or plead on the charge of assault.

When the officers arrived at his home seven miles north of Norwood about five o'clock yesterday afternoon he was working in the fields some distance from the house. When P. C. Cookman, Inspector J. Stewart, Constable A. R. Moore, and George W. Powell, Children's Aid Society agent, hove in sight, Davis Hill took to his heels, it was said. Russell Hill was taken into custody without any trouble, and was allowed to change his clothes. This morning in Police Court he presented a better appearance than any of the brothers have on the numerous occasions they have sat in the box.

Denied Charges.

The Magistrate read the charges to accused, who remarked "they're not true." G. W. Hatton, Crown Attorney, asked for a remand until Friday. In connection with the case of May Hill to have her husband bound over to keep the peace, the same remand was made by J. O'Brien for Hills asking that cause be shown. Mr. O'Brien asked for bail and it was set at $2,000, with one of the sureties to come from outside the family. The Magistrate pointed out that the threats were of a serious nature, and he was afraid to allow Hill to be at large for fear he might execute them and so place His Worship in a serious position.

It would not be safe, he considered, for the wife to go home, and he suggested that accused should pay for her board in town. "I was nay for her keep after she's got him in this fix," Hill stated.

"I'm not going to take any chance on your wife going out there and you executing those threats. If you look after your wife bail may go through a lot easier," the Magistrate told him.

Russell Hill is the parent of three children, one an infant, three months old, and this child, which is with the grandfather, but needs the mother's care, presented a problem to the court to-day. The Magistrate was not inclined to send Mrs. Hill back to the settlement she is afraid of for the infant, and it was suggested that Mr. O'Brien undertake to deliver the youngster to the mother in Peterborough. The solicitor, however, declined to be a nurse, and the police and Children's Aid agent were left figuring how to get the child into town. Although Russell Hill assured them there would be no resistance offered, such was evidently anticipated.

A Liquor Case.

According to Inspector J. Stewart, the city and county is getting remarkably dry, and only a few old warrants remain now to be executed. One of these was delivered yesterday morning before Maxwell Dickson, Harvey Township, wanted on a breach of the O.T.A., had arisen. P. C. Cookman, Inspector Stewart and Constable Moore arrived at Pigeon Lake before the sun was up and were back in town with the prisoner at an early hour. The offence took place in Buckhorn last September, and, it is alleged, that, following a dance, accused drank liquor on a public highway. The young woman who was with him was ready to testify to this, but in the winter Dickson was away and only returned to the district a short time ago. As soon as Inspector Stewart learned he was home the warrant was dug up and served. The nineteen-year-old boy yesterday pleaded guilty to the offence and was fined $100 and costed so pay costs of $17.25.

Unfit Locomotive Caused Rail Wreck Says Labour Head

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. — (Canadian Press). — J. F. McGrath, vice-president of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement to-day declaring the real cause of the Michigan Central wreck at Gary, Ind., Sunday, "was clearly an unfit locomotive," and he characterized the railway's charges that the wreck was due to plotters as "hastily patched up explanation to place the blame for loss of life upon striking shopmen instead of on the railroad, where it belongs."

HYDRO RADIAL IN TORONTO OPPOSED

Injunction to Restrain Their Use of Water Front

TORONTO Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Mr. Justice Kelly has granted a temporary injunction restraining the city of Toronto from entering into an agreement with the Ontario Hydro Commission and the Board of Harbor Commissioners, providing for the entry of Hydro radials over the city waterfront.

Argument for a permanent injunction will be heard August 31. There has been much opposition to the City Council in its proposng to enter this agreement, one faction declaring that Hydro radials within the city limits should be under control of the Toronto Transportation Commission.

LINER ROYAL GEORGE IS TO BE BROKEN UP

Was Used as a "Delousery" For [illegible] Emigrants.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Cunard liner Royal George, which has been laid up at [illegible] for some time past, has been sold out of the service and is to be broken up on the continent.

She has had an extraordinary career. She was built in 1907, as the Heliopolis, to run between Marseilles and Alexandria on [illegible] which was fast [illegible] anything then known in the Mediterranean.

Unfortunately, to maintain the service meant charging [illegible] less than the average traveller could afford, and her then owners soon failed.

The Royal George was then bought by the Canadian Northern Railways to maintain a service between Avonmouth and the St. Lawrence, and it was when the Cunard Line bought out this opposition that she passed into their service.

They used her for a short time while their own ships were being reconditioned after war service, but she did not suit their ideas and was soon laid aside.

After a time she was sent to Cherbourg as a "delousery" and depot for European emigrants, and it is noteworthy that her guests stripped her of everything movable while they had the opportunity.

A SPECIAL DAY FOR CHILDREN AT EXHIBITION

School Boys and Girls Will Be Admitted Free to the Grounds and Stand on Wednesday.

RACES A FEATURE

The Exhibition Board last night confirmed the plans of the President, Mr. R. Denne and Mr. Webber Turner for giving over the opening day of the Fair to the school children. They will be admitted free to the grounds and grandstand, and as far as attractions go everything will be set in place for them and the grounds will be wholly theirs for the afternoon.

The programme for the first day does not include horse races, hence in order to fill out the card and give it a special interest to the children, Mr. Turner is arranging a list of races for the school boys and girls for which medals and a silver trophy or two will be given. It is proposed to hold an inter-school relay race for which a silver cup will be given, to become the property of the school whose teams win this race. The details of the athletic list are being drawn up by Mr. Douglas Loomis of the Y.M.C.A. and Mr. Walter Smaill, and will be made public shortly.

Manufacturers, merchants and other exhibitors in that class are requested to have their displays set up by Wednesday noon for Children's Day.

Resolution of Condolence.

Mr. E. B. Fowler referred to the death of Mr. Fred Hodgson, one of the directors and moved that the Board's sympathy be conveyed to Mrs. Hodgson and her family. Mr. Hodgson was one of the newer directors, but in his brief association with them the other directors had learned to appreciate his fine qualities of character and his earnestness in promoting the Peterborough Exhibition's success.

The Dog Race.

Dr. H. M. Yelland wrote that he would continue the Wm. Yelland prize for a dog race which will be held on Children's Day. It is for boys under 12 who own dogs and will be held over a quarter mile course. The prizes are $5, $2 and $2.

Reception to Minister.

The Reception Committee of the City Council was requested to assist in a civic reception to the Hon. W. [illegible] Federal Minister, [illegible] who will officially open the Exhibition on Thursday afternoon.

Tug O' War.

The secretary will [illegible] entries for the tug o' war [illegible] on, and it is hoped that this event will bring out a good competition this year.

GOLDEN JUBILEE AT CAIRO SCHOOL

On Thursday of this week a golden jubilee and picnic will be held at Cario school in which residents of Cavan and Monaghan townships will take an active part. An interesting programme will commence at one-thirty o'clock. "Renewing acquaintances" is the first item on the bill and will be followed by a number of addresses by prominent speakers. At four-thirty o'clock a list of sports will run off and will be followed by supper. Those who can conveniently do so are asked to bring baskets. A large crowd is expected from all parts of the country and an effort is being made to recognize the establishment of this school in a manner befitting its importance to the community.

LOCKED FOR THREE DAYS IN MOVING FREIGHT CAR.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press). — Francis Dennison, fourteen, locked for three days in a moving freight car, travelling 1,500 miles without food or water, has just arrived home from Casper, Wyo., "on the cushions."

The journey west was somewhat sudden. Francis was playing in the Burlington yards with several small boys. They entered an empty car. Then a switchman appeared. The playmates ran off and Francis hid in a dark corner. Mr. Switchman slammed the door and sealed it. Within five minutes Francis was on his way.

His rescue was due to his playmates. They told Peter Bockstahler, a foster father of the boy, that they believed Francis was locked in the car speeding West. The foster father appealed to the Burlington officials and the police. It took a long time to get a ttace of the car. Finally it jolted into the Burlington yards in Casper, Wyo., and Francis was rescued. He was not so weak, but was very thirsty.

Chief Thompson of Windsor Puts Ban on Reporters

WINDSOR, Aug. 22.— (Canadian Press.)— Because of the publication of an item concerning payment of money to city policemen by the Race Track Association for protection at its track, Police Chief Thompson has barred reporters from obtaining information from the usual police sources.

News writers have taken the matter up with the Mayor, who is a member of the Police Commission.

OLD NAME FOR CONSERVATIVES

The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen Advocates Title of Liberal Conservative Party.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 22.— (Canadian Press). — Right Hon. Arthur Meighen evoked an ovation in the proceedings of the Provincial Conservative convention, which were restricted to formalities, here yesterday. He advocated the adoption of the name "Liberal-Conservative party" as the official name of the party, and a formal resolution to this effect was introduced by Senator Taylor. It met with some opposition, however, because of the hyphenated character of the name, and the delegates not having been officially "seated," the resolution had to be held over until to-day.

CANADIAN PLANT WILL NOT BE SOLD

Shareholders of Canadian Locomotive Company Told That Sale to Baldwin Company Was Not Put Through.

KINGSTON, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The Kingston Daily Standard in big front page story yesterday announced that it had been authorized to say that the Canadian Locomotive Company was not to be sold to the Baldwin Locomoitve Company or any other company but would remain under its present control and management. The Standard states that an explanatory letter to this effect is being forwarded to all the shareholders who had given options on their stock in the expectation that a sale of the control of the company might be effected. This letter is very brief and on behalf of F. G. Wallace, president of the company in whose name the option had been obtained merely states that it has been found impossible to put the sale through. As to when the works will open up, that is problematical, but it is believed that there is reasonable expectation and hope that they will be opened this fall, although on this point local officials have nothing to say.

THE KIWANIANS HAD GOOD MEETING TODAY

Joint Meeting of Peterboro and Lindsay Clubs Will Be Held Here Soon —The District Governor Coming — The Rotary Boys Camp.

GENERAL BUSINESS

There being no formal speaker at the Kiwanis club to-day, various items of business were attended to. District Trustee John Allen reported that on Saturday he received a telegram from J. Bev. Hay, District Governor, announcing that he would like to visit Peterboro on his eastern trip on September 5th and would like a joint meeting with the Lindsay club here. Lindsay expressed a willingness to cooperate and John Allen advised the District Governor that the arrangements would be made. The club will endeavor to make arrangements that will permit of an evening meeting. The reception committee will arrange the welcome.

It was decided to visit Lindsay the week following, that is on the 13th of September and Lloyd Hamilton to-day advised the members the part each is to take in the extensive programme. President Frank Whitehouse, Secretary George Henderson, District Trustee John Allen and G. N. Gordon, K. C., were appointed delegates to the District Convention at Windsor, September 21, 22, 23. The district trustee pointed out that this convention was in many ways more important than the International Convention at Toronto and if Lindsay is sending ten delegates, he thought Peterboro should be well represented.

A Worthy Effort.

The Secretary was instructed to write the Rotary Club thanking the club for having the Kiwanians as their guests at the camp last Thursday and the work of the Rotary club in organizing the camp was highly commended. J. W. Worth told of the crippled youngster who shared the little present made him by the men with two other lame youngsters as just an illustration of the splendid spirit of the boys, and John McKone described the effort of the club as a most worthy and commendable one.

Walter Stocker reminded the club that the Health's Association's camp at Jackson Park closes on Saturday and suggested that a collection be taken up around the tables for a treat for the youngsters. The hat was passed around accordingly and eight dollars was netted. The next work before the club, Walter Stocker said, is to see that the dining room built by the club at the park, is properly protected during the winter so that it will be in good condition for next summer.

It was announced that the Glee Club will practice on Friday at 5.10 at the Grand Opera House. Dr. Craig called for soft ball players to enter the city league, and the response was almost unanimous. Walter Oke presided to-day and W. E. Conway was booster. Striking head gear was worn by John Allen, Walter Lacey, W. H. Barry and Alec. Dick. New songs were tried out and the vocal efforts of the Peterboro Club should be acceptable to Lindsay. Rotarian R. A. Brown, J. J. Dewey and William Hamilton were guests to-day.

TWO THOUSAND INSURANCE MEN IN CONFERENCE

First Joint Gathering in Dominion of U.S. and Canadian Life Underwriters' Associations.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—(Special)—Two thousand life insurance salesmen from all parts of North America are conferring in Toronto this week. For the first time the Dominion welcomes a joint three days convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters of the United States and the Life Underwriters Association of Canada. The proceedings opened today. Prior to the gathering the Executive committee of the two Associations were in sessions at King Edward Hotel, which is pretty well taken en bloc by the Insurance men and their families.

A cordial welcome to the American deelgation was extended by J. G. Stephenson, President of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, and responded to by John L. Shuff, President of the National Association.

The human element in salesmanship was discussed from every angle by experts from both countries. It was contended that there are two methods of influencing men to buy, one by strength of argument and logic, and the other by suggestion of ideas.

The mental process of the prospective buyer was cleverly portrayed. It was demonstrated that men are intellectually lazy. Emerson's statement that "thinking is the hardest work in the world" and Conklin's contention that "The most painful thing in the world is giving birth to a new thought were quoted. Many speakers pointed out the importance of presenting a new idea in a favorable manner.

That personality is a great factor in successful salesmanship. That a pleasing impression is made on the prospective buyer of life insurance by a salesman's adoption of an open and sincere manner, logical presentation of his thoughts, and the use of persuasion rather than argument, was the general opinion of the delegates. It was shown that the foundation of the buying idea was discontent. The motives for buying life insurance was described as fundamental. Briefly they are to realize a gain in our capital or wealth, to procure a service which we now lack; to gratify our pride and attain an ambition, and to quiet a fear, allay an apprehension or take a precaution.

A Wise Investment.

The morning session finished with the reading of the report from the Executive Committee. In the afternoon the subject of Life Income Insurance was introduced by L. N. L'Esperance, Montreal followed by a discussion which was ably opened by Charles Jerome Edwards of New York. It was stated that the purpose of Life Insurance for a man's family is to replace the earning power of the husband or father. Money paid to beneficiaries in cash does not necessarily do this. It merely furnishes the money from which, if wisely invested, and income can be produced. Ninety per cent of the estates of $5,000 or over is said to have been lost or spent in 7 years. Nine million women in the United State and Canada are earning their living. Nineyt per cent of the children who enter school at the age of six must stop before completing the eighth grade to go to work. Experience has shown that keeping money after getting it is the exception rather than the rule. Some very convincing cases are cited.

Business insurance which is used where the needs of the business are the reason for purchasing insurance was also discussed. It was pointed out that out of every thousand new concerns entering business, eight hundred fail, re-organise, or change management. Banking institutions all over the United States and Canada require information concerning Lif Insurance carried by their borrowers. The importance of Business Insurance was further demonstrated by the fact that more than 275,000 of the applicants to the Dominion Farm Loan Bureau of the United States were questioned about Life Insurance carried. All Canadian banks in letters to the Life Underwriters Association of Canada have strongly endorsed life insurance for business purposes, and place great value on it as a credit factor. Several cases were cited and discussion opened by William May, Jr. followed.

A Noble Feature.

A novel feauture/of the convention is that delegates are not permitted to read papers or addresses; they must all test their extemporaneous powers of oratory, assisted only by notes.

ANTI-STRIKE LEGISLATION IN U. S. SUBJECT OF ATTACK

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

MONTREAL, August 22. (Canadian Press.) — American anti-strike legislation and governmental intervention in industrial disputes were the targets of an angry attack by John Manning, union label department of the American Federation of Labor, speaking to the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress here yesterday afternoon.

Sarcastically referring to the United States Fuel Board, Manning said "In the States we have begun to call it the 'Fool Board.' Its remedy was to step in and fix a price for coal at the mine of $4.50 a ton, about $1.03 higher than the peak price during the war.

"It's nothing but injunctions and the state militia against us. But they will yet learn that injunctions don't move railway trains nor do bayonets dig coal.

"With the left" wing of Congress apparently a silent factor, President Tom Moore and his executive face a tame convention. Of the sixty-odd resolutions on the agenda, only two will raise any degree of opposition as evidenced by the progress made yesterday, when twenty four were disposed of by the concurrent method.

Delegates were enthusiastic as the evening session closed as a result of the impetus given their battle against National, sectarian and independent labor by Mayor Mederic Martin, recognized as a formidable force in Quebec labor circles, who pleaded for the merger of all other unions into the International Trades and Labor Congress, and the American Federation of Labor. The Mayor (a Roman Catholic) appealed to his co-religionists to shelve the sectarian question as represented by the powerful Catholic unions of Quebec, and unite under the International banner where all creeds shared an equal right. Tom Moore's brief address in the morning followed the same note.

With few exceptions the resolutions dealt with demanded only reaffirmations of congress policies. Only two raised any discussion and this was of an explanatory nature, and in support of the subjects of debate.

A ban on paint-spraying machines was agreed to vociferously following a colorful plea by A. Mathieu, Montreal. Two resolutions urged that the machine be illegal on the ground that their use was detrimental to health.

"Our government, every government, during the war," exclaimed Mr Mathieu, "kept up the shout about the atrocity of Germans in using poison gas, yet these same governments turned around and granted a patent for the manufacture and sale of something just as deadly. Do you know that the average life of a man using such a machine is only two years? Do you know that if you started using it in this hall a fog would spread in which you could not see ten feet? Now will you vote to have its use made illegal?"

Frank McKenna, vice-president of Division No. 4 Railway Employees' Department, American Federation of Labor, labelled the use of the machine as inhuman. The workmen using it were compelled to swath themselves with clothing for protection, and to use masks.

The Ontario Government's Mothers' Allowance Bill occupied the next important part of the session during the discussion of the proposal that the scope of the law be extended to widows with one child. Only one delegate opposed the resolution, McMurray of Peterboro, who considered financial burden of the law was sufficiently great as it was, and that the extension of benefits to widows with only one child would double, even triple this burden.

The cost of carrying out the law during the first year's operations had been in excess of $700,000 and the fund was raised directly from the working classes.

CRIPPLE DROPPED HIS CRUTCHES AND SPRINTED

PARIS, Aug. 24.—A miracle for which Lourdes, in some quarters, is given credit, is reported from Macon.

A pilgrim train bound for Lourdes was waiting in the station at Dijon and several pilgrims had crossed the tracks to the refreshment room when the whistle called them back. Among them was a paralyzed man who could only move with difficulty even with the aid of two crutches. As he was between the rails on his way back an express train was seen to be entering the station. A cry of horror went up from those who saw his dangerous position, but the man who had hobbled half way across with his crutches, now put them under his arm and ran for safety, escaping what seemed certain death.

CANADA CANNOT DO BUSINESS IN CHILLED MEATS

The Competition of South America and Australia Prevents Profitable Trade in Great Britain.

IN U.S. MARKETS.

BRANDON, Man., August 22 (Canadian Press). — A profitable business in chilled meat between Canada and Great Britain cannot be established for the simple reason that Canada would be competing with the trade from South America, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, declared J. D. McGregor, known internationally as a cattle breeder, during the course of an address on "The British Embargo," to members of the Kiwanis Club here yesterday.

Mr. McGregor said he had come to this conclusion from personal investigation, and that climatic conditions were too big a handicap for Canada to compete in the chilled meat trade.

Mr. McGregor said: "While it is still very desirable, if possible, to have the embargo lifted, still I feel that our market is in the United States, and that when things settle down a little, if the American Government is approached properly, some arangement can be made whereby our cattle will be admitted."

WALL STREET SEES END RAIL STRIKE

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.— (Canadian Press.)—Wall Street's belief in an early settlement in the rail strike found expression yesterday in the heavy buying of railroad stocks and bonds, most of the standard issues in both classes of securities rising to new high records for the year on gains of 1 to 4 points. Widespread public participation in the buying movement resulted in total stock sales of nearly 1,000,000 shares, the largest since the culmination of the speculative movement late last spring.

Shares of grain carrying railroads, such as Northern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern, St. Paul and Chicago and Northwestern and coal carrying railroads, such as New Jersey Central, Reading, Lehigh Valley and Deleware and Hudson were in greatest demand, presumably in the belief that the movement of bumper crops and the resumption of coal mining will result in heavily increased earnings.

FRANCE DETERMINED GERMANY MUST PAY

Poincare Outlines Policy and Says That France Is Now Ready to Act Alone.

GERMAN MARK.

BAR-LE-DUC, France, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—France is firmly determined to make Germany pay for the devastation she caused in the war and, rather than depart from this fixed intention, she will act alone, Premier Poincare declared at the opening meeting of the general council of the Department of the Meuse yesterday, in a speech which is generally regarded as the complete official declaration of French reparations policy.

The necessity and justice of the payment of reparations by Germany emphasized by the French premier, who placed the blame on the present situation on the attitude of the commission of reparations and the failure of Great Britain to understand the desperate plight of her allies and the need for the payment of the indemnity.

M. Poincare recited figures in an effort to prove that Germany was responsible for her own collapse and had deliberately failed to live up to the demands of the reparations commission. He vigorously denied that France sought to enslave Germany in revenge for the devastation of war.

Premier Poincare held out the hope of German and French peace with both nations working together some day if she would change her tactics and do her best to repair in peace the damage she caused in war. France was eager to co-operate with her allies, he said, but would take independent action rather than be deprived of her just compensation.

The Premier spoke at length of the divergent courses now being taken by France and Great Britain. He declared that it was only natural that nations, like people, should think first of their own interests. France could not continue to bear the burden of all the allied compromises, he asserted. He went on record as advocating an allied conference for the settlment of war debts, which would be attended by all the nations interested, "without exception." The latter phrase was taken to mean that he referred to the United States.

The Premier added that the French Government knew the best of guarantees now contemplated would not quickly fill the French Treasury, but action was necessary to enforce justice.

He compared the relative policies of France and Great Britain, asserting that the execution of the treaty and the payment of reparations were vital to France, while Britain, finding her industries paralyzed and her people out of employment, was obsessed with regaining her markets.

"They follow their road and we fellows ours," he continued, "and it is not surprising that we draw apart at times. It is very natural and inevitable, and I am neither scandalized nor astonished. What I cannot understand, however, is why compromises always are made at the expense of France."

"England," he declared, "whose intentions always have been regarded as friendly does not realize the gravity of the French financial situation and the important interest which France has in the rapid collection of reparations."

Regarding the depreciation of the German mark and the atttiude of Germany towards the reparations question, M. Poincare declared that it was a well known fact that Germany had not met the greatly reduced schedule of payments adopted May 5, 1921, that she had not lived up to the deliveries of coal and wood demanded by the Reparations Commission and that since the armistice Germany had not balanced her budget.

It was further proved, he added, that Germany had deliberately depreciated the value of her mark through the reckless printing of paper marks. In the face of all this she had appropriated large sums for public improvements and issued generous subsidies for the profit of her nationals.

Ravaged France, he asserted during the three years of 1919 to 1921, had paid abroad through her adverse commercial balance and otherwise 54,500,000,000 francs, while Germany paid only 32,000,000,000.

"This simple comparison," he continued, "is proof that the fall of the mark is certainly not due to the causes described by Germany, but is due, according to all the evidence, to the feverish printing of paper marks and the exportation of capital."

Attacking the position of the Reparations Commission, M. Poincare asserted that the Commission, in all reason and logic, should already have said to Germany on several occasions: "You have failed in your elementary obligation, and I will propose to the allies that they collectively impose upon you the necessary penalties.

"But," he added, "the instructions given by certain Governments have been exceptionally lenient. The letter of the treaty, perhaps, has been repected, but the spirits has been constantly ignored."

Alluding to the allied debt question, M. Poincare emphasized that the German indemnity must not be placed in the same category as the debts between the allies, as the latter were for the common cause. He advocated a conference in which all nations, without exception, interested in a settlement of the Inter-allied debts would meet for a discussion of the problem.

QUIET DAY WITH PUMPS WORKING IN CAPE BRETON

Large Military Reinforcements Have Arrived to Preserve Order in Strike Area.

CONFERENCE TO-DAY.

SYDNEY, N. S., August 22. Canadian Press.)—With the pumps and protection men of the Cape Breton coal mines working last night, and the peril of inflowing water removed, the final day of the first week of the Nova Scotia coal strike passed listlessly with the attention focussed on the scheduled opening to-day of wage negotiations between the United Mine Workers and the British Empire Steel Corporation.

The day's chief developments were the announcement of the visit here to-day of Provincial Police Commission Lieut. Colonel Eric MacDonald, D.S.O., and the arrival in Cape Breton from Halifax of General Thacker, officer commanding Military District No. 6, and 700 troops to reinforce those already at Glace Bay.

The situation on the mainland remained quiet with the pumps manned either by the miners or the company officials. No disturbances were reported anywhere.

Lieut. Col. MacDonald will arrive in Sydney from Halifax to make arrangements with the local authorities for the coming of his special force of 1000 men now being recruited in the strike zone.

It is understood that Col. MacDonald will also meet delegates from the Great War Veterans and enroll some of their men for duty with the new unit.

The Bay Veterans yesterday afternoon through Secretary William MacDonald, made an offer to Mayor D. W. Morrison of Glace Bay, to raise one thousand men at once for police duty in the collieries.

A Royal Canadian Regiment Co., from London, Ont., reached Sydney at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, but it was held here until yesterday afternoon when the arrival of another Royal Canadian Regiment Company and a squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons brought the combined reinforcements up to the seven hundrd mark.

At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the troop train, numbering about fifteen cars left Sydney for Glace Bay, where it arrived wtihout serious incident.

Visitors to the strike scene have been struck with the semi-military character which marks all the operations of the strikers. The men outside Colonel Elkin's barbed wire appear to be as the troops standing guard around New Aberdeen.

This is declared to be due to the presence among the strikers of a very large percentage of returned soldiers, including a sprinkling of officers who saw service in France.

CUBAN ILLITERACY ON THE INCREASE.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press)—Illiteracy among the white Cubans between the age of 10 and 14 years has increased 15.5 percent between 1907 and 1919, and among blacks 22.3 percent, according to an anaylsis by Diario De La Marina of data contained in the 1919 Cuban census, which has just been made public. The paper points out that this increase in illiteracy occured while Cuba enjoyed self government and declares that it indicates a "fundamental crash' failure of the Cuban school system.

The following figures are quoted by Diario De La Marina to substantiate its analysis. The 1907 census showed that 70.5 percent of native white and 69.9 of native black children could read and write. The 1919 tables showed a decrease in these percentages to 55.1 and 47.6 respectively.

In pointing the moral of its analysis, the paper asserts that this illiteracy imperils the republic, for the ignorant children of 1919 will soon be the citizens who will direct the country's destinies.

THE DIGNITY OF MARRIAGE

For marrying a couple in a swimming pool, in bathing suits, himself in one, an Oklahoma clergyman has been suspended by his church for unbecoming conduct.

No service rises higher in importance in solemnity, in exalted dignity and in fine purpose, than that of marriage. Upon it our whole social fabric rests. Indeed, government and law, morals and order, find in marriage, the home and the family, their bedrock of security and continuance.

Whenever marriage is cheapened by perversion into spectacular display or vulgar publicity, the most sacred and enduring of all human institutions is insulted. There are many false ideas of this life-long vow between a man and a woman. It is often regarded as a convenience, as a social stepping stone, as a bargain to yield dividends in conveniences and luxuries; but its true purpose is to hold together not only a couple in the most divine of all emotions, love, but to strengthen humanity by an association, the most unselfish and binding on earth. The orderly and enlightened perpetuation of the race depends upon it. In its most refined and intelligent manifestations it transcends in value and honor any other earthly association.

Of all persons to whom the dignity of the marriage service is entrusted, the minister of the gospel, the representative of the solemnities of church, and the teacher of the duties of life, should be the last to belittle or coarsen that ceremony. Love, the greatest of all things, the tie that binds husband and wife and children together, is a power so immeasurable, so all-important to human destinies, that its supreme public manifestation, marriage, should be loyally guarded from ridicule at all times.—(From the Chicago Journal of Commerce)

PETERBORO AND "BROADENING OUT"

The "broadening out" rift in the U.F.O. lute may not sound as discordant to Premier Drury's supporters in rural west Peterboro as Mr. J. J. Morrison might suppose. Fresh in their minds is the defeat of their candidate, James Corbett Campbell, in the spectacular Federal bye-election early last year.

All the ordinary conditions appeared to be in Mr. Campbell's favor. The urban vote in Peterboro was split four ways, and in the city itself his platform and his personality made a wider appeal than was indicated by the results. He had also the slight advantage of the inclusion of the township of South Monaghan, which is attached to West Peterboro in Dominion elections. With these circumstances before them and also with the expectation of a fairly clean sweep in the country, many observers were inclined to the opinion that Mr. Campbell would head the polls.

In that bye-election, the local U.F.O. was a branch of the Progressive party, and when its Progressive face was turned to the city voters all but a few of them realized that it was merely a mask of the U.F.O. Not that there was any marked antipathy to the United Farmer's Organization as such. The 1919 provincial campaign was proof of that: but in the Progressive party's nomination of Mr. Campbell only the delegates of the Farmers' Clubs, the units of the U.F.O., were called together, and they alone selected the candidate. Then they temporarily broadened out of their own accord, and in the press and on the platform appealed for urban support.

Reasonable farmers, of which the Hon. E. C. Drury is pre-eminently one, must admit that such a condition cannot continue in ridings such as West Peterboro, which is typical of many in Ontario. In that campaign the Progressives asked from the citizens during the election the very thing they had withheld from the citizens at the nomination of a candidate, namely co-operation. Mr. Drury realizes that the future political success of the U.F.O. as at present constituted will be extremely doubtful in ridings like West Peterboro, and because he is guided by a vision clarified by practical common sense and political wisdom he recommends that the U.F.O. throw down the bars to urban electors.

This proposed "broadening out" would probably have no effect one way or another in ridings like East Peterboro in which farmers are the predominant group, but in others such as West ...eterboro, it might be the means of sustaining the Drury government at the next election.

PREVENTION OR CURE

The fault with the homely aphorism that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is its simplicity, and perhaps its cheapness. There is no hokum about it, and most persons dearly love hokum. Usually they are willing to pay any price within and often beyond their means for it, whether it be a quack cure-all, an oil well in Senegambia, or any of the hoary old trusty nostrums, gold-bricks or other arts and devices of flim-flam.

Prevention as a feature of fire protection is an accepted practice. Most cities and fire departments have adopted it because the insurance companies virtually demand it. Results of course have justified the precautions of inspecting premises and compelling the removal of rubbish and requiring a semblance of tidiness in and around buildings, but that is almost the only sphere in which prevention has become a general policy.

In matters of personal health prevention has made little headway, probably because the public is unresponsive. Dentists are making some progress with it. Many of them have a steadily increasing clientele who have established the custom of regular examination of their teeth. Most of these thoughtful customers, to give the profession a trade twist, visit their dentists on an average of twice a year. Experience has proved to them that this practice pays them even more than it pays the dentists.

In medicine, however, the popular notion is to keep clear of the doctor until you are sick. And that's where most of us are making our big mistake. Apparently we prefer sickness to health. If we followed the same course in regard to fire prevention our insurance rates would be higher and likewise our fire losses. But we dearly like to have ills and ailments and operations to worry over, to relate in detail to the neighbors and finally to pay for in chunks.

It is true of course that many persons go through life with but occasional attention from physician. These observations will probably not interest them because they take a large pride in their long immunity from disease or in their luck.

But the number of doctors in this and other cities, their apparent busyness and prosperity and the crowded wards in the hospitals prove fairly conclusively that the sick are numerous and always with us. The war taught us a lesson we have refused to heed, that a large percentage of men have some physical defect or disease of which they are unaware until the medical examiners discove them.

And because of these facts isn't the prevention of disease preferable to its development and cure? Many persons pay death and sickness insurance but how many pay health insurance? Comparatively few. This is frankly propaganda, not for dentists and doctors but for men and women and children too, who are not sick. After that stage, prevention is too late, and cure is too often impossible.

Prevention is both simple and cheap. Examination by a doctor once or twice a year would involve only trifling expense, would guide us in our methods of living, and most important of all would disclose incipient diseases and disabilities while they can yet be easily checked and corrected.

SPEED OF FIRE TRUCKS.

It is not probable that Controller Treleaven will get much support for his proposal to limit the speed of fire apparatus to 20 miles an hour. Speed is the all-essential thing in fighting a fire, and the public is well instructed in the duty of giving the truck a clear road when the warning sirens are heard. Careful drivers should, of course, be selected for such responsible duty, but there is no criticism of the department in this respect. The possibility of accident is, it is true, ever present; but it would not be removed even by a reduction in the maximum speed. There is a far greater risk of untoward occurrences involved in delay in reaching a conflagration than there is in the speed with which the fire-fighting appliances are brought to the scene. Ample warning is given when these are on the streets. It is the duty of other vehicles and pedestrians to keep out of the way, and it is a duty which is well understood and cheerfully complied with. The number of accidents arising from this cause is surprisingly low, considering the inevitable dangers involved. If every driver of a motor vehicle was as careful and competent as are the drivers in the employ of the fire department, "reckless" driving would be a thing of the past. —Hamilton Spectator.

NOT CANADA'S WAY

The Nova Scotia miners have repudiated their old leaders, flung sanity and common sense action to the four winds, handed over their organization to J. B. McLachlan and his fellow extremists and gone on strike.

Settlement by negotiation means nothing to them and to the new leaders; and the Lemieux Act, which has saved the country from hundreds of industrial disputes and is the proud boast of every peace-loving Canadian, is only a butt for the gibes and the ridicule of the men who have gained control.

Speaking at Sydney, less than four months ago, to a mass-meeting of the very men who have now at his insidious urging downed tools, Mr. J. B. McLachlan declared with a glib satisfaction:

"They say McLachlan has not much respect for the law. You bet I haven't," and his lean and flashy rhetoric was cheered by the laughter and applause of his hearers.

J. B. McLachlan has made it quite clear how he stands in the question of the coal mining dispute.

"We propose to get a living out of this industry or remove it from the hands of the people who have it now," he said at Glace Bay last spring, "and we will put it into the hands of people who can give us an assurance that we can get it. We demand a wage big enough to live on, and, if we do not get it from the capitalistic class, then we will organize the workers to sweep that class out of existence."

"There are two men I would like to shake hands with—Lenin and Trotzky," he said on another occasion.

Mr. McLachlan has summed up his creed for us with a clarity that leaves no doubt as to his beliefs and his sympathies. They are the methods of Lenin and Trotzky.

This red propaganda is no new thing in Nova Scotia. As far back as May, 1920, Mr. McLachlan was urging the miners of Glace Bay to reduce their output by fifty per cent if the mine owners did not accede to the demands of the coal cutters. The attempt of the imported officials of the O.B.U. to gain control of the Alberta mines by the spread of their pernicious doctrines among the foreign element at Drumheller had the sympathetic support of Mr. McLachlan.

This is not Canada's way. The miners of Nova Scotia have a perfect right to elect whatsoever members of the United Mine Workers of America they desire as their leaders. They may choose the most extreme or the most conservative men at the helm. Yet they cannot set at naught the Lemieux Act and adopt the methods of Bolshevist Russia and expect to retain the self-respect of their fellow citizens.

So far there has been no open violence in the Sydney and Glace Bay districts, but there is much highly combustible material there and the thoughtless dropping of a spark ofmay set the district into a blaze. Troops are already on the spot to preserve order, and there is a tension there that is full of menace. At the very time when the United States miners, after a strike of 137 days, have chosen to return to work, at a time when the Dominion Steel plant has at last reached a point of production which is seventy-five per cent of the normal, the men of the Nova Scotia mines have chosen to strike without an hour's warning.

This flaunting of the Lemiuex Act by the Nova Scotia miners reflects no discredit on that wise measure. If the operators of the Sydney fields will only look at the situation without prejudice and uninflamed by passion they will see that J. B. McLachlan's repudiation of it is the finest testimonial of its efficacy. The innocent—but sure to be injured—bystander will believe that the extremists have rejected conciliation and the Canadian way for one reason only—because they were afraid that their case would not stand the pitiless light of publicity.

Mr. McLachlan and his fellows may continue to sneer at the law and the force of authority, but Canada as a whole will continue to prefer the Lemieux Act, conciliation and settlement, to the discredited methods of force which have brought Bolshevist Russia so far beyond bankruptcy that we have no word for it.—Montreal Star.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

But something about the other in the room distressed Violet; some vague sense of familiarity struck her, and it was somehow unaccountable. She took to watching the youth and noticed first a certain grace of movement, a certain pantherlike lithesomeness which puzzled her.

"What an effeminate boy," she though to herself.

Then she took to wondering if it could not be a girl disguised as a man, impossible as it should be for one to obtain the position under such circumstances. But if it were a girl certain suggested roundness of figure would be accounted for. A cap, pulled down well over the mechanic's head, might well conceal a wealth of hair.

While Violet pursued her reflections she failed to watch the other closely. All at once she realized that the supposed telephone repairman stood immediately beneath the portrait of Steele. The boy had manœuvred around to that part of the room very carefully. Now he rose, a sharp knife glittering in his hand. He raised an arm, quickly and yet cautiously, to slit the canvas from its frame. There was no mistaking his intention.

But before she could rise or cry out Dacca had dashed from the kitchen. He had been watching, unknown to Violet. The repairman, confused, brought the knife down across the picture, making a deep gash clear through the canvas, nearly ruining the face. Dropping the knife, abandoning the tools and testing outfit, he tried to run toward the door but found Dacca blocking the way. Without hesitation he turned, dashing up the stairs to the balcony.

Dacca gave chase, anger conquering his weakness. Violet followed with the big army pistol. The repairman darted into Violet's room, bolting the door behind him. From the other side they heard the sound of a window thrown open. Dacca hesitated only long enough to exchange glances with Violet, then he put his shoulder ot the door, rushing again and again until it gave. Together they hurried in to find no signs of the intruder. One window swung open. She leaned out carefully, climbing with both hands, made dizzy by the height. Ten stories below was the sidewalk, but no crushed figure o a boy. On the side of the building was no ledge or protruding stone or iron ornamentation to afford either foot or hand hold. In the room and bath was no hiding place. The disappearance was more baffling than the theft of the body of Canfield the night before.

Puzzled, completely upset, only realizing that she ought to do something and not knowing what, Violet returned to the studio, drew back the chain on the door, and rushed out into the hall. Of course the lineman could not have escaped this way, yet there was no other way—

"Hello," he exclaimed, noting her excited manner, "what's up?"

"Did you—did you see a relephone repairman go out this way? It—it was just a young boy."

"Why no." He knocked the ashes from his pipe. There seemed a note of genuine sympathy in his tone. "Anything wrong?"

"How—how long have you been here, out in the hall I mean?"

"Uh—a pipeful. That's—that's about ten minutes. My model's getting into her rig, and"—deprecatingly—"a screen is not good enough for her. Says she likes me out in the hall." He laughed.

Suddenly Violet was reminded of the damage to the picture. She knew how her guardian would feel. Doctor Sutton had said he would risk his life to preserve it. This Paul Noyes was an artist. Perhaps the damage was reparable. It was a wild idea, but at least she would know—

"Could you"—she half approached him, impulsively—"could you come in and—and look at something for a moment?"

"Why, surely."

She led him to the picture, pointing to the slit. Then she stood back, anxiously, as he examined it, telling him what had happened.

"That's easy to fix," he announced, after a moment. "The edges of the canvas are drawn together—I've a sort of machine to do it, myself, and you can't tell it when it's done. The cut is in the solid color, too, which makes it easy to touch up."

She became very eager. "How long does it take? Are—are there people who do things like that——"

"I'll do it for you." He looked at his watch. "I'll be glad to help you out. If you've someone to help me carry it into my studio——"

"You—you couldn't do it here?"

"That wouldn't be as easy. I'd have to lug in an awful lot of paraphernalia; besides, I take it there's some one from whom you wish to keep the accident if you can!"

"Well"—she surrendered slowly—"I oughtn't to leave. I don't think I should go to your studio alone."

He laughed. He noticed that Dacca was watching them. "Bring your man," he suggested. "He seems husky enough to protect you. I'll need him to carry the picture anyhow."

The other studio, as the three entered, was revealed to Violet as the home of an artist. Everywhere were pictures and sketches and trophies and bits of art work. Immediately upon their entry there was a scurrying which Violet understood as she saw the model.

The girl, a slim, slender, trim little thing, had a mop of black bobbed hair which she tossed rather defiantly. Covering her were only her thin gauze draperies so that Violet, embarassed to some extent, did not glance at her closely.

Instead she assisted Noyes and Dacca as they arranged the damaged picture upon a frame, tilting it back preparatory to the repair work.

Voice of the People

AN APOLOGY.

Keene, August 16.

To the Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In regard to matters pertaining to Serpent Mounds Regatta on Thursday, Aug. 10, on Rice Lake, I would like to offer an apology concerning the boats landing at my wharf.

A misunderstanding arose on the part of the committee at one meeting which it was impossible for me to attend; and while it was my wish that children should be gently reminded not to run over lawn and flower beds, it is with the deepest feeling of regret on my part that adults should have been turned away from going where they pleased on this property. Unfortunately, a number of friends were turned away owing to the same misunderstanding, and I have taken this means of expressing my apology through your valuable paper.

I hope that no blame will be attached to any one person in particular.

SOCIALISM CUTS WAGES.

In Sweden It Levels Rates Down —Not Up, Says Dr. Baker.

That Swedish Socialism has a directly opposite trend to the Socialism in the United States, so far as the wage question is concerned, is the finding of Dr. Hugh P. Baker, executive secretary of the American Paper and Pulp Association, who is now in Europe on a tour of investigation of the paper industry there.

"Swedish socialism," says Dr. Baker in the course of a trade letter, "means a levelling down of the wages of the skilled worker to the earnings of the unskilled worker. In America, socialism has meant levelling up the common labour to the standards of the skilled workers and the intellectuals.

"This is the striking difference that is manifest between socialism in the two countries to the observer of the trend of thought among the working class. The difference may be due to the Russian influence, for communistic posters are found on the walls of paper, pulp, and sawmills.

The Socialists are in control in Sweden and their efforts are devoted toward two things, greater Government activity, even to actual operation in the forest and forest industries, and toward levelling down to the common labourer in wages, and incentives of course. Thinking Swedes recognise the danger of this trend in their efforts to maintain quality in their product as an essential factor in the retaining of world markets.

"In typical paper making regions common labour is 120 per cent. higher than in 1914. Common labour receives 70 more per hour, or about one-half of American labour in the same mill positions. Skilled labour receives from 8 to 12 kronen per day, and one dollar at present exchange is worth 3.85 kronen.'

EARTHQUAKE TO DESTROY MOST OF THE WORLD

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press)—Within thirty days Southern Europe, Northern Africa and the whole of Asia will be destroyed by earthquakes and the residents of thes countries will all be killed.

This is the latest prediction of Dr. M. A. Nobles, a physician and geologist who has studied volcanic disturbances since his graduation from Syracuse Univercity in 1881. The Western section of the United States beyond the Rocky Mountians is also on Dr. Noble's schedule to disappear. Canada is to remain on the map.

The eruption that will wipe out Europe will occur near Budapest, where there are at present seventy volcanoes, Dr. Noble said.

HUMOROUS SIDELIGHT TO POLITICS IN CUBA

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 22—(Associated Press)—Credit is given President Alfredo Zayas for the only humorous sidelight that has marked the recent reform upheaval in the Cuban administration, in which the disposal of public funds had figured to a considerable degree.

Asked by a personal friend how he replied to certain pertinent questions regarding Cuban affairs asked by the special American representative, Major-General E. H. Crowder, the president, is quoted as saying: "Oh, I have adopted the principle embodied in the XPZ Method of teaching foreign languages." Pressed for further explanation, he added: "For example, if I am asked 'Have you your brothers umbrella' I reply, 'No, but I have my grandmothers' goloshes.'"

It is feared his injury may be fatal.

Union Services a Grand Success.

Union services were held on Sunday morning in St. Andrew's church and, as also, at the evening service in the Methodist church, were most largely attended. Assisting Rev. Mr. Kennedy was Rev. Mr. Wright of the Montreal conference and Rev. Alfred Trueblood of the Hamilton conference, who was a former member of the Methodist church here. Rev. Mr. Trueblood gave the morning address basing his remarks on the words found in Romans, chap. 1, verse 11, "For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift."

At the evening service Rev. Mr. Wright, of the Montreal Conference, occupied the pulpit and preached from the words found in St. Matthew, chap. 6, verse 33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." Both young men are men of promise, being fluent speakers and impressing their hearers with their own earnestness, both services being a great inspiration to the large numbers present.

A Comfortable Baby Never Cries

Most of Baby's discomforts are due to skin troubles. Baby's skin is as sensitive as a rose petal. So think what suffering is caused by the friction of damp diapers which rub the skin all raw, by prickly heat and all of the other rashes that keep Baby unhappy.

Please try Kora-Konia on Baby. It is impossible to tell in print how wonderfully this amazing powder heals and protects Baby's tender skin. Just try it. In just a little while the rashes go—raw spots heal. And the waterproof, velvety film of powder clings for hours, protecting the skin from friction. Don't let Baby suffer another hour—buy Kora-Konia at your druggist's.

SPLENDID CROPS AT BAILIEBORO

Wheat Is Running From 35 to 40 Bushels an Acre —Bailieboro News.

BAILIEBORO, August 22.—The bulk of the grain throughout the district is safely under cover. Farmers who have already threshed their grain report that wheat is averaging from 35 to 40 bushels per acre, and peas from 15 to 25 bushels per acre. The roots and corn are an average crop this year. The late rains have improved them, and they are looking fine for a good crop.

The prospects for a good crop of fruit are not very bright. Apples are inclined to be light, and what few plum there are, are rotting very badly before ripening.

The Man Who Brings the Message of Life Insurance is the True Friend of Us All

You know something of the work of the Life Insurance Man,---- but do you appreciate that if it were not for his efforts, the homes of Canada would be without the protection of three-and-a-half billion dollars of life insurance?

He is, by his daily work, "holding the bridge" against trial and distress for millions of wives and children, or providing "old age comfort" for many who would otherwise be in want.

Moved by a vision of the good to be accomplished, the Life Insurance Man has faced his problems with optimism, and now sees over a million dollars paid out each week by the Life Insurance Companies in Canada to the beneficiaries of his labor.

Life Insurance Representatives are the great ambassadors to your home. They will be pleased to show you how simply and easily you can throw the "mantle of protection" around it.

In Toronto this week the Life Insurance Representatives on this Continent are meeting for the purpose of further increasing their power to serve the public. Life Insurance Service extends greetings from all who are engaged in this great cause, and also on behalf of the policyholders throughout the Dominion of Canada.

LIFE INSURANCE SERVICE

THE FLAPPERS WILL SURVIVE

Official Organ of Union Hurls a Challenge--Modern Girl Bows No Longer to Old Ideas.

The flappers have organized! Actually, they have formed a union, and their official spokesman is a magazine, published in Chicago, called the Flapper, which, one is informed on the title page, is "not for old fogies." An excerpt from their monthly chat reads:

"The reformers have taken on a new tack. Badly defeated in their first vain attempts to crush the flapper beneath their run-down heels, they are now taking refuge behind the assertion that the flapper is nothing but a fad. But they are to be denied even this small relief. For the flapper is here to stay! A fad? So is the sun a fad, the stars a fad; so are the birds and babies a fad, so are fresh air and sunshine, and the sparkle of the sea, and the faith of friends and the pleasure of play and the love of life, so are they all fads. But they are fads that will endure as long as the human race endures. And once locomotives were a fad, steamboats were a fad, electricity was a fad, moving pictures and telephones and aeroplanes were called a fad, but they are not a fad to-day. They are institutions, and modern civilization cannot exist without them. Radio is also a fad—but who is rash enough to say that it is not destined to play one of the most important parts in the future progress of mankind? As surely as horse-drawn street cars, the blunderbuss and hoopskirts will never come back, so surely has the doom been sealed of the timid, trusting, tiring, servile, opinionless, unattractive, shrinking creature known as the old-fashioned girl.

"The flapper—meaning the modern girl—is not immodest, but she wants all that life has to offer her, and she means to get it. She has not lost the attributes of sentiment and tenderness, but she is protecting and enhancing them with a cloak of sophistication most necessary in a world of crooks, cowards and reformers. She is coming to the front simply because she is tired of being kept always in the background. She knows that all the world's a stage, and she remains in the limelight because she has the stage presence that never tires the audience.

In fact, "variety" is her middle name, and the secret of her success. One year she may bob her hair, and the next she may wear it to the ground—if she can. One season she may roll her sox, the next season she may decorate them with weird designs, and the next season, if fashion decrees, she may not wear any!

Product of Evolution.

A well-known American physician says that the flapper is a product of evolution. Man, in his progress, learned to do without a tail, and so he discarded it. Woman has learned that she no longer needs a heavy load on her head; the weight of hair which often caused headaches, and weariness. What did she do? She cut it off. The flapper calls it bobbing. Long switches, like the old whiskers, were just a decoy. Man found them in the way, and scientists proved that whiskers were germ carriers, and so men cut them off. That didn't make men flappers; it made them sensible.

Flappers don't wear corsets. Why should they? Remember away back when women strapped themselves in corsets, using fifty pounds of tension? That was to give them a figure. The flapper says the human figure is all right. She does not believe in artificiality (with the possible exceptions of enamelling her face and drawing her eye-brows into horizontal or vertical lines, as the case may be). She does not believe in excess baggage or a coat of armor. She gets along without them. From the health point, the flapper is excellent—but, did you ever carry on a conversation with a flapper? We did.

Flapper Vocabulary.

She was a flapper—we use the word without apology in its richest connotation—bobbed hair, knee-length skirts, sweater of an impassioned sunset hue, lavishly embellished with "frat" pins. She was discussing a youth of her acquaintance, and discussing him in terms of profound distaste—at least that was what one gathered from her tone and expression. But it was in a strange tongue.

"He's a bozo," said the flapper.

"And what," we asked, "is a bozo?"

"He's a rug hopper," she explained, "one of those kind that like to sit around on the chesterfield all evening. A parlor hound."

"You mean he doesn't want to take you out and spend his salary on you," we suggested.

"Absolutely not," said the flapper disconsolately, "never wants to go anywhere, except maybe dragging in the park. He's a sponge cake," she added scornfully.

We felt that we had followed the conversation so far, and sought further enlightment. Were there any further charges against this unfortunate young man? There were.

"He's one of those bell polishers," she explained. "That's something I can't stand. Wants to linger in the vestibule—porch lizards we call them."

"Where," we asked, "did you acquire this extraordinary vocabulary?"

The flapper blushed with modest pride.

"Most at school," she said. "It isn't hard to pick up." She reverted in a moment or two to her former topic.

"A chesterfield hound," said this amazing product of the modern educational system, moodily. "That is all he is."

"Doesn't he dance?" we inquired.

"Like a stutterbuss," she replied sardonically.

This was sufficiently enigmatic, but we didn't intend to betray our ignorance further.

"So what happened in the end," we inquired.

The flapper smiled wearily.

"I told him, finally, that as far as I was concerned, he could drag a sock any time," she said with unstudied ease. "He was blaa with me. I said I was gonna get me a goof that wuz the bees' knees." This, we gathered, was a young man, who could perform accurately the camel walk, the fox trot, the cat step, walk the dog, the bear hug, the pellican prance, and other zoological steps.

Agitated parents and educators frequently write to the newspapers and magazines, lamenting the shortcomings of the present generation. Part of the root of misunderstanding may lie in the fact that they no longer speak a common tongue. We would suggest, as a first step towards a better understanding, the older generation begin a sympathetic study of that strange and richly idomatic language known as flapperanto.

Miss Anna E. Durkee, now head of a million dollar mining corporation, began her career selling life insurance.

Drunks Just Said Ha Ha! Woman Marshall Resigns

DESLACS, N. D., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Bertha Ward, elected village marshal last spring when a complete women's administration was swept into office, has surrendered her star to the village council because "a drunken man or some one acting in a disorderly manner" would "just laugh at me and I was helpless."

Mrs. Ward's colleagues opposed her resignation, fearing failure of the feminine regime might be inferred. Her husband favoured it.

Daniel Olson, the new marshall, is a section hand. He announced an order of strict law enforcement.

"The job is too tough,' Mrs. Ward said to-day, explaining her resignation.

"But, believe me, it was a great experience," she declared. "I was just a little afraid to tackle the job last spring, but I decided that experience was all I needed. I found, however, that my lack of physical prowess was against me. Being a woman of small stature, I couldn't have any influence on a drunken man or some one acting in a disorderly manner. Instead they would just laugh at me and I was helpless."

She made no arrests although her efforts occasionally were expended in that direction. On one occasion, Deputy Sheriff Vandenotver was called from Minot to quell a disturbance at a dance but the fact that the justice of the peace had no warrant blanks on hand prevented an arrest.

Mrs. Ward was said to have been the first woman marshall in the United States.

Roamin' in Undies at Night Finds Wrong House--Biff!

DETROIT, Aug. 22. — Patrick Gilchrist, a farmer 75 years old, has hay fever. He also has a black eye and a cut on his head, in which three stitches have been taken.

And Patrick Gilchrist, as he left the Receiving Hospital to-day, declared he never, never again will visit in the city unless he has a door key to the house where he is a guest.

Gilchrest came to visit his daughter, Mrs. Elmer J. Edwards, at 513 McClellan avenue, three days ago. He was unused to the city heat and his hay fever grew worse. Late on Friday night Mr. Gilchrest stepped out on to the front porch clad only in his underclothes and sat in the proch swing, while he applied the atomizer to his burning nose. Up came a breeze and the door banged shut. He was locked out. It was late, and, while he sat on the porch contemplating his plight, he fell asleep.

A Fire Near.

Suddenly the fire department dashed down the street and awakened him from a doze. So he ran out into the street past several houses to see what the matter was.

This was at 1 a.m. At 2 a.m. Mr. Gilchrest was still trying to decide which of several houses on McClellan avenue he was visiting. Finally, he made a choice, aided in his identification by the porch swing and the parlor curtains, and cautiously he raised a window.

But He Was Mistaken.

But Mr. Gilchrest was mistaken. He raised the bed room window of a house at 5069 McClellan avenue, where John Alfred was asleep. Alfred awakened, saw a man coming in the window, and saw what he believed to be a burglar's flashlight. He grabbed Gilchrest, administered the black eye and cut before the lights were switched on and the old man could make his explanation that the atomizer he had was not a flashlight.

Gilchrest was taken to the Receiving Hospital for first aid, and there he remained until his daughter brought his clothing to-day.

"It's a wonder he didn't shoot me," Mr. Gilchrest told the nurses at the hospital as they dressed his aching head.

HOSTESS GOWNS.

Hostess gowns are new in name, at least. They are located sartorially somewhere between the negligee and the dinner frock. They are on long sweeping lins and have a certain attractive, sketchy effect.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHED INTO A BUGGY.

An accident, which might have been attended with more serious resulted, occurred on the Fenelon road near Jenning's Bridge on Saturday night after ten o'clock.

Mr. Styles, of Fenelon Falls, with wife and daughter, were on their way home in a buggy when a big touring car, which, it is claimed, was travelling at fast speed, crashed into them. The horse made an effort to get away, but Mr. Styles hung on to the lines, thus preventing the horse and buggy from going down over the ditch. The occupants were thrown out, Mrs. Styles falling between the horse and buggy. Fortunately they escaped injury but the shaft and crossbar of the buggy were broken and other portions of the vehicle damaged.

PEACE PARLEY ON N.S. COAL STRIKE

Representatives of Disputing Factions in Session Today.

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)— Representatives of the British Empire Steel Corporation, striking United Mine Workers and the Provincial Government are sitting in at preliminary peace conference, which opened promptly at 12 o'clock noon in the British Empire Steel Company's general offices here.

The United Mines Workers' executive came out of a secret session at Vidal Hotel about 11.45 and immediately took motor cars for the general office, refusing to make any statement as to the result of their consultation at the hotel.

It is known, however, that miners were considering a minimum wage, which they are willing to accept to affect a settlement of strike.

A PRESENTATION TO S. A. OFFICERS

The Salvation Army corps last night bade farewell to Adjutant and Mrs. Wallace Bunton, who have been transferred to Ottawa, and left today. A farewell supper was held at the Temple and a presentation of a sum of money took place. The presentation was made by J. Pammett and speeches eulogizing the work of the adjutant and his wife were made by Sergt. Major Williams who acted as chairman, Fred Gandy, Sergt.-Major R. C. Braund, J. J. Cunningham, treasurer of the corps and by other leading Salvationists.

Adjutant and Mrs. Bunton expressed their appreciation of the kind remarks made about their work, but modestly attributed the success of the work to the co-operation secured. They wished Peterborough corps continued prosperity.

THE GREAT CANADIAN HOME

MENACE OF SMOKE HITS PARLIAMENT.

London's Historic Building, Built of Limestone, Now Decaying.

LONDON, August 22. — England, many of whose ancient buildings are reaching the point of decay, is faced with a great problem now because time and London's smoky atmosphere are causing the Houses of Parliament to crumble visibly.

An inherent defect in the ancient structure is due to the fact that it was constructed of magnesium limestone, and in addition to the corrosive effect of the smoky atmosphere, iron has been used to bind the stones together. Once corrosion is begun a small piece of iron is able to shatter the largest stone.

A suggestion which has been advanced by an expert to arrest decay is that the entire structure should be white-washed. Tests of this nature are already under way on Westminster Abbey, and a small section of that venerable pile stands out like a white ghost from the rest of the time-worn surface.

The principal objection to the white-washing process is that for a while the Parliament Buildings would look like a huge barn, and then when the covering began to crack and peel, would look worse than ever.

SENTENCED TO ONE YEAR ASKED FOR TWO YEARS

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press). — Sentenced to a term of one year in jail when he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft, William McGuire, the man of many parts, implored Judge Achim, in Hull Police Court, this morning, to please give him a two year sentence.

The request was granted. He was prompted to make this unusual request by the fact that he did not like Bordeau Jail where he would probably have gone. He preferred the penitentiary, and he will accordingly be transported to St. Vincent De Paul.

AGREE TO SETTLE ILLINOIS STRIKE

Operators and Miners Get Together on Plan

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—An agreement to settle the Illinois coal strike was reached this afternoon by a sub-committee of Illinois operators and the miners' scale committee.

The settlement plan is simply a renewal of the 1922 wage contract, which is in accord with the recent Cleveland agreement for a settlement of the general strike which began April 1 last.

Although the settlement plan has not been signed, leaders in the sub-committee conference were agreed that ratification of the agreement would not be long delayed.

PLAN TO OFFSET THE HIGH COST OF GASOLINE.

Recent French Tests to Develop Better Carburetion For Automobiles Is Being Continued.

Cars smaller and lighter than those generally used in the United States, recently have averaged about 60 miles to the gallon of gasoline in official public contests. The winner in the principal competition of this sort made 61 miles to the gallon.

Large cars, weighing more than 4,000 pounds, averaged close to 16 miles to the gallon in the recent Strasburg race of 440 miles over the Grand Prix course and under the same regulations. This was the first race of this kind organized by the Grand Prix officials, and it proved such a success that a similar contest is announced for next year.

These results, however, were under the special conditions that govern all such affairs, and admittedly are not attainable by the average driver, particularly in the United States.

Several cars of a popular American make competed in the LeMans test for light cars, and their showing illustrates the progress made in economizing fuel. Equipped with the same carburetter as the winner that made 61 miles an hour, one ran 39 miles on a gallon, and another made only 36 miles.

These economy tests, according to carbureter manufacturers, taught them lessons that will show next year in improved design, but so far there has been no revolution in engineering that is applicable to automobiles in general.

Racing tests, however, give a misleading idea of results, for the cars that then average 60 miles to the gallon, operate normally at about 35 miles to the gallon. The difference is explained as due to six factors: the use of a special gasoline: equipment with the best carbureter; carbureter adjustments to get a weak mixture that would not serve in ordinary driving; expert driving; perfect mechanical condition of the car and special adjustment of the motor for high compression and pronounded advance of the spark.

The reasons for the better results obtained by French cars over their American competitors are attributed to several things. The American cars were heavier, and it was mathematically certain that it would take more fuel to drive the greater weight, particularly as the American cars travelled 20 per cent. faster. The American cars also stood higher from the ground and met greater wind resistance, also the American cars had much larger motors which turned over at a much slower speed, so that greater consumption was inevitable.

When the different conditions to be met by the French and the American manufacturer are considered, experts do not generally feel that there is any remarkable superiority in the French car. These differences grow out of costs of operation and the temperament of the public. Gasoline costs nearly twice as much in France as in the United States, and French makers, therefore, find it profitable to spend more money to produce an economical motor. This is done in several ways, but principally by having a well-finished, small motor, with relatively high compression, turning over at a high speed. Some small motors make 4,000 revolutions per minute, and French racing cars, approach 5,000 R.P.M. The French are educated to look more to gasoline consumption than to speed and acceleration. They prefer a small motor with four speeds, and they are content to shift gears constantly so as to save gasoline.

Americans over here sometimes wonder whether the higher original cost of French cars really offsets the saving in gasoline. French cars corresponding in size, power, appearance and ability to travel cost much more than their American rivals. American quantity production accounts for much difference in price, although Citroen, called the "Ford of France," by far the numerical leader among French cars, still suffers greatly when compared with American cars in price.

FIRST STEP TO MEET PRESIDENT HARDING'S PLAN

You Needn't Be Afraid of Hurting the Enamel

HOT water and soap will keep SMP Diamond and Pearl Ware perfectly clean. But take a steel knife to scrape the pot if you want to. It's quicker, sometimes, than leaving it to soak. You can't scratch SMP Diamond or Pearl Ware with a knife any more than you can scratch a plate.

SMP Diamond or Pearl WARE

"A Face of Porcelain and a Heart of Steel"

You'll recognize them on sight. Diamond is blue and white outside and milk-white inside, with three coats of enamel. Pearl is grey and white, with two coats. Be sure of the trade mark, "SMP" and the word "Quality," in the pointed shield.

Do you know that a Diamond or Pearl Ware pot that sold for $1.50 last year, can be bought now for 90 cents?

ADVENTURES IN THE FAR NORTH

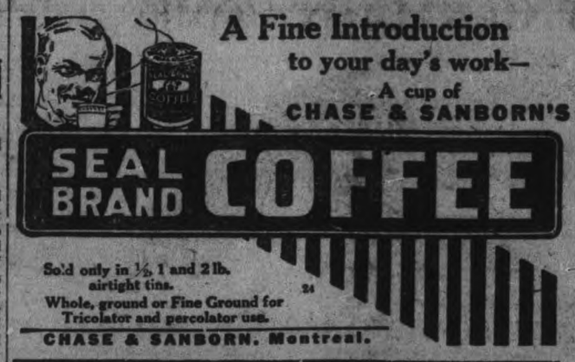
Explored the Little Known Ogoki River

OSHKIGMONG, Aug. 22.—Alfred McCue has returned to Chemong after a long and adventurous trip in the far north. He was principal guide for Mr. James A. Green, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and this made his twenty-sixth summer with him. The other guides were John Tobico, the chief cook, and Wm. Smoke and Merrit Ford Taylor, the pack and canoe carriers. Mr. Green's party comprised, in addition to himself, Prof. N. M. Fenneman, head of the department of geology in the University of Cincinnati, and Messrs. Herbert and George Randall. The object of the trip was the exploration of the Ogoki River. This is the principal tributary of the Albany, and it is but little known. There are no accurate maps of it in existence, and travellers must literally feel their way. Happily, all went well, and in spite of great waterfalls and furious rapids, the party had no misadventures, this proving the skilfulness of the guides in shooting the rapids.

They saw many moose, several bears and timber wolves. The trip was by way of the Grand Trunk Pacific to Collins, a station to the north, west of Nipegon, thence by a chain of lakes and rivers, with, of course, frequent portages, to Smooth Rock Lake. This is a beautiful sheet of water, teeming with fish. This lake is really one of the sources of the Ogoki, which is a river much larger than any of the rivers in cultivated Ontario. From that lake they went to White Water Lake, which is a gem in the vast and untravelled forests of the north. The Ogoki flows out of this lake to the east. They left it at Otter River, and reached the railroad again at Umbabika.

In the trip south from the Ogoki they paddled across Summit Lake, one of the great natural curiosities of Canada. This lake, some seven miles long by two wide, exactly straddles the continental divide. It pays equal tribute to the waters north and south. The party entered it by the Kapikotongwa River, which ultimately flows into Hudson Bay. Summit Lake is the source of the river. They left it by the Umbabika River, which flows from its southern end.

Probably no guide has covered as much of the country as Mr. McCue. Last year he went with Mr. Green down the Albany, and for some years he has explored the little known and seldom visited portions of Ontario that lie between Lake Superior and the Hudson Bay, a region full of turbulent rivers and splendid lakes.



Country Boy Has Advantage Over City Dweller in Radio Reception

BY PAUL F. GODLEY.

Many city folks who have grasped at radio as a delightfully fascinating novelty may be expected to tire of it soon.

Their efforts toward getting the best out of radio meet frequently with discouragement. Electric elevators, flashing signs, steel buildings, cramped quarters and lightning-shy landlords — all bar them from pleasures which are experienced by their more fortunate brothers in the suburbs, the small village or the farm.

Country folk appreciate radio most They do not have the varied forms of entertainments which their city brothers enjoy and are therefore much more appreciative of the programs broadcasted by the larger stations.

They can rig up their sets easily. In most cases, supports for the antenna wires grow near the house. If not, the wires of a fence, when properly arranged, make a very good aerial. There are no steel buildings to absorb the feeble impulses.

No Lightning Fear.

The farmer has no fear of lightning. He has lived in the open with it. He knows that the wires which pick up the radio signals will bring no more lightning than the telephone line.

During the winter months when life on the farm has the least to offer, radio is offering most. The long, cold nights bear signals from far and near. Entertaining rograms can be selected at will from any one of two dozen stations within a radius of 1,000 miles if a good type of regenerative receiver is available.

News of the day, weather reports, market gossip, entertainment of great variety, fashion talks for the women—all tend to make radio popular in the country.

INJUNCTION IS OBTAINED TO PROTECT FREE STATE FUNDS

A LARGE SUM.

NEW YORK, August 22 (Canadian Press). — A temporary injunction, restraining local banks in which are deposited moneys collected for the Irish Republican cause from releasing them to Eamonn DeValera or any of his agents, was signed late yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Burr on application of attorneys representing Michael Collins and other officers of the Irish Free State forces.

It was announced that approximately $2,300,000 was tied up by the order.

Service of complaint on DeValera and the other defendants was ordered to be made through the insertion of advertisements in papers in England and Ireland. Most of the funds involved are said to be deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company and the Harriman National Bank.

The main contention urged against the DeValera custody of the Irish funds, the application for an injunction read, was that Ireland is now a nation; that DeValera is against the present Government, and is a fugitive, and that he is not entitled to the money.

If DeValera or his forces were granted the present funds in United States banks, the Free State representatives contend, it would be devoted to the carrying on of further revolution against the present Government and prolong needless and unjustifiable civil war in a country which has expressed by the ballot its preference for the Irish Free State form of Government.

It is further stated in the application that the Irish Free State is prepared to make good the bonds of that nation and that the quickest way to end the present revolt is to deprive DeValera and his aides of funds from this country.

All cheques on these funds were deposited in the local banks in DeValera's name up to the time of the signing of the Irish Peace Treaty, it was said yesterday. The money was placed under the jurisdiction of three trustees — Bishop Fogarty, James O'Mara, and DeValera. They in turn were responsible to the Dail Eireann.

Opponents of DeValera charged that, in spite of their protests, not less than $125,000 was withdrawn from the Irish funds in this city during the early part of this year.

There was begun some time ago a series of inquiries concerning the exact status of the funds. Those who opposed DeValera charged they could obtain no information from him and that legal proceedings were thus necessitated.

The firm of attorneys representing the Irish Free State officials yesterday deposited with the county clerk a bond of $50,000 guaranteeing the good faith of the applicants. The funds involved are represented by $1,500,000 in securities and $800,000 in cash.

OVERCOME ON PASSING FIRST DEATH SENTENCE

BELFAST, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press)—Lord Justice Andrews, brother of Thomas Andrews, the designer of the ill-fated liner Titanic, and also a victim when the ship was wrecked, nearly swooned when passing his first death sentence on a prisoner here.

When he was nearing the end of the death sentence his words were inaudible and he was so overcome that he rushed from the court as he finished.

The prisoner whom the judge was addressing and who had murdered a little girl under brutal circumstances, stood as if petrified until the warders seized him and took him to the cells.

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mark the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MEN WENT TO THE WEST

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—It is estimated by Railway officials that twenty-five thousand men have gone west for harvesting Canada's great wheat crop. The Canadin Pacific, according to nearest figures, has carried about seventeen thousand men west and the Canadian National and Grand Trunk an additional eight thousand.

INCREASE POLISH ARMY TO MEET SOVIET MOVE

Warsaw Authorities Act in Consequence of Border Raids by Russian Troops

WARSAW Aug. 22—Poland's army, which normally numbers 250,000 troops, is now being increased to 300,000 on account of the presence of detachments of the Russian Soviet army on the Polish frontier, according to a statement made today in Polish military circles.

Reports have reached here that the Russian army is being re-organized by Colonel Bauer, who is said to be assisted by several hundred German staff officers. The strength of the Soviet divisions, it is reported has been increased from 10,000 to 30,000.

Polish army divisions are now being increased to meet the strength of those of the Russian army. While the Polish chief of staff is not alarmed over the situation and believes that Moscow has dropped its Polish campaign. Soviet troops continue to annoy the Poles by continued night raids across the frontier upon harvests that are being accumulated in villages. The Polish army, it is said, is merely renewing certin forms of military supplies in order to be ready for any eventuality.

Reports also have been received here that Moscow has been making attempts to obtain explosives and other military supplies in the United States but without success. It is believed by Polish military authorities that the Soviet Government is also attempting to obtain supplies from Czechoslovakian plants.

She Has Raised A Family of Ten

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY NEVER FAILED HER

Mrs. Ervin W. Stairs, of East Waterville, N. B., writes: "I have raised a family of ten children and have always used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawber., for Summer Complaint, and it has never failed.

Four years ago, when the cholera was about, some of my neighbors called in the doctor, but could get no relief. I told them about "Dr. Fowler's", and after taking it they were soon well again. I also used it for two of my own children at the same time when they were passing blood, and a few doses soon made them well."

If you want to be on the safe side ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and insist in getting what you ask for. There are many imitations on the market so be sure and get the original "Dr. Fowler's". Price 50c a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SAYS CANADIAN LABOR LEGISLATION LEADS U. S.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Superiority of Canadian labor legislation over that of the United States was the subject which Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor stressed in speaking at a Liberal Speakers' Associations banquet here last night. He instanced the fact that the Canadian Disputes Act had brought about negotiations between Canadan railways and shopmen whereas in the United States the decision of the United States Labor Board, with the backing of the law, had been followed by a strike.

SCEPTRE WILL END DAYS IN ENGLAND.

Famous Race Horse Is to Remain in Country.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press.)—Sceptre, the famous race horse, whose sale to Count Lundgren, an Argentine breeder, was announced a short time ago, is to remain in this country after all.

Lord Glanely sold her to Count Lundgren recently for £500. It was the Count's intention to send her to his stud farm in Argentina. But the announcement that the wonderful mare was to go so far from the scene of her victories on the turf provoked such an outburst of sentimental regret that a movement was started by influential supporters of horse racing to keep her in England. Lord Glanely and Count Lundgren talked the matter over in a friendly spirit with the result that it was mutually agreed to call the sale off.

Sceptre is being presented to the national Stud with no other stipulation but that on her death Lady Noreen Bass, wife of Sir William Bass, who gave $25,000 for Sceptre as a four-year-old, and Mr. Sievier who gave £10,000 for her as a yearling, shall each get one of her hoofs when she dies, and Lord Glanely the other two.

In addition Lord Glanely joins Sommerville Tattersall, another exowner of the mare, in giving £500 to the London Hospital for the establishment of a Sceptre Ward.

Sceptre by many is considered the greatest race horse that ever raced on the British turf. In 1902 she won the 2,000 guineas, the 1,000 guineas, the Oaks and the St. Leger.

Mrs. Mary Emery of Cincinnati, O., will spend $5,000,000 building a model city to be controlled and directed in the interests of its residents.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and setting the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Canadianizing Canada

TRAVEL is one of the great elements in education and is one of the fundamentals of good citizenship. The desire to know one's own country should be inculcated into the system of every Canadian and to obtain any adequate knowledge, how can it be acquired better than by travel? "Canadians, See Canada," and "See Canada First," etc., have been adopted as slogans in the endeavor to create in the minds of Canadians the advantages of national travel and the attractions Canada has to offer.

The purport of this article is not only to give expression to the importance of Canadians seeing Canada that they may have a fuller appreciation of what their own country has to offer them in the way of scenery and interest, but to emphasize particularly the value of tourist travel to the nation, and the duty we owe ourselves in developing our tourist territory—so to speak to capitalize the scenery. Possibly no other country in the world gives up to its people a greater area of country for recreation purposes and these great playgrounds are not confined to any particular section but are spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Then again from the seashore resorts of the Atlantic and the lower St. Lawrence to the Pacific Coast the interests are so varied and so distinctly different from one another that our Canadian people may use their vacations for years and find new scenery and new interest annually. From the quiet beauty of the Maritime Provinces to the more rugged scenery of the Province of Quebec, the almost continuous lake and river country of northern Ontario, the Rocky Mountains so immense, beautiful, and wonderful, on to the Pacific Coast, one cannot imagine without personal vision and knowledge what a wonderful asset we have in our widespread playgrounds and national parks.

But to make the most of these wonderful heritages, to realize the fullest amount of profit, they must be developed. The Provincial and Dominion Governments must be keenly alive to what the possibilities are. Good roads to the wonder places and beauty spots are essential so that the way of the tourist may be made easy and attractive.

Much has been done by the railways to advertise our tourist territory, which has resulted in millions of dollars being spent in Canada annually, principally by our neighbors to the south of us, but the fringe has as yet only been touched. The Canadian National Railways have just opened Jasper Park Lodge, in Jasper Park, that largest and most wonderful of all our national parks, 4,400 square miles of magnificent mountainous scenery. There wild life roams unmolested and thousands of tourists from all parts of the globe will gladly assemble annually when the park is fully developed with good motor roads, and the system of lodges so auspiciously opened on June 15th last are extended through the park. Jasper Park is but one of the many feature places to be developed. Mount Robson Park, just fifty miles west from Jasper station, is another. Aside from Mount Robson being the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies (13,068 feet), the park which is entirely within the province of British Columbia, is an Alpine kingdom in itself, but until such time as it is developed, the glory and majesty of its scenery is denied the tourist who does not choose to ride a cayuse.

By way of comparison it has been stated that tourist traffic in California alone nets approximately a hundred million dollars a year, and the more northern Pacific Coast States, Washington and Oregon, add fully half that amount to the total, whereas it has been said that tourist traffic in Canada all told, did not net beyond ten or twelve millions.

Again, the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have all the advantages of the State of Maine, but comparatively little has been done to develop them. What this development may mean in a measure can be expressed by the fact that Maine last year reaped a harvest of over $40,000,000 in tourist business.

Our wonderful tourist territory is undoubtedly one of our largest assets, and greatest heritages to be developed, and in the opinion of international travellers who have visited us, Canada possesses the finest aggregation of scenery in the world.—Toronto Saturday Night.

BIGAMIST AGAIN FINDS TROUBLE

Out of Prison on Parole, He is Arrested With Flint Girl, Bride of Year

DETROIT, Aug., 22.— Frank Gilman's second wife took her own life and the lives of her two children in a Boston rooming house. His first wife, reading an account of the tragedy, had him arrested on a bigamy charge. He was sentenced to five years in the Michigan State Prison in Jackson in July.

Paroled two weeks ago from Jackson after he had served but 36 days, Gilman, a former member of the Marine Corps, was arested here by Highland Park Police at 55 Geravenue, where detectives say he was living with Mrs. Olive Taylor, 18 years old, of Flint, Mich., bride of a year.

Gilman, who is but 22 years old will now be returned to Monroe for violating his parole as the result of his third escapade. The arrest was made at the request of Robert Taylor, the woman's husband, who trailed the couple from Flint to Highland Park. Taylor said he was willing to forgive his wife.

His First Marriage.

Gilman's troubles with women began three years ago when he married Angeline Dilworth, a former student at the State Normal College at Ypsilanti, while he was on leave in New York. The marriage took place March 12, 1919. A few days later he deserted wife No. 1 and married Dorothy Bumpus in Monroe, Mich., Dec. 22, 1919.

He lived with the latter wife until July, 1922 when after a quarrel, she locked herself and her children in a room and turned on a gas jet. The first Mr. Gilman read the account in a Detroit paper while staying at the home of a sister, Mrs. Edward Huston, 1537 Park View avenue, with her infant son, Norton. She went to Monroe immediately, related her story to the prosecutor and obtained a warrant. Gilman was arrested in Boston and brought to Monroe for trial.

Tells of His Woes.

Gilman discussed his matrimonial troubles freely at his cell in the Highland Park police station. He stated that he was born in Boston and lived there up until the time of the World War. He had been keeping company with wife No. 2 a Boston girl, for several years, he said. When he joined the Marine Corps they were engaged.

After the war Gilman was sent to Quantico, Va., to await discharge. He obtained a 30-day furlough from the station, he says, and came to New York to visit his mother, who was living in an apartment there. In the same apartment lived Angeline Dilworth. After an Automobile ride and a visit to several cafes he married wife No. 1, he stated, purely on the spur of the moment.

In the meantime, the promise of marriage he had made to his childhood sweetheart haunted him, he said, and he concluded it was his duty to marry her. After the ceremony the couple went back to Boston to live.

..."I Really Loved Her'

"I really loved her, Gilman declared. 'But just before the birth of our second child I spoke of my first wife in an unguarded moment. This prayed on her mind and several weeks after the child was born she took her own life.

"I met Olive Taylor in Boston after the war. She told me her home was in Flint, Mich. After I was paroled from Jackson I remembered her and wrote a letter to her which was answered. Then I went up to see her."

Gilman said he met Mrs. Taylor and her mother and persuaded them to move to Detroit. He was to room at their home here. He and Mrs. Taylor started out to find a suitable place, he said, this move leading up to their arrest at 55 Gerald avenue. Gilman declared he did not know Mrs. Taylor was married.

Since his stay in Detroit Gilman has been working at the Ford plant. He was wounded and gassed during the war.

Bonds of the new issue will be sent to the banks for delivery immediately after the receipt of the surrendered bonds.

Love Letters That Made History

By JOSEPH KAYE

Benjamin Franklin and Mme. Helvetius.

Our Ben Franklin was not a passionate lover; his epistles do not burn with the pompous phrases of a Napoleon in love or the fine imagery of a Byron—his sense of humor saved him from any extremes. Thus a love-letter to a lady who had won his heart forms more entertaining than romantic reading.

The lady in question was Madame Helvetius, widow of a French philosopher. Franklins wife "Derby," had gone to her rest after a satisfying span of years and Franklin's heart went out to the philosopher's widow—as it had gone out to some others in the same period. He wrote to her:

"Mortified by the barbarous resolution pronounced by you so positively yesterday evening that you would remain single for the rest of your life as a compliment due to the memory of your husband, I retired to my chamber. Throwing myself upon the bed I dreamt that I was dead and was transported to the Elysian fields.

"I was asked whether I wished to see any persons in particular and I replied that I wished to see the philosophers.

"There are two who live here at hand in this garden.'

"'Who are they?'

"'Socrates and Helvetius.'

"'I esteem them both highly but let me see Helvetius first because I understand a little French and not a word of Greek.'

"I was conducted to him; he received me with much courtesy, having known me, he said, some time past. He asked me a thousand questions relative to the war, to the present state of religion, of liberty, of the government in France.

"'You do not imagine, then,' said I, 'after your dear friend, Mme. Helvetius; yet she loves you exceedingly; I was in her company not more than an hour ago.'

"'Ah,' said he, 'you ask me to recur my past happiness which ought to be forgotten in order to be happy here. For many years I could think of nothing but her, though at length I am consoled. I have taken another wife, the most like her I could find; she is not indeed, altogether so handsome but she has a great fund of wit and good sense; and her whole study is to please me. She is at this moment gone to fetch the best nectar and ambrosia to regale me. . .'

"As he finished these words the new Mme. Melvetius entered with the nectar and I recognized her immediately as my former friend, Mrs. Franklin. I reclaimed her but she answered me coldly:

"'I was a good wife to you for forty-nine years and four months, nearly half a century; let that content you. I have formed a new connection here which will last me to eternity.'

"Indignant at this refusal of my Eurydice I resolved to quit those ungrateful shades and return to the good world again, to the sun and you! Here I am! let us avenge ourselves."

WINNING $15,000 PROVED HIS RUIN.

Captain D. H. Perin, D.C.M., Sleeps Out On Embankment.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Pres)—First a private in the army; then winner of 30,000 in a Calcutta Sweepstake; country gentleman in Surrey; in the Army again and promoted to a captaincy; sleeping, penniless, on the Thames Embankment—such, in brief is the surprising history of Captain D. H. Penn, D. C.M. Captain Penn's life was ruined by good luck. The anticlimax to his years of luxury as a Calcutta Sweepstake winner in his unsuccessful search for employment in London:

If Penn had not drawn a lucky number in the Calcutta Sweepstakes in 1909 he would probably have had a successful and congenial career in the Army. His good luck brought him a few years of luxury and then left him penniless and workless. In 1898 he was a trooper in the 21st Lancers. At the Battle of Omdurman he rode in the famous charge and was awarded the D.C.M. for distinguished conduct on the field. Later he went to India, where he was transferred to the 12th Lancers and promoted to sergeant.

In 1909 Penn and a comrade bought a Calcutta Sweepstake ticket between them. They drew King Edward's horse, Minoru. Sergeant Penn's share of the Prize was about 30,000 pounds. He bought his discharge and came home to England, where he purchased an attractive house and grounds, at Westcott, near Dorking. There he lived the life of a country gentleman, with ample money for his needs.

Penn bought a tobacconist's business in the West End of London, and for a time everything went well. He transferred a large amount of money in trust for his wife.

By 1914, following domestic and other trouble, Penn found himself a poor man. He joined up immediately after the outbreak of the war, and was soon promoted to Captain. Glad to be back at his old trade, he served throughout the war.

Now, as Captain Penn D.C.M. the winner of 30,000 pounds, he tramps the streets looking for work and finds his night's "lodging" on the Embankment.

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS:

Flower lovers must begin to plan for blossoms in the house while still enjoying those which bloom in the garden. Freesias should be started immediately if they have not already been planted, as it takes several months for them to mature. Paper white narcissi planted in September will bloom by Thanksgiving. Chinese lilies will flower almost as soon, and the little Duc von Thol tulips started in pots now or a little later will be ready by Christmas.

Fur Coats Are Within Purse's Reach Now

BY MARIAN HALE

One can look forward to a coal shortage with greater equanimity when one remembers that there can be no possibility of a fur shortage.

Judging by the number of fur coats in the shops, flaunting their summer prices, there must be at least one for every woman and child in the country.

Prices are fixed on a more sliding scale than ever before; that is, they have slid further down into the grasp of the average wallet.

Never was there such variety as to style. Last season one had to wear a wrap, no matter what type of fur was used or what the general construction plan of the wearer happened to be.

This season there are three distinct types of coat, the short sport model, the regulation length coat with Nippon sleeves and a belt, and the capes and elaborate wraps.

* * *

The flapper will fall hard for the sports model. In length it varies from 32 to 40 inches. Civet cat, natural muskrat, racoon, caracul, Persian lamb, Hudson seal and squirrel are furs more frequently employed.

In price these garments vary from $100 to $500 though the average price is between $100 and $200.

The sports coat has a dash and youthfulness lacking in most fur coats. It is ideal for the slim girl, but Miss Avoirdupois, unless she has no feeling against the barrel silhouette, would better take unto herself one of the longer straight models.

These are conservative in cut and may be had straight or flaring about the hem. Usually they have collars of contrasting fur and a long silk cord for a belt.

For these, dealers tell us, Hudson seal is most to be recommended for its wearing qualities and for its general adaptability. It may be worn everywhere the sports model could be worn and besides is ideal for wear with afternoon and dinner frocks.

* * *

Black and gray caracul have stepped to the front for this type of coat and so have the soft gray squirrel and the subtle moleskin, still beloved in spite of its reputation for non-wearing qualities.

Having thrown utility to the winds and decided to purchase an elaborate cape wrap, there is no end to the selection or the combinations of fur that may be used.

From the plainer ones of Hudson seal, squirrel or mole, one passes to the elaborately matched ones of mink, sable and ermine and the prices pass into four figures.

But one can't help wondering if there is a fur-bearing animal roaming at large that has escaped the trapper.

WILL NEVER TOUCH A PENNY AGAIN.

Extraordinary Resolution By An English Traveller.

BRIGHTON, ENGLAND, Aug. 22. (Associated Press).—"Money is a curse and the root of all evil. I will never touch another penny as long as I live."

This was the extraordinary resolution made by a Brighton man, who, of his own free will, has become penniless and is determined to live without money.

He is Henry Mitchell, who until recently was a commercial traveller employed by a well known firm, and was earning £600, or about $2,700, a year and commission.

When Mitchell came to his decision, he gave up his job, drew £200 commission due to him and give it to his wife. He had 28 pounds 10 saillings left. This he gave to the local poor, and with his last penny he bought a newspaper.

Referring to his action, Mitchell, who is a middle-aged man, said: "I have come to the conclusion that money is the cause of all the unhappiness in the world. Three weeks ago I decided I would never touch it again. In future I shall endeavor to lead the live of Christ on modern lines.

"I believe I possess gifts that the ordinary man does not, and as the result of my experience I shall be able to give advice to people with business or personal worries. In return for my services I shall be willing to accept only food, drink and lodging. All I ask for is bread and water."

DELEHANTY KNOCKED COVER OFF THE BALL.

In the earlier days of baseball before the adjective foundry had been so hard at work as it has been in recent years, and before there were young men who sat down and curdled their brains devising baseball phrases, the popular way of saying that a team could bat was that it "knocked the cover off the ball." A thirty-third degree bug of the Order of Bugs wants to know if such a thing ever happened in a regular big league game. It did. Delehanty once knocked the cover off a ball and the cover was fielded to first by the pitcher, while the ball, unwinding yarn at every jump, was pounced upon by an outfielder. Everybody got tangled up before the play was adjusted.

POPE PIUS GIVES KEEN ATTENTION TO SMALL DETAILS.

ROME, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press).—A fresh and searching wind of inquiry and reorganization is blowing through the Vatican with the advent of the new Pope, and some of the old established dependents of the palace, who are very numerous, find it altogether too bracing to be pleasant. Pius XI. comes of a practical and prosperous bourgeois stock, and feels himself perfectly competent to look into even the smallest details of the vast organization of which he is the head.

The Pontiff, while adhering on state and ceremonial occasions to all the pomp and splendor which is traditional in the Bascilica of St. Peter and the Vatican Palace, desires that his private life be ruled by a truly apostolic simplicity and frugality, and he is reported to have said that he intends to spend money rather on the propagation of the Faith than on the restoration or beautifying of buildings and monuments.

In Italian households, humble or aristocratic, the cooks buy all that is necessary for the feeding of the family, and good housewives usually go through the cook's accounts every day in order to keep check of them. It appears that His Holiness does the same. It is related that the other day a fowl, price 20 lire (rather less than a dollar) was provided for the Pope's supper. For some reason he did not eat it, and orders were given that the following day the cook make chicken croquettes for lunch. The croquettes duly arrived, but when the accounts were looked through in the evening, it was found that another fowl, price 20 lire, had been charged in the cook's book. The cook was called in and "had his head washed," which is the quaint Roman expression for getting a good scolding, and the Pope told him he had no use for any servant who was not strictly honest and accurate in his charges.

It appears that some of the administration of the huge Vatican Palace has been carried on in a rather haphazard fashion. For instance, thousands of lire were often paid for overtime work to the regular staff of workmen who receive weekly or monthly wages. The Pope, counting up the regular day's work and the overtime charged, pointed out that one poor man must have been working for considerably over 20 hours out of the 24. "I hope I shall never see such an item in the accounts again," said the Pontiff with a quiet twinkle in his eye; "it would be indeed—cruel to expect anyone to overwork himself to that extent."

It has been discovered that the alterations and repairs to a papal palace in the Piazza Scossacavelli, near St. Peter's, which is to be the seat of the Institute of Oriental Studies, have cost, although they are not nearly finished, more than would have sufficed to buy a whole new palace. A strict rule has therefore been made that no expenditure surpassing 500 lire may under any circumstances be made without the approval of a Commission, consisting of Cardinals Gasparri, Merry del Val, De Lai and Sbarretti, to whom the Pope has entrusted the duty of looking into every lira that is paid out.

HOW PRISONER WON HIS OWN FREEDOM.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press).—The thrilling story of Thomas Gray's heroism in attempting to save a drowning prisoner of Peterhead Jail has been a sequel in keeping with his courage—he has won his own freedom from prison. Gray, a convict in Peterhead Jail, under life sentence for the murder of a Glasgow woman, had served fifteen years of his sentence when the incident in question occurred.

About a month ago, Thomas Gray, Alfred Coates and other Peterhead prisoners were engaged loading stones beside a water-logged quarry hole at Stirlinghill when Coates leaped into the hole, which contained fifty-five feet of water. Coates had been sentenced to ten years of penal servitude, and was mentally defective, and his sentence evidently was preying on his mind. Gray at once threw off his coat, plunged in after Coates, gripped the drowning man, and made heroic efforts to save him. Those peering down into the hole were witnesses of a desperate fight, in which the issue was life or death. So violent were the struggles of Coates that both he and his would-be rescuer were drawn under the water. Gray was compelled to relax his hold and come to the surface.

Thus Coates went to the doom he sought, and Gray—thoroughly exhausted—was saved from death by another convict, David Alexander.

At the inquiry, Sheriff Laing warmly commended the action of Gray and Alexander. The former is now enjoying his liberty, and it is probable that the latter will receive some consideration from the authorities. Gray's crime of murder was committed in a moment of passion when he was under the influence of drink.

MILLBROOK BLACK KNIGHTS ATTENDED DIVINE WORSHIP

Rev. R. M. Patterson, of Fraserville, Believes the Royal Black Preceptory Second to None of All Fraternal Societies.

MILLBROOK, August 22. — The Millbrook Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, headed by the military band, attended divine worship in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, August 20th, between 50 and 60 of the members being in attendance. The congregation was unusually large for the summer season, quite a number having to find seats in the gallery which is seldom occupied except on special occasions.

By the request of the order, Rev. R. M. Paterson of Fraserville, who is the District Deputy Grand Chaplain, preached the sermon to the visiting brethren, though the pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, whose holidays are now completed, was also present, and assisted with the service. The choir turned out in good strength, and had prepared special music for the occasion.

Following the opening prayer by Rev. Mr. Paterson, the anthem "Set the Happy Joy Bells Ringing," was sung and during the offering Mrs. G. W. Sayles sang the solo, "Over the Hills to Sunlight Land," in her usual excellent voice. The scripture lesson from Rev. 21, "The New Jesusalem," was read by the pastor, who in a few well chosen words welcomed the Sir Knights to his church and also the preacher of the evening.

The latter responded expressing his pleasure in being present and his gratitude to Rev. A. M. McConnachie of Centreville, who was taking his services at Bailieboro that evening thus making it possible for Mr. Tucker to be relieved of the obligation. Mr. Paterson acknowledged also that he felt upheld by the prayers of his brethren and friends for the task before him; failing this moral support he would be utterly inadequate for the occasion. The order of the Black Knights of Ireland, the speaker explained, is both scriptural and spiritual, and he believed it second to none in the annals of fraternity throughout the world.

The Sermon.

The text of the evening was taken from Rev. 19:24, "The Kings of the earth do bring their glory and honor into it," and in conjunction with this verse on that would have special significance for the visiting lodge from Rev. 19:16, "And He hath on His vesture, and on His thigh, a name written, King of Kings and Lord of Lords."

The study of history, from the time of Israel's wanderings in the wilderness up to the present time, shows progress all along the centuries, and the pessimists to the contrary, on thoughtful student can escape the conviction that the religion of Jesus Christ is taking greater and deeper hold on the hearts of men. The ark and the tabernacle, in the days of Israel's journeyings, typified to the chosen people the presence of Jehovah, and the religious ideals of their day; but their conception of Deity was too provincial. Watch the course of events and notice how this narrow groove of thought expanded in the time of the kings when David, whose ideas were far beyond his time, desired to build a temple of unexcelled grandeur for the worship of the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords. His son, Solomon, had the honor of carrying to completion this great task. Contrast, too, the work of destruction as the giant cedars were felled upon Lebanon and the massive slabs of marble were cut from the quarries ,and the work of construction as the temple rose silently, without sound of hammers or other tools, upon the summit of Mount Moriah. So God's work in the hearts of human beings goes silently on and out of apparent chaos He brings the finished, and perfected fulfilment of His will.

The fact too that the Temple was eight times larger than the Tabernacle represents the enlarged ideas which the Jewish nation was gaining of the power and majesty of Jehovah. It is a long stride across the centuries to the time of John's vision on Patmos, but does it mark progress? Surely ;the city and the temple which John saw far exceeded in size and grandeuh the earthly Jerusalem or the temple which Solomon erected. And the fact that entrance was to be gained on every side, "on the north three gates, on the east three gates, on the south three gates, and on the west three gates," shows their broadening ideas of the grace and salvation provided through Jesus Christ. Applying the question to the present day, does not the very description of the size and the glory of the city of John's vision inspire us with courage and devotion to scale greater heights and rise to higher ideals because of the unlimited power of Him whom we serve--the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords.

Order within An Order.

Addressing himself more particularly to the Lodge present the speaker reminded them that they they were an order within an order, and the emancipating ideas of the Black Knights are as far in advance of Orangeism as the new temple of John's vision was beyond that of Solomon's time. There is no cleavage, he stated, between Orangeism and the church, nor between the Black Preceptory and the church; the faith and principles of both are identical and for these our fathers bled and died. Shall we pass them over lightly or follow in their train? Christ said "The Kingdom of God is within you," and those members who have passed from the Black to the flaming Red Cross degree should express in their lives the self-sacrifice of which it is the symbol. There is nothing higher or more worthy of our best effort than the bringing to pass the culmination of the ideal that the will of God shall reign supreme in every individual life.

In conclusion Mr. Paterson urged the order, and all others present, to remember Paul's injunction, "Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free."

At the conclusion of the sermon the choir sang the anthem "God's Beautiful Out of Doors," and before the benediction was pronounced the pastor requested that the congregation retire leaving the aisles and hall free for the band and the visiting brethren to pass out in their usual order.

STONEY LAKE AND VICINITY

Vandalism at Gilchrist Bay—Motor Tires Slashed by Knives—Guardian For Summer Cottages

NEWS PARAGRAPHS

JUNIPER ISLAND, Aug. 22.—The Rotary Camp for Boys was closed on Saturday and forty-four happy youngsters boarded the "Empress" on its down trip. Happy, because they had had a wonderful time, and good, because they could not hope for another outing next year, if they were not. The boys sang nearly all the way to Lakefield and behaved themselves in a creditable manner. This camp has proved a great success and next year, it will be no longer an experiment but a well founded camp with a past that is a credit to the district and its founders.

MAST RESTORED

Ship Island has had its mast restored and by loyal hands, who have hoisted from the mast head the Union Jack, which flutters in the breeze and will once more serve as a guide to the novice, among the many who navigate these waters.

TIRES SLASHED

A party of friends motored to Gilchrist Bay, from McCracken's Landing and spent the day picnicing at Indian River and White Lake When they returned to their cars they found to their dismay that the tires had been slashed by knives. They were compelled to telephone to Warsaw for assistance. This is not the first time this season that reports of yandalism have come from Gilchrist's Bay, and it is expected that concerted action will be taken and that this favorite picnic grounds will be kept free from those who are destructively inclined.

LARGEST LIST OF CALLS

The largest list of calls for the season was the record of the "Empress" on Saturday morning when she set sail with a large crowd of passengers bound for the lakes.

GUARDIAN OF COTTAGES

There has been a strong feeling among many of the cottagers that it would be to the advantage of the summer colony at Stoney and Clear Lake to have a caretaker or guardian during the season, when the cottages are closed. A man who would undertake to patrol the lake and keep a watchful eye open for the petty thief, who occasionally breaks into the closed dwellings. These occurrences are not very frequent but they do happen at times.

SPAIN OUSTS WHOLE MAIL FORCE FOR STRIKE THAT TIED UP TRADE

MADRID, Aug. 21.—The entire body of employes in the Spanish postal services were dismissed by a governmental decree issued to-day aiming to bring a solution of the recent strike which tied up those services for several days throughout Spain. The decree lays down rules for the reorganization of the postal staffs.

The strike, which paralyzed business throughout Spain, was actively waged by the letter assorters, who abstained from work, and indirectly by the other branches of the service which conducted a "white strike," in which all reported for work, but listlessly attended to their duties.

A resumption of work following the strike was agreed upon by the employees pending the publication of the decree.

KILLS BROTHER WHO MARRIED HIS WIFE

Then Shoots Himself After Twenty Years' Absence

PORTLAND, Mich., August 22.—Returning after 20 years in the wilds of Alaska to find his wife married to his brother, William Hughes shot and killed the latter, wounded a child that had been born to the couple and then committed suicide here yesterday.

Remorse that had gnawed at his conscience during his long years of exile, which followed a family quarrel, drove Hughes to return, he told friends before the tragedy. He came back to seek his wife's pardon, only to find her a wife of his brother David. A bitter quarrel ensued, and the prospector, leaving the house for a while, returned with a rifle, shot his brother through the abdomen and turned the gun against his own head. The bullet which ended David Hughes' life wounded the daughter in the knee. Mrs. Hughes fled and notified the police.

OLD TABLECLOTHS A SWEET FROCK NOW

By Margaret Rhoe.

Our little home is not the same.
As once it used to be;
Belinda's using all the sheets
To make her lingerie;
The roller towel used to hang
Behind the kitchen door,
It's now a dress and hangs behind
Matilda and before;
Our table cloth that covered once
Our table where we dine
Now covers Dorothea with
Its red and white design.
On using all these household things
For clothes, the girls are bugs,
I only hope they stop before
They use the parlor rugs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Balzac once wrote of a hero in "The Magic Skin" who never fell in love with a lady, no matter how beautiful, unless she were dressed in the richest of fabrics—silks, satins and lace.

What with all the 1922 model, summer girls all dolled up in frocks evolved from the lowly sheet, the sordid towel and the humble tablecloth, to say nothing of the utilitar- emerge are models of exquisite chic and simplicity. Certainly sheets as a covering for the human body have taken on unexpected and delightful possibilities.

The old hand-woven blanket that our grandsires used literally for woolen sheets have been turned into the smartest homespun dresses, gay with varicoloured yarn embroidery and fringed, fore and aft, around the skirt and sleeves.

You might, perhaps think that the little old roller towel would be secure in its sequestered nook behind the kitchen door, but no—Miss 1922 has seen its sartorial possibilities and pounced upon it.

Using the plain crash center to fashion her dress she edges the sleeves, skirt and pockets with the red or blue border and truly looks a high roller herself when she dons her towel handiwork.

Table Cloths, Too.

Table cloths are also being worn this season. It is quite startling to see the red or blue and white checked farmhouse or kitchen type enwrapping fashionable feminity.

The more elegant imported type of damask cloths in floral designs and pastel tints of blue, pink, yellow and white are used too mostly effectively.

If this craze for table cloth frocks keep up we will soon be forced to eat off bare boards or take to oil-cloth.

It would be almost worth it, however, as they do make such lovely dresses and, believe me, when a girl is all wrapped up in one of these coloured table cloths she is sure all "set" for somebody.

ian blanket, the poor moron would have had a mighty loveless existence in these parts.

Whoever said "Perversity, thy name is woman," certainly had the right idea. Here, when all the manufacturers are turning out dress fabrics and materials as ravishing and exquisite as an Oriental's dream the dear girls "treat them with spurn" and turn to the homely furnishings of the domestic hearth for their sartorial inspirations.

No hand-woven linen sheet is safe in the hands of the summer girl of 1922. Heirloom or no heirloom, with vandal fingers she ravages the linen chest and slashes into the age-yellowed sheets with irreverent but capable and artistic hands.

The smart one-piece frocks that

YOUNG MAN WAS FLEECED BY WOMAN.

Richard Westlake, of Trenton, went to Annie Stokes, a young fortune teller, to have his money blessed. After that was done she folded it up and gave it to him, putting it in his purse. He opened the purse and found about $50 short. He promptly had the girl arrested, and in police court at Trenton she was fined $25 and costs for telling fortunes and $50 and costs for stealing money, besides making restitution. She was ordered out of town.

UNEXPECTED TURN TO RAIL STRIKE TO-DAY.

(Special to the Examiner.)
(By Stewart P. West.)

NEW YORK, August 22. —The railway strike situation took a turn to-day which Wall street did not count upon. Whether or not the declaration of the eastern presidents that they proposed to fight rather than give in on the seniority question, represents the majority sentiment for the country as a whole, is something that remains to be seen. For an hour or so the announcement caused some hasty selling of railroad stocks which was not surprising in view of the fact that they had had nearly a week of advancing prices, in the course of which good sized profits had accumulated in speculative hands. This selling was however very promptly taken. While the rails in the first hour or so were droping off a point, new buying orders were rushed into the coppers, the equipment stocks, the tobacco and some of the American oils and the diversion thus created had the desired effect in checking any spread of the selling movement to the general list.

The market did not seeme in the least to need any artificial support. It gave a display of strength under the test of what might have been construed somewhat unfavorable news. The attitude of the Eastern railway executives evidently means that there will be no general settlement of the shopmen's strike either now or later. In all probability the dispute will be left for each road to settle individually. Roads in the east which claim that the strike is already won, and that nearly three-quarters of the strikers' places are filled, will be left to go on as they are. Roads in the west and south, which have been less successful will probably effect a compromise and take their men back.

Evidently the market to-day was disposed to take this complacent view. This was the reason why there was so little realizing in the railway list and why recovery followed swiftly upon the early decline. In a number of instances railway shares went higher than ever in the afternoon.

GRAIN RECOVERED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.— Wheat rallied 2 to 3 cents from lows and was half to a cent higher. Corn rallied 1 3-4 from low on short covering owing to scattered complaints of hot weather.

RENEWED STRENGTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.— Rails and Industrial specialties developed renewed strength after 1 p.m. Otis Elevator made new high for 1922 at 153, and Liggett and Myers at 187. Great Northern preferred reached new high for year at 95 on belief supposed danger to its seven per cent rate had definitely disappeared. Toledo St. Louis and western soared to 70 against Monday's low 55 responding to prospect of inauguration of common dividends at annual rate of at lest 5 per cent. Preferred sold at new 122 high on likelihood of 4 per cent. rate will be initiated in next six months.

BRYANT BROTHERS' COMMENT

Canadian Market.—Tractions and public utilities were active in today's market, Detroit United losing 3 points and Toronto Rails a like amount, while Winnipeg Electric gained 3 points to 40. Montreal Power moved to a new high across 97. This stock is destined to sell very much higher, and its position in our market is comparable to U. S. Steel in the New York market. Price Bros. and Riordon so far both laggard in the bull paper market, were firmer.

Mining.—The big golds sold around their highs to-day, with Dome at 35 and Holly at 12. In the Kirkland properties, Lake Shore made a new high at 2.80, and Kirkland Lake sold at 46. V.N.T. was firmer at 18, and West Tree sold at a new high for the move at 10. The mining shares continue to be tightly held in spite of the big advances of the past few weeks.

STOCK MARKET OPINIONS:

Hirch Lillenthal and Co.—The abundance of money seeking investment the prospects of wonderful crops and the adjustment of the labor troubles are all favorable for an expansion of business.

A. J. Johnson and Co.—The security markets give every indication that the trend is upward. We look for activity to broaden out.

Hayden Stone and Co.— For the time being all factors are constructive and aside from technical reactions due to over enthusiasm it seems to us prospects favor the constructive side.

Goodbody and Co.— We are to have good crops and cheap money and therefore a strong marke; for investment bonds and stocks, public utilities for the rest of the year.

McClave and Co. — Underlying strength based on investment absorption is the reason that we doubt very seriously whether the generally expected reaction of the announcement of the strike settlement will come

MONDAY'S BIG MOVEMENT

NEW YORK, August. 22.—Unparalleled strength since last spring was manifested in yesterday's market. Old time traders sat up and metaphorically smacked their lips at the sustained upward movement, because it reminded them of the old trading days when you could buy anything with your eyes shut and make money. Some traders were at a loss to account for the advance but it might be pointed out perhaps as the most important factor, was the increasing demand for investment buying by the public in general.

To strengthen my opinion you might have noticed that stocks which have been lying dormant for months, came to life and were bought freely by those who usually pick up bargains, no matter the character of the stock. This class of buying we might designate as the speculative variety. Then you might rave seen the inside workings of the real, genuine Wall street pools, men of keen insight, willing to take unlimited chances in boosting their pet shares, but as pointed out before the investment element was the most pronounced and most important.

Those enough interested to watch the movement will see that the prospective stocks, on which a resumption of dividends will likely take place, were the most sought after. I have tried for several months to lift you out of the despondent class and to place your feet upon the strong rock of optimistic thinking and eventually right action.

It is a grand feeling to have a conviction that you are right in your judgment and the red blood in your veins will circulate the better by acting upon your convictions. I don't for a moment believe that the market is going to climb after green cheese in the moon, but with the occasional profit taking, that is inevitable, this market is destined for higher levels and I have no hesitation in saying that we will see stocks 10 to 40 points higher.—Seawright.

MURDER RAMPANT IN CAIRO, EGYPT.

Sixteenth Murderous Assault Upon British Subjects.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press.)—The recent attack in this city on Lieutenant Colonel Arthur Frederick Hamilton Pigott was the 16th case in the series of murderous assaults upon British subjects in Egypt. It called again to mind the threat of the nationals that an Englishman would be shot daily until the return of Said Zagloul Pasha, the Nationalist leader who was deported by the British last December, and it is the latest addition to the extended chain of anti-British political outrages.

Lieutenant-Colonel Pigott, of the Royal Army Pay Corps, was shot and gravely wounded in Kadi el Fadl Street by unknown assailants while walking to his office. He was taken immediately into the house of an Egyption doctor, M. Abdel Meguid, at No. 1 Kadi el Fadl Street and was given first aid, being afterwards transported to the Officers' Hospital at Abbassieh, where one of the three bullets which had hit him was extracted.

Hopes are entertained of his recovery, but this new crime has aroused great indignation among the European population in Egypt.

NAVY OF FUTURE MUST RELY ON AERIAL STRENGTH

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(Associated Press).—"The navy of the future must take to the air; otherwise it will be at a hopeless disadvantage," said Captain Viscount Curzon, in the House of Commons, when the naval estimates came up for discussion. He pointed out that, according to the latest figures, the navy had only nine fighting airplanes, in contrast with the 86 possessed by the United States navy.

To offs t the allegation of Captain Curzon, the Air Ministry has issued a statement declaring the Britis'i navy to be better equipped with aiplanes than that of any other power and claiming no fewe- than 98 fighting air machines in commission, with a large number of reserves.

George Lambert, a former Civil Lord of the Admiralty, expressed the opinion that the British navy was very inadequately equipped with aircraft. "Can the navy say that from the defensive point of view the money of the taxpayer is being spent to the best advantage?" h· asked. "You are going to spend $16,000,000 on two new battleships, but it is useless to spend money on capital ships unles you have sufficient aircraft for the ships you already possess."

Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy emphasized the great need of strengthening the air fleet. "We are exposed to two great dangers from the air," he said, "massed attacks by fleets of airplanes flying by night and scattering poison and disease germs on our cities, and having our food supplies cut off by attacks on the trade routes. The two capital ships would be of little use warding off such raiders."

Mr. Amery, Financial Secretary to the Admiralty, answered some questions about recen experimental attacks by airplanes on warships in the Channel. According to published snesational reports, he said, the attacks were completely successful, and if made in real warfare would have completely wiped out a considerable portion of the British navy. The manœuvres were not of a "wholly novel character," but part of a series of valuable and constructive exercises which have been carried out for some time. It is not true that the airplanes threw out smoke screens. The torpedo-carrying airplanes were sighted 15 minntes before firing their torpedoe. They were under dummy gun-fire.

"There is a great difference between the effect of dummy gun-fire and real gun-fire on the morale and the steadiness of flyer when at a low altitude at the moment of discharging torpedoes, the speaker continued. "They were attacked by gun-fire in dummy from light cruisers and destroyers. The attadk developed under favorable conditions. We could not use real counter-measures. The attack thus developed its full offensive effect and a number of hits were recorded under the most favorable conditions. I do not know the exact number of hits, but I am informed that from the Admiralty Staff point of view it was not considered to be at all large or in any way beyond what was expected.

GOTHAM'S DRY NAVY MOBILIZED FOR WAR

White Way in Gloom as New Crusade Bodes Ill.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.— While deputies continued their invasion of the district of bright lights on Broadway Prohibition Zone Chief Appleby, of New York and New Jersey, recalled the major portion of the dry navy from its snooping expedition off Rhode Island and New Jersey.

The immediate return of the rum chasers is necessitated, he said, by appearance of five more alleged whisky runners off Sandy Hook.

Gloom deepened in the "White Light" district when enforcement agents continued their crusade. Proprietors of practically all resorts had been warned raids would be made if patrons were permitted to "bring their own" and consume it in the places.

The crusade comes on the heels of a police order compelling tre dimming of the bright lights at 1 a.m., following the murder of a gangster outside La Vie cabaret, just off Broadway, less than a week ago.

GASES IN LAKE KILL FISH, COOK 'EM, TOO

But Authorities Fear Poisoning, Forbid Eating Them.

NAPLES, Aug. 22.—Thousands of dead eels, gray mullets, sea bass and other fish have come to the surface the last few days on Lake Lucrin, near the north shore of the Gulf of Naples, from which it is separated only by a narrow sand spit. Fishermen in the vicinity were delighted, especially as the fish appeared to be already cooked.

Their pleasure was short-lived, for the authorities prohibited collection of the fish, fearing that they had been poisoned by an eruption of gases. It was these gases, the authorities explain, which evidently coming from the bottom of the lake, made the water bubble and boil, thus killing and in a way cooking the fish.

Lucrin is a small lake said to have been formed by a volcanic phenomenon in pre-historic times. It was well known in the time of Cicero and Horace, as they extolled its oysters and mussels.

Orders were given for the annulment of trains between Louisville and St. Louis until further notice.

Prospector, With Radio Set.

THE PAS, Man.—Radio is giving the rush to the gold rush.

Jack Anderson, prospector, explorer, roamer of the Canadian wilds, has started it. He has just arrived with a radio receiving set which, he says, will keep him many bounds ahead of all the old-time gold rushers.

The way Anderson works it is this:

Anderson's partner has a sending set at The Pas! Anderson takes his receiving set and goes into the wilderness.

Other prospectors are in the wilderness looking for gold or copper. When one makes a strike he stakes his claim and returns to the city.

News Flashed.

But Anderson, already in the wilderness and nearer the location of the strike than those in the city, gets news of the find by radio. His partner sends it in the day it is announced.

So Anderson gets there first and has his choice of location for staking his claim.

What will be the result?

More radio sets, says Anderson, and then—the end of the gold rushing days. Instead of staying in the city, waiting for announcement of a find, the prospectors will be close to the valuable spots ready to hear the news by radio.

In Training.

Still, Anderson doesn't fear this new competition. He's prepared for it, physically. Like a pugilist, he trains for his work during the winter months.

A steady half-hour of rope skipping, another at punching the bag every day, boxing, road work, and virtually every conditioning stunt used by fighters, make up his training schedule.

"My work requires strength, besides complete co-ordination of nerve and muscle," says Anderson.

"Because of my training I am able to outdo the prospector who works in the woods all winter at lumbering, trapping and dog driving, when I go out in the spring."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A LITTLE MATTER FOR THE G.W.V.A.

To the Editor: Would you permit me space in your valuable paper to air a grievance in which I have found myself unable to find a remedy.

On Sunday afternoon, August 20th, my boy (aged 15 years) was struck on the face and knocked to the ground, and there was struck several more blows, by P. C. Bromley. I went to his home for an explanation of his conduct, and he caught me by the arm and threw me off the verandah, ordering me to keep off his property.

I reported the matter to the Chief of Police. There I received little or no satisfaction. As there has been no summons issued on the boy for committing an offence, I take it for granted that he thrashed the boy without provocation. There were men who stood on the street, and witnessed the affair and can testify to the truthfulness of this statement. My husband in 1914 gave up his employment and went to France to fight for King and Country, and was killed in action the following year. Having no one to advise me otherwise, I take this method of placing the case before the public that someone might take the matter up and see that my boy can walk the streets without being molested, and enjoy the privileges and freedom that his father fought and died for.

Capitol Entertainment

Capitol theatre patrons found the opening programme of this week much to their liking last night. "The Right That Failed" featuring Bert Lytell in a new role of pugilist and heart smasher, provided a thrill and Harold Lloyd in "Crack Your Heels" was as good a mirth-maker as ever. Those who yearn for action got it in Bert. Lytell's new vehicle, which is adapted from a high-calibre story that swept a Yale graduate, J. P. Marquand, into writing fame over night. The Metro people live up to their standard of photoplay art and when it is said that Bayard Veiller author of "Within the Law," was director, thats all the introduction necessary.

Bert. Lytell makes a handsomt and likeable Johnny Duffey, mooted world champion, but still the whimsical Bert, yearns for a higher niche in life. The plot tells how his ambition is realized, but at the cost of the use of his right arm. The girl in the story, Constance Talbot, becomes acquainted with Duffey under sensational circumstances when embarrassed by a policeman for not "Keeping off the Grass" in Central Park. The handsome pugilist does not allow matters to rest there, but advances his case at a fashionable summer resort, where it is necessary for him to be constantly on the watch that the truth of his profession be not revealed. All is not smooth sailing, however, and after winning the championship by knocking out Kid Reagan, Duffey is forced to similarly treat a rival suitor, although suffering from a smashed right hand. His fighting days are ended but, judging by the last few hundred feet of film life, still holds much that is good for he and Constance. Movie fans will not not be disappointed in this picture.

SONS GOING WEST, MOTHER ENDS LIFE.

Probe Reveals That Woman Drank Portion of Lye.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 22.—In consequence of the attending physician having given a certificate claiming death to have been due to heart failure, under which the municipal authorities refused to issue a burial permit, Dr. C. F. MacPherson, Prescott, coroner, conducted an investigation into the death of Mrs. Mina Jane Durant, of Carleville, Augusta Township, who died on Wednesday last. After taking the evidence of the husband and some of the women, the coroner found that she had died of drinking lye after having been in ill-health for some time. The woman drank lye on August 10, apparently because of the departure of her sons on the harvesters' excursion to the west, and on her person when she was found was a letter of which the following is an extract: "I guess I will have to take lye. I am going to take your ear syringe so I won't burn my lips. How I dread the suffering, but I don't see no other way." The letter was addressed to her son "Billie."

Katherine Mac Donald and Charles Meredith IN "THE BEAUTIFUL LIAR."

At the ROYAL—To-night and To-morrow.

"THE BEAUTIFUL LIAR" DELIGHTFUL PHOTOPLAY.

Comedy-drama at its highest pinnacle of enjoyment is to be found at the Royal Theatre this week, where "The Beautiful Liar," a First National attraction, starring Katherine MacDonald, is being shown. The beauty of the star, the capable direction of Wallace Worsley, the able manner in which Charles Meredith handles the principal masculine role, the elaborate settings and the exquisite gown creations worn by Miss MacDonald are all factors in sending audiences away thoroughly delighted with the production.

"The Beautiful Liar" was produced from a scenario by Ruth Wightman, based on the original story, "Peachie," by George Marion, Jr. The star is convincing both as the hard-working secretary of a Wall Street broker and as the haughty musical comedy queen of a thousand gowns.

Briefly, the story concerns how this little office girl, in order to save a resort hotel manager from losing his position, agrees to pose at a society benefit as the famous footlight favorite, Elsie Parmelee. She is aided and abetted by a Scotch bookkeeper from her office who helps to furnish the delightful comedy element for the story. Her leading man in the benefit is a young Manhattan millionaire, and the romance that begins during rehearsals and ends when he finally discovers her in the broker's office is one that will appeal to hearts both young and old.

CURIOSITY OF CADDY PROVED DISASTROUS

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 22.—Prompted by a desire to see what the "innards" of a golf ball were like, Joe Polsin, 11, a caddy at the Hyde Park Golf and County Club, chopped into one of the little spheres with his new pocket knife. As a result he is blinded, perhaps for life. After much effort he succeeded in getting through the tough composition shell, and then hacked the tightly wound elastic bands surrounding the core. At last the point of his knife reached the small acid-filled rubber bag which forms the centre of this type of ball. The liquid spurted into his eyes. Players who heard his screams carried him to the club-house and washed his eyes.

Physicians say a week will tell whether the boy is to lose his sight.

The next two weeks will play a big part in deciding the winner of the National League for the fourr leading teams, who are only separated by very narrow margins, are scheduled to meet each other. The St. Louis-New York series will probably be the most important.

The Petes will go to Belleville by auto, leaving from the Water Street alleys at 8.30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The winner of the Peterboro-Belleville game tomorrow will lead the Central League.

The Oshawa Ontario, speaking of the leadership of the second half of the Central League schedule, says: "Oshawa's chances are very poor although by winning twice from Port Hope, Leaside and Peterboro and once from Cobourg it is not impossible."—Go to it. Peterboro accomplished an even more difficult task in the first half perhaps Oshawa can do it in the second.

FISHING IS CRIMINAL

Down in Georgi. all the little Georgian husbands who wish to stay out all night and skid around will have to tell their respective wives the honest-to-goodness truth and reasons for their whereabouts or "get theirs."

Stories of "sick friends" and the such may get a bit of leniency. But "fishing" yarns are especially dangerous.

To be exact, there is a bill in the Georgia Senate which reads:

—"any and all married men who shall go fishing without the consent of their wives shall be guilty of felony, and their sentence shall not be less than five years nor more than 20 years at hard labor."

H. Knapman Won The Ardiel Cup

Owing to an erroneous report received from Mount Julian G. E. Oxley was credited in last night's issue of the Examiner with having won the Horace Ardiel Cup, emblematic of the open sailing championship of the Kawartha. Such, however, was not the case. The cup, and pennant which goes with it, was won by Harold Knapman of Toronto and the trophies are now in his possession.

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

Let the jigger blade lie naturally. Take care not to loop the descent and pull the shots over to one side. Remember the short blow. Feel the finish of the stroke. Not too far forward or too far backward. The right hand under finish is very hopeful. Falling away from these shots will send them every way but the right one.

Here is fine form for the finish of a full shot swing. This position of the club at the finish shows that the followthrough has been perfect. Jones hits hard at the tee and usually attains great distance. He has not attained the great accuracy that Chick Evans gets with the shorter swing, however, and the lack of machine-like accuracy has left Jones just shy of several championships, notably the recent National Open in Chicago, in which he finished tied for second place. A sliced drive lost him a stroke, possibly two, and the championship.

MOUNT PLEASANT LOST ANOTHER TO MILLBROOK TEAM

MILLBROOK, August 22. — Yesterday evening Mount Pleasant and Millbrook got together in a C. M. E. League baseball fixture, with the result in favour of the home team to the tune of 7 to 1.

John Cathcart, of Cavan, handled the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

The final game in the second half of the League series will be played on Thursday at Bethany between Millbrook and Bethany. This should be a good game. The Examiner will carry a detailed report of this game, with a complete box score.

In yesterday's game the teams lined up as follows:

HAMILTON OBJECTS TO SOFT BALL RULES.

The rules drafted by representatives of the Ontario ath'etic commission and the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C. to govern softball games throughout the province will not likely be adopted in Hamilton. Neither the City nor Central leagues favor the new rules, claiming that if the distance between bases was changed from 60 to 50 feet it would slow the game up, and with a 12-inch ball in use instead of the 14-inch, it woud be getting too close to hard ball. A representative of the Hamilton leagues wrote a letter to Toronto some time ago, giving Hamilton's views on the rules, but this letter was never even acknowledged. Brantford is also against the adoption of the new rules, so it looks as though another conference will have to be held before the code will be looked upon as official.

—Hamilton Spectator

The 50 foot base line noted above is the new regulation for the men's game, the base lines for the girls' game were left at 40 feet.

Hamilton and Brantford are apparently the only two cities in the province to register a kick against the new rules. No rule on set of rules can be expected to please everybody and the wishes of the majority are the one to be considered.

Judge Landis is Told Big League Umps Are No Good This Season

The concensus of opinion among the newspaper representatives as well as among the fans seems to be that the job of umpiring in the major leagues has been handled with less efficiency this year than ever before. Judge Keneshaw M. Landis has made public the fact that he has been swamped with protests from irate bleacherites. Letters, and many of them have been received by the judge from practically every city in the two leagues containing, he says, strong criticisms and urgent suggestions that he take some action to remedy the state of affairs.

Judge Landis did not give any indications of what his intentions are but made a point of asking each reporter what he thought of the umpiring and where he thought the trouble lay. The scribes one and all said that the work of the umpires left much to be desired and agreed with the fans that something should be done, though no one could volunteer a remedy.

HORSE SHOE TOSSERS FOUND IN PETERBORO

Local Devotees of "Barnyard Golf" Are Showing Up As Good As the Best of Them—High Scores and Many Ringers.

If some of the Yankee horse-shoe champions who boast of making from ten to twenty ringers at forty feet and at any age when to bump up against some of the local experts in the noble game of "barnyard golf" they might find a surprise or two awaiting them for Peterboro can boast several men who pitch a wicked shoe and can also put up their ten to twenty ringers at the regulation forty feet with surprising regularity.

Only last evening, though suffering from a sore shoulder, Bill Lustic won out in a sixty one point game and hung up sixteen ringers in doing so. Bill Lynn an his partner followed this up by making the last sixteen points of a twenty one point game with six straight ringers on two occasions dropping both shoes over the peg in the one throw. These scores are not merely good one picked from a whole heap of bad ones but are the usual run of play, last evening's work in fact declared to be an off night for the boys were not quite up to their usual form. George Simpson also came across with some nice scoring and kept his opponents hard at work to keep within winning distance of his tally.

The acme of simplicity governs both the game and the apparatus necessary to indulge in this fascinating past time for all that is needed is a back yard, two iron pegs and two pair of old horse shoes. An ideal layout for the game is found at the corner of Park and McDonnell streets where some of the leading celebrities can be seen in action and where even a row of seats has been provided for the comfort and convenience of the spectators It is here that the local stars hoid forth in all their glory and demonstrate to one and all the accuracy of both their eye and hand. To win a game on this pitch means tossing the shoe with the last word in accuracy and time and again ringer is covered by ringer and that in turn is covered again. If there are no ringers and the point goes to the shoe nearest the peg it is seldom that a shoe is more than an inch from the little iron marker is ever considered in the running.

As in all other games each individual player has his favorite implement and makes his best scores with shoes that have by long and constant use come to fit his own peculiar needs. The weight of the horse shoe wil laverage around two and one half pounds each; though some men like them much lighter, and one brawny one of Scotland pitches with uncanny accuracy a pair that tip the scales at three and a half pounds each. But weight is not the only consideration for the size and shape of the shoe will influence each individual in his choice.

In both individual and team play the local experts will rank high with the best of them and should the occasion ever arise could bring a team that would give any in the province a good run for their money.

GREYBIRDS WILL BE HERE ON SATURDAY

Petes Go to Belleville To-Morrow and Play at Home Saturday — Fast Game Expected.

The Petes are off to Belleville tomorrow morning for what may prove to be the crucial game of the second schedule. Belleville today stands in first place by a very narrow margin with Peterboro and Cobourg close on her heels. A victory for the Petes tomorrow will put them in the lead while a win for Belleville will greatly strengthen her present position. The eyes of all fandom will be turned to Belleville tommorrow.

Regardless of the outcome of tomorrow's game the local fans are assured of a great game on Saturday for that is the day on which Lindsay will make what will probably be her last appearance on the local diamond for this season. The Greybirds have ever been one of the Petes' most dangerous rivals and they would like nothing bettter than to hand the locals a defeat on their own grounds. The Petes however, are still smarting from a shut out, the only one of the season, handed out by Lindsay the last time the locals went down to visit the Scugog boys and are out for revenge.

This will be the last home game for the Petes until September 6, and will be the last Saturday game at Riverside until the play off at the end of the schedule, so it behooves the fans who have been waiting to see a good game to get to the park early on Saturday.

ROGERS HORNSBY MAY HOLD BATTING HONORS THIS YEAR

Now Leads in Nationals, While Cobb and Sisler Battle For First in the American League Race.

There's a possibility that the individual batter champions in both major leagues this season will be .400 hitters. Rogers Hornsby, who is leading the brigade of batters in the National League is pretty close to that mark now, while Sisler and Cobb, who are running neck and neck in the American are beyond that figure.

Only four times in American League history, which had its inception in 1900, has the leader finished within the .400 class. Three players share in the honors of winning the American League batting supremacy with a mark of more than .400. Ty Cobb twice led the way by hitting better than that figure. In 1911 he secured an average of .420, the highest ever attained by an American Leagues since it organization. The same year, "Shoeless" Joes Jackson, now barred from professional ball, hit .408, an average that would have given him the title of being champion batter in all but four years of the league's existence.

Cobb went over that figure again in 1912, when he won the championship with a credit of .410. From that year until 1920, no American batter closed the season with an average of .400. George Sisler captured the glory in 1920 with a high standing of .407.

The National League, which was organized in 1876 has not had a batting leader since 1[illegible] who has clouted the ball for a mark of .400. Ed. Delahanty, one of the game's greatest hitters won the championship in 1899 with a mark of .408 but since that year the highest batting average in the senior league was .397 made last season by Rogers Hornsby. Since the league was established, there have only been nine championship winners who have soaked the leather hard enough to finish their year's work with marks of .400 or more.

In 1876 maybe, some of you old-timers, remember, Ross Barnes, who was a whirlwind player with Chicago in those wonderful days, was the batting king in 1876 ,when he hit .403 for the season. Old Cap Anson ,another famous star, now gone to the Great Beyond, batted .407 for Chicago in 1879, and this same great Anson hit them out for .421 in 1887, and in 1893 Jake Stenzel, then playing with Pittsburgh, hung up a record of .409 in 1893. Hughie Duffy, now managing the Boston Red Sox, and a great player in his time, batted .438 while the Boston in 1894. Jesse Burkett, one of the Giants' present coaching staff and a one-time noted star, batted .403 while wearing a Cleveland uniform in 1896. Wee Willie Keeler, who helped to make Baltimore famous batted .432 in 1897, when he was playing right field for the Baltimore Orioles, which team had Johhny McGraw, the Giants manaegr, as its scrappy manager. Don't these old records shuffle the memory of some of you fans who have followed the game for many years back? There were some wonderful players in those days just as there are now, and some of them like Mike Kelly, of Chicago; Charley Bennett, Detroit catcher, and Amos Rusie, New York speed demon, were each as great a hero as the only Babe Ruth is today to the present fan.

A GOOD SCHEDULE FOR GIRLS' LEAGUE

Three Fast Games For This Week and One on Monday —League Meeting Thursday.

The Girls' Soft Ball League has three fast games scheduled for the remainder of the week. In the future the games will be called at 6.15 instead of 6.30 as in the past, the shortness of the evening making this action necessary. The games for this week will be:

Wednesday—C.G.E. vs Auburns.
Thursday—Lakefield vs Auburn.
Friday—Colonials vs Y. Tigers.

All three games will be played at Central Park and will start at 6.15 as above noted.

On Monday of next week the C.G.E. and Colonials will meet in what is expected to be one of the fastest games of the series, for these two team have been shaping up as the strongest in the league and are running neck and neck for supremacy. Alex Kay and Vernon Morphet will be the umpires for the occasion.

A meeting of the league has been called for 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Some important business will come up at this meeting in regard to the trophy to be presented to the winning team as it is also expected that the new rules adopted by the Ontario Branch of the A.A.U. of C. will be officially adopted by the local league.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE.

While but a few turned up for the soft ball league meeting called last evening at the Empress Hotel numerous phone calls were received from parties wishing to enter teams but who were unable to be present in person. It was consequently decided to call another meeting at a later date when more of those interested could be present in person to discuss the proposed league. The time and date for the next meeting will be announced later.

SUB-COMMITTEE HEARD PROTEST

Lindsay Protest Held Over For Further Consideration

PORT HOPE, Aug. 22.—Meeting of the sub committee of the Central Ontario League was held here yesterday to consider two protests, one lodged by Cobourg against Port Hope for using a player without a certificate, and the other entered by Lindsay against Cobourg, the Lindsay club claiming that a Cobourg man advanced a base after Umpire Rosevear had called time and afterwards scored the winning run in a ten inning contest. In the event of the Cobourg-Port Hope game affecting the schedule it will be replayed. The committee reserved its decision on the Lindsay protest in order to consult some members of the committee who were not present.

TWO DAYS' RACE FOR SILVER CUP.

Air Event Which Is Creating a Stir in England.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press)—There is to be a great air race for a cup presented by the King sometime during the first fortnight in September.

The race will occupy two days, one for the outward half of the course, and one for the return. It will start and finish at Croyden, and Glasgow will be its nothernmost limit. Birmingham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Manchester and Bristol are among the cities that will be points on the route, and it is hoped that the civic authorities will do all that is possible to facilitate that arrangements for the race, which will be in the hands of the Royal Aero Club.

The plans for the race so far are not advanced but it is already settled that it shall be flown under a handicap, and that, in addition to the King's Cup a trophy which many airmen have already declared it their keen ambition to win, there shall be certain substantial prizes. In the provision of these the promoters of the race have some expectation that the great industrial and commercial centres over which the racing aircraft will pass in the contest will take some part. The need for the encouragement of aviation is acute, and the race will provide an opportunity for the public who are coming more and more to realize their dependence at a time of national emergency in our airmen, to express their appreciation of them.

It is intended that only British airmen and machines shall compete. Any type of aeroplane will be eligible.

Reds Boast of Two-Man Staff Behind the Bat

IVY WINGO—(INSERT) EUGENE HARGRAVE.

Individual supremacy has prevailed for years in the department of catching ,although the position is more than a one mans job.

However, probably once upon a time somebody told somebody else that a catching staff should be composed of one leader with two recruits to fill in.

Such conditions exists with many major league clubs today. And for years and years back, too.

This one-man rule, however, does not prevail with the Cincinnati Reds, where Patrick Moran boasts of what is rated the best two-man catching staff in the major league loop.

The funny part of this combination is that Moran and the pitcher do not pick the catcher for the game. Then how is it worked?

The pitcher on the other club.

Until Moran receives the name of the opposing pitcher he does not select his catcher. And for this reason:

There is Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals who shifts infielders and outzelders according to the style of pitching against the Cardinals, and other managers also arrange changes ,but this is the only two-man catching staff in either big league.

Wingo is as spry today as he was when he entered the National League in the summer of 1911. He remained with the St. Louis Cardinals until 1915, when he was traded to the Reds for Miguel Gonzales. He was born at Norcross, Ga., July 8, 1890.

Hargrave had to tour around the minor league circuit for a long period before convincing the majors that he was ripe. He was given a trial by the Cubs as a kid in 1913, but Jimmy Archer was on that job at that time hence "Bubbles" did not have much of a chance to develop.

Batting in the 400 class for three seasons, starting in 1918 with St. Paul, Hargrave was snatched by the Reds for delivery in 1921.

BOWLING SERIES EVEN.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press)—The sixth annual all-comers' match in connection with the Dominion bowling tournament was played on the greens of the Toronto Canoe Club last night, and resulted in a win for sixteen Toronto rinks by a majority of seventeen shots, making the series to date even with three wins each.

Six women candidates for Congress, including Winifred Mason Huck, of Chicago, have announced world peace as the first plank in their platforms.

KNOCKOUT FOR KEENE AT HOME

The blow fell at Keene last evening, when Lakefield, East Peterborough leaguers defeated the homesters by the score of 11 to 3. It was the first defeat at home for Keene since the league was organized three years ago. The win practically gave Lakefield the second half.

Tommy Doughty went the full route for Lakefields, and his teammates gave him good support in the field and with the willow, the swatfest including a home run by Northey with two on. After making the circuit, Northey was put out at second for failure to touch that bag.

O'Dette and Robson, twirling for Keene, never had a chance to win the game because of the ragged support behind them.

Bob Ross and Ed. Wright umpired the contest.

SPAN OF LIFE IS LENGTHENING OUT.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press).—The expectation of life in this country has largely increased since the period of 1834-1854, according to the annual report for 1921 of the Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health, Sir George Newman. At that period the expectation at birth was: for males, 40 years, and for females 42 years. The present figures are: 51 for males and 55 for females.

This, with some reservations, means that a baby born now has a chance of living twelve years longer than its grandfather. The reduction of mortality is most marked, however, in early life. The life-expectation of men of 45 is but little better to-day than it was 70 years ago. Sir George Newman, in his report, indicts alcohol and faulty industrial environment as the chief causes of this adult mortality. He points out, too, that respiratory diseases, pneumonia, bronchitis and tuberculosis, are the chief causes of death.

"It is absolutely within our power to prolong the days of human life and enlarge its capacity," Sir George says. "The length of life in this country is much less than it should be, and there is no inherent reason why as much as three years should not be added to the average life-time of Englishmen of 45." To secure this, he says, the maximum emphasis should be laid on the need of developing and fortifying the physique and powers of resistance, first of the child, and then of the adult.

The body should be well bred, Sir George continues, well nourished, kept clean within and without, trained in healthy living in fresh air and exercise, and excesses and overstrain should be avoided. The health, capacity and resistance of the body is the only sure defence against early mortality, in Sir George's opinion.

TURNS AGAIN TO SPAIN FOR CUBA'S POPULATION

HAVANA, CUBA, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press).—Increase in the population of Cuba from 3,000,000 to 10,000,000, mainly through Spanish immigrants, is one of the purposes of the new Secretary of State, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, former Cuban minister at Washington.

The secretary believes that Spanish immigrants, for numerous reasons, will make the most desirable additions to Cuba's population, and is holding conferences with his collegaues on the best methods to bring these elements to the island. The necessity of checking the flow of workers from Cuban cane fields to Spain, caused by unfavorable financial conditions, and the advisibility of counteracting the flood of Chinese, Jamaicans and Haitians is being stressed by Dr. de Cespedes.

PRESS SEEKS TO REVIVE TURKEYS ECONOMIC LIFE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 22.—(Associated Press).—A campaign for the revival of industrial activity in Turkey has been started by the Turkish press. The influential Ileri, a morning newspaper, says:

"The slow extinction of Moslem economic activity has been going on now for several years. This can only serve the interests of our enemies, who observe our lamentable economic situation and gain the idea that the day will soon come when the Turkish nation will die out automatically.

"We must arouse ourselves to this danger. Day by day, our commerce and industry are bidding us farewell. We are selling to strangers our house properties and our real estate, and very soon we shall begin selling them our furniture and moveable property. Turks must awake from their slumber; they must link their private life to the national needs. They must economize and save and work, remembering that to waste a single piastre is an attack upon the national destiny."

Black velvet turbans are now replacing those of taffeta and silk. Some have a velvet bow or feather, but most of them are severely plain.

AUSTRALIA CUTS TAXES

£3,000,000 Reduction Largely Due to the Washington Conference

MELBOURNE, Aug. 22.—Economy in the national expenditures, mainly as a result of the Washington conference, will make possible a considerable reduction in taxes, it is shown by the new Australian budget just published. The income tax is reduced by 10 per cent., and the exemption increased to £200; the war surcharge tax on land is reduced and the entertainment tax is abolished when the price of admission is less than a shilling.

The duty on galvanized iron and similar goods, and also on tractors, is lowered and a bounty is provided for local manufacture of these commodities. A subsidy of £150,000 on export beef is also provided.

Of the £3,000,000 reduction in taxation two-thirds is made possible by the cut in the costs of the national defense.

DOCK WORKERS ARE NOW OUT ON STRIKE.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Aug. 22. —(Canadian Press.) — There is no settlement in sight of the freight truckers strike on the Canadian National and Pacific docks here. Ships which arrived yesterday are being unloaded by their crews and passenger ships are departing but behind schedule. The Western Stevedore Company, who had the contract for the dock labor, stated that men would be employed at the rate of 35 cents per hour and 37 cents for overtime. Few have responded to the offer.

THE TROUBLE WITH MARTIN

(LEFT) THE WAY MARTIN FIGHTS TO-DAY, HEAD BURIED AND EYES SLANTING UPWARD. (RIGHT) THE WAY HE FOUGHT BEFORE, CHIN UPWARD, EYES DOWNWARD.

This is the first true story of Martin's decline in the heavyweight division. There was a time when he was considered the logical man to meet Jack Dempsey—the one man who had a chance to down the Utah Mauler. Then, after beating Frank Moran so decisively, Martin took on Fay Keiser, a mediocre light heavyweight of Cumberland, Md., and received as neat a licking as any pugilist ever stood up under.

It was noticed that night, Sept. 5, 1921, in Baltimore, that Martin's chin was pointed upward and Keiser hit him "on the button" again and again. Martin showed one thing — that he could take a licking.

The licking he took was so severe that he spent the next week in bed. When he got out of bed he started for the next room and ran into the door. His manager, Jimmy Bronson, was worried.

"What's wrong with you, Bob? Can't you see?" he asked.

"I don't seem to be able to see straight ahead,' said Bob. "I can see down and up, but not level."

Bronson hustled him off to an oculist. The oculist worked on him for three months with indifferent success.

Finally Bronson thought he'd take another flyer with Bob and wired for him to come on to New York from his home in West Virginia. On the way to catch a night train Bob stopped off a a little town in western Maryland. He drove his big red roadster out that afternoon and went over a bank and into a tree. When they lifted the car off Bob they thought he was dead. But he hadn't yet taken the count. He was in the hospital two weeks and then he sat up in bed and said:

"I can see all right again.'

His manager put him through some tests and it really proved that Bob had shaken his eyesight back in place.

Bob always was afflicted in a small measure. Many critics berated him because he held his chin high.

He buries his chin on his chest and lets his eyes slant upward instead of tilting his chin and looking down at an opponent.

It will be harder to hit him on the chin now. He's corrected his greatest fault.

JOHNSTOWN'S BEER IS AGAIN CUT OFF.

JOHNSTOWN, Aug. 22. — Old John Barleycorn, who did business from the same old stands for a few hours here Saturday, was back in his grave yesterday.

Those who asked Johnstown barkeeps for real beer, were told "them days have gone forever."

An entire new set of prohibition laws from Philadelphia had stopped the beer spree which started Saturday when Mayor Cauffiel issued a tricky statement on the basis of which saloonists started selling 8 per cent. brew at ten cents a stein.

The Mayor has explained that when he said "real beer" could be sold, he meant beer of less than one-half of one per cent. alcoholic content.

The wets, who Saturday hailed the Mayor as a "regular fellow," yesterday were incensed at him. The Mayor openly admitted that he issued his statement to draw the attention of Federal and State prohibition officers to the lack of dry enforcement in his municipality.

He accomplished his purpose. The former officers were immediately ousted and replaced by a new set.

"RAINMAKER" REACHES ITALY FOR A TRIAL.

Hatfield Wants to Explain His Process to Pope Pius.

LONDON, Aug. 22. — A "rain maker," Charles M. Hatfield, who claims to have brought relief to drought sufferers in Canada and the United States, has arrived at Naples, having been invited by the Italian Government to try to bring rain to that vicinity, parched by a five months' drought, says a Central News despatch from Naples.

If he is successful at Naples the Government will engage him to repeat the process in other districts suffering from lack of rain. He was quoted as saying he was anxious to explain his secret process to Pope Pius, and if the Pontiff agreed he would try to induce rain to fall on the Vatican gardens, which for some time have been withered by the drought.

IN MEMORIAM

MEHEW.—In loving memory of Walter John Mehew, who died 22nd August, 1920.
Two years have passed, our hearts still sore,
As time goes on we miss him more;
He was a father, kind and true,
A patient, loving husband, too.
His memory is as fresh to-day
As in the hour he passed away.
O, for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.
We do not forget him, nor do we intend—
We think of him daily, and will to the end.
We mourn him in sorrow and silence unseen,
And dwell on the memories of days that have been.
Dearer to memory than words can tell
Are thoughts of him we love so well.
Dearest husband, how I miss you,
Never shall your memory fade;
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Round the grave where you are laid.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear Jack—
'Tis sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you very dear,
In death we do the same.
Fold him, dear Father, in thine arms,
And let him henceforth be
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and Thee.
—Inserted by his loving Wife and Family.

LARGE GATHERING FOR U.F.O. PICNIC

J. J. Morrison Chief Attraction at Kingston

KINGSTON, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Despite threatening weather, large crowds are gathering at Glenburnie for the annual U. F. O. and U.F.W.O. picnic to-day.

The chief attraction is J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers. D. C. Rogers, Frontenac county, director of the U.F.O., will preside. Great interest is being taken in this gathering, as it is believed Mr. Morrison will pay considerable attention to the broadening out popolicy of Premier Drury, which threatens to cause dissension in U.F.O. ranks.

A LIONESS SPRANG INTO SMALL CAR.

A Thrilling Experience in Africa By H. A. Snow.

NEW YORK, August 22. Canadian Press. — Having a savage lioness spring into a small car with one is an unusual experience even in South Africa. H. A. Snow, the naturalist and explorer from Oakland, California, who recently has been staying in this city, gives the following account of his adventure on his recent tour:

"About 25 miles from Nazobi, in British South Africa, I had placed two camera men in blinds a mile apart, and thought that it would be possible to make a detour of 5 miles in an automobile and proceeding in a circle, gradually drive some game towards the blinds. When I was about two miles from the blinds and passing over low rolling hills bordering the Theka river, I fired at a herd of gazelles and brought down a buck. I got out to get the animal, when I noticed that a lion was stalking the herd.

"He was about 50 yards away and presently disappeared. Thinking that I had seen the last of him I put the buck in the car. I looked again and the lion raised his head. My blood was up and I meant to go after him. I made a detour around the hill but coming over the top I found instead of one lion six. They practically surrounded the car and I could not proceed. I halted the machine, and left the engine running. Then I let fly at the biggest of the brutes. The shot went over his head but the second shot brought him down.

"I had three shots left and with them I brought down two more lions and then saw behind me a lioness, evidently ready to charge. The only thing I could do was to start the car, and go straight ahead for to turn around was impossible. But the first thing I knew the lioness came right over the top and into the back of the car. I ducked under the steering wheel and trusted to luck.

"The car gave a lurch and threw the lioness out. I stood up and shot then and brought her down, and then the next thing I knew I was stalled on a hillock, with I feared my car out of commission. I expected every minute that some of the other lions would come after me but evidently they had had enough of the fight. I finally got my motor started again, and limped back to the lions. Then I got my son and the two camera men and we went back and picked up the lions."

DOOR YET OPEN FOR CONFERENCE WITH STRIKERS

MEDIATION SOUGHT

PHILADELPHIA, August 23. — Canadian Press.—Despite the abrupt termination yesterday of the parleys between the anthracite coal operators and their striking employees, the door has been left open for a resumption of negotiations and it is thought that there will be another conference shortly.

COAL COMMISSION BILL.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. Canadian Press. — A coal commission bill, giving operators and miners representation in the proposed government investigation of the industrial situation was given the right of way by the House Rules committee today over the bill which had been prepared with the approval of President Harding for a commission composed wholly of impartial representatives of the public.

Congress later reversed its decision and gave precedence to President Harding's proposal for an impartial tribbunal to investigate coal operations.

SEEKING MEDIATION.

NEW YORK, August 23. Canadian Press. — Representatives of fourteen big railroads will meet here today to further consider proposals of the five big brotherhoods to secure mediators in the shop crafts strike. There seems more optimism to-day.

PRESENTATION FOR POPULAR EMPLOYE

Neal Hurry Gets Farewell Address and Sum of Money.

Neal Hurry was taken by surprise when on the eve of his departure for the United States, his fellow employes in the machine department of the C.G.E. presented him with a sum of money and the following address and sent him off to his new home with the very best wishes of the staff:

The address

Dear Neal—Your departure from our midst is somewhat of a Hurry. Nevertheless, in fairness to ourselves, it is not as hurried as we have sometimes wished. You are going out into the world, and a very Cosmopolitan portion at that. You will meet all classes and sooner or later, it will be the Scotchman versus the Jew, but if you keep on and run true to form, the conquered Scot shall arise and the Jew be an easy victim.

You seem to have accomplished much as a football player. We are sure you will be missed if you have not yet paid our subscription, but are of the opinion your absence would have been felt before this, had you been blessed with that position that all young Scots aspire to—we mean treasurer. Your success as a piker—we mean piper—has brought you a fair sum of money at the expense of a patient suffering public with the pipe droning and the public groaning. It was certain to happen sooner or later—that some public benefactor should arise and entice you away from your present sphere, and so relieve such agony as you proudly impose on all who are unfortunate enough to be caught within the sounds of the skirl We say "proudly", for have we not seen your chest stand out, to say nothing of your eyes, as you boldly strutted up our streets. "Boldly", is certainly correct, when we think of people your age going on a crowded thoroughfare with knees all bare, even if they happen to have been scrubbed. You seem to forget the essential pants.

Little meetings like this are not of cosly nature at least on the surface, because every person knows how much he is out by his contribution, but woe unto the person on this occasion who has not perfected a strict stocktaking system. He will probably never know how much he is out, while you, as soon as you get out, will rush over the border.

You are going out as all young men should, but let me ask you to forget a few of your favorite tricks. For while the Yankee holds out a promising future, he expects that which results from only attention to work, coupled with a little study, so that you may earn all you get and at the same time fit yourself for the higher rungs of the ladder, leading to success, which we hope you will mount, thereby casting a favourable reflection on your old friends, of the Tool Draft, who will themselves be amply paid and forgive all your shortcomings by your so doing.

MARSHALS ARMY

MRS. LOWELL F. HOBART

Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart first national president of the American Legion Woman's Auxiliary is marshaling an army of women to mother wounded and neglected ex-service men throughout the country.

"Thousands of boys who went to war and whom we attended to then are now tucked away in army post hospitals and other places seeing no one but the every day official lists of visitors," she says.

Plans have been perfected for the coming year to establish a woman's auxiliary in each of the legion's 11,000 posts and as each legion member has at least two women relatives eligible for the chapter, the auxiliary promises to become numerically stronger than the legion itself.

Mrs. Hobart lives in Cincinnati.

THREE MEN FOR COLLINS' PLACE

Several Soldiers Reported Killed During Attack on Collins' Party.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press). — It is reported in some quarters that a tribune of three men will be appointed by the Dail Eireann to succeed Michael Collins as head of the Government. The three names mentioned are Liam Cosgrave, chairman of the Cabinet; Richard Mulcahy, now commander of the army, and George Gavan Duffy, former Envoy.

An Evening News despatch from Dublin to-day says it is believed Michael Collins was accompanied by seven Free State staff officers, including Major-General Dallon, when the Free State chief was killed from ambush last night at Bandon. Several soldiers, the despatch says, were believed to have been killed or wounded during the attack on the Collins party.

LIVED FEW MINUTES.

CORK, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The first fusillade from the irregulars caused no casualties. Collins and members of his party immediately jumped from their vehicles, took to cover and engaged the attackers in a heavy fight, which lasted half an hour. Shortly before the assailants were beaten off, Collins who had been fighting throughout the attack, was hit by a bullet back of the ear and fell mortally wounded. He lived only a few minutes after being struck.

The driver of the car in which Collins and his companions were riding also were hurt, and a motorcyclist accompanying the party was seriously wounded in the neck.

A STATE FUNERAL FOR MICHAEL COLLINS.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press).—It is announced there will be a State funeral for Michael Collins in this city. The body will arrive to-night by steamer from Cork. The body will lie in state prior to interment in Glasnevin Cemetery, where Arthur Griffith was buried a few days ago.

CAN'T WED FATHER AND SON.

Mayor of Marion Won't Let Woman Follow Gypsy Law.

MARIOS, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Gypsy laws are not recognized in President Harding's home town. This was demonstrated here when Frank Elie, Sr., of Chicago, and his son, Frank, Jr., of Cleveland, appeared in Mayor George W. Neeley's court here and both claimed the same woman as his wife under the gypsy law.

Mayor Neeley disregarded their claims and turned the woman over to Frank Stanley of Chicago, who claimed her as his sister.

Stanley left with the woman for Chicago, accompanied by her two children by a marriage before she turned gypsy. The children's father is said to be dead.

The gypsy band of which the Elies were members was ordered out of town.

THE OLD-TIME BEER WORKING STATES MAYOR

MAYOR SATISFIED

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 23.—While Mayor Joseph Cauffiel of Johnstown received telegrams and letters from many parts of the East and Middle West hailing him as leader, Johnstown saloons continue to sell genuine old-fashioned beer and to furnish free lunch with it.

There will be no spectacular raids by the Federal agents, according to C. T. Sprague, who was placed at the head of the prohibition enforcement cohorts in Johnstown on Saturday, in place of O. R. Stiffler, who was removed immediately on the Mayor's proclamation in favor of good beer as a substitute for moonshine and poor drinking water. Ford was received by Mayor Cauffiel that twenty-seven Federal agents had arrived in the city and were secretly collecting evidence, but the report of their presence in the community could not be verified. No complaints against local beer-selling saloonkeepers or against the breweries were made today to Ray Patton Smith, United States Commissioner.

Mayor Cauffiel said that his modification of the Volstead Act by executive mandate had worked wonders in reducing drunkenness and curtailing the sale of moonshine

"In spite of the quantity of real beer that was drunk on Sunday night, there were only four drunks in Police Court, and not one of them was the victim of beer. All were moonshine victims. It is evident that many who would have been consuming moonshine otherwise contented themselves with drinking beer, when they learned that good beer was authorized during the present water situation.

Drunkenness Reduced, the Mayor Says.

"There are usually forty or fifty intoxicated men arrested every Sunday night. The granting of permission to sell beer, so long as the law is complied with, has reduced drunkenness in this community by 80 or 90 per cent. The people won't drink the moonshine if they can get good beer. I want it distinctly understood, however, that I do not connive at any violations of the law. In every utterance that I have made I have said that I permitted the sale of good old-fashioned beer and ale only when it is lawfully done. I decline to interpret my meaning any further. Let others work it out."

When a statement attributed to Federal Commissioner Haynes, expressing doubt that real beer had been and was being sold publicly over the bars of Johnstown, was shown to the Mayor, he laughed and said:

"I have told you that I have been carrying on this fight single-handed, with no help at all from the Federal agencies. None of them has ever been here. They have not made the slightest effort to co-operate with me at any time. Beer is being brewed and sold here in quantities. Luckily for the community and for visitors who have been attracted here, it has been good beer. That is to say, I am reliably informed that it is a wholesome product, instead of the etherized type which has been so widely distributed. Personally, I never drink liquor of any kind and believe that all of it, including beer, should be totally prohibited."

The Mayor not only received letters and telegrams saluting him as the newly risen leader of the wet national fight, but indicating new chains of reasoning which have been discovered by which the prohibition amendment can be proved invalid.

CLAIMS "SENIORITY" IN JAIL.

Indian Bootlegger Warns Oklahoma Sheriff of His "Rights."

GUTHRIE, Okla., August 23. — Hearing so much about the value of "seniority rights" from the striking railroad shopmen, who are serving sentences in the county jail here for violation of Federal Court injunctions, an Indian bootlegger presented demands to the Sheriff yesterday on his release.

The Indian, an Osage, with an unpronouncable name, insisted that Sheriff Robertson make careful note of his terms in jail so that when he returns next summer he will not lose his "seniority rights."

WOMAN OF 86 A PRISONER.

Accused, With Her Daughter, of Drawing on Bogus Check.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Adeline Balcome, 86, and her daughter, Mrs. Julia Stone, 59, were brought to Canandaigua, near here, from Buffalo to answer to charges of grand larceny.

The women, who gave Orleans County as their home, were arrested in Buffalo on request of Canandaigua National Bank officials, who claim the couple deposited a bogus check for $5,100. A considerable sum was drawn on the check through an Albion bank, it was learned.

Halt Peaches in Jersey 'Peach Week' Start Mutiny of 600 Trenton Convicts

TRENTON, N.J., Aug. 23.—Fifty prison deputies, thirty State troopers and thirty city police trained revolvers on a mob of 600 inmates of the State Prison during the exercise hour Monday night when the prisoners threatened a jail delivery because they thought they were not getting enough peaches for dessert, as this is New Jersey "peach week." After a difficult quarter-hour the prisoners were got back to their cells, where they continued a vocal demonstration that drew thousands of residents to the prison gates and caused dwellers in the neighborhood to doublelock their doors.

Serious trouble was threatened Sunday after supper when the convicts were allowed to take their usual hour of leisure in the yard. On the previous night half a peach had been served to each for dessert at supper. Resentful over this the convicts yelled for hours Sunday night in their cells, beating on the floors with tin cups and occasionally knocking out electric lights with handy missiles. The uproar lasted well into the morning.

In the yard Monday night the 600 men were in an ugly mood and Headkeeper Joseph S. Hoff sent warnings to State troopers and city police to be in readiness for an outbreak. At the end of their leisure hour the prisoners refused to return to their cells.

Prison deputies were marched into the yard and soon the convicts were looking into the muzzles of 110 revolvers. Assistant Prison Keeper James E. Kersey then told the convicts it would go hard with them if they persisted in their insubordination. Fifty prisoners left the ranks and started to go back to their cells. They were stoned and hooted by their 550 companions. Finally the whole crowd was induced to go to their cells. But nothing could keep them quiet. They made more noise, if possible, than during last night.

A special gaurd of police is patrolling the prison section of Trenton, while prison guards have been augmented inside the walls. It is believed the situation is well in hand.

PUT SNUGGLE DANCE ALL UP TO THE GIRLS

Terpsichorean Experts Met for Convention, Say Trouble is They Have Never Learned.

GOOD-BYE JAZZ STEPS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Women in 80 per cent. of the cases are responsible for vulgar dancing, according to Major Ned Gaynor, eighty-two-year-old dancing master and instructor in deportment, who is a delegate to the National American Association of Dancing Masters, which opened a convention here in the west ballroom of the Hotel Commodore. It's the reaction of the war, says Miss Marguerite Walz, of the International Association, Masters of Dancing, a rival organization, meeting in the opposite ballroom of the same hotel. Both associations agreed that the tendency of dancing is away from the jazz steps and that the tango, fox trot and straight waltz, with variations such as the canter and hesitation steps, would be this season's vogue.

"I firmly believe that 80 per cent. of the faults of position on the dancing floor are chargeable to the girl," said Major Gaynor. "It seems as if the girl of today cannot dance unless she has a death grip on the neck of the man with whom she is dancing. The trouble is, the average young girl doesn't know how to dance. She learns to dance at schools run by promoters who have no conception of the art of terpsichore."

80 Years Old, But He'll Show Them.

Lewis H. Kretlow, 80 years old, who has taught young people in Chicago for sixty years, nodded in acquiescence to the statements of Major Gaynor Mr. Kretlow, who will show a waltz-fox trot for the approval of the association today, illustrated with a partner the proper way for a young lady to deport herself on the floor. Instead of putting her arm around the neck of the man, it should rest about three inches from the shoulder, with the thumb extended in. The thumb provides a way for the young woman to show her displeasure over the way her partner dances. If he holds her too close, Kretlow explained, the girl can simply press the thumb sharply in the arm of her escort.

"I notice an increasing tendency among young people to improve the dance themselves," Kretlow said. "They are taking more interest in dancing gracefully. Jazz music has had a marked effect in degenerating the dance, in my opinion. The tango fox trot, danced to four-four time but with different accent, has had the objectionable features of the present trot removed. The side-long drag has been eliminated."

Major Gaynor, who said he was a Methodist in good standing, believes his church made a grave mistake in upholding at this day the resolution passed in 1872 against dancing, card playing and theatre-going. He had all three "vices," he said.

"The Methodists are standing in their own light," he asserted. "They are driving their young people into other churches which do not take such a narrow-minded view."

Close Dancing a Product of Cities.

Miss Walz, of the International Association, who arranged a dance in Philadelphia recently, which was attended by 35,000 persons, said that the hope of eliminating the "flapper" and the "flipper" dances lay in education. Close dancing, a product of the cities, was due to the crowded hall room and dance hall, where it was impossible to spread out, she said. Too much time was lost teaching new dances and not enough in teaching grace and poise, she believed.

One of the great needs among the young was instruction in posture in the opinion of Miss Walz.

"In standing, it should be heel to instep—that denotes social equality," she explained. "Heel to heel denotes inferiority. Legs spread apart, either standing or sitting, [illegible] Slouching should be avoided by holding the diaphragm in. If these things were kept in mind, vulgar dancing would soon be forgotten."

Miss Waltz said she and her associates had no objection to the "Scandal," a walking sort of a dance, provided it was done correctly. The association frowned on the "Camel," "Chicago" and the "Shimmy," she said.

Heat of 3 Stars Measured Gives 10,000 Centigrade

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.— The heat of three stars—Aldebaran, Capella and Betelgeuse—has been measured by two officials of the Smithsonian Institution who have been making observations at the Carnegie Solar Observatory on the summit of Mount Wilson, Cal. R. G. Abbott and L. B. Aldrich reported to-day that they had succeeded in doing what had heretofore never been done.

The heat of the three stars first was brought to focus by the giant 100-inch telescope. The heat and light then was passed through a prism and spread out into rainbow-colored spectrum. Delicate devices measurad the light in each color as well as the invisible heat.

As the hotter a body is the whiter and bluer is its light, the intensities of the heat in the various colors allowed an estimate of the temperature of the stars which was fixed at approximately 10,000 degrees centigrade.

LARGE BUSINESS FOR GRAND TRUNK

Rolling Stock Being Pressed Into Service

There is every prospect of the G. T.R. doing the largest business in years in this district if the coal and rail strikes were settled and the ominous clouds they have caused on the business horizon cleared away, A. McNab, local agent, remarked today. There is a shortage of cars being experienced already, and Mr. McNab is wondering where the cars will come from to move the big grain crop. "There willl be a local demand for shipping grain into this city from neighboring points," he said. "Last year the poor crop resulted in very little shipment locally, but there is an altogether different side to the matter this year and the outlook for business is good if we can get the cars," Mr. MacNab declared. Grain is still being moved through Peterborough from Midland, and rolling stock of all kinds is being pressed into service. It is a long time since the outlook for autumn business was so bright, the agent said.

BIG LEGACY OF $700,000

Captain George C. Douglas, British Veteran, Will Not Lose Share of Estate.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 22.—Five years' service in the World War, wounded at Ypres in 1915 and again in 1917, and a citation for bravery by Field Marshal Lord French will make up for the failure of George Camp Douglas to make $2,500 in two consecutive years, as provided by the will of his father, Walter D. Douglas.

The trustees of the estate, valued at more than $2,000,000 have agreed that the war hero shall get his one-third of the estate, according to State Senator Charles E. Fowler, his guardian. The estate will be divided in November, when the younger of the two sons will become 35 years old.

SAYS CHEESE MEN NOW PAY TAX 3 TIMES

Montreal Produce Men Protest to Local Cheese Board, Who Air Their Grievance.

PRICE UP TODAY

At the Peterborough Cheese Board this morning 1,047 boxes of cheese were sold at 15 1-8 cents, as compared with 1,181 boxes at 14 13-16 cents at the last sale three weeks ago. G. S. Matthews, buying for the Canadian Packing Company for the first time, secured the lot. W. M. Flavelle, of Flavelles, Ltd., Lindsay, was a contender for the cheese, as well as G. A. Gillespie, J. S. Cook, of Belleville, and T. Thompson, of Madoc. In order to allow the buyers, salesmen and officials to visit the Toronto Exhibition, adjournment was made for three weeks, after some discussion.

Strong Protest.

In connection with a protest from Montreal produce men against the new stamp tax which, it is claimed, is paid three times by the cheese industry, the buyers decided that very little good would be accomplished by an agitation, although they admitted the tax was particularly burdensome on the business on account of the numerous middlemen in the industry. Mr. Flavelle's counsel was, that the best thing to do was to put up with it, for the money had to be raised in some manner. Mr. Cook figured the stamp tax of two cents on each fifty dollar turnover amounted to 2¼ cents on a box of cheese. This tax stirred up some talk about freight rates, which were charged by members of the board as being exorbitant. Mr. Flavelle remarked in this connection that it now costs five times as much to ship eggs to the Old Country as before the war, and Mr. Cook said the cost of shipping cheese had tripled.

Cheese Boarded.

The following cheese were boarded: Warminster 70, Selwyn 100, Villiers 105, Warsaw 160, Young's Point 100, Lang 50, North Dummer 55, East Emily 100, Cedardale 70, Norwood 166, South Burleigh 25, Killarney 56—total, 1,047.

The bidding was opened by Mr. Gillespie at 14 cents, but slowed up when 15 cents was approached. Mr. Matthews finally got the board at 15 1-8.

A SENSATIONAL FIND OF GOLD IN SUDBURY

Precious Metal Easily Visible in Large Piece of Quartz.

SUDBURY, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—What is considered to be one of the most sensational finds of gold ever made in the Sudbury district has been on exhibition here. It is a piece of rock about sixteen inches in length and 8 inches thick, and pure gold is easily visible. It was found a few days ago about forty miles north of this town.

At a meeting of the Board of Trade last night the Highway Department of the Government was requested to take immediate steps to construct a passable road to the gold fields in Whanapitae Lake district.

CLIPPED MALE HEAD PASSING

Dictates of Fashion Run to Long Hair for Men of All Ages.

The American influence in hair cuts is being remarked in Peterboro and after the hordes of women folk have been attended to the barbers are busy shaving masculine necks, leaving wide swaths about the ears and giving instructions how to cultivate a sleek long growth over the ears. The glory of the clipped male head has departed, and now the masculine models of youth and beauty are parsimonious over every hair, save the tonsorial artist who runs amuck amid the oily effusion with the deft machine that can make or mar a sapling's appearance

Several local barbers who overstepped the mark have been much embarrassed by the warm censure of male customers recently and there is much fear in the ranks of the landscape hair dressers. Side-burns are being worn by the 17's and 70's and no single class has so far offered any serious resistance to the tendency of long hairs. Poets and writers and some of the clergy have of course been so adorned for years but the news is generally circulated that the movie heroes have been responsible for the rapid spread of the vogue. Doctors, lawyers, merchants, thieves and all the other professions that figured in the old rhyme are in the swim, however; and, according to the barbering fraternity, males are giving a great deal of attention to their tonsorial appearance. Altogether the renewed interest in make-up shown by both sexes is pleasing to the profession, which it is their proud boast is just coming into its own matured and honored place.

HAIL IN ALBERTA.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press.) — A severe hail storm swept through Central Alberta Monday night, travelling from Wetaskiwin to north of Wainwright and on to the eastern boundary of the province. In a strip of eight miles wide through this area, crops are reported from 75 per cent. to totally destroyed with comparatively a small amount of hail insurance carried.

Dry Goods Stores Will Close All Day Thursday

Local dry goods stores will be closed all day to-morrow. In the morning, to allow of a general cleaning up and re-arranging of goods after the Dollar Day rush; in the afternoon, that the staffs may enjoy their usual Thursday half-holiday.

Big Business.

The success of this Dollar Day is as gratifying to all concerned as usual. Many shoppers came to town from far and near; and from the hour of stores opening this morning until The Examiner went to press, Dollar Day shops were thronged with rural and city folk in search of real bargains. And that they were not disappointed in their expectations seems quite evident from stories voiced by many of phenomenal snaps in all lines of commodities having been picked up.

In fact, it goes without saying, that Peterborough merchants kept faith with the public, in that their premises presented a veritable feast of excepional values.

WAR GREATEST CURSE LABOUR HAD TO MEET

Assertion Brings Great Ovation for Head of American Federation of Labour at Trades Congress.

A HUGE PROBLEM

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Sam. Gompers, veteran president of the American Federation of Labor, and W. Carter, fraternal delegate from England, both made a denouncement of the war as the greatest curse the Labor cause had to meet, in addressing the Trades and Labor Congress today. Their remarks were given an ovation.

Sam. Gompers was cheered to the echo when he entered the convention hall. After a few preliminary amenities, he plunged into an ardent endorsation of Carter's denunciation of war, saying, "We have had some experience in Canada and the United States; we have had the same fight; we have had the same antagonism and the same governmental opposition; and we have also had Tom Fools in our own ranks who kicked us rather than the enemy."

Mr. Gompers, however, said that in the United States, union after union had met employers' federations in long drawn-out strikes, and had emerged victorious, fighting against reductions in wages and conditions of labor.

Fight Against War.

Organized labor has a far greater problem to face than a mere fight for a proper adjustment of means and conditions of labor. Its great battle is to fight against war. Fighting for better conditions for the working man is brought to naught if that man, upon reaching his maturity, is torn from his family and thrown upon the battle field for slaughter by one of his fellows. Thus did W. Carter, M.P., sum up his message to-day to the Trades and Labor Congress from the British Trades Union Congress, of which he is fraternal delegate.

QUALITY, STYLE, SERVICE.

We get into a pair of glasses about everything that can be put into them to make them efficient, modish and becoming. We get the utmost quality into the lenses and follow the styles, too, so that they look well. We fit glasses that fit you. W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George street.

BRITISH SOLDIER GUARDING ISRAEL.

He Keeps the Peace In All the Far East Now.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 23.—(Associated Press).—This is the great Moslem feast of Bairam, and Palestine and Syria present scenes of unusual gaiety and animation. The two countries are really one. Only the artificial division to suit and ideas of British and French mandates make them two. The people are the same. Aleppo, by the extraordinary French agreement with Mustapha Kemal of Angora, is now deprived of all its hinterland and all its trade, and it must either die or be returned to the Turk again.

The crops are being reaped, the barley cut, and the fields are resplendent with flowers. One can see prototypes of Ruth and Naomi in every field, cutting the corn with the sickle and gleaning afterwards as they did in Biblical times, on the southern slopes of Bethlehem. This scene probably has been painted a hundred times by American and European artists, but they have never got it quite right. For the women of the East squat on their heels to reap, using the left hand to hold the sheaf and the right to us the sickle. In pictures Ruth is always shown as gracefully bending, but no Arab ever bends. In the East no one ever walks where he can ride, or stands where he may sit, or sits where he can lie down. This is the land of true repose.

The Arab custom is to have three great blocks of arable land, and to cultivate them, one every third year, leaving the other two great fields lying fallow. They use the same primitive methods of cultivation as of old; a camel yoked with a donkey to pull the wooden plough, and the sickle as the only instrument of husbandry.

Jerusalem is a perfect kaleidscope of color. Jews with long side curls and brightly-colored robes, not yet accustomed to their new-found liberty, slink along the pavement with downcast eye; young, bold, self-assertive Zionist Jews in white shirts open at the throat; Russians in white blouses; defiant, contemptuous Arabs, with their flowing white headdresses; Moslem women shrouded in black veils, and passing them the modern young women of Jerusalem in cheap silk stockings and high-heeled shoes.

Up and down the street the picturesque Palestine Gendarmerie ride upon their grey Arab ponies, or talk to the town police, in khaki and black astrakhan fez. It would be hard to find such a strange mixture of races even on the East Side of New York. The sober British infantry or garrison artillery, smart and alert, take up positions along the Jaffa road to see the pretty girls go by. As usual Tommy Atkins is quite inconspicuous, and it is difficult to believe that he alone allows all these warring races and creeds to meet and pass in peace. He keeps the peace in all the Near East now. Were it not for him, many lives would be in danger.

Not far distant from the ancient capital is a different picture. In the fields of Beersheba, Gaza and the Mount of Olives the traveller sees 10,000 crosses marking the graves of the British soldier dead, to whom the subject races of the Holy Land owe their redemption.

Head of the Irish Provisional Government Shot and Killed

MICHAEL COLLINS SHOT TO DEATH IN HOUR OF TRIUMPH

Following Ovation in Cork City, Head of Irish Free State is Slain by Assassin —Fear That Government Will Collapse Unless Strong Leader is Found.

SEVERAL ATTACKS AGAINST HIS LIFE

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Michael Collins, head of the Irish Provisional Government and Irish National Army, was shot and killed from ambush at Bandon, County Cork., last night, a few hours after he had been given an ovation by the people of Cork City, who for the first time saw the Free State head here in the uniform of Commander-in-Chief.

Thus within ten days two or more prominent figures in the Irish Free State Government have been removed by death.

Just ten days ago Arthur Griffith of Terrane, consigered the brains of the new Administration died suddenly in Dublin. Last night, Michael Collins, Free State Minister and military genius was killed at the moment when the dissipation of irregular forces in the south was considered complete.

Several Attacks

Several attacks had been made against the life of Michael Collins, head of the Provisional Government and commander-in-Chief of the Irish Free State Army. The latest attempt was a beabing outrage when his car was ambushed last Friday afternoon on the Dublin side of Stillergan. Official communication in connection with this attack did not indicate whether Mr. Collins was in the machine at the time. The driver was wounded and the car wrecked. A bomb and more than a score of shots being fired. In Dublin on April 17, while Mr. Collins was on his way home, having addressed a meeting at Nais, county Killdare, was attacked by group of men, some with rifles, who rushed his car and opened fire.

The Collins party returned, the fire and one of the assassins was captured. Collins was not injured.

No Details of Tragedy.

No details of yesterday's tragedy were furnished by General head quarters, but Richard Mulcahy, chief of the staff got out, the following order, which was read to all commandants:

"Stand calmly by your posts. Let no cruel act of reprisal blemish our honor.

"Dark hours which my solutions had met since 1916 seemed to steel his bright strength to temper his gay bravery.

"You are left, each of you, an inheritance of strength and bravery. Let each fill his unfinished work. Let there be no darkness, and do not let the death of our comrade daunt you.

"Soldiers of Ireland, the army serves, let it be strengthened by its sorrow."

SUMMON DAIL.

It was announced this morning that in view of the assassination of ichael Collins, the Dail Eireann will be summoned immediately, probably meeting on Saturday of the present week.

POLICY OF AMBUSHES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—The assassination of Michael Collins comes directly on the heels of the announcement by the Irish irregulars of a policy of ambushes and rails in their fight against the Free State government.

News of the outrage is only meagre and was received here too late for publication in the morning newspapers, the majority of which comment on the breaking up of organized war in South Ireland.

The Times prints, under the caption, "Hour For Leadership," a tribute to Collins, the successor of Arthur Griffith, as directing head of the fight for the Free State, which assumes unexpected timeliness in view of his assassination.

A FEARLESS SOLDIER.

Prime Minister Lloyd George today sent the following message to William Cosgrave, acting chairman of the Irish Provisional Government:

"I deeply regret to hear of the death of Commander-in-chief of Free State Army. In his death the Free State has lost a fearless soldier, a leader of great energy and devotion, and a man of remarkable personal charm. Please convey to the members of your Government my profound sympathy with them in their loss of one of Ireland's brilliant sons at a moment when Ireland most needed special qualities of courage and resolution."

WAS EXPECTING DEATH.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Patrick Collins, sergeant in the Chicago police force, brother of Michael Collins, Irish leader, killed yesterday, said that recent letters indicated Michael was expecting

NINE-YEAR-OLD BURGLAR IS UP TWICE A WEEK

Youngest Inmate of Sarnia Jail "Pulled" His Second "Job" While Waiting "Trial."

JUST FOR FUN.

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—A nine year old lad who broke into the office of Northern Navigation Company a short time ago and stole a number of ferry tickets, will not believe that the way of the transgressor is hard. He again came within the jurisdiction of the city police yesterday for breaking into the warehouse of Thomas Grace, South Christina street on Sunday. For a week he will be the youngest inmate of the Sarnia jail pending an enquiry as to his disposal which John Wilkin son of the local children's aid society is making of the superintendent of the society.

The lad had been handed over to the care of the children's aid society subsequent to the first offence but had been returned to his mother pending arrangements.

He told the chief of police yesterday that he broke into the Grace warehouse just for fun. His means of acces was made by bursting a panel of the door with a crow bar. Inside he scattered the papers all over the oiffce and spilled ink almost everywhere. Also he got a lot of fun, he said. When Magistrate Gorman asked him what made him do it he was silent, however, and appeared to be awed as he stood between two stalwart members of the police force, almost blotted from view.

GRAIN TRADE NEWS HAS GOOD REPORT

Wheat Crop Is Estimated As Second Only to That of 1915.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23.— (Canadian Press.) — The Grain Trade News, in its weekly crop report made public here yesterday, estimates the wheat yield of the three prairie Provinces this year at 350,000,000. This compared with a total crop in the banner year 1915 of 360,000,000 bushels. However the total average in 1915 was only 13,867,715, while this year the prairie Provinces have between 20,500,000 and 21,000,000 acres sown to wheat.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimate, based on conditions prevailing at the end of July, the Prairie Provinces should harvest 297,781,000 bushels. The Canadian Pacific Railway, in nts weekly crop report issued yesterday, estimated the yield of the Prairie Provinces at 317,000,000 bushels.

Voters Think $50 a Day For Five Days A Little Too Much

RED DEER, Alta., Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—The storm of protest against the $250 indemnity that members of the Alberta Legislature voted themselves for the five day session in July when wheat board proposals were discussed continues to grow. Following the action by the Clovercboard local, the Ridgewood local of the U.F.A. has taken a very decided stand on the matter, passing a resolution calling on all U.F.A. members to return $150 of the indemnity or to resign. If they refuse to do either, Ridgewood local plans to demand their expulsion from the U.F.A. at the next general convention of that body.

OUTLOOK IN CHINA IS GETTING BETTER.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— "The outlook in China is now better than at any time since the republic was first formed in 1911," said Dr. J. W. Ross, Canadian trade commissioner in Shanghai to the Canadian Press here last night. He believes China has great development immediately before her and that railways will play a vital part in it. He says there are immense possibilities for Canadian trade with China, chiefly in manufactured products.

Dr. Ross has spent twenty years in China and has seen great changes during the time he has spent there. His last visit to Canada was three years ago. On his present visit he made the trip from Shanghai to Ottawa in there weeks and he says the dominion has the quickest and most efficient steamship service across the Pacific.

BOY ON HOUSEBOAT LOST.

Falls From Flagpole and is Drowned on Family Excursion.

FREEPORT, L. I., Aug. 22.—A bereaved father and brother here were dragging the waters of the lower bay for the body of Herbert Loblein, 14-year-old schoolboy, who was drowned while on an outing aboard a chartered houseboat.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Loblein of 110 North Long Beach avenue, Freeport. The family were on the houseboat headed toward Woodcleft on the way to Point Lookout when Herbert started to climb the flagpole, but slipped and fell into the water. He did not come to the surface again.

Firemen and police searchers announced they would abandon the search for the body as hopeless, but the boy's father and brother went out in a rowboat in a last pathetic effort to find him.

SOFT COAL MINERS REACH A SATISFACTORY AGREEMENT

Peace Is Spreading in the Soft Coal Industry and Miners Have Returned to Work Under the Cleveland Settlement Plan.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—Peace in the United States soft coal industry had spread yesterday to Illinois and Iowa and Indiana operators and miners were reported on the verge of a settlement. The recent Cleveland settlement plan negotiated between the International Union Mine Workers and operators from seven states was the basis for agreements in Illinois and Indiana yesterday and Iowa Monday.

The settlements in Illinois, Iowa and Micihgan, actual mining having started in the latter states Monday and the prospect for settlement in Indiana, presented the basis for an estimate by the Department of Labor at Washington that within a week bituminous coal production would reach nine million tons weekly.

All agreements thus far reached have been predicated on the Cleveland agreement and Indiana and Southwestern states operators likewise yesterday was expected to accept the Cleveland settlement as a basis for settlement. The Cleveland settlement provided for renewal of the old contract which expired March 31 last to be effective until March 31, 1923, with provision for a fact finding commission to investigate the coal industry, the commission's personnel to be approved by President Harding and the appointment of a sub-committee at a joint meeting of operators and miners at Cleveland October 2 next, to evolve methods of negotiating wage scales in future.

Mosher Blames the C.P.R. For Reduction in Wages

Says Greatest Danger to Public Ownership Is Not Political Interference.

PRESENTS CASE.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—"The chief influence which is working to force down wages on the government railroads is, in our opinion, the influence of the Canadian Pacific," A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, declared yesterday afternoon at the session of the Board of Conciliation investigating the question of wage reductions between the Canadian National railways and its lower paid employes. Mr. Mosher expressed the belief that the greatest danger to the government-owned railroads was not political interference, but the influence of the owners of private owned roads. He said that the private owners were seeking to have the government lines run according to policies which would least interfere with the profits of their privately owned property.

In continuing the argument to uphold wage schedules as they now exist the representatives of the employes pointed out that since last year a decided change for the better had taken place. The volume of traffic had increased, operating expenses were relatively lower and the net revenue greater. These facts the employes considered would justify wage increases rather than decreases.

Dealing with the effect of wage reductions on freight rates Mr. Mosher declared that if the reduction in the wages of all railroad employes as proposed by the maangements were to be passed on in full to the public in lower freight rates the reduction of carriages would not amount to more than two or three per cent.

This, he believed, would be entirely lost to the consumer of the goods carried as a factor towards lowering the cost of living.

In expressing the belief of the employes that public ownership was on trial in dealing with the issue of wage reductions, Mr. Mosher declared that the public was befogged and "maliciously deceived" by propaandists against public ownership.

The national railways had a tremendous function of national importance in opening new regions from which profits could only accrue in the future. It was therefore unfair to attempt to compare the government line with the C.P.R., especially in view of the facts that the latter was firmly entrenched in a territory of higher traffic density, with subsidiary ocean lines, favorable land grants and a score of other favorable conditions and assisting facilities.

The employes' representative quoted statistics to show that a considerable improvement in the operation of the national railways as compared with the C.P.R. had taken place in 1921 over 1920.

Dealing with the need of railroad wage policy, the employes' representative believed there was no justification for Canadian railway wages being fixed in the United Staes. Conditions in the two countries varied in the extreme, no policy guided the United States' labor board decisions concerning wages, and Canadian wages, and Canadian wage earners had never accepted in their entirety the United States waeg decisions for the United States wage decisions for

Mr. Mosher declared that the railway managements could not be trusted to evolve a wage policy because of their disregard of the machinery set up for guidance in industrial relations. The Government therefore should decide upon a policy and instruct the new government that it was to be carried out.

The employes concluded their statement at yesterday afternoon's session. The case for the railways will be taken up at to-day's meeting of the board. A. E. Crilly of Montreal will act as principal spokesman for the national railways.

PROTEST SENT PREMIER KING ABOUT TROOPS

THE TELEGRAM.

MONTREAL, August 23 (Canadian Press). — Money grabbers are served and riots are invited in the Nova Scotia mine strike areas by the presence of Federal troops, the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress told Premier Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King, Dominion Premier, in a telegram sent him yesterday afternoon following a request by the United Mine Workers of America, District 26, that labour's massed protest be voiced on the subject.

Immediately the wired plea from the President and secretary of the miners at Glace Bay, N.S., was received by Tom Moore, routine proceedings at the Congress were suspended while instructions were issued to the Resolutions Committee to frame a formal protest to the Prime Minister.

The protest, embodied in a resolution, was passed without a dissenting voice, and was ordered wired to the Prime Minister and to Premier George H. Murray, of Nova Scotia.

The wire reads:

"With further reference to the use of troops in the Nova Scotia mining industrial disputes, this Congress, in annual convention, emphatically approves the telegram sent by President Moore on behalf of the executive council of this Congress, protesting against the use and concentration of troops in mining centres as intimidation of the workers and as a too ready assistance to the money grabbers, whose only care is their pockets rather than the rights of the public. The presence of troops, particularly when there is no disorder (property being protected by the workers), and especially where the Mayors of the municipalities of Nova Scotia have disowned the necessity for assistance, only leads to serious trouble and rioting, and is subversive of the rights of the people, and makes a mockery of the law.

"Congress asks that you bring strong presure on parties responsible for presence of troops, to evacuate the troops at once."

The message went in the name of the Congress.

HAVE MANNERS DECLINED?

As straws mark the path of the wind, so do our unconscious and unstudied actions indicate the inclinations and affections of the heart. Perhaps this generalisation may seem too positive, but we are continually applyng it in our contacts and observations, and sometimes we may be wrong. And because we are slow to form hasty opinions lest they should be unfair, we suspend judgment lacking convincing or sufficient evidence.

The following is a concrete case reported by a prominent gentleman. Four girls, young ladies, if you will, were walking arm in arm on Water Street, opposite Victoria Park. So absorbed were they in the entrancing subject of their conversation that they had no thought or consideration for others, least of all the elderly woman carrying a basket, who was approaching them. They were either oblivious or unconcerned of the fact that they were taking up the entire width of the sidewalk.

As the elderly woman, perhaps a lady, too, years older than any of them, approached, they made no movement to let her pass, to swing out on to the grass, or in some way to defer to the rights of the other, who was finally compelled to step off the sidewalk into the gutter.

The gentleman of the old school who passed on the other side of the street was shocked at the incident, and being more or less out of touch with the younger generation and uncertain of their ways, he is still wondering whether that display of utter disregard for the comfort and rights of another is symptomatic of the manners of the age, or probably the lack of them. It is not easy to reassure the gentleman who related this observation; not one thoughtful or sympathetic girl out of four is a high average that is verified many times a day where people congregate and pass on.

One cannot appraise or indict the younger generation even by the frequent evidences of uncivil manners and actual petty cruelties. The ideas and customs abroad to-day seem to accentuate personal characteristics and dispositions, so that innate selfishness, vanity and meanness are magnified, and on the other hand, seem also to magnify kindliness and modesty and magnanimity where these qualities are found.

The flapper has been subjected to so many microscopic examinations that nothing more remains to be revealed or said, and if some of them appear hard-boiled, as they do ,too many of them in fact, and leave the gentleman of the old school perplexed and wondering, he should find encouragement and relief in the many other girls who conform more closely to the standards that were familiar to him years ago, and who are maidenly and mild and charming, and who do step to one side to let others pass. How is it, though, that you seem to notice these so seldom and the others so often?

THE WAR AGAINST CANCER.

The Quebec Government has given to the University of Montreal $100,000 for the establishment of a Radium Institute for the experimental treatment of cancer. This subsidy is "splendid proof of the modern outlook and humanitarian sympathies of the Province," remarks the Montreal Star, which concludes a long editorial with the despairing confession that "we do not know what cancer is, how it comes, how it can be parried, or how it can be cured."

That cancer has baffled the medical profession is a devastating fact to any person who contracts this insidious and malignant disease. The doctor's diagnosis in such cases sounds like a death warrant, for as the Montreal Star summarises "We cannot fight cancer with methods of modern science; for we do not know what methods will serve. We must still employ the ancient remedy of amputation."

The learned medical profession will hardly be edified or interested by laymen's discussion of any phase of cancer and its treatment. But when a doctor delivers an awesome ultimatum that the knife is the only recourse, probably a doubtfully effectual one, and that the alternative is unmentionable, the layman indeed presents a pitiable figure. After thirty-five years of age, one out of every eight deaths is due to cancer. This approximate proportion indicates the extent of the ravages of this dreaded disease, and furnishes a strikingly objective reason why the general public is anxiously concerned about any developments in the method of treatment.

One of those methods was explained in Mrs. Annie Riley Hale's article, which was published in The Examiner last Saturday. The idea she sets forth on the strength of medical testimony is that cancer has been cured, not by the surgical removal of the local diseased tissue, but by correcting the condition of the blood. In support of this theory and successful method of combatting the disease, Mrs. Hale quotes the findings of Dr. Robert Bell, head of cancer research in Battersea Hospital, London, and vice-president of the International Society for Cancer Research; the late Dr. Willard Parker, of New York; Sir Astley Cooper and Sir James Paget, of England; and Dr. L. Duncan Buckley, the founder of the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital.

Hence when the Montreal Star states that "we know neither the cause of nor the cure for cancer," this assertion may be correct, but it takes no account of the investigations and the accomplishments of the doctors referred to by Mrs. Hale. From the layman's viewpoint the method she explained seems logical, that the successful treatment of cancer lies in removing the cause and not in removing the local manifestation of the disease.

Obviously the implied assumption that the cause proceeds from a "vitiated blood supply" begs the whole question, for the cause is perhaps the crux of the problem that has otherwise defeated medical science so far. But the fact that at least one local patient escaped the knife by diet and a change of the habits of living, lends colour to the contentions of Mrs. Hale, and inspires the wish that some Government might provide an endowment for the extensive investigation of the methods she advocates.

OVERCROWDING PROFESSIONS.

It is worth while to call attention to a press despatch from London, Ontario, that in accordance with a plan decided upon by the universities of the Dominion, the Medical College of the Western University will this year limit the number of freshmen, and will accept only 15 students when the school re-opens in the autumn, because it has been demonstrated that the medical colleges have been turning out more doctors than can be absorbed by the demand for physicians.

It will be remembered that some time ago the preliminary examinations for candidates seeking admission to the legal profession were increased in severity because the profession was already overcrowded. How far this overcrowding extends to other professions we do not know exactly, but we think that it exists in many of them. Male teachers may be the great exception.

Parents, therefore, as well as young men, should seriously reflect upon this matter, and consider whether there are not other occupations to which young men's minds should be turned. There is one to which we always turn with pleasure, in spite of Miss MacPhail's lamentations—and that is farming. It is hard work, but it need not be made too hard if brain is used as well as brawn; and moreover it is a profession. A successful farmer has to know and practise subjects which cannot number much less than those in many other so-called professions. Then there is the occupation of the "expert workman" in every trade, many of whom earn salaries far in advance of the incomes which lots of "struggling professional men" earn. So we might go on—but let people think the matter over. —Kingston Standard.

WORK FOR A LIVING.

The lure of the South Seas caught a man named Brown, grocery store clerk in Dubuque, Iowa. He saved his money, headed for the promised land, and heaved a sigh of relief as he set foot on the islands he had selected for his future home.

Months later Charles B. Nordhoff, globe-trotter, meets Brown. The ex-grocery clerk wishes he were back at his old job in Dubuque.

He says the popular songs and travel books are right about splendid weather and fascinating maidens of the South Seas, but they forget to mention that there's almost nothing available for the newcomer to eat.

Brown found plenty of cocoanuts. It was an infernal job husking them and getting the meat out, and he became so fed up on cocoanut that he could hardly bear the sight of one. But it was better than starving.

Presently along came four white men.

"Look here!" they demanded. "What do you mean building a shack on our property? And what right have you to steal our cocoanuts? Don't you know that we sell the dried cocoanut meat? We're copra dealers."

So Brown moved along into the jungles and began living on bananas. Indians, after announcing that he was on their property, chased him away at the tips of their spears.

All around, Brown found that everything worth while in the South Seas Islands has been staked out by gents who got there first. The lingering tourist is a trespasser.

Making a living is a world-wide problem that cannot be escaped by light. You find it in the cities, on the farm, in the jungles, in the frozen North, on the tropical islands. Most of us imagine that somewhere, if we could just find it, there is a place where we could lie in a hammock and pluck our living from the trees. Deep in our hearts, we know that we are "kidding" ourselves. Of course, one has to have delusions to lure him on to greater effort.

And most of us, like Brown in the South Seas, find that nearly everything worth while is staked out before we get there—usually several generations back. Air is about the only thing that's really free.—London Advertiser.

RURAL DEPOPULATION HAS CEASED.

President Reynolds of the Ontario Agricultural College has been making a very close analysis of the recent Canadian census, and he reaches the gratifying conclusion that rural depopulation has been arrested. The balance on the right side of the ledger is not much, it is true, but nevertheless it shows that a halt has occurred. He has collated the following increases of population as between the last two tabulations of the people:

Cities	274,444
21 towns 5,000 and over	34,324
50 towns, 2,500 to 5,000	37,073
Old Ontario districts	43,104
Rural areas, old Ontario	18,881
Total	407,826

Mr. Reynolds finds that in counties where the rural population has shown a marked increase the answer is, as in the case of Brant, the overflow from some populous centre Of other counties where decline is manifest, he gives these reasons:

Increased use of machinery, enabling the cultivation of more acres per man. The results are larger farms, fewer farmers, and fewer families.

The difficulty in hiring competent labour, outdoors and in, is owing to higher wages paid in industries than the farmer is able to pay.

Young people particularly have been attracted to town life and occupations, so that eventually many homesteads are sold to neighbours and the size of the holdings increased, with the system of farming becoming less intensive.

Not only are there fewer families in such districts, but smaller families. Schools and churches and social life have consequently declined, and with these have declined the general satisfaction of country life.

Added to these is the lack of transportation and of market facilities in most or all the back districts, where general farming is in vogue.

It may be that with better roads and the increasing use of the automobile some of the above disabilities will become much abated.

Meanwhile it is satisfactory to know that in the aggregate there are more people at present on the land in Ontario than ever before.—Brantford Expositor.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

(Contiaued from Yesterday.)

Before many moments, however, the canvas upon which Noyes had engaged attracted the attention of Violet. She saw that it represented a woodland scene. Presumably some sort of airy creature was to be painted in, accounting for the scanty attire of the girl on the model's stand. She glanced toward her a second time and as she did so caught a look which possessed so much of indignant hate that it held her numb, startling her. It was so unexpected that she stood rooted to the spot.

At that moment there was a knock at the door. In response to Noyes' "Come in" a little hunchback entered. Although he was jauntily attired, although he walked with an air of almost radiant amiability, there was no mistaking his little eyes in their piggish sockets, nor his involuntary wink as he saw and recognized Violet.

"Another of my models," explained Noyes from across the studio.

Violet was too horrified to respond, too frightened to speak. She attempted to flash a warning look at Dacca but found that her faculties had left her. Fascinated she saw the little man approach the black carelessly, then with a sudden and very remarkable swing, too quick and unexpected to be dodged, floor him with a heavy, vicious blow from a blackjack.

As Dacca's body struck the floor she woke to action and fled. The way to the door was blocked. She darted behind a screen. Here she made an amazing discovery which drove her own danger from her mind, which held her cold for the fraction of a second. Neatly laid out upon a chair were the clothes of the telephone repairman. There was the cap; on the floor stood the heavy shoes. On top of the boy's greasy shirt and suit lay unmistakably feminine undergarments. After all it had been a girl In some manner she had escaped to the studio of Noyes.

And then in a flash Violet understood. The model Trapped, the girl had stripped off her clothes and taken her place on the stand in case a search of this studio was made. Furthermore—

Violet glanced around the screen. Noyes was coming toward her, leisurely, amused. But she had eyes only for the other girl. Yes, the short black hair was a wit. The features were unmistakable. In her consciousness there formed the shadowy head and the dim beady eyes of the snake. Again she was in the hands of the emissaries of Phantom Face. The girl on the model's stand was Vera Collins, the cleverest of her enemies.

HYDRA-HEAD

Dupont halted his squad of police about a block from the meeting place.

"I don't think they've had any opportunity to get away," he explained. "I doubt they expect me back this quick; rather, they'll imagine I'll come after daybreak."

"Is it the little shack back in the alley there?" The sergeant pointed. "In that narrow passageway, where the arc shines in?"

Dupont nodded. "Do you know it?"

"I'll say We caught a gang there once, making the queer."

"Are there any back entrances or secret exits to watch?"

"Narry a one. We got the counterfeiters like nickels in a slot."

"Are we ready then?" Dupont was nervously anxious.

"Let's go"

With Dupont there were five all told. Like shadows in the gloom of the dingy street, ghostly passers-by in the silence just preceding dawn, they hurried along the walk, and with drawn weapons filed into the cramped space of the areaway.

From the little frame building there were no sign of life at first. Then one of the men detected a momentary gleam of light behind the shade in the single front window and he whispered his discovery to the others eagerly. Overhead and beyond towered the big office structures, throwing this pocket of the block into deep, impenetrable shadow. The illumination from the arc at the street only struck in half way, accentuating the darkness.

Dupont tried the door, softly. It was locked. The sergeant selected his two most husky men and before their onslaught the frail panels bent, then snapped with a loud report as the door crashed in. Still nothing happened. There were no cries, no sudden upspringing of light, no indications of alarm or of a disposition to contest this invasion.

Yet Dupont was sure the men he sought were somewhere in these quarters. Subconsciously, perhaps, he sensed their presence. The deep stillness irritated him, whipping up his impatience, spurring him to action. Grasping his automatic more firmly he jumped up into the little hallway, leading the others towards the square of light, which was much the same as upon his visit of an hour before.

In the low-ceilinged sitting room everything was in place, dovetailing with the picture in his memory. But though the men were not to be seen there were disclosed upon the floor a number of travelling bags and suitcases, a trunk, and a great variety of cardboard and wooden boxes. Dupont had been right in one surmise. The gang had decided to leave the moment he escaped. They were all packed up. Perhaps the men themselves were away, to avoid capture or to obtain some sort of conveyance for the baggage.

Rather curious, the policemen crowded into the room with Dupont. The sergeant lifted one of the bats, finding it remarkably heavy. Then he tried to open it, but discovered it was locked. As he took a heavy screw-driver knife from his pocket to force the catch, the others clustered around. Dupont, far from at ease, more alert than the policemen, dropped his eyes for just a moment to a cardboard hat box, prodding at it with his weapon. It was equally heavy. He started to pry off the cover.

At that instant a warning bustle came from several directions. A voice, quick, sharp, accustomed to obedience, rang out:

"Up with your hands Up Up"

Trapped Dupont raised his arms, continuing to clasp his weapon. The sergeant and the three patrolmen followed suit.

"No monkey business, now"

Renard stepped into the room, master of the situation. At the ringing quality in the tone of the commands, Dupont recognized his voice as the mysterious one he had heard giving utterance to the mystic threats of the Devil God. Renard, he grasped, was one of the gang particularly to be feared. Was the fox, under the very clever guise of charlatanism and superstitution, the actual head?

WARKWORTH NEWS

WARKWORTH, August 23. — Nearly one hundred men assembled in the Council Chambers here last evening to discuss the question of whether or not to join in the Hydro-Electric Commission plan for electric light service for house and for street use.

At the close of the meeting, a majority vote of those present signified that the general attitude was enthusiastic over the prospect of bringing in the Hydro with a twenty-four-hour service, as opposed to the present system of two or three hours a day, or as one man expressed it, "frequently none at all," to this progressive and thriving little village.

On account of the presence of James Goodrich, owner of the present privately-owned system, whose absence form his duties always necessitates a discontinuation of the service, the meeting was carried on by the light of oil lamps only.

A. C. Twiddy, member of the Police Commission, officiated as chairman in a very capable and efficient manner.

A clear and comprehensive exposition of the Hydro system and the schedule of rates with particular application to the needs of Warkworth, was given by S. B. Iler, of Toronto, one of the company engineers. He explained the working of the system to the satisfaction of the meeting, as the results of the vote taken at the close clearly showed.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Tobacco in Kent has been maturing rapidly of late, owing to the warm weather, and it is expected that some of it will be harvested next week.

Lincoln says: "Early St. John peaches are now appearing on the market and this crop constitutes the first of our high quality peaches. There is likely to be a large supply, and consumers can get good quality varieties from this on. A few Wyoming Red grapes are being offered. This is the first of the early grapes. There is a great demand for peach picking help, and as the season advances, the demand is likely to become acute up until the end of September.

Halton, speaking of the apple crop, remarks: "Spies and Baldwins are rather scarce. There is a good crop of Kings, McIntosh Reds, Snows and most other varieties. Scab is very prevalent and considerable deformed apples. Apples grading number one will be very scarce in the county.'

Kent fears that the dry, hot weather has brought corn along unduly, with a possibility of it not filling too well at the tips.

Grey calls attention to the following bumper yield of fall wheat: "In the Beaver Valley, near Clarksburg, a sample of fall wheat taken from the machine weighed 65 lbs. per measured bushel, and when cleaned at the mill it weighed 66 lbs. per measured bushel."

In Kent, however, where over one-tenth of the entire fall wheat of the Province has been raised, the crop is not increasing in popularity, judging by the following statement of the Representative: "The comparatively poor yield of wheat in some sections due to the ravages of the Hessian fly, coupled with the present price, have made farmers consider whether they are pursuing the best course in growing such large acreage of wheat in this county. My personal opinion is that a larger number of livestock, particularly cattle and hogs, will have to be introduced."

Peel says: "First crop alfalfa seed being harvested with a promise of large yields. There will be very little of the second cutting worth keeping for seed. This is not podding at all satisfactorily, probably due to the leaf spot which is common in many fields.

Fort William reports that the sunflower silage crop in the Slate River Valley is making wonderful growth.

Kent states that there are some big steers in that county that should have been marketed earlier.

Leeds says: "Small car lots of mixed stock are being loaded at the country points, but there is hardly enough stock of any one kind to fill a car. Prices are lower, if anything, with hogs at $12.25 a cwt., cows and bulls 3c a lb., good calves 6c and lambs 8c."

Dufferin states that farmers are shipping lambs earlier than usual this season, but that too many farmers are careless in the matter of supplying the weight best suited to market demands.

Dundas states that the buckwheat crop is looking well this year, and that there should be a good flow of dark honey.

Lennox and Addington says: "Cross plowing, skimming and double discing, especially on unseeded fields, are methods of after-har, vest cultivation practiced by farmers in this county, and no doubt will control many noxious weeds as well as better prepare the land for the 1923 crop."

Lambton says that Holland and Swiss laborers are being placed on farms in that county for fall and winter work.

Perth maintains that the harvest excursions to the West have had no serious effect upon local farm labor conditions.

Fall plowing is progressing satisfactorily in the Fort William district. Many farmers who heretofore did little or no fall plowing have already turned over several acres of old meadow.

ARRESTED AS SAFEBLOWER.

Muskegon (Mich.) Police Say Steiner Admits More Than 25 Burglaries.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Aug. 23.—John Steiner of Dugger, Ind., was arrested here when the police, it is alleged, found him preparing to blow a safe in the general offices of the Standard Oil Company. Steiner, according to the police, has confessed to more than twenty-five safe-blowing jobs in Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Kentucky within the last year. He is said to have confessed that his burglaries netted him $6,000.

The arrest was brought about by the finding of a travelling bag containing nitroglycerin near the Standard Oil offices yesterday. The police hid and arrested Steiner.

POOR GUM KING ROLLS SLEEVES

Millionaire Congressman Begins Again to Toil as He Did in '70's.

CLEVELAND, Aug 23.—W. J. White, former multimillionaire chewing gum king and Congressman, now almost penniless, has rolled up his sleeves and started over again in a second attempt to retrieve his lost fortune.

Just as he started out in the 70's, peddling his gum from store to store, so has White begun work anew.

With his own hands, a few weeks ago, he rolled out a sheet of gum, after heating it over a stove in his rooms.

After it had cooled he took a jack-knife, cut it into strips and made these up into packages. He had a few wrappings printed, using the yellow, red and black of his old White Yucatan chewing gum packages that made him wealthy and famous.

"Just place this on sale and see what happens," he told the proprietors. "If there is a demand for John White's gum, I want to know it."

There was. All four dealers applied to White for additional supplies.

Gets a Little Room.

White leased a room on the top floor above the National Tool Co. at Madison avenue and west One Hundred and Twelfth street and went to work.

There it was he was located, his coat off and sleeves rolled up.

"I have been beaten many times and physicians have given me only weeks to live, time after time," said White, with a grin, "but I'm still living and working and headed for the winning tape. I'll outlive some of the doctors who gave me up because I refused to be operated on several years ago."

As White spoke he stood looking out of the window at a manufacturing plant several blocks away.

It was his Detroit avenue factory in which he had made a name and fortune, now occupied by a concern in another line of business.

"Looks natural," smiled White, as he walked back to an old office chair and desk he used when he first started to make gum.

White's rise was spectacular. His fall even more so.

Story-Book Like.

An orphan, he began shifting for himself early in life. He established a tiny candy and popcorn store at Lorain and West Twenty-sixth street in the seventies.

At one time White and his bride were ordered out because they could not pay rent, but a friend supplied the money.

White made his first gum in a house near West Sixty-first and Loraine avenue and peddled it to F. W. Tegemeier, grocer, across the street.

"I want to see if there is a demand for it," White told Tegemeier.

"By nightfall," the grocer reported, "every child on Loraine avenue had tasted it and wanted more."

In 1882, White and his wife made gum in a washboiler in a cottage at 177 Dare street, now 1855 West Fifty-second street. Five years later they moved to a pretentious home on Detroit avenue and on that site later the large White factory was erected.

Was Generous Spender.

White's yacht could be located at Palm Beach every winter. He was known as a generous spender. He married again.

Then he entered into a contract with the chicle trust. Through a twist in business he lost a big part of his interest. His "fastest yacht on the lakes" was beaten. His Two-Minute stock farm lost him thousands.

Finally came word that White was "broke" both in finances and health. He gave up his factory and his Two-Minute villa was sold following a suit.

This was in 1911. One year later White appeared in Buffalo, removed his coat, rolled up his sleeves and began to fight to retrieve his fortune.

Soon he had the backing of several wealthy men, opened up a $300,000 plant and began the manufacture of gum.

But the chicle trust, jealous of the White name, sued him for using it.

"I beat them in the suit," said White, "but the filing of the suit defeated me, because no jobbers or retailers would take my gum. I gave up the plant—and everything else."

White was ordered to bed and then to undergo an operation to save his life.

"I refused the operation—and look at me now," he said.

White's face, though lined, is ruddy. His eyes twinkle with a display of the old humor. His hair and mustache are grey. He is living in bachelor apartments on West One Hundred Twelfth street, having separated from his second wife some time ago.

"But, I'm on the road to fortune again," he said. "I've got a new kind of gum—with vitamines in it—and it's starting to go fast."

WANT FANS IN THE DEATH HOUSE.

Slayers at Sing-Sing Awaiting Execution Suffer from Heat.

OSSINING, August 22. — Several of the twenty-seven murderers in the Sing-Sing death house are complaining of the heat which, because of the cramped quarters and poor ventilation, has caused great suffering, and have asked that electric fans be installed there.

Luther Boddy, coloured desperado, who is to die in ten days for the murder of Detective Sergeants William Miller and Francis Buckley in Manhattan, was suffering more than any of the others.

Each prisoner remains in a small cell night and day, except for fifteen minutes, when he is allowed in the yard to exercise.

Rutger Warder, convicted of the murder of Henry Werner at Ilion, N.Y., who has spent the longest term of any prisoner in the death house, is one of the sufferers.

Some of the attendants expressed the belief that some of the condemned men who have been worrying over their fate, may go insane from the heat unless they get relief.

BRITISH AND YANK CHAMPS TO MEET

Some Important Golf Matches to Be Played This Season.

Important golfing events remaining on the schedule for this year are:

The national amateur championship to be played at the Brookline Mass. Country Club, beginning September second.

The best two in three matches in which Walter Hagen, match play champion of American professionals will meet Abe Mitchell, match play champion of Great Britain.

The best two in three matches in which Walter Hagen British open golf champon will meet Gene Sarazen, American open champion, for what will be an informal world's championship.

Officials of the Royal and Ancient of St. Andrews and of the United States Golf Association could not sanction and give official recognition to a world's championship match between Hagen and Sarazen, but golfers everywhere are greatly interested in this contest and it will be played in October, with the first match in Pittsburgh and the second at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, at Rye, New York.

Now that exhibition golf is a fad and provides players everywhere with an opportunity of seeing the champions in action a yearly match between the winner of the British and American open championships is likely to become one of the regular fixtures of the golfing season.

The British amateur golf team is now in America prepared for the championship at Brookline. Roger Wethered and Cyril Tolley, who crossed the water in 1920 to play in the amateur championship at the Engineer's Club, are members of the invited team. American golfers are glad to have the British players here, but eager for an American amateur to retain the title won last year by Jesses Guilford at St. Louis medals by the peck, young Pete water as long as possible.

ANTH CI... OAL IN PAYING QUANTITIES IN SUDBURY DISTRICT

SUDBURY, August 23. — Canadian Press. — After making a survey of over one hundred square miles in Chelmsford and Larchwood area we have come to the definite conclusion that there is anthracite coal in commercial quantities in the Sudbury district, A. P. A. Coyne, the well known geologist, informed a largely attended meeting of the Board of Trade here last night.

Mr. Coyne was accompanied by two mining experts from the Scottish coal fields and his estimate was entirely supported by his associates.

Mr. Coyne produced samples of the purest kind of anthracite coal, which had been collected over an area of one hundred square miles.

During the last few days farmers have been digging up rock on their farms and have found coal at depths of 18 inches.

To-day work was commenced by a mining gang near the C. P. R. station at Chelmsford with the object of striking a bed of anthracite coal.

U. S. WOMAN AWARDED A BRITISH SCHOLARSHIP

MANCHESTER, Aug. 23.—(Associated Press).—An American has been awarded the Harry Thornton Pickles post-graduate studentship in history at the Manchester University, which was founded in 1920 by Mr. Stephen Pickles, in memory of his son who fell in the war.

Eight applications were received and the successful candidate is Miss Gertrude Ann Jacobsen, who is an instructor in history in Wooster College, Ohio. She has made a special study of recent British history, particularly of foreign policy, under the instruction of Professor Wallace Notestein of Cornell University.

RADIO HAS SPEEDED THE GROWTH OF CROPS

This remarkable discovery has been made by government agricultural experts here. They have been conducting experiments and observations on farms near high-powered radio stations where they report more rapid growth of soil products than ordinarily.

Radio has been known to be an indispensable aid to farmers in the broadcasting of special agricultural information and reports on weather market and atmospheric conditions. But not until the present revelations were made has radio been known to be of direct help to the farmer in the production of his crops.

The government experts studying this phenomenon have discovered that the high-frequency waves from the broadcasting stations nearby have caused vegetation to take on a larger growth and reach its maturity much sooner than under ordinary conditions.

Proceeding on this discovery scientists have established an experiment station at Honolulu, where they are concentrating their attention on the production of crops through the aid of wireless waves.

If radio actually is beneficial to crop growth, experts say, a system of wireless stations could be installed to help farming throughout the country. By this means, radio waves could be distributed from a central station over a wide cultivated area.

By distributing the waves close to the ground, radio would act as a fertilizer and energizer or the hasty development of farm products. By such a method the growing season for certain products could be shortened and a large yield assured.

THE BEEKEEPER

A correspondent corrects the statement by the writer of the story on "Mr. Peter Borough" that there is no bee journal published in Peterborough. He points out that Beekeeper is published in this city—made up in the Examiner job composing room and run off on the Examiner job presses every other month. Well, that is the fact, and the unintentional error is cheerfully admitted.

But there is nothing very remarkable, as "Kruger," the corrector, seems to think, in the writer of "Mr. Peter Borough," not having knowledge of The Beekeeper being printed under the same roof beneath which he is engaged in the newspaper only. It is not edited in the building, its mechanical work is conducted in departments whither the writers duties do not call him, and he does not happen to be interested in bees.

However, the writer had no intention of slighting The Beekeeper by not coupling it with the Farm and Dairy and Canadian Horticulturist as Peterborough publications; he is always open for information; he is pleased to know that there is one more industry in this city than he was aware of—The Beekeeper — which, together with its contemporary, The South African Bee Journal, he wishes every success.

MRS. GIBERSON CALM AS CAMERAS CLICK.

Woman Accused of Slaying Husband Has First Talk With Newspaper Men.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 23.—Seated in the exercise corridor outside her cell in the County Jail at Toms River, Mrs. Ivy Giberson, who is charged with the murder of her husband, talked with newspaper men here for the first time. In the course of the questioning she rose with dramatic emphasis, raised her eyes upward, and said:

"I stand in the presence of my God, innocent and unafraid, and that is the whole secret of my calmness since I have been here, about which the newspapers have been wondering. And that's all I have to say."

The accused woman, who is 40 years old, was questioned by newspaper men in the presence of her lawyer, former County Judge William H. Jeffrey, Prosecutor Wilfred H. Jayne and Deputy Sheriff A. W. Brown. The Prosecutor watched her closely as she made her replies.

Ten minutes before the reporters, photographers and officials were taken to her cell she was told to "dress up." She put on a black chiffon dress, black satin slippers and black silk stockings. Her only jewellery was a gold wedding ring and a gold wrist watch. Her entire appearance was matronly.

She greeted the party with a smile and her actions throughout the interview and picture making bore out the Sheriff's remark during the week that "she's the coolest woman we've ever had in this jail." When she was told that reporters wanted to interview her she looked around for her lawyer, and not seeing him, asserted she would be unable to answer questions unless Judge Jeffrey were present.

Poses For Many Pictures.

"I am sorry, but I must decline to answer any question, on the advice of Mr. Jeffrey," she said. "I don't like to be discourteous to you, and I hope you don't think I am."

Then she posed for more than a dozen pictures until her lawyer arrived. When asked by a photographer to smile, she replied, "I can't smile," but she did. At about the twelfth picture she remarked to the photogranhers, "I didn't know I was so popular."

Judge Jeffrey explained when he arrived that at this time he believed it unwise for his client to answer all questions put to her. When a question was asked, Mrs. Giberson looked at her lawyer for permission to reply. She seemed prepared to make answer to every interrogation and was held back only by her lawyer.

"Will you tell us," she was asked, "how the three chloroform bottles happened to be in the house and who purchased them?"

"Don't answer that," said Judge Jeffrey.

She was then asked how her son's travelling bag came to be in her apartment the morning of the murde, whereas her son insists he did not go to her house until after the murder occurred. The prosecutor admitted before the interview that the bag containing his soiled clothing was there all night, Joe Richmond, the son, returned from his vacation at 9 p.m. She was not permitted to answer.

Two weeks ago, she said, in reply to another question, was the last time she visited New York City. On her lawyer's advice she could not divulge why she went there. "I saw a number of people," she said smilingly.

Asked to clear up the report that affectionate letters from male admirers had been found in her rooms by the authorities, Mrs. Giberson replied emphatically:

"No affectionate letters were found in my apartment anywhere. Mr. Jayne is privileged to have you print any of my letters."

Counsel Checks Her Replies.

The last time she saw Harold A. Ga Nun, the construction engineer, who was questioned by the prosecutor in connection with letters he sent to the accused woman, was two weeks ago, she asserted. Upon advice of counsel the place of the meeting or the reason for it was not divulged. Nor was she permitted to tell whether Mrs. Ga Nun had written to her, requesting that she cease corresponding with Ga Nun.

She had not heard any quarreling between her husband and two men, one tall and the other short, shortly before the murder, she said, "as I was in bed. The first I heard of it was through the newspapers."

Although Joe Richmond, in several interviews, insisted he and his stepfather did not get along well, his mother said their relations had always been friendly. The relations between her husband and herself also were "friendly," she insisted. She added that "all those things will come out at the proper time. Why the pair of scissors was found next to the ball of twine in her room, right after the murder, she was not permitted to say.

"This may seem to you to be a silly question, but will you tell us if you killed your husband?" she was asked.

She looked at the questioner for a fraction of a second and then rose quickly from the chair. She proclaimed her innocence, standing, and then took her seat.

"I do not care at all whether the jury that hears my case has no women in it; it is no concern of mine," she replied to another question.

Told that the women here believe in her innocence, Mrs. Giberson replied: "I am glad some one likes me."

She spends her time, she said, reading newspaper accounts of the investigation and clipping them. She also reads magazines and plays solitaire. Referring to a published story that the Prosecutor intended re-enacting the crime in her house with a dummy, Mrs. Giberson told her lawyer, "You can tell Mr. Jayne for me he needn't use a dummy. I'll go right back to the house with him and re-enact my part of it, if he will let me."

On Monday Mr. Jeffrey will apply to Surrogate U. S. Grant of Ocean County for letters of administration so that Mrs. Giberson can take care of her murdered husband's estate. It consists of an automobile, two pool tables and an old sawmill. The entire estate, said Mr. Jeffrey, is worth $450.

Whatever part Mrs. Giberson may or may not have had in the murder of her husband, she was not alone in the plot and probably had nothing to do with the actual shooting nor knew that shooting was contemplated. This is believed to be the theory upon which the Ocean County police authorities have been working quietly for several days. The apparent eagerness of the prosecution to pin the crime exclusively upon Mrs. Giberson is believed to be explained by a desire for greater freedom of acting in running down the man or men who did the actual shooting.

SEEKS DIVORCE UNDER ENOCH ARDEN LAW

White Plains Husband First to Invoke New Act in Westchester County.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 22.—The first action in Westchester County for marital freedom under the new Domestic Relations law was begun here. Robert McConkey of White Plains petitioned that his marriage be dissolved upon the ground that his wife is legally dead. The new law provides for such action if a husband or wife is absent for five years and cannot be found. Justice Seeger signed an order permitting publication of notice of the suit. In the event that the wife does not reply or appear, a decree will be granted.

The couple were married in Newcastle July 11, 1912, after a five days' courtship. Shortly after, the plaintiff alleges, he was informed that his wife had been married before to a Brooklyn man and that she had been convicted in the Jefferson Market Night Court of shooting at a woman. McConkey says that when he confronted her with this story she admitted it all, flew into a rage, and, taking a revolver, shot at him, but missed. He says she then tried to set fire to their house, and that he had her arrested but did not prosecute. Since then, McConkey says, she disappeared, and he has not heard of her.

RUSSIA CAN FEED HERSELF.

5,000,000-Ton Increase in Harvest Will Make Our Aid Unnecessary.

WASHINGTON, August 23. — Russia's 1922 crop of bread grains, estimated to be at least 5,000,000 tons more than the production of the famine year of 1921, according to a statement made public by the Department of Agriculture yesterday, will put the country in a position to feed herself.

In addition, it will furnish seed grain to increase the sown area even further during 1923.

The Department's estimates were based on conditions in the growing area as of June. The American Relief Administration has made similar calculations and has announced its expectation that continuation of the famine relief will probably be unnecessary after the new crop comes to hand.

NOVA SCOTIAN EXPORT LUMBER TRADE REVIVES

HALIFAX, N.S. Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press)—A revival in the export lumber trade of Nova Scotia from the slump which occurred following the war boom shipments has been reported lately. Building operations in New York and other parts of the United States are said to be chiefly responsible. Several large schooners are engaged in carrying cargoes from Sheet Harbor and the Musquodoboit Valley in Halifax County and from other places to American ports.

The lumbering industry of Nova Scotia formerly depended almost entirely on the British and South American markets. Cargoes are still going to the south but the British Market has not been a good customer of late years.

The great piles of lumber known as "war stock" which were seen lying undisturbed following the slump in the latter part of 1920 are said to be at the vanishing point and a new cut is being sought.

Montreal Board of Trade Perpetuates Maisonneuve

There is a striking monument in Montreal to Maisonneuve, founder of Canada's Metropolis. As in his life time, his thoughts were of the West, so does the memorial to him stand to-day. The sculptor has caught the spirit of the adventurous pioneer in the poise of the body and the head. Vision, courage, determination are plain to the observant eye and understanding mind.

Maisonneuve and the host of gallant men and noble women who laid the foundation of the Canada of to-day, long ago embarked upon the greatest and last quest. But their faith in the new land is as a living flame in the hearts of their successors. They see their country favored by geography and nature, a link between East and West, and extending almost 4,000 miles from ocean to ocean. They know that it is endowed with a richness of natural resources beyond the power of man to calculate. Above all they rejoice in its attainment to a place and a voice in the councils of the nations.

Retrospect is often pleasant. The true Canadian has little time for that. His heart and mind are on the present and the future. He knows that if his country is to come to full fruition as a nation it must be by still worthier efforts on the part of its people individually and collectively. No single province within the Dominion's far-flung boundaries can afford to disregard another. Each must be in sympathy with all the rest. The East must share in the problems as well as in the joys and prosperity of the West. The West must have faith in the East. Bound by an inviable but unbreakable chain of mutual affection and goodwill they can and will put and keep Canada in the very vanguard of the world's great nations.

The development of the national spirit has been fostered in many an hour of peril, difficulty, and struggle. It is beginning to bloom in beauty and strength. Its progress has been greatly advanced of late years by the action of important organizations in sending delegations to many sections of the country, so that their members may add to their first-hand knowledge of their home land. Such an organization is the Montreal Board of Trade which will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of its founding by beginning on September 1, a thirty days' tour of the Dominion. The members will not only see the country in all the glory of its most beautiful scenic settings, but the journey will be so arranged as to give them a new perspective of its wealth of soil, forests, mines and waters, and impressions of its industrial and commercial growth that would be impossible of visualizing in any other way.

From Montreal the party will travel westward via Toronto and the Great Lakes; thence from Port Arthur to Winnipeg, the greatest primary grain centre on the continent, across the vast prairie lands and through the Rockies to Vancouver and Victoria.

On the return journey they will make the 550-mile cruise up the north Pacific Coast from Vancouver to Prince Rupert, on one of the palatial Canadian National Railways steamers. This part of the journey will give the party a splendid idea of the development in the mining, lumbering and pulp and paper industries of British Columbia, with all their future possibilities. At Prince Rupert, Canada's most northerly Pacific port, hewn out of the solid rock of Kaien Island, there will be every opportunity to gain an insight into the enormity of the halibut and salmon industry of the province. From Prince Rupert eastward the party will become acquainted with the Skeena River, with its historic and romantic traditions, its arresting grandeur, and its fame as one of the most prolific salmon streams in the world. They will see too, some of the Bulkley and Nechako River Valley country, one of the newest fields of settlement opened up in the west. Unknown to the vast majority of Canadians, the luxurious valleys that lay between the mountain ranges in this area, are suitable for mixed farming, dairying, fruit growing and cattle raising. In the years to come their productivity, now a matter of knowledge to comparatively few, will offer means of livelihood and competence to thousands of new people.

Shortly after leaving Prince George, the party will pass through Mount Robson Park. This is a veritable wonderland of mountain scenery, some 650 square miles in extent and set aside by the government of British Columbia as a national playground and wild life sanctuary. Here will be obtained an excellent view of Mount Robson, with an altitude of 13,068 feet. It towers above the surrounding peaks, sublime, majestic, with green glistening glaciers and pure white snow adding to its beauty. Sometimes its own summit is lost amid the mists and clouds; quite often that summit is the centre of raging storms. But on Mount Robson they beat in vain.

Next Jasper Park, another mountain kingdom, but of greater extent, embracing 4,400 square miles of sublime mountain scenery, is entered. Here the party will spend a day at Jasper Lodge, the new Alpine chalet built on the shore of Lac Beauvert by Canadian National Railways, and the first of a series to be built throughout these Northern Canadian Rockies. At night they will leave for Edmonton.

From Edmonton the homeward route will be through the rich farm lands of the northern part of the prairie provinces to Winnipeg following the trans-continental line of Canadian National Railways through the rich pulp forests and new farm lands of Northern Ontario to Cochrane, down through the famous Cobalt mining districts over the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway to North Bay, thence to Ottawa, and back to Montreal.

Concern Over Coal Strike

The more you get about and look into the matter these days the more you realize that the public is in the throes of deep distress over the prospect of a coal famine this winter.

* * *

Everywhere you go you find men so upset about it that they are falling way behind in their swimming lessons and women so distraught that they forget to lace their bathing shoes properly. Children are so disturbed they frequently eat their ice cream cones wrong end foremost. Mention the coal strike to an apartment house janitor and you will make it practically impossible for him to perfect his Australian crawl stroke.

* * *

The Inquiring Reporter went forth yesterday, equipped with the latest bulletins on how the coal strike will NOT be settled, and armed with the governmental plans to ration coal on a two-lumps-per-person basis during the coming winter. Carrying the Heatless Days data in one hand and a thermos bottle full of iced near beer in the other, he sallied forth to get the right dope on the alarm felt by old Pete Public. With the following results:

Millicent Muddlehead,
Stenographer.
Where Interviewed: Train Bound for the Beach.

"Are you aware that this country faces a period of heatless days" asked the Inquiring Reporter, mopping his brow.

"You're the third guy what's tried to kid me on this train," replied Millicent, fanning herself with her hat.

"I am very serious, young lady. Heatless days are almost certain to be visited upon the people of this country."

"Well, only the rich and the people with a full will get 'em," declared Millicent. "See if you can open this window for me, will yer?"

"Are you aware that the coal miners have been out now for many months and that—"

"Say, listen and get me right!" snapped Millicent. "I dunno nothin' about any coal miner bein' out or who they've been out with, but they ain't been out with me."

"Do you know that a single coal miner in the course of a normal day's work—"

"I dunno anything about single coal miners no more than I do about married ones. Now, beat it, and leave me alone or I'll call the conductor."

George Gargoyle,
Clerk, Orange Drink Booth.
Where Interviewed: At the Booth.

"What do you think of the coal strike?" asked the I. R.

"It's a lucky thing it didn't come," replied George.

"But it did come," insisted the I. R.

"Did it?" asked George.

"Certainly. It's been on a summer and more."

"Is that so? 'S funny, but I didn't hear none of the customers say anything about it. They just rush up, shoot down a glass or two of iced orangeade and beat it away without mentioning coal one way or the other."

Hammond Egge,
Business Man.
Where Interviewed: Off Diving Platform at Bathing Resort.

"Do you think there is any prospect of an early agreement between the miners and operators?" asked the inquisitive reporter.

"Watch me do this one," replied Hammond, putting his hand over his head and leaping from the spring-board. "It's called the jackknife."

"Are you aware that shipments from the anthracite fields during the week, July 24 to Aug. 2, showed a decrease of 6.7 per cent.?" asked the inquisitive journalist as Hammond came up for air with a noise like a dying walrus.

"The sea lion roll!" bawled Hammond as he rolled over and over in the water and then submerged completely.

The reporter had some trouble locating him again. Suddenly a few bubbles revealed the spot under which Hammond was swimming. Always an enterprising newspaper man who would run any assignment to the death, the Inquiring Reporter dived from the platform. To his surprise, by the time he rose to the surface Hammond had eluded him and was climbing up the diving platform again.

"Are you conscious of the fact that you will experience great suffering in your own house this winter unless President Harding brings the strike to an end and that your little children may die of the cold?" cried the I. R.

"Maiden's Prayer! Look!" yelled Hammond as he rushed to the spring-board and did a weird flop into the water.

This time as he came up the Inquiring Reporter grabbed him about the neck and yelled with anger:

"Have you any conception at all what the coal strike in the anthracite and bituminous fields means to the nation?"

"What coal strike?" asked Hammond.

Whereupon the reporter held him under water until all life was extinct.

FOUR NEW FACTORS IN RAIL STRIKE SITUATION

May Vitally Influence the Action of Association of Railway Executives in To-Day's Meeting.

WAGE ADVANCE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—(Canadian Press).—Four surprise factors entered into the United States rail strike situation yesterday, any one of which, according to representatives of roads and brotherhoods, may vitally influence the action of the Association of railway Executives, when it meets to-day to consider peace proposals for mediation with the Big Five Brotherhoods. They were:

1.—The announcement that Presidents of three powerful eastern roads, Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley and William Besler of the Jersey Central were expected to arrive from Europe on the Majestic, in time to participate in the conference of the Association of Railway Executive.

2.—The grant by three large steel corporations of a 20 per cent. increase in the wage to its several hundred thousand day laborers.

3.—Assertions by F. Loree, President of the Deleware and Hudson and Chairman of the Eastern Presidents' conference, that predictions of a strike settlement and peace in the industry were "all bunk."

4.—The announcement that several of the brotherhood chiefs are enroute from the west with practical proposals for settlement of the shop crafts strike which they will submit to rail executives if all other peace advances fail.

The decision of the steel corporations to raise the wages of laborers, announced just 24 hours prior to the scheduled meeting of the executives was hailed by the strikers as a point in their favor. It not only justified their refusal to accept wage cuts fixed by the railroad labor board, they said, but was ample proof of an impending industrial boom which would put the railroads, with their thousands of bad-order cars, more than ever in need of their old repair forces.

MICHAEL COLLINS SHOT TO DEATH

death. The place where he was killed was just twelve miles from Clonakilly, where Michael was born.

"If it were a real Irishman that killed Mike I would say the Irish race is discredited," said Sergeant Collins, "but I know it is not, 'twas some blackguard not fit to wipe his boots.

DE VALERA ELUSIVE.

LONDON, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Eamon De Valera has become a cavalryman, and consequently is more elusive than ever, says a correspondent of the Daily Mail, of the National army in the field.

The Republican leader and all members of his continent are reported to be mounted on hunters, he adds. De Valera is believed to be either in the neighborhood of Fermy, County Cork, where it is known he has friends, or in Kerry Hills, where a large number of his followers are concentrated.

ENGAGED TO WED.

LONDON, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press).—At the funeral recently of Arthur Griffith, everybody was talking about Collins now that he was left alone as the great outstanding figure in the Free State movement. "All the girls of Ireland are in love with Michael Collins," whispered an Irish woman as Collins, following Griffith's bier, walked slowly through O'Connells to the famous Nelson Hill. But they are all too late, I fear, because I have heard he has a sweetheart down in the country, and one of these days when Ireland is more tranquil, Michael Collins will lead her to the altar."

It was announced last May that Miss Kitty Kiernan, a member of a leading family in Longford, was engaged to marry Collins.

The Evening Telegraph says: "The blow to Irish Free State is almost irreparable, especially as Collins and Griffith stood solidly for the treaty, and they leave no outstanding figures behind them. Ulster will sympathize with the Free State in its trials and tragedies, which are directly due to the Irishmen themselves. They have, rightly or wrongly, been given great charge by the British Government, and it is for them to carry it on in spite of disappointments and discouragements of recent months."

HYDRO POWER FOR SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP

Meeting Held on Monday Evening to Discuss Matter—Campbellford News

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23.—On Monday evening Mr. R. S. Idler of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, addressed a meeting of farmers and townspeople in the opera house on the possibility of securing electric power for the farmers of Seymour township. Although the gathering was not as large as might have been expected, Mr. Iler clearly defined the policy of the Hydro re supplying the rural districts. The various classes, numbering ten, into which consumers might be divided, with rates, were given with the necessary stipulation of three consumers to the mile, together with a necessary contract for 20 years.

Committees from the various sections throughout the township were nominated to canvass the farmers and determine the number interested. If sufficient numbers in each route are interested, engineers will be sent on to estimate the cost. Some farmers in Seymour township, around Burnbrae, already enjoy electric power service, and their experience should be an incentive to others throughout the township.

SECOND DAY OF LIFE INSURANCE MEN'S CONVENTION

More Arrivals From Various Parts of Canada and United States Register in Toronto.

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—The necessity for every man carrying life insurance and how best to sell it are the main themes of the international convention of Life Underwriters who held their second session today (Wednesday) at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. Many more arrivals from various parts of Canada and the United States registered at headquarters today. The proceedings are very business-like, no read papers are permitted, discussion is short and to the point, and the two Chairmen, John L. Shuff, President of the National Association of Life Underwriters, and J. G. Stephenson, President of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, are running the program well on time.

Human Needs Supplied.

Human needs supplied by life insurance first occupied the delegates' attention today. Many unanswerable arguments were advanced on behalf of life insurance as a family protection. A certain amount payable in instalments to bridge the years until the children are self-supporting was stated to be the duty of every breadwinner. Insurance will also supply funds to enable a family to continue the business of the deceased or to wind it up without excessive loss. That a father may be insured for his children in order to provide funds necessary for their education, or a lump sum with which a son might start in business, were other features cited.

In business relationships life insurance is daily playing a more important part. It indemnifies partners or business associates for loss by death of the services of an individual possessing unusual experience and personality or some quality which would make it difficult or even impossible to fill his place without a loss to business. It also secures the confidence of possible investors who are wise enough to foresee the effects of death on business. Some large policies of this kind have been written in Canada in recent years.

An Unwelcome Guest.

Years ago many men solicited for life insurance were inclined to treat the salesman as an unwelcome guest. Today the life insurance salesman is a welcome visitor because he is selling something which every business head or breadwinner needs and because men of the best character and ability are engaged in offering life insurance to the public. Graphic methods of opening the interview with the prospective buyer of life insurance elicited an excellent discussion. The subject was introduced this morning by Earl G. Manning of Boston.

By a graphic method is meant a method by which a circular, paper or a specific object is used to interest the "prospect" in life insurance. It was stated that scientific salesmen were using this method of approach because impressions are registered many more times more easily through the eye than through the ear. The establishment of this principle has revolutionized the selling of life insurance.

Money Prize Contest.

A novel feature was a money prize contest open to Canadian delegates only, for short impromptu addresses on the most novel and effective method of presenting life insurance by graphic methods. Besides proving the ability of the orators many interesting points were introduced. The discussion on this subject might with great advantages have been heard by the public.

Four sectional meetings were held in the afternoon. At one of these were discussed the protection of bank loan mortgages, and bond issues by life insurance. The use of life insurance by business individuals, partnerships and corporations to build up and maintain credit was also analysed. Many delegates reported a growing appreciation by business men of life insurance for these purposes. Insurance is also being sold extensively to provide for the inheritance tax at death and this feature was dealt with freely at another sectional meeting.

How to Build Up.

How to build up good life insurance sales forces was another topic discussed and elicited valuable information for the delegates. The talk of John Marshall Holcombe, Jr., and others speakers were well received. Industrial insurance problems was the subject of a splendid address by James E. Kavanagh, Vice-President of the Metropolitan Life, an expert on the matter, who also gave an idea of the enormous amount of this insurance held by people of foresight on this continent. How to prevent lapses was a topic handled by Mr. J. G. Stephenson, a problem which should disappear when the general public fully recognizes the imperative necessity of life insurance. The discussions on these matters were well led by Messrs. J. F. Maine and J. J. McSweeney.

Each day's proceedings is opened with community singing, led by W. G. Lisenhauer of New York, who was song leader of the American army during the war, and is considered the best on the continent. The second day's program concluded with a banquet, over which J. G. Stephenson presided, John L. Shuff acted as toaster master, and at which the principal speakers were Judge Charles J. Orbison, Superior Court, Indiana, and Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, Ontario.

HEIR IS FOUND TO 6,000,000 POUNDS.

O'Neills of South America Scent British Fortune.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 23.—(Associated Press).—After a lapse of 72 years an heir to the £6,000,000 fortune left by an Irish peer has appeared in this city in the person of Don Eugenio O'Neill, a Uruguayan subject who is employed by the Agricultural Society of Uruguay.

Mr. O'Neill, who is 68 years of age, was first made aware of the facts of the case by a London friend who read in a newspaper a list of the great fortunes held by the Bank of England in trust for their legitimate heirs. Once in possession of the antecedents of the case, the lucky heir-presumptive took steps to set the law in motion to assert his claim to this vast fortune. He has been deluged with letters of congratulation from all his friends, and many others who claim to be, and the only fly in the ointment is the discovery of the existence of other O'Neills in Chile, Portugal, the United States and Argentina, to say nothing of a possible claimant from Queensland, Australia.

In spite of this, however, Don Eugenio is convinced that he alone is the rightful heir to this respectable fortune, and the progress of his claim is being watched with much interest in this city.

ARMENIAN BOYS GOOD FIREMEN.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 23.—(Associated Press).—A bucket brigade of 200 Armenian orphan boys from the industrial school recently saved thousands of Turkish homes at Beylerbey, on the thickly-populated Asiatic shore of the Bosphorus, from destruction by fire.

The fire started in a locality made up of tenements and at one time was most threatening. There was no fire-fighting apparatus available, so Mrs. A. A. Burt, of Los Angeles, the headmistress of the school, sent two hundred of the oldest boys to the scene of the fire with buckets. They organized a quadruple line from the watertront to the fire and succeeded in confining the flames to a group of 12 tenements. About 100 Turkish families were rendered homeless.

Doctor Esther Lovejoy, of Portland, Ore., head of the American Women's Hospitals, who happened to be visiting the school at the time, assisted in directing the boy fire-fighters.

The remains of what is probably the first Christian Church in Britain were disclosed by excavation in North Hampshire.

TINY DICE.

A pair of very stunning ball earring contain tiny dice in each ball. There is nothing about them to indicate the double life they lead.

ADANACS TRIMMED BY THE LAKEVIEWS

Junior League Leaders Were Outnit and Outplayed By Le Barr's Gang.

Adanacs went down with a dull thud at the ball lot last evening when Lakeviews landed on the pace setters with an 8 to 3 wallop. There was nothing indefinite about the result of the fracas. Gilchrist outpitched Harold and Lew LeBarr's infield and outfield help did the rest. Incidentally, the occasion served to bring about the redemption of "Red" Whitlow, whose crime of having mussed things badly when Holy Name Society trimmed the Lakeviews last week, was cleaned off the slate. The tall youth pastured in the middle garden last evening and at one stage when Gilchrist looked to be slipping, it was "Red" who came to the rescue. It was the fifth and Adanacs needed a pair of counters to tie the score. After Hensley had gone out on a long fly to Ash, Jack Turner shot a single through the box, and Batten bunted, putting runners on first and second. Wilgar with two on him, sent out a fly to middle, and Whitlow grabbed it without much effort. McLean repeated the performance giving Whitlow a hard chance. The clout looked good for a couple of runs and second base for Benny. But "Red" made a great spurt and while going at full speed stretched forth both hands and grabbed the pellet for one of the finest catches made at Riverside Park. That stopped the visitors best looking chance to get a few runs.

Lakeviews were the better team all the way through and "Jack" Harold who was not at top form, put in a very disagreeable evening. Lakeviews hit hard, and they finished strong in the seventh with four consecutive blows.

As a result of the Lakeviews, victory, the win or oth second half is in doubt. Adanacs meet Holy Name Society tomorrow evening and a win for the H.N.S. will complicate matters. A victory for Adanacs will mean the recovery of lost ground, the remaining opposition being contined to Lock Works who have yet to win a game in the second half.

Herman Pillette Proves A Star in His First Year

HERMAN PILLETTE

(By Billy Evans.)

The American League has uncovered some mighty fine young pitchers among the 1922 recruits.

Good pitchers are hard to get. Seldom does one come through in his first year. However, in this respect the American League has been very fortunate during the present season.

Of all the likely recruits who have blossomed forth, none stands out more prominently than Herman Pillette of the Detroit Tigers.

In spring training Pillette was simply a pitching recruit. He wasn't figured on to play any part in the Tigers' chances. Yet today he is the pitching ace of the Detroit staff.

Pillette came to Detroit from Portland. Owner Navin paid $40,000 for him and Johnson. The latter was the pitcher the Tigers really wanted. Pillette was thrown in.

Portland finished last in the Pacific Coast League in 1921. With a tail-end club Pillette won 13 and lost 30 games, a better average than his team's standing.

Last winter I talked with a number of Coast League players about Johnson and Pillette after Owner Navin of Detroit had paid such a fancy figure for them. They all seemed to think that Johnson would make good, but had their doubts about Pillette.

So much for expert testimony! Pillette already has spilled all the advance dope on the two pitchers.

He stands more than six feet tall. He has a rather peculiar delivery, that makes it appear as if he should get more on the ball than he actually does. His pitching style is disconcerting to the batter and makes it difficult to accurately time his ball.

He has good speed, a pretty fair curve and a side-arm fadeaway on his fast ball. This style delivery is a very queer one. The only other pitcher I ever saw use it was Ernie Shore, once a star with the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees.

Pillette uses all his speed on this ball and keeps it low. When it nears the plate it breaks down and out, much after the manner of a spitball. It is hard to hit effectively as the batsman usually tops it.

The most interesting part about Pillette is that he goes about his work like a veteran despite the fact that he has been in the majors only a month.

Nothing seems to worry him. He has plenty of nerve. His disposition couldn't be better. It means nothing in his life if an umpire misses a perfect strike. He simply pitches, and lets the umpire do the umpiring.

Pillette's most recent bit of good pitching was against the New York Yankees when he beat them twice in a four-game series. In the final game of this series, with only a two-day rest, he shut out the hard-hitting Yankees with two hits, one a hunt.

In all probability the original sum paid for the two pitchers wouldn't cause the Detroit owner to part with Pillette.

OSHAWA'S TROUBLE TOO MUCH KINGSTON

Port Hope Guide Analysis the Situation and Blames Internal Difficulties.

"What is the matter with Oshawa?" was the question Central League fans were asking when Bowmanville nosed out Oshawa 2 to 1 a week ago. Now the question is "What is the matter with Peterboro?" Bowmanville measured out a similar dose to the Petes Wednesday afternoon.—Oshawa Reformer. This looks like a case of misery liking company. But friend Davis of the Reformer does not tell us what is the matter with Oshawa. He knows quite well that Bowmanville had no license to beat Oshawa; also that Cobourg is not so much better than Oshawa that they should step in and beat them on their own grounds 11 to 2. No, not the slighest chance. There's inferior trouble in the Oshawa ball club and our guess is just the same as we made at the opening of the season "two much Kingston" with the Kingston players getting all preferences and regret to say the majority of the banquets from the Oshawa press. This has created dissension among the other members of the club, all Oshawa boys and the team has not been giving its best in the second section of the schedule. In the exhibition game against Oslers on Civic Holiday when Gallagher had to quit, Saunders another Kingston import, was sent to the mound and Paton was allowed to remain on the bench. It is these little things that has chase a championship team, in our opinion, to the bottom rung of the ladder. It was quite proper that these young men from Kingston now holding positions in Oshawa should be given places on the team, but with all respect to Bert Booth it showed poor judgment on Oshawa's part to select an outsider as manager. In a sporting town of Oshawa's size surely there are men qualified for this position.

SATURDAY'S GAME WILL BE FAST ONE

Greybirds and the Petes Will Have Their Final Session of the Season at Riverside.

Saturday's game with Lindsay will be the last Central League game on the home grounds till September 6, and will be the last Saturday game of the season for the locals until the play off for the championship. The game is expected to be one of the best of the season and will form a fitting climax for the series of fast games to which the local fans have been treated this season.

The Greybirds have always been a dangerous team for the Petes and will be doubly so for this game for they have not forgotten the defeat in Lindsay which robbed them of their chances for the first half and gave the crown of victory to the Solomon boys and they would like nothing better than to hand the locals a defeat and so seroiusly interfere with their chances of winning the second half.

The Petes also have something to remember against Lindsay for the last time they visited the banks of the Scugog they were handed the cleanest and neatest defeat they have had this season, a defeat which included the only shutout that has been registered against them.

For either team a defeat will be disastrous for both need every victory they can get hold of and the result should be that Saturday's game will be one of the fastest baseball battles this season.

Diamond Dust

The decision of the Protest Committee in ordering the Cobourg-Port Hope game replayed puts the Horse Show boys back into first place and tied with Belleville. This sends Peterboro to third. The standings of the leading three now are:

A play which caused protest in the City League early in the season came up in the Intermediate league game on Saturday between Beavers and Waterdown, and as a result another protest was entered and the game thrown out. A pitched ball glanced of the glove of the Waterdown catcher and struck Umpire Hennessy. There as a runner on third at the time, and Hennessy waved him home claiming that it was a passed ball and that the runner was entitled to move. As the ball is in play when it strikes an umpire, the catcher had a right to touch the man out, and the H. A. B.A. so ruled.—Hamilton Spectator

Thirty games have been played in the second schedule of the Central League and the final outcome is almost as doubtful now as it was in the beginning.

Loss of "Shufflin Phil" May Lose Pennant For the Giants

(BY BILLY EVANS)

The passing of "Shufflin' Phil" Douglas of the New York Giants marks the passing of one of the greatest pitchers in the history of the game.

Douglas has been barred for all time by Manager McGraw of the Giants, because, McGraw claims, he offered, for a money consideration, to leave the team at this critical time in the race when the Giants needed him most.

Douglas never reached the lofty position in baseball that his remarkable ability justified, simply because he was his own worst enemy.

Physically Douglas was a perfect specimen of manhood. When in condition, there was no more effective pitcher in the league. Mentally he had the brain of a child. It was easy matter to lead him astray.

In baseball it is a tradition that all left-handed pitchers are erratic. Ball players had a habit of calling "Shufflin' Phil" the "right-handed southpaw."

Douglas has been pulling eccentric stunts ever since he got into the majors, is career, while not as colorful as that of Rube Waddell, was in many ways similar.

It was not unusual for Phil to desert his team just at the time it needed him most. Often his whereabouts for sometimes as much as two weeks at a time, would be a matter of mystery.

Then he would return, always repentant, and would invariably pitch so sensationally that his escapade soon would be forgotten.

Manager McGraw has suspended Douglas a dozen time during his career with the Giants. But McGraw, knowing the pitcher's weakness, has been lenient with him, and it is said that he returned late every fine he ever assessed against Douglas. His salar has been trebled since he joined the Giants, and no salary grievance is believed to have been harbored by him.

Shufflin' Phil's pitching unquestionably made it possible for the Giants to win the world series from the New York Yankees in 1921. Douglas three times opposed Carl Mays, the American League ace. He lost the opening final 3 to 0. In his next two starts he won against the Yankees and Mays 4 to 2, and 2 to 1.

He kept the Giants in the series after most of the experts had figured them out of the running.

The most remarkable feature about the work of Douglas in the 1921 series was the way he crossed up the Yanks throughout. Regarded as a spitball pitcher almost exclusively, Douglas used the spitter only occasionally feeding the Yanks instead a sweeping curve ball over which he had absolute control.

The passing of Douglas may cost the Giants the 1922 pennant. Manager McGraw often has been accused of buying a pennant for New York in paying huge sums for players he needed, but in the ousting of Douglas he proved that he is just as willing to throw out a star who discredits the game, even though it kills his chances, as he is anxious to build up a pennant winning team, whatever the financial cost.

Douglas had not pitched a game for the Giants since July 31, when he was beaten by the Pirates. He had just returned to the club after one of his mysterious disappearances when McGraw called him in and the explosion occurred.

The letter that Douglas is charged with having written making the offer to quit the team for a consideration, is now in the hands of the New York Club.

Douglas was born in Rome, Gal, in 1890, and first played with his home town in the Southwestern League in 1910. He pitched for Macon, Ga., the following year, and was twice drafted by the White Sox, who farmed him to DesMoines and San Francisco for seasoning.

Douglas has also been with the Cubs and the Boston Red Sox. From the latter club he took another trip to the minors in 1916.

In 1919 he was traded to the Giants by the Cubs, coming to New York in the deal that sent Davey Robertson to Chicago.

Douglas is a right-hander, stands over six feet and weighs close to 190 pounds.

FAST GAME FOR JUNIOR LEAGUE

Adanacs and Holy Name Will Meet To-Morrow in Game to Decide the Leadership.

Last night's defeat puts the Adanacs in a precarious position for the leadership of the second half of the junior league schedule. To-morrow they are scheduled to meet the Holy Name Society team and a victory for the Holy Names will move them up into first place. If the Adanacs can win their present position will be greatly strengthened and their position as leader of the second half practically assured. Both teams are fighting hard for the honors and one of the best games in the Junior City League is expected.

The present standing of the various teams are:

Adanacs	3	1	.750
Holy Name	2	1	.667

TO TEACH THE TURKS HOW TO PLAY BALL.

Jake Bassler, captain of the Pomona College baseball team, and brother of Johnnie Bassler, the star catcher of the Detroit Tigers, announces that in August he will leave the United States for Smyrna, Asia Minor, where he will teach athletics in the International Christian College.

Jake has been a member of the Pomona team for four years, and has made the reputation of being one of the smartest college players on the Pacific Coast. His team has held the Southern California Conference championship for three years.

The Smyrna College is a missionary institution and enrolls, in its student body, Turks, Armenians, and many other nationalities. It is believed that if Jake can get the Turks to playing baseball they will give over Armenian massacres and take to killing umpires, whom nobody cares anything about anyhow.

FOOTBALL MEETING.

Fletcher Dimmed as Player Star to Shine Again as Manager

ARTHUR FLETCHER

To be picked right out of the biggest group in the National League firmament, the New York constellation, and transferred to the gloomy obscurity of the Philly group, away down in an inconspicuous place on the horizon, is pretty severe on a baseball star.

But it happens to all of them.

The star twinkles for just about so long, but once it begins to fade—

Well, to drop metaphor, with McGraw and his Giants, it isn't what you were but what you are.

Thus it was that Arthur Fletcher took his departure, in due season, from the Polo Grounds, just as many players had done before him.

Next we find him with the Philadelphia Nationals.

Unlike many men of his profession, Fletcher neither sulked nor loafed on the new team. He took the change as a matter of course—as an episode in the life of every ball player. And because he continued to play with the same snap and dash with the tail-end Phillies which had characterized him with the Giants for a period of more than ten years, he's still recognized as a valuable major league asset, though he's travelling on thin ice now, to the extent of 36 years of age.

What's more, it is rumored in National League circles to-day that he's to become Philadelphia manager in 1923.

Fletcher's type is rapidly becoming extinct in the major league circuit. A scholar of the McGraw school, he believes in the choke-'em tactics; never giving your opponent an inch and winning the game in front of you. He is using just such tactics with the Phillies, trying to win for them as he did for the Giants, but of course the same quality in the cast is not present.

Fletcher has not reached the end of his string. Far from it. He was regarded so highly by two major league clubs during the past winter that secret negotiations were alleged to have been carried on, with Fletcher receiving offers to turn down the Phillies.

These cases attracted so much attention that the St. Louis and Brooklyn clubs were called upon to apologize to the owner of the Phillies and they escaped with a reprimand from President Heydler of the National League.

Fletcher had to step aside for youth just as did Matty, McGinnity, Billy Gilbert, Dahlen, Devlin, Bresnahan, Donlin, Seymour, Bowerman, Murray, Burns, Doyle, Herzog, Merkle, Mertes, Marquard, Sallee, Chief Meyers and others.

In the pennant machines turned out by McGraw in 1911-1912-1913-1917 Fletcher belonged to the brilliant infield combination which had Merkle on first, Larry Doyle on second and Herzog or Zimmerman on third.

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

The mashie is one of the most important clubs in the golfer's bag; I often conclude that it is the most important one when the player has a high degree of skill in using it. The man who can send his ball dead to the pin and make it stop where it falls, with his mashie, is a hard opponent because he rids his play of the necessity of a lot of hard putting. The good mashie approach has its greatest value in enabling the mashie expert to get into the cup in one putt.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS NOW ARE MUDDLEWEIGHTS

Middleweight boxers will hereafter defend their titles in the "muddleweight" class until it is cleared up.

Since the day Bryan Downey was out-refereed in his melee with Johnny Wilson and since the New York Commission has awarded the title to Dave Rosenberg of New York and since Jock Malone out-smacked Downey there is a great muddle of middleweights.

They are all champs (in their own states) and the score stands four to nothing.

Johnny Wilson is still the champion in Massachusetts, Bryan Downey is the Ohio champ, Jock Malone in Minnesota and Dave Rosenberg is king of New York, and Brooklyn.

There may be a little clearing about Labor Day, when Jock Malone and Downey meet again for "the championship" in their respective locality.

WALTER HAGEN WON.

RYE, N.Y., Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Staging a spectacular come back after starting the last nine holes four down, Walter Hagen, British Open Golf Champion, yesterday defeated Abe Mitchell, crack British professional, 2 up and one to play in a 36 hole match over the links of the Westchester Biltmore Club.

CO-STARS VISIT CLIFF DWELLINGS IN ARIZONA

Tenants Dead 4,000 Years, So Jack Holt and Bebe Daniels Left Visiting Cards.

Leaving visiting cards at the homes of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Dweller, has been a recent pastime of Bebe Daniels and Jack Holt, popular Paramount stars.

Of course, the towering rock residences of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. havent been occupied for more than four thousand years—but inasmuch as the cliff-dwellings were only a short walk from the Arizona "location" camp of the co-stars — it wouldn't have been neighborly not to have dropped in.

For scenes in "North of the Rio Grande," a romantic tale which carries its action above and below the border, the Jack Holt-Bebe Daniels company camped for several weeks at Mormon Flats, fifty miles from Phoenix, and in the heart of the cliff-dwelling and Apache country. The rough and rugged surroundings are said to have afforded Mr. Holt and a band of twenty-five cowboys splendid opportunities for some "trick" riding.

AT THE ROYAL.

KATE LESTER IN DEMAND FOR SOCIETY DAME ROLES

There is one actress in Hollywood who cannot accept all the roles offered her because it would be a physical impossibility. In fact, she cannot accept more than half of them.

The reason is that he is a "type" for which there is a constant demand—that of the haughty society dame. And this talented actress looks the part on the screen and on the street.

She is Kate Lester, and she can next be seen in "The Beautiful Liar," an Associated First National attraction, starring Katherine MacDonald, at the Royal Theatre last time to-night.

In this picture she plays the part of Mrs. Van Courtland-Van Allstyn, the leader of high society.

There is periodcal frantic bidding for her services by the directors, for no other actress can play such parts with the natural ability that characterizes Miss Lester's work.

"Can Miss Lester be haughty?" repeated a studio attache in Los Angeles recently. "Well, I'll say so. She's so haughty when it comes to playing society dames in pictures that I've seen directors speak politely for the rest of the day; and that's going some."

TWO MEN ATTEMPT TO SWIM CHANNEL.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—When T. W. Burgess, the Englishman who swam the English channel in 1911 undertook yesterday, despite the unpromising outlook and the temperature and the tide, to repeat his performance from the French side, Jean Michel, a Frenchman, also started. The attempt of Burgess is considered of remarkable daring and courage, as he is more than 50 years old and has had little preliminary training.

Miss Lillian Rose Perkins of London, is soon to try and exceed the woman's channel endurance record of 10 hours and 45 minutes. This record is held by Mrs. Hilda Willing, of England.

High tides and the low temperature of the water have forced the four United States long distance swimmers who intend to make an attempt to postpone taking to the water until conditions are more favorable. The men who have been in training here for some time are Charles Toth, of Boston, Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., Walter Patterson of Bridgeport, Conn., and Sam Richards of Boston.

For weeks past the average temperature of the sea has been 58 degrees, which is nearly six degrees below what is considered suitable. Weather conditions and tides also have been unpropitious for the start.

The swimmers are now awaiting the low tides of August 30 and 31 and September 1 and 2 before making an effort for the $5,000 prize which has been offered by a London publication for the first man who makes the crossing.

IMPROVEMENTS AT "GRAND" THEATRE

Has Been Re-decorated Throughout—Good Bookings.

When the Grand Opera House opens its doors on Labor Day the many patrons of this playhouse will find that during the summer the house has been renovated and put into condition for what promises to be a better and brighter season than last year. The painters, decorators and scrub women will just have vacated the theatre by that time and it will be fresh and inviting in appearance. The fact is that every day since the Grand closed for the summer, Manager W. L. Phillps has been planning improvements, and although his requests from the Trans-Canada Company were somewhat restricted, an appropriation was forthcoming that has permitted extensive re-decorating.

The plasterers were the first mechanics to be engaged, and the walls and ceiling have been put into an improved condition. The ceiling of the lobby has been done over with stucco, and with re-decorated walls and radiators, rich scroll work carried out in a dark cream, and woodwork in spotless white enamel, the first impression of the theatre is arrestingly favorable. The cork floor covering is being repainted, and the matting at the inside doors, has given way to a more etxensive use of this floor covering. The steps have been similarly treated, new material being laid wherever it was required.

The floor of the pit and first gallery has been painted in a mahogany shade that harmonizes with the seats. Parts of the aisle carpet that were worn are removed and the cork flooring has been continued down the centre aisle some distance. There will be no loose or squeaky seats in the house. A thorough inspection has been made and every questionable seat has been closely examined, and if repairs have been necessary, they were made. All the gilt and furnishings will be thoroughly cleaned before the theatre is opened, and this work is not the least of the programme of house-cleaning, for it means that someone must work at a dizzy height with brush and dust rag.

The contract for the redecorating has been in the hands of Walter H. Bailey.

According to the manager, the list of coming attractions merit the preparations. He speaks highly of the Evans Musical Revue that opens the theatre on Labor Day, and will play all that week and possibly the next. He could not help but refer to the booking of "Emperor Jones," a musical comedy in which Charlie Gilpin has played in New York for sixteen months. It will be here in three or four weeks. In November there will be the magnificent Chu Chin Chow, which will always be remindful of the Canadians in London, and also a production of patriotic association, but in a new peacetime revue, "the Dumbells," in the same month. Stewart White productions are guaranteed also, and the manager in securing these high grade shows, is depending on the loyal support of playgoers.

The leading productions of the moving picture companies will be seen at the Grand the coming season. Already the spectacular Ince picture, "The Prisoner of Zenda," is announced as an attraction, and Douglas Fairbanks in "William Tell."

SPORT NOTES

Dr. Frank is reported to be organizing a rugby team and will be one of the first to get under way for the city league. Peterboro could easily muster four teams from which to recruit an O.R.F.U. entry.

The Examiner and Mr. Charles Thorpe have received the names of many prospective harriers. It was intended to hold an organization meeting this week, but it has been postponed until Monday night. All those wishing to join Mr. Thorpe's harrier club are requested to watch for the announcement of the meeting.

Johnnie Sutherland had twenty lacrosse players out at the Oval the other evening. Some of the players are enquiring about the winding up games of the city league.

Turn need into demand

HUNGER seeks food; thirst calls for drinks; fatigue requires a place to rest; labor must be eased by recreation. Human nature and human wants create demand. If you can do your share in filling it, tell people so. Turn universal need into demand for your particular product.

Through the Daily Newspapers give the people the news about your goods. Make it part of the daily life of Canada.

"Newspaper advertising," says the Ames Holden McCready Co., "is as necessary to the successful distribution of a trade-marked piece of merchandise as food, raiment and shelter are to the well-being of the individual.

"Newspaper advertising nourishes the product; it clothes it with reputation, integrity and respectability; and it protects it from the storms of competition and the inroads of goods of questionable parentage."

The human demand for news has created a unit of daily newspaper circulation for every family in Canada and has left a million besides to provide for casual readers. If you need every unit to-day, it is yours; if only twenty thousand, the rest can stand aside without adding one useless dollar to your cost of distribution.

IN MEMORIAM

DODDS, In loving memory of Mrs. James A. Dodds who passed away, August 22, 1921.

"Thy will be done," seems hard to say,
When those we love have passed away,
Some day, perhaps, we'll understand
When we meet again in a better land.
The silent grief that's in the heart,
No human life can trace;
For many an aching heart is hid
Behind a smiling face.
She has gone through the beautiful gates,
Away to a city of gold;
Which knows no sorrow, sin or pain
She is safe in the heavenly fold.

That Curious Device for Making Fire

IT was only seventy-five years ago that a woman of the Middle West wrote to her cousin in New York.

"Last winter I was told of a curious new device for making fire. It consisted of small splinters of wood with tips of some substance that bursts into flame when rubbed on a rough surface. If you can procure some of them for me I shall be grateful."

Matches were in general use in Europe for years before they were seen in this country. There was no means for spreading such news rapidly.

Today, the new invention that contributes to comfort or convenience is quickly known the country over. Advertising conveys the information. The farmer's wife in Texas or Idaho is as well posted on these things as the city woman of the East.

Don't overlook the advertisements in these columns. They are heralds of progress, with real news for you and your family. They save your time, lighten your work and enable you to obtain the utmost in value for the money you spend.

Time given to reading the advertisements is well spent.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE INTERESTED IN A "GUSHER" OIL WELL

Oil Shot 115 Feet in the Air at Rate of 2,500 Barrels a Day--Now Steadily Producing Over 1000 Barrels

The sensation of striking a gusher has come to a dozen or more Peterborough people during the past week, when an oil well drilled by the Hyde Production Company produced a gusher of 2,500 barrels, settling down to a daily production of one thousand barrels. Two other small wells brought in about 250 barrels per day a few days later.

The Hyde Production Company is a combination of the Abrams West Columbia Oil Company and Hyde Brothers' interests in Texas, and is capitalized at three million dollars; the financial agents being Seale and Company, Toronto, Mr. Seale at one time being manager of a local bank.

A number of Peterborough people have been interested in the proposition since its inception, Mr. Herbert Kendry being on the board of directors of the West Abrams Columbia Oil Company for a year past, and has visited the properties in Texas. He will be on the advisory board of the Hyde Production Co.

Less than five years ago the Hyde Brothers went to Texas without capital and became interested in oil in certain districts. They have been fortunate in their locations. Both of the brothers are greatly experienced in the getting of oil and of the practical work connected with it, and have been so successful in their operations that they are now millionaires.

The following paragraphs have been taken from the Houston Chronicle of August 15th and 17th, and are of great interest to those in the city who are financially interested in these operations.

From the Houston Chronicle, August 15:

1,000-Barrel Well at Damon Mound.

The Hyde Production Company's Gibson No. 1 has been completed at Damon Mound, flowing around 1,000 barrels pipe line oil natural, flowing 6 5-8 inch casing.

This well is located on the southwest flank of the dome and is one of the best completions in this immediate section. Depth of hole is around 2,900 feet, and two-inch tubing will be run in hole in an effort to increase the present production.

From the Houston Chronicle, August 17:

W. Columbia Shallow Well Now Flowing.

What is said to be the shallowest flowing well ever completed in the West Columbia field has been brought in by the Hyde Production Company. This well, Liggett No. 3, is flowing 25 barrels of pipe line oil through six-inch casinsg from a depth of 538 feet and the rich oil sand found at this depth has been penetrated only nine feet.

The well is located on top of the salt dome in the low north-western section of the field. This section was opened up in January, 1921, by the completion of Hyde-McGregor No. 2 by George Hyde et al. This discovery well has been one of the steadiest and most consistent producers in the West Columbia field, flowing at this time approximately 700 barrels of pure pipe line oil. The well is 19 months old, and has produced 300,000 barrels of oil to date. It was brought in at a depth of 2,515 feet. The new Liggett well is about 300 feet south-west of the Hyde-McGregor well.

At Damon Mount the Hyde Production Company has made a location for No. 2 Gibson and for No. 1 N. G. Kittrell, Jr. Both locations are near the No. 1 Gibson that came in Sunday night, flowing 1,000 barrels of clean oil from a depth of 2,900 feet.

Mr. H. B. Westcott, representative of Seale and Company, is at the Munro House for a few days in the interests of his company.

BY STUART P. WEST.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 23. — (Special to The Examiner.)—The markets to-day treated the failure of the anthracite conference with the same indifference they have shown over the discovery that expectations of a general railway peace were not justified.

The first effect was to put stocks of the anthracite carrying railways down a half to three quarters of a point. This brought a slight reaction into the rest of the railway list. But on the market as a whole, the news had surprisingly small result.

The prospect of a winter without hard coal was not seriously regarded in view of the certainty that within the next week or so soft coal production will be strained to its maximum. The inconvenience of individual consumers is of slight moment beside the fact that the normal coal supply for industrial purposes is now assured.

Consequently, with few exceptions—and these due to other causes, than the coal strike developments—the stock market was decidedly strong. Facing the threat of an ocean rate war, shipping stocks were weak again and for special reasons there was some selling in the sugar and rubber shares. The rails, save for the soft coal carriers, which were higher from the start, went off a half point or so during the first hour, but rallied subsequently.

Meanwhile the greater part of the industrial list was consisently strong and special buying operations kept on with as much assurance as they have shown at any time. The Tobaccos made a new high price, as did also Pullman and Lima Locomotive among the Equipments. Mexican Petroleum and the related stocks had one of their characteristic run-ups. Shares of the leather and boot and shoe companies were actively in demand. Nothing further happened in the copper group and the market for the Steel shares seemed to be endeavoring to appraise the true significance of the announcement of wage advances.

Asthma Sufferers

Hilton W. Parks, Waterdown, Ont., writes: "I can safely bless the day you left a bottle of Asthma Remedy with me. I had relief from the first dose and have been improving ever since; can lie down at night and rest; the cough has already left me; I have gained three pounds since I started the bottle, which is now nearly finished. The good news has spread around this district, and already several want to try it. I feel so good over the new life, as it were, I like to tell others."

A BOOST FOR RIORDON.

Canadian Market.—Strength displayed on the local market is being maintained and is most gratifying to the brokers and public alike. The British Empire 2nd Pref. swept through 36 in the afternoon trading, and looks like a coming market leader. The common sold at 12¼. Canada Cement got up to its year's high again at 70. Two stocks to go against the general trend were Detroit United and Toronto Rails, these issues making losses of 2 and 1 points respectively. Riordon sold at 9. The explanation of the backwardness of these shares when the paper shares are booming is the marketing of a defunct pools stock. As only about a thousand shares remain to be sold, a swift rise is being predicted to take place at any time. The new common which recently sold as low as 45 cents is now quoted around one dollar. These shares could rise to two or three times their value in a few days. It is understood that the Bank of Montreal loan has been paid off, and that a further unit which would yield a yearly profit of $600,000 may be started soon. The bleached sulphide pulp turned out by this companys Kipewa mill is not excelled anywhere in the world.

Mining.—Dome Mines is getting into acting class by itself, the stock closing 36.50 bid to-day. Recent visitors from New York to the mine are very optimistic and are buying the shares. Predictions of as high as $100 are being made for the shares. V. N. T. Cons. sold up from 54 to 58. Three shares of the old stock are exchangeable into one of the new. Kirk Lake is fulfilling recent predictions made for it, the stock closing up 1¼ points at 47 bid. West Tree gained 1 point to 11, gained 1 point to 11.—Bryant Bros.

ERIE 1ST PREFERRED IS FAVOURABLY REGARDED.

NEW YORK, August 23. — In connection with the present movement in Wall Street, there seems to be some hesitation in buying the high priced stocks, such as C.P.R., Union Pacific, A. L. O., and many others. These are just as cheap as the lower priced ones because they pay larger returns on the investment as the dividends are much higher. C.P.R. pays ten per cent., and has for years and will for years to come, and is considered one of the best stocks in the world. This is accounted for because the management is beyond question. It owns its own mines, and is therefore more or less free from coal strikes such as witnessed in the United States. Union Pacific has no license to be selling at a higher figure in the open market than C.P.R. I recommend the purchase of C.P.R. regardless of setbacks that occur from time to time. It will eventually sell 20 points higher.

Amongst the low priced stocks it might be well to buy some Erie 1st Preferred. The common stock has been bought freely for months, and it is predicted that the shares will have an upward swing before long. The 1st Preferred appeals to me as the best of the Eries. Of the equipment shares there are some very fine and promising prospects for business, therefore I would suggest Baldwin and also American Locomotive. When things settle you will see such a demand for rail equipment as the U. S. never witnessed before.

Famous Players should do better as the winter season comes nearer. The stock carries a good dividend, and is at a fair market price at present. Trancontinental Oil may be bought on any decline, as it will surely come into prominence before this movement is over. As for Studebaker, just hold your stock for higher prices regardless of the daily fluctuations. It will sell much higher and Chandler also might be a good stock to be long of. Watch carefully your selection, buy when you decide, and sit tight for yor profits; they are on the way now.—Spencer.

Gold Is Gold The World Over and Money Makes Money

Hollinger — Dome — Teck-Hughes, etc., amongst the BEST GOLD MINES IN THE WORLD, will sell much higher soon. The Gold Mines are just coming into their own.

BARGAINS IN NEW YORK

Famous Players, C.P.R., Studebaker, U.S., and many others, will sell much higher, and we would advise their purchase on any reaction. The more money you make the more we make in commissions; therefore, it is to our advantage to advise you to the best of our information.

SPECIALTIES HOLD UP MOVEMENT TO SELL.

NEW YORK, August 23. — Why do I say so? Because in yesterday's market, did you notice that when the rails went off some on the unfavourable news re conference being nable to deal effectively with the rail situation, the public generally went into the market and bought coppers, tobaccos and oils along with equipment stocks. The sentiment towards the market shows itself in the attitude taken by investors in their choice of stocks accumulated. This is the chief reason that I advise keeping your eye open to a general list as long as the rail dispute is not definitely settled. There is no doubt but that this vexed question will soon be adjusted, but it looks as though it will only be done by the individual roads taking the matter up directly within themselves, that is, with their own employees. The buying of the specialties yesterday had the effect of curtailing any spreading of the infection to sell, and after the first hour sentiment changed again and the rails were taken hold of and in some cases were boosted to the top notch of the present buying. This was noticeable in such stocks as Chicago North-Western, Northern Pacific, etc., caused by the great acreage of wheat, and the buying seems justified.

I have not changed my opinion as to the ultimate outcome of the upward movement, and in the face of such a remarkable showing as the whole market made lately, I would be doing you an injustice if I advised you otherwise than to buy stocks on all setbacks if they occur. It is the opinion of the very best informed that we are in the biggest bull market that has occurred for some years, and it certainly has every earmark as such. Might I bring to your notice, if you have not already seen the movement, that the sale of bonds is the greatest known in years. Why is this? Simply because people who know conditions are buying for investment. Yesterday there were over $20,000,000 dollars worth of bonds bought. Isn't this significant?—Seawright.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Deek, Smith Township, when about twenty young people gathered together for a corn roast. The evening was in honor of Miss Violet Batten, of New York, who has been the guest of Mrs. S. H. Carpenter. Music, cards and dancing contributed to a pleasant evening.

A very pleasant evening was spent at 573 Rogers street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Carpenter, when about thirty friends and acquaintances gathered together to say goodbye to Miss V. Batten of New York, who has been visiting here for the past three weeks. The evening was spent in cards, singing and dancing, until midnight, when lunch was served by the host and hostess. The guests then took their leave, and Miss Batten left by the 4.31 a.m. train for New York.

RANEY FALLS POWER PLANT IS OPERATING

Began Delivering Electrical Energy on Tuesday, But is Not Generating Yet at Full Capacity.

PLENTY OF POWER

At the Utilities Commission office The Examiner learned this morning that the Ranney Falls plant, one mile below Campbellford, began delivering power the day before yesterday, and there is plenty of power available now.

The plant is not operating at full capacity, but the load has been such as to take care of any shortage. It will take some time to tune up the generators, but when the plant is operating fully, it will be the second largest unit in the Hydro Central Ontario system, delivering about ten thousand horse-power.

The magnetite arc transformer that broke down in the lightning storm a week ago has not returned from Toronto yet, and it will likely be next week before the streets are again completely lighted.

For a week citizens in some sections of the city have been prowling around in the semi-darkness, and the novelty of bumping into posts and trees and falling over hydrants is beginning to wear off.

The breaking down of the transformer necessitated a cut of 50 per cent. in magnetite street lighting, and the electrical department decided that the main streets, which are illuminated anyway to a large extent by store lighting, could best take a reduction. Only a few twinkling arc lamps were left going, and it was only possible to give the usual service in residential districts.

Many of the stores, however, cease illuminating at midnight or earlier, and the side streets off the business section are at times plunged in Stygian darkness.

Arrest Communists After Secret Meet

WASHINGTON, August 24 (Canadian Press). — The arrest of seventeen Communists after a secret convention of the Communist Party at Bridgman, Michigan, on Tuesday disclosed a programme for the organisation of Communist groups in the United States Army and Navy, and for the initiation of militant action on the part of Radicals in the United States, according to information from official sources here to-day.

Definite connection between the Communists' Internationale of Soviet Russia and "Friends of Soviet Russia" in the United States had been established with the Communists of the United States, known as the Workers' Party.

COAL OUTLOOK MORE HOPEFUL

Bituminous Price Lower Late Week and Deliveries of Hard Coal Expected in Few Weeks.

Shipments of soft coal are reaching Peterborough and the price declined two dollars a tno this week, Mr. R. Wedlock of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company told the Examiner this morning. His company is not receiving any deliveries of anthracite but the daily advices are becoming brighter and fairly encouraging.

Mr. Wedlock said that within the next three weeks supplies of hard coal might begin to reach the city, but only in small lots.

"Our information is that they will begin to send us about a car a week," he said. "This would take care of the small orders for a time until the shipments were larger. Our dealings are with the Delaware and Hudson people and they have written us that they expect before long to let us have hard coal. For that reason the situation looks more cheerful than most people may regard it."

WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM COAL MINES

Is Request to Premier by Labour Congress

MONTREAL, Aug. 24. Canadian Press. — The occupation of the coal mines in Nova Scotia by troops was the subject of a hot debate, and Delegate Watson of the Miners' Union, declar d that the government demand that the operators have them withdrawn.

In a telgram to Premier King Congress asked him to use his influence in having the soldiers withdrawn from the coal fields.

John MacDonald of Toronto, launched a hot attack against the International Labor Bureau and urged a withdrawal of organized labor's support from the movement.

He declared the Leagu of Nations was a machine created by the governments of employers, and that that should be sufficient to war labor that it could not hope for anything from such an oranization.

Tom Moore favored the league, and declared that it was not disapproved by organized labor but by the Internationals of Moscow.

MAY MEET IN LONDON.

MONTREAL, August 24. Canadian Press. — The city of London, Ont., is scheduled as the seat of the 1923 convention of the Dominion Trades and Labor Conress, advance indications showed here to-day as a result of the canvas of delegates to the present congress.

WAR EVILS STRESSED.

War's evils, International Unionism's virtues, conspiracies of employers to throttle workers organizations and the stupidities of British and American Governments were the key notes of the fraternal delegates' addresses to the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress at its only session here yesterday.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, pleaded the cause of International Trades Unions. He said the employers cared little whether their employees were Roman Catholics, Protestants, Jews, infidels or negroes, so long as they remained apart and worked cheaply. Labor should then take a lesson and organize heedless of creeds or races.

W. Carter, British M.P., denounced the British government on its peace policy.

SCALP TORN OFF HEAD OF YOUNG CHILD.

PORT HOPE, August 24. — The four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Field, of Toronto, who is visiting at Mr. S. N. Haskill's, in Hope Township, met with a painful and serious accident.

While playing with a number of children the little one fell and struck her head against the sharp edge of a box, inflicting a deep gash on the right side, over eight inches long.

The scalp is completely separated from the skull, and the injury is very painful.

WARM TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF SLAIN LEADER

Greater Effort to Eulogize Michael Collins Than to Look Into Future of Ireland.

MAN OF COURAGE

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—At the time of his death, Michael Collins had under consideration plans to re-draft several sections of the Free State constitution so as to placate the more radical Republican element. This was stated today by Michael Francis Doyle, the Philadelphia lawyer, who said he went to Dublin to consult with members of the Provisional Government. Collins' sudden removal from the arena of Irish affairs is given considerable space in to-day's newspapers.

A Meteoric Career.

Naturally there is greater effort to eulogize him, to describe his meteoric career and romantic personality, and to pay tribute to his "gay bravery," than there is to look into the dark clouds of Ireland's immediate future.

The Westminster Gazette recalls that Irishmen have never lacked political teachers of ability when occasion arose, but The Times emphasizes that only one member of the Provisional Government who signed the treaty remains. No leader caught Irish imagination, or had combined military genius and political leadership in such high degree as did Collins, says The Times. The Daily Chronicle suggests the possibility of the British Government again taking a hand in Irish affairs, while the Daily Express declares that there is a possibility that the treaty with Britain was killed with Collins.

The more general opinion is that the Irish people have had their lesson, and new forces will lead Ireland to peace, and that while patriotism and political capacity lives, Ireland will not despair.

Personal Sketches.

The British press is filled with tributes, personal sketches, anecdotes and stories of the escape of Michael Collins, together with the testimony of his political strength, his sagacity and his loyalty in carrying out the terms of the treaty with Britain. Prominent men at home and abroad are paying tribute of condolence and respect for Collins' daring and attractiveness, combined with his adventurous character and his reputation as a courageous fighter, as well as a prudent administrator, helped to give him prominence and importance in the public eye.

Gallant Young Irishman.

In a statement issued yesterday, Lloyd George declared he was "inexpressably sad at the news of the death of this gallant young Irishman. He fell a victim to a treacherous blow delivered when he was engaged in endeavoring to restore order and liberty to his country. His engaging personality won friendship even amongst those who met him as a foe, and to all who met him the news of his death comes as a personal sorrow."

Lord Birkenhead, Winston Churchill and Viscount Fitzalan are among those who have sent messages of condolence to the Free State Government.

Expected Death.

Michael Collins had a premonition of death, says a Belfast despatch to the News to-day. Recently, while parting with Belfast friends, he said: "I will say good-bye, because I don't believe I shall ever see you again."

WAS BUTCHERED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The World, in a strong editorial to-day, declares that Michael Collins was "butchered" by members of an irreconcilable minority, and dealt unsparingly with the followers of De Valera, whose supporter it was at one time. "The rebels are blind to everything but their own unworkable theories and unrealizable ideals," it adds.

MOURNERS IN DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, Aug. 24. — (Canadian Press). — Dublin began to recover somewhat to-day from the shock caused by the death of Michael Collins, and plans were developed for a meeting of the Southern Parliament Saturday. Meanwhile, William T. Cosgrave is acting head of the Government, and Richard Mulcahy, Chief of Staff, is directing the military operations against the rebels.

The body of Collins arrived here this morning and was met by an enormous crowd of mourners.

CAVE WAY TO TEARS.

CORK, Aug. 24. — (Canadian Press). — Grief over the death of Michael Collins is immeasureable. The entire city is shocked, while resentment in the Free State army is so strong that commanding officers have difficulty in restraining the men. When the troops learned of their chief's death, officers and men alike gave way to tears. Collins died in the arms of General Dallon, one of his officers, and his dying words were: "Forgive them, let the Dublin Brigade bury me."

Market Clock Had a Kink in Its Vitals and Was Operated Upon by Electrician of Fire Department

For several days citizens have probably remarked that the bell on the Market clock has failed to toll four times at 12.30 noon. Sunday night when an alarm came in from Box 37 the bell struck three times, but refused to operate the fourth time. Electrician B. Trotter of the Fire Department, made a note of the fact and next day inspected the machinery. He found that the connection between the armature and the bell striker had broken. One part evidently gave way some time ago and the strain on the arm Sunday night finished the job. The mechanics on the department began work on a new part and to-day it was ready for trying out. The four tolls at noon signify the daily testing of the alarm bells in the firemen's homes and, contrary to general opinion are not a reminder of the time.

THREE MEN VICTIMS OF A CAR ACCIDENT

Automobile Plunged Over Embankment With Fatal Results to Three and Injuries to Two Others.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 24. — Three Belleville men were killed and two seriously injured in an automobile accident about a mile and one-half from Foxboro, in Hastings county, at nine o'clock last night. The dead are:

James Hurst, married, four children.

Lionel Harris, married.

Sandy Burroughs, married, two children.

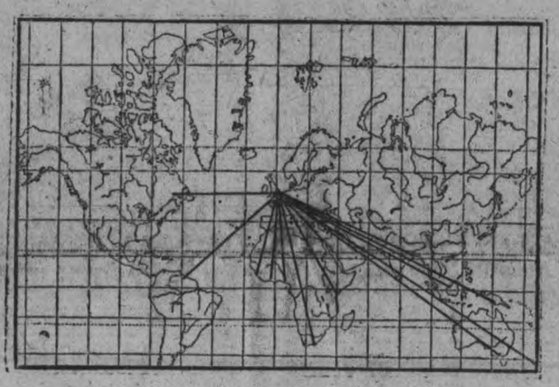
Harris and Hurst were killed outright and Burroughs died in the Belleville hospital. Harker and Doyle were reported to have been seriously shaken up, but the extent of their injuries was not definitely known here.

The victims of this traffic fatality, one of the worst in the history of Hastings county, have been prominent citizens of Belleville. They were returning from Crow Lake, near Marmora, in a big touring car, which was evidently being driven at a fairly high speed. Turning out to pass another car, their automobile plunged over an embankment, and it was stated that the steering apparatus had failed. Across a shallow ditch the car thrust itself, crashing into a fence with such force that two of its occupants were killed almost instantly. Burroughs was rushed to Belleville, but medical assistance at the hospital was of no avail.

The scene of last night's triple fatality was near Chatteron, five miles east of Stirling.

Wireless Chain to Link All British Domains By Radio



RADIO LINES CONNECTING BRITISH EMPIRE.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The widely scattered dominions and territories of the British Empire will be more closely united by radio.

Work is going on rapidly toward the completion of a wireless system by which almost instant communication between the mother country and its dependencies will be possible. This work has been entrusted to a wireless commission of experts in connection with the engineering department of the general postoffice.

Back in 1919, parliament appointed an Imperial Wireless Telegraph Committee to consider the scheme of intercommunication between all part of the British Empire. The next year this committee advised the establishment of imperial wireless stations at distances of about 2,000 miles, connecting the various communities of the empire.

On the basis of this report, a wireless commission of experts was appointed. This commission has just issued its findings for the installation of a radio system throughout the British Empire. Work toward the completion of this network of governmental wireless stations is already under way.

Immense Job.

The immensity of this undertaking can be surmised from the fact that contemplated stations will have sufficient power to communicate directly between England and South Africa, India or Australia.

They are planned to be of even greater power than the immense Marconi station at Carnarvon. Here a panel of some 60 large transmitting tubes are used, capable of putting into the great aerials currents of 300 to 400 amperes. The radio waves so generated, it is said, can be detected at all parts of the earth.

Postmaster General F. C. Kellaway, who is in charge of the work of spreading this wireless chain throughout the empire, reports establishment of stations will be started first in the Far East.

There will be large wireless towers in India, South Africa, Australia, Canada, Egypt, East Africa, West Africa, Ceylon, Singapore and Hong Kong. After these, smaller stations will be considered for the remaining dependencies and protectorates.

POUR 1,4000 GALLONS OF RYE INTO THE GUTTER

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 24. —Thirsty hundreds stood about the streets at North Carolina and Mediterranean Avenue and watched detectives pour 1,400 gallons of rye whisky into the gutter.

The contraband liquor, together with an elaborate and expensive still capable of producing 100 gallons of whisky a day, was seized in a raid at 1,204 Mediterranean Avenue, where Charles Philips, a negro, the alleged proprietor was arrested. He was held under $1,000 bail and will be arraigned before Judge William H. Smathers.

The seizure is said to be the largest if its kind in the State, made either by Federal or local officials. According to the detectives, saloons and other places in the city have been supplied with whisky from this source for months past.

JAIL FOR 25 YEARS.

NEW YORK, August 24 (Canadian Press). — Found guilty of the robbery of two and a half million dollars from a mail waggon on Broadway last October, Gerald Chapman and George Anderson were yesterday sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment by Justice Holmes.

TRUCK AND CAR COLLIDE.

ST. CATHARINES, August 24 (Canadian Press). — As the result of a collision between a truck and an automobile he was driving here yesterday afternoon, John McCrackel, of Stamford, is in the hospital with a broken collarbone. His nine-year-old son has a broken leg, and his wife and daughter are suffering from bruises and shock.

NO AGREEMENT.

CALGARY, August 24 (Canadian Press). — No agreement was reached at the conference between miners' representatives and the miners of District No. 18 here yesterday morning. Following the meeting, it was stated officially at the offices of the Western Coal Operators' Association that the association was unable to consider favourably the amended

KILLED BY STEAM SHOVEL.

TORONTO, August 24 (Canadian Press). — While walking in front of a steam shovel which was being towed along the street yesterday afternoon, Tony Bianchi stumbled and fell directly in front of one of the main wheels.

The wheel passed over his right leg, breaking it, and severing the foot. He died in the General Hospital from his injuries.

SPEEDING ON CHEMONG ROAD

Five Informations Have Been Served by Provincial Constable Cookman

The purchase of an automobile by Provincial Officer George Cookman has placed the county police on a parity with the local force so far as equipment goes. Of course, the provincial forces do not own a motorcycle, but probably this will come in time.

Increased vigilance in the work outside the city is being noticed already, and in the next few months some sensational cases may be prosecuted. According to P. C. Cookman there is as much work in the county as in the city, and he is resolved to have the law adhered to in the district he has been assigned to police as strictly as is the case in the city.

Although for a while speedsters were given a respite to engage in their deadly pastime, another curb on the fast drivers has been inaugurated and five informations have been served for speeding on the Chemong road. The cases will be tried Monday next. Two of the informatoins were served last night by P. C. Cookman in the smoker on the Belleville train.

"I've always tried to be a good friend to the police," one of the men served lamented. "If you are a good friend to yourself that's enough. The police can look after themselves," was the curt reply of the officer.

COAL STRIKE IN THE WEST ENDED

Twelve Thousand Miners Will Resume Work

CALGARY, August 24 (Canadian Press). — Approximately 12,000 miners of District No. 18 will resume work in the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia, following an agreement last night with the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association. The miners have been on strike since 31st March, when the continent-wide suspension of the mine workers started.

VETERAN SAILOR PASSES AWAY IN BELLEVILLE

Captain P. M. Frederick Had Relatives in Campbellford.

Captain P. M. Frederick died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday as the result of an attack of pneumonia. He had been ill about ten days with the malady. Captain Frederick was in his eightieth year and was a son of the late Martin Frederick of New York State and of Hannah Quackenbush of Napanee. For many years he was a mariner and owned and operated the steamer "Nellie Cuthbert" on the Bay of Quinte. He was also in the fruit business and was a merchant at Rossmore and in Belleville about fifteen years ago.

His wife, who was Ada Dingman, and a daughter of the late Rev. Mr. Dingman, of Belleville, died about five years ago. He was a member of Bridge street Methodist church. He leaves one brother, J. A. Frederick of Campbellford, and three nephews, Byron O. Frederick, of this city, Dr. Ernest V. Frederick, of Toronto, and Irvin T. Frederick, of Campbellford. The late A. B. Frederick, of Ivanhoe, was a nephew.

HEAVY EQUIPMENT ORDERS.

NEW YORK, August 23. — Speculative attention continues to be focussed on individual stocks. Corn Products made a new high for the year at 120 1-4 and Cons. Gas 129. American Ice reached a new high above 113 reflecting belief that progress was being made in recapitalization plan. Davidson Chemical touched new high on recovery. Pullman advanced four points to 127 1-2 and other equipments continued in demand due to the fact that public is following closely the change for the better in condition affecting this industry. So far this year rails have ordered 105,000 cars against less than 30,000 all of last year, 106,000 in 1920, and 29,000 in 1919.

M.O. Pacific pfd made new high at 60 1-2. M.O.P. expects to pay back dividends on preferred but is not likely to do so until Denver and Rio Grande matter is settled. If Denver and Rio Grande Road goes to Western Pacific the money would be availablbe for dividend uses. Corn Products made new high reflecting expectation of favorable developments at coming directors' meeting. Some traders look for an increase in cash dividend and thers for a stock dividend. Management denies there will be any action other than regular dividend. Cuban cane sugar has lot of sugar left unsold and is not worrying about the decline in the raw sugar market. It has sufficient cash now in hand to pay off the last of its acceptances.

Many of Trades Congress Members Can't Pay Dues

MONTREAL, Aug. 24—(Canadian Press).—Twenty-five per cent of the membership of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress were unable to pay their monthly dues to either their own locals or their international headquarters during the past year, according to a report of Secretary Draper, read at the convention this morning. It expressed the hope that with increased industrial activity, all arrears would be paid up by next convention.

Receipts were $25,157.02, and expenditures $22,377.11.

THE RAILWAYS REFUSE YIELD

The "Big Five" Will Continue the Fight Over Seniority Issue.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The majority group of the Association of Railway Executives yesterday rejected the proposal of the Big Five Brotherhoods that carriers on the nation-wide strike be reinstated with the seniority unimpaired, and Bert Jewell, official spokesman for the strikers, declared the association had closed the door to peace and voted for a lockout to smash unionism. He added that the strikers would accept the challenge of the association.

"We will re-double our efforts, confident of success," he said.

Members of the Big Five Brotherhood of rail strike mediators met today in an uptown hotel and then left hurriedly for a secret conference with representatives of a small group of rail executives who yesterday were ready to take up further negotiations.

Big Five Brotherhood chiefs and representatives of a score of railroads to-day prepared to thrash out the possibility of individually settling with their shopmen. This possibility was raised by leaders of running trades, appearing as mediators at a conference yesterday with the membership of the Association of Railway Executives which rejected the proposal of the Brotherhood men that the railways yield on the question of seniority. Encouraged by the belief that individual settlements might prove a basis for peace, the Big Five leaders conferred with a score of rail executives until after midnight, when they adjourned, with the understanding that they meet again to-day.

SMALL TRUNKS TO CARRY CURRENCY.

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—Americans contemplating visits to Russia should bring with them suitcases of ample proportions in which to carry their money, for ordinary pocketbooks have long since ceased to be adequate for carrying the huge quantities of paper currency that one is required to have in order to exist. The following menu from one of Moscow's leading restaurants indicates that one can dine rather well for 25,000,000 or 30,000,000 rubles:

Beefsteak	5,000,000 rubles
Soup	3,500,000 "
Cauliflower	5,000,000 "
Strawberries	4,000,000 "
Potatoes	3,500,000 "
Ham (two slices)	4,000,000 "
Chops	6,000,000 "
Coffee	1,250,000 "

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—The marriage rate for England and Wales during the year 1920 was 20.2 per thousand of the population at all ages, the highest ever recorded, according to the 83rd annual report of the Registrar-General.

The birth rate was 25.5 per 1,000, and the number of births, 957,782, was the largest number recorded in any year since civil registration was instituted.

Illegitimate as well as legitimate births showed a definite increase. The death rate of 12.9 per 1,000 was the lowest recorded. The infant mortality rate fell to 80 per 1,000—much lower than ever before.

POLICE MATRON IS HONORED BY THE LOCAL FORCE

LOSS REGRETTED

The gift of a handsome mantel clock, which chimes every half hour, tangibly reflected the fullest measure of high regard and esteem in which Adjutant Wallace and Mrs. Bunton of the Salvation Army are held by the members of the local police force. The timepiece is substantial in construction, and its movements are encased within a beautifully finished oak exterior, embellished with solid brass facing. A highly burnished name plate carries the following inscription: "Presented to Adjutant and Mrs. Bunton by Peterborough Police Department, August 23, 1922."

This presentation was made to Adjutant and Mrs. Bunton at 8.30 last evening in the police court, on the eve of their departure for their new field of Christian endeavor in Ottawa. They left at 3.50 this afternoon via the C.P.R. for Toronto, whence they depart for the capital the first of next week.

Deepest of Respect.

The occasion was featured by a real feeling of comradeship between the departing couple and the police, with whom their duties—he as head of the Salvation Army, and she as police matron—have for four years frequently brought them in contact. Practically all the force assembled to do honor to Adjutant and Mrs. Bunton, for whom the proceedings breathed of warm affection and the deepest of respect.

Chief Sam. Newhall, Inspector Reid, Detective Sergeant Wm. Meagher, Sergeants John Deannard and Wm. Wigg, and all the constables, not forgetting Provincial Constable G. E. Cookman, were present. And each and every one were profuse in verbal appreciation of their guests' splendid work for the moral uplift of this city, and their co-operation in delicate situations where guiding Christian sympathy, coupled with practical aid, had opened the way for many an erring sister and brother to walk the path of virtue and rectitude.

Chief Newhall also voiced the warm esteem in which Adjutant and Mrs. Bunton are held by County Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, who was unavoidably absent, and his regrets at their removal from Peterborough.

The Presentation.

The presentation was made by Police Chief Newhall on behalf of the department, accompanied by an eulogistic speech replete with commendation. He said in part:

We are gathered here to-night, on the eve of your departure to another city, for the purpose of bidding you both farewell and God speed. This is a painful but pleasant duty. Painful, for it means much to this department, the loss of two conscientious, noble people co-operating with us in the true spirit; that means a direct loss to us, which we all deeply regret. Pleasant, because we know that it our loss, an old friend of mine will gain, and you, sir, and your good wife, will also gain. So it gives us great pleasure to know that you are going to Ottawa, where Chief Ross, a man of sterling character, has charge. He has a warm spot in his big heart for the Salvation Army, particularly when he finds the assistance that we know you are bound to give. In voicing the feeling of this department at this sad, but yet pleasant moment, let me say, sir, you are a noble, self-sacrificing, ever-helping couple; always smiling in the thickest of work. And how can a department like this help but feel such a loss, particularly when we think of the many sad cases we have helped to solve, and but for your kindly help we never could have made a success of.

It is now my great pleasure, Mr. and Mrs. Bunton, to present you with this small token of our esteem. We all hope that you will both be spared for many years to come, so that as long as this clock chimes the fleeting hours, so may your golden years be spent carrying on the good work you both have so ably performed with us in this city.

Severance of Ties.

The recipients, taken by surprise, were much touched by the tangible and verbal evidences of appreciation by the department, and replied in exceedingly fitting terms. They both regretted the severance of relations which had at all times and in all circumstances been so pleasurable, and returned heart-felt thanks for the thoughtful presentation. They also had many kind words to say for Peterborough's police department and its capable chief, and would long remember their valued consideration and assistance at times when duty had brought them together in joint effort.

MENNONITES ARE WILLING TO OBEY LAWS OF CANADA

Young Mennonites Wish to Come to Canada From United States — To Replace Old Colony.

ASK FOR LOAN.

WINNIPEG, August 24 (Canadian Press). — Willing to abide by the school laws, ten thousand young American Mennonites from the Northern States want to come here this fall to take up land which the old colony Mennonites will vacate, according to H. H. Ewart, former inspector of Mennonite Schools of Gretna, Man., who yesterday land before Premier Bracken plans for bringing them here, if a loan of 5,000,000 could be obtained.

Mr. Ewart said ten thousand Manitoba and Saskatchewan old-colony Mennonites had laid definite plans for leaving the country immediately after harvesting this year's crop. They intended going to Medico, he said, and despite reports to the contrary, the Mennonites already there were being well treated. He claims 100,000 acres of land will be vacated by the old colonists this fall.

The young colonists would be brought from Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, and Nebraska, according to the plan outlined by Mr. Ewart, and each man would require about $3,000. There would be one thousand heads of families.

It was suggested that the loans might be made through the Manitoba Farm Loan Association.

COLLINS AMBUSHED BUT DIED FIGHTING

Battle Between Bodyguard of Twenty and Two Hundred Rebels Lasted An Hour.

IN COMMAND.

CORK, Aug. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Michael Collins fell fighting to the last what seemed at first an overwhelming force of rebels who ambushed his little party in a wild mountain road between Macroon and Bandon.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Free State Army had been visiting Cork, and, accompanied by the members of his headquarters staff, left at six o'clock Tuesday morning to inspect the military positions south of Cork. He was escorted by a light armored car and a lorry carrying soldiers. Altogether the party is believed to have numbered about a score, including General Sean O'Connell, Commander of the Bodyguard, and Major General Dalton, Commander of the Free State troops in Cork.

A despatch rider preceded the large touring car with Collins and other officers; then followed a whippet armored car, while an ordinary open tender brought up the rear. The party visited nearly all the posts to the south of Cork occupied by the National Army, among them Skibereen, Ross Carberry and Clonakilly; at each place the officer commanding was interviewed and the party was enthusiastically greeted.

NORWOOD, August 24. — A fire of unknown origin completely destroyed William Murphy's planing mill here last evening at about 11.30 o'clock.

When the conflagration was discovered the entire building was in flames, and owing to the lack of water in the vicinity, it was soon seen that it could not be saved.

The building was a complete loss, and the damage, which could not be accurately estimated last night, will be considerable.

DOCTOR SUGGESTS BETTER SANITARY STEPS FOR FRANCE

Fall of Birth-Rate From 333 to 170 Is Blamed on General Hygenic System In Rural Districts.

MUCH TYPHOID.

PARIS, Aug. 24. — (Canadian Press.)—An eminent British medico now visiting France gives an interesting opinion concerning French vital statistics.

It is admitted that in 1865 the number of births for every one thousand families in France was 333 while today the number is only 170. The British authority, however, claims that even 170 is a handsome figure to work upon if only the general hygienic system especially in the rural districts were improved. The present system he points out, mostly is at least half a century behind the standard of the United States and the British Dominions while even in the flourishing towns sanitation remains practically in an elementary state resulting in recurring outbreaks of typhoid and other epidemics which could be avoided.

The British doctor suggests that a vigorous campaign towards better sanitation would provide a much better means of spending public money than in birth subsidies while even if the latter is maintained such subsidies ought to be devoted only to families rearing two or more children to fifteen years of age.

SOME MINOR POINTS IN COAL STRIKE SETTLED YESTERDAY

SYDNEY, N.S., August 24. Canadian Press. — A tentative understanding upon some of the minor points at issue in the Nova Scotia coal strike was reached at the second session of the British Empire Steel Corporation and the United Mine Workers peace conference held here yesterday afternoon, according to official announcements.

Negotiations will continue to-day.

President Dan Livingstone and the members of the District 26 executive appeared for the United Mine Workers, Vice-President D. H. MacDougall and his officials represented the British Empire Steel Corporation and Hon. D. A. Cameron, Minister without portfolio, was present as observer for the Provincial government.

The session commenced at 2.30 and lasted until 5.30 p.m.

When the meeting broke up President Livingstone gave out the following statement:

"The conference between the executive of the United Mine Workers and representatives of the company was resumed yesterday afternoon Hon. D. A. Cameron was present. A further frank discussion of the questions in dispute took place and some of the minor points in dispute were taken up and a tentative understanding arrived at. The conference will be resumed at 1.30 standard time on Thursday."

Unofficial information was that although the points at issue were thoroughly discussed not a great deal of actual headway was made, the miners apparently marking time pending the arrival of Dr. Clarence Mackinnon, principal of Pinehill College, Halifax, who is expected to be on hand for Thursday's meeting.

On the whole the situation looked brighter last evening and it is believed that the present negotiations would not be protracted.

At a rough estimate about two-thirds of the provincial revenue comes in one form or another from the coal mines and the report persists that Premier Murray is pre-

ENGLAND TO INDIA BY AIR FOR $300.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—Trips to India by air in three days, at a cost of $300 first-class and $175 second-class, may soon be offered British travellers. A number of large technical corporations have made a proposal to the Government to run a mail and passenger service from London to Bombay. The airships would have a capacity of 5,000,000 cubic feet, and would be capable of flying at 80 miles an hour with 200 passengers.

The proposal has been put forward in order to develop the communications of the British Empire in speed and cheapness, and thereby assist the development of trade. No promotion profits would be taken by any party, and all the promoters ask is a subsidy from the Government sufficient to pay the public investor a dividend of four and one-half per cent.

G. W. V. A. Opens Fire On The Pensions Board

Veterans' Press Charges Against Board At Opening Session of the Royal Commission to Investigate.

CASES CITED.

OTTAWA, Aug. 24.— (Canadian Press.)— Presentations of the case of the Great War Veterans' Association in their charges against the board of pension commissioners got under way at yesterday's sitting of the Royal Commission, presided over by Col. J. S. Ralston, which resumed its hearings here yesterday. C. G. McNeil, dominion secretary-treasurer of the G.W.V.A. was on the stand during the whole sitting and will continue his presentation of the veterans case to-day.

At the opening of yesterday's proceedings a clash occurred between the G.W.V.A. counsel, H. R. Bowler, and Dr. Gordon Henderson, counsel for the pensions board over the production of files now in the possession of the pensions board. The G.W.V.A. asked that individual files of pensioners being dealt with before the commission be placed in the commission's custody. This was requested as an assurance that files would be present when needed, Mr. Bowler declared. After Dr. Henderson had objected to the G.W.V.A. being allowed to go "on a fishing expedition" it was agreed that the files should be available to a representative of the G.W.V.A., a representative of the pensions board being present at the same time.

Mr. MacNeil in his evidence quoted from Hansard and committee reports to show that parliament and the successive committee had intended that a man who had served in an actual theatre of war should be considered fit at enlistment. The pensions board, he declared, had seriously violated the intentions of the act and case after case had been found which also violated the assurance given by the pension board to returned soldiers in respect to the matter of disabilities and their attributability to service. The charges against the pensions board had only been made in a last effort to secure proper treatment for the returned soldiers in this regard.

The G.W.V.A. secretary also instanced cases of men and dependents refused pensions, with letters from the pensions board which, he claimed, showing the change in the board's interpretation of the act.

Going back over the evidence and reports of committees on pensions from 1916 to the present year, Mr. MacNeil declared that these bodies, after 1918, had held that when a man was accepted for service and actually served in a theatre of war, he should be considered as having been fit at the time of enlistment, unless there had been deliberate concealment of disabilities or obvious disabilities present. The act had been amended to cover the inclusion of members of the permanent force when the C.E.F. ceased to exist, but it was not the intention of parliament which passed the act to in any way penalize former C.E.F. members. In 1918, the G.W.V.A. secretary pointed out, the pensions board had gone before the parliamentary committee and had requested that the act be made more definite with regard to deductions from pensions in respect of pre-war disabilities. The committee had ruled that no deductions should be made in the case of men who had actually served in a theatre of war. This statement was borne out by pensions board officials present at yesterday afternoon's hearing.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, August 24. Canadian Press. — Wheat prices averaged higher yesterday but the best prices were not maintained and at the finish there was little change from the previous close. CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, August 24 (Canadian Press). — Extreme dullness again marked the local cash grain market yesterday. There was little change in flour. Practically no demand exists for millfeed and rolled oats. The baled hay market is dull. Demand has fallen off almost to nothing in the butter and cheese markets. An improved demand prevails in the egg market.

BIG GRAIN MOVEMENT.

WINNIPEG, August 24 (Canadian Press). — Heavier marketing and loading of new season grain for the third week of August than for any other corresponding period since 1916 was reported by Canadian Pacific officials yesterday morning.

For the week ending 21st August, there had been marketed by farmers adjacent to the Canadian Pacific, a total of 1,562,386 bushels, or an average of 260,286 bushels per day.

During the same week the railway loaded a total of 938 cars, it was learned.

In the Sunset of Life

A comfortable and happy old age, care-free and independent---such can be your recompense, too, through life insurance.

Canadian Government statistics show the need for this provision:

"Ninety-five per cent. of men at 60 are dependent upon their daily earnings or on others for support, and not one man in thirty who retires with a competency is able to retain that competency to the close of his life."

People are realizing this fact, and life insurance companies in Canada are beginning to pay out more money to living policy-holders than they do in death claims, despite the thousands of death claims annually.

The present is the time to make provision for the future, so that the sunset of your life will not be overcast with shadows.

Any life insurance representative will be pleased to show you how to provide a sure income for your later years.

A PARABLE RECALLED.

Those who have their coal bins filled for the winter may feel very happy, but those who have not should not be at all distressed. Let us recall the parable of the man who filled his barns to overflowing and then was called upon to die, and we may get some comfort. We should not forget that old motto that hung over the dining-room door when we were young, "The Lord Will Provide."

Canada has been too long dependent upon Pennsylvania for its coal supply, and the great strike just ending has provided the opportunity of considering another field within our own empire. True, Wales is separated from Canada by three thousand miles of ocean, but with a fleet of vessels engaged in carrying coal to Canada the year round and taking our products to Great Britain, the price of Welsh coal could be considerably lessened. Welsh coal is declared to be better than the Pennsylvania product and hence is worth more. These fuel famine scares are not pleasant, and Canada might take into serious consideration the advisability of becoming a permanent customer of the ancient principality of Wales.—Kingston Standard.

CLEANING UP LONDON.

One of the biggest housing schemes ever attempted in any city in the world is being launched in London, England, where Queen Mary is taking a leading part in the movement to rid London of the slum districts. Only those who have, by chance, invaded these poverty sections of the great metropolis have any idea what slum conditions are really like. They beggar description to a Canadian used to dwelling in a well circumstanced city like St. Catharines. The very lives of the people are warped by their environment, and it is almost true to say, that birth in the slums of London constitutes a life handicap which is seldom if ever overcome.

There are, it seems, some twenty-two "black spot" areas in London. The Ware street district, which covers about nine and a half acres, will be cleared up first. This area includes three hundred and eighty-six dwellings and houses two thousand six hundred people.

The Ministry of Health has issued an order approving the scheme, which is under the patronage of Queen Mary.

The cost of clearing, building and road making, apart from the construction of new dwelling houses, will be five hundred and ninety thousand dollars.

In the coming ten to twelve years, it is hoped that some twenty other areas will be treated.

The whole scheme includes a displacement of about forty-five thousand persons at an outlay that reaches up into the millions.

Computation shows that the present time is a good one for the go-ahead plans, not alone from the point of view of health, but from that of expenditure, as the lands today are selling at a lower rate than in pre-war time.

Even at the comparatively low cost the work cannot be done on any cheap basis as cheapness in the long run would be costly indeed.

When looked at from the point of view of what will be gained in better health and a happier people—the millions to be spent doubtless will prove a "good investment."

Of course, it is a long time off yet, before slum conditions will be recognized in most Canadian cities, but 25 years ago, few would have had that fear of Toronto, whereas it is frequently stated that conditions in "the ward" in the Queen City are "slumming up." It is important that we recognize the town planning movement, and study the ideas which if adopted now will preclude any necessity of re-making large city areas 50 years hence.—St. Catharines Standard.

MOTORLESS FLYING MACHINES.

The development of motorless flying machines has amazed professional aviators, says the New York Times. In the Rhone hills, near Wiesbaden, Hentzen, a German, in the glider Vampire remained aloft two hours and ten seconds, and with no motor to whirl a propeller glided more than six miles before landing. The French aviator, Bossoutrot, succeeded only in "flying" two minutes and fifty-one seconds in a Farman monoplane.

It seems to be fundamental that in calm air such feats as those of the Germans would have been impossible. Wind was required; the more the better, short of a gale. If a light motor were installed in their "gliders," ascents could be made and actual flights effected in a calm. Sailplane, as the Germans call the Vampire, seems to be an appropriate name. A dispatch from Berlin sheds light upon the design of the machine:

"The Wasserkuppe (technical) schools are paying great attention to the problem of a motorless airplane designed to utilize the wind for going up, for coming down and for motion forward, with or against the wind. The problem is really that of yachting in the air. These machines are not gliders."

It must be from a scientific study of the flying of birds, bats and insects, more thorough than has been made before, that the Germans are learning to build and operate their sailplanes. In the beginning they must have been indebted to J. Bell Pettigrew and L. de Lucy, who wrote a great deal about the flights of birds and insects in relation to aeronautics. It was Pettigrew who pointed out that the wings of flying creatures strike downward and forward during the down strokes, and upward and still forward (never backward) during the up strokes. It has been said that "flight in every instance is the product, not of superior levity, but of weight and power directed upon properly constructed flying organs." Thus it follows that a metal airplane with its motor may weigh tons and yet be flown fast and far. Some of the heaviest birds are the strongest fliers. The small common house fly whirs its wings at the rate of 300 times a second, but it does not fly as swiftly as the dragon fly. It has been happily said that when a bird attempts to fly in a calm its wings beat the air so rapidly that "the wings fly the bird." When a strong wind is blowing the muscular exertion is much less. Then "the air flies the bird," which has only to incline its wings at a slight upward angle to present kitelike surfaces to the thrust of the wind. It is the stiff breeze, or half a gale, that wafts the albatross along with extended pinions. These illustrations help one to understand how the German sailplanes keep going. Let a dead calm come suddenly and down they would glide, or perhaps fall, to the earth.

SOME DAY A TRADES COUNSEL?

It's a wise union that knows when not to strike, that first carefully reckons the possible cost, and that anticipates more the results of defeat than the delights of victory. For a strike that is cheerfully launched as a means to an end sometimes means the end of the union. More than one union, engrossed in its grievances, agitated by its leaders and considering only the goal without examining or reconnoitring the way to it, has been checkmated by circumstances or obstacles that might have been avoided. Disappointment and discontent, sometimes recriminations, within the organization hastened its dissolution, and the last state was worse than the first.

Prudence should therefore sit in at the union meetings, with foresight close by, and patience and coolness also present. In these sessions where all the members are inclined to think alike, and perhaps also to think not wisely but too well, a trustworthy outsider might prove a valuable accessory.

County and city councils have their solicitors, corporations and directorates often have their counsel, so why should it be unreasonable or absurd for a labour union also to have a counsel of its own, say a lawyer whose opinion could be sought in times of stress and whose detachment and vision from the approximate position of a neutral might suggest a certain course which members themselves had not seen because their gaze was too closely fixed elsewhere.

The oldest unions need no such advice. Wisdom has come to them with experience, and they keep the strike as the last shot in the locker. They realize that their union is very literally their strength. It represents their economic strength, and once the union declares a strike it begins to expend that strength. Hence the wise union knows the limit of its strength, and consequently when not to strike.

The register of the Peterborough Trades and Labour Council is daubed here and there with the brief and dismal record of unions that lacked intelligence and wisdom. One of the most lamentable in recent memory had such a short life that it was gone, shot to pieces, before it got properly started. Its members imagined that the first and almost the only purpose of their association was to declare a strike.

An organizer appeared early and often on the scene and plans for a strike were all set with the expectation of support in other cities and with various other assurances, practically none of which, it transpired afterward, had been carefully investigated and checked up. Any lawyer or business man acting as an independent adviser would have cautioned that union against premature action. The strike lasted a week and its results were a loss all down the line. Organized labour at its central council had thereafter several vacant chairs and the union was wrecked.

Had the company employing those men endeavoured to break up the union it would no doubt have failed, but a strike of barely one week, with the approval of the organizer and the officers and men, was dramatically and swiftly destructive.

The economic strength of that union was shattered by an instrument its members didn't understand or appreciate. Meanwhile older unions that have been carrying on for years, some of them with notches on their sticks, are going quietly on their way, taking and giving within reason, ready to compromise when fairly dealt with, flourishing, as it were—and, with all, conserving and enlarging the power of their unity. To them a strike might not be disastrous, for the spirit of brotherhood is strong among them, nevertheless they prefer industrial peace and moderation and mediation The strike is the last resort.

If memory is not at fault, the Letter Carriers on several occasions quite freely discussed their difficulties with lawyers, who happened to be also members of Parliament. The suggestion therefore is not without precedent.

NEW ZEALANDERS IN A CHEERFUL MOOD.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—Cyril Mee, who trained community song-leaders for the American troops during the war, has visited this city and introduced the idea of community singing. It caught on at once. A meeting of prominent Wellington business men was held at his instigation, the Mayor presiding, and those present formed themselves into a committee to introduce the scheme.

"It met with immediate success," said the New Zealand Herald, "the attendance at the first sing numbering about 800 and at the last no fewer than 4,000."

The sings are held in the Town Hall from mid-day until 2 o'clock one day each week. There is an accompanist and a piano and a song leader who acts as conductor.

Leaflets are distributed with 12 or 14 choruses or songs knows to everybody. The leader announces which will be sung, gives them a start—and off they go. There is nothing whatever of a commercial proposition about it.

A collection is taken as the people pass out, and they contribute from a penny to sixpence, according to the amount of enjoyment they got out of it.

The money is used for the hire of the hall, piano, advertising and printing. It is hoped soon to get a booklet printed containing 50 community songs. Hymns are not sung, but just the good old-fashioned songs that everyone loves with a few tuneful, popular choruses to help keep people cheerful.

HAMITON ENTRANCE OF THE HIGHWAY IS OPENED.

HAMILTON, August 24 (Canadian Press). — Marked by an interesting ceremony, the Hamilton entrance of the Toronto-Hamilton Highway was officially opened yesterday afternoon, and also the local link of the Niagara-Hamilton road.

Scores of motor cars followed the Government officials and the local party as the tablets on the five local bridges were unveiled and the silken hemp was cut, opening up the cement strip.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

Surrounding the raiding party were five members of the band in addition to Renard. Covering the sergeant from the hallway which had admitted them was the Frenchman Dupree, Renard's companion at the time of Dupont's previous visit. From the curtains of the farther room three men covered the three police officers. Boggs, the chauffeur, and Luis, the keeper of the coffee house, Dupont recognized instantly. The third man, after some little mental effort, he placed as the attendant or valet to Dupree at the time the Frenchman brought the hypnotic machine to Nerva's apartment for her seance. As for himself, Dupont was covered by the pigmy, Kali. In the black's hand was a little winged dart. Dupont knew it from his travels, knew the speed with which the poison on the point acted. In the hands of Kali it was more deadly than a firearm.

The sergeant was the one to break the spell, to precipitate the fight. Just as Renard was about to direct the disarming of the forces of the law the grizzled policeman jerked out something in low tones, to his men, then with his revolver still held up in the air, fired at the single lamp, puttin' it out. It was a remarkable piece of markmanship, enough to break the wrist of a strong man.

Immediately the shots spit out in the darkness. The police dropped to the floor in accordance with their special training, firing so as to afford the least effective target to the gangsters. Dupont changing his position after each shot, aimed at the flashes from the farther side of the room, meanwhile working his way around to his own forces and the door, to block the escape of any of the others.

One man, crawling, bumped against his legs. Dupont's weapon barked just a moment before the flash from the floor. The aim of the other, fortunately disconcerted, grazed the sleeve of his coat, but did not touch him. A groan told of his own better marksmanship in the dark.

The battle was over as quickly as it started. The sergeant waited, cautiously for several moments after the last shot. Then he struck a match. One of his men flashed an electric torch about. The lamp, an old-fashioned oil burner, was relighted, and the casualties revealed before them.

The victim of Dupont's shot was the man whose name he did not know, whom he had seen once before as the accomplice of Dupree, the Frenchman. Renard and Dupree and Kali had escaped. Luis, the proprietor of the coffee house, was a prisoner. Attempting to clamber out the window he had been nabbed and held by one of the policemen. Boggs, the chauffeur, lay crumpled up, dead, from a clean shot through the lungs.

Two of the officers immediately were sent out to intercept any of those who had eluded them ,but they returned, unable to find any sign of the fugitives. Dupont and the sergeant searched the shack carefully. No one was in hiding.

"Well— " The sergeant philosophically resumed his attempt to open the bag. "Sure," he remarked, "evidence is sometimes as good as a man because it talks, and a man won't, always."

Dupont hurried to break into the cardboard box he had started to open before. One by one the contents of every bag and box were exposed to view. Even the trunk was forced. Before them, neatly piled and in perfect order, were bricks; red bricks, yellow bricks, mottled fancy bricks, and ordinary bricks. Nothing else.

Dupont flushed. "It was a trap. We walked right into it. They knew our curisoity would be aroused by a lot of heavy things to open; that it would give them an opportunity to catch us off our guard."

The sergeant's eyes travelled slowly to their prisoner. "We'll learn something," he muttered. "Come here, tabasco "

The negro's eyes widened with fear. He knew he was to be subjected to the third degree, that what he knew would be forced from him. At the same time he knew the price of treachery to the gang. Great beads of perspiration stood out upon his forehead. He trembled, s that he had to be held up by two officers.

"Know what's coming, don't you?" A sort of cruel exultation was in the sergeant's expression. He did not relish the episode of the bricks. When word of the loaded bags and boxes went the rounds of the precinct and city police circles, he knew he faced chaffing which might never end. "Well " He slapped the man's face, suddenly. "What do you know?"

For all his fear the negro possessed courage. Gritting his teeth he refused a word of any sort.

"Come on Come on, there Tell us where else the gang hangs out. Tell us all about who's associated with the precious outfit."

Still Luis was stubborn. Angered, the sergeant shouted his orders. The two men holding the negro seized his arms, bending them backward and upward. His face twitched in agony. His breath came in short, fearful gasps. He began to moan as the leverage on his arms started to twist the joints from their sockets at his shoulders.

Dupont felt his blood run cold. Though he remembered all Violet had suffered at the hands of the gang he could not stand still, a silent witness to this torture. But before he could make a move to stop the police, Luis surrendered

"I'll tell," he whispered. "I—I'll tell "

The sergeant straightened, with a look of satisfaction. "Where——"

He got no further. There was a quick, high-pitched, whizzing sound, coming apparently from the direction of the window. Luis hal jumped up at his place, then he went backward, as though some invisible archer was using his spine for a bow. No sound passed his lips. For a brief moment he was taut, then something snapped, and he dropped to the floor, dead. Protruding from the back of his neck was a small, feathered, poisoned dart. On his lips was a tiny fleck of foam.

"Kali " Dupont shouted.

He leaped to the window, drawing his revolver. One officer followed him, another dashed to the passageway. No sign of the pygmy was found. In the brief instant of Luis's death struggle he had escaped a second time.

Thoroughly disgruntled the sergeant led his small force out of the shack. The three dead were laid in a corner, to await the medical examiner. One officer was posted at the door on guard.

FORCED TOWN TO CLEAN UP.

Americans in Russia Withheld Relief—Officials Got Busy.

MOSCOW, August 24. — American doctors who have just returned from an inspection of sanitary conditions in districts of Russia where no relief had been extended, report that in the city of Saransk hospital gauze furnished by the medical division of the American Relief Administration, along with other surgical supplies, was the first seen there in four years.

So bad was the city's sanitation and so deplorable the condition of the children's homes that the authorities were told there would be no relief of any kind forthcoming until everything was cleaned up.

As a result, one of the doctors stated, Communists, parents and prisoners alike, were organised into guards to purge children's homes, drain stagnant pools, and remove refuse which had accumulated.

Peasants who had market stalls were ordered to clean up around their [illegible] under penalty of fine and imprisonment in the event of failure to do so. The town, which formerly was a pest hole, according to the surgeon, and a source of contagious disease epidemics, is rapidly becoming clean and orderly.

The American Relief Administration is waging a strenuous campaign throughout Russia against filth and disease now that the famine has been checked.

In addition to the distribution of nearly $8,000,000 worth of Red Cross and army medical supplies, the medical division of the A. R A. is inoculating 10,000,000 people against smallpox, typhod, cholera, and paratyphoid. Experimentation on serums to prevent typhus is being carried on, which, if successful, will wipe out Russia's worst enemy.

ENQUIRY INTO STEAMER COLLISION IS ADJOURNED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Adjournment to Levis of the enquiry into the collision between the Indo-Chine and the Sarmatia was ordered by Captain L. A. Demers, Dominion Wreck Commissioner, following yesterday afternoon's sitting of the court here. Both ships are now in Levis undergoing repairs, while one of the principal witnesses, Captain Buch, master of the Sarmatia, is laid up on his own ship with a broken leg, suffered in the collision near Three Rivers on August 11.

HARVEST CONDITIONS GOOD, VICTORIA COUNTY

LINDSAY, Aug. 24.—Speaking of the crop conditions in Victoria at the present, M. J. Hogan, secretary of the County U.F.O. said that things were about average, with harvesting about three days ahead of the usual run. On some farms west of the town, plowing operations have commenced and the alsike ground has been turned under.

Most of the crops are saved with the exception of an occasional field of late grain. The buckwheat crop promises good if there is no frost. Corn crops also look good. The extended period of good weather has proven a bonanza to the harvesters.

TO top off the picnic lunch nothing else is quite so altogether satisfying as a cup of delicious "Ovaltine". It rounds out the meal—gives a finishing touch to its enjoyment and ensures comfort and ease of digestion. "Ovaltine" is concentrated nourishment extracted from barley malt, milk and eggs, delicately flavored with cocoa. Its intensive food value and ease of preparation render it particularly serviceable, not only for picnic parties, but for motorists, travellers, doctors and others whose occupations entail irregularity of meals.

"Ovaltine" is also abundantly rich in those wonderful vitamines which scientists affirm are essential for the health and protection of the body.

CAMPBELLFORD MAY ACQUIRE TOWN HALL

Petition in Circulation to Turn Ogilvie Property Into Municipal Building —Improvements at Fair Grounds.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 24.—There is some talk about turning the fine old stone building known as the Ogilvie property in to a municipal building, where the business of the town could be transacted instead of having offices scattered around in upstairs rooms and holding Council meetings in the Library.

A petition is being circulated, and has been largely signed by the citizens, who realise that it is about time that Campbellford had something substantial in the way of a Town Hall.

Fair Grounds Improved.

Visitors to Campbellford Fair this year will be surprised at the number of improvements which have been made on the grounds, most important of which is a new poultry building. John Wallace has charge of the carpentering work, and the committees in charge of other departments are doing their best to make this year's Fair one of the greatest in the history of the Agricultural Society.

More Alarm Boxes.

How I Got Rid of Burning Feet

And Pains from Corns and Bunions Without Soaking, Powders, Plasters, Etc., After Suffering Indescribable Foot Misery for 20 Years.

Prof. F. T. McIntyre, well known world tourist and lecturer, says: "For years I was compelled to wear shoes two sizes too large, to be able to walk with any comfort at all. I tried powders, plasters, liquids and foot-treatments galore, but the burning, callouses, and soreness refused to go, while the pains from corns and bunions continued to torture both mind and body, which upset my entire nervous system. One day, very fortunately, I met a lady from Egypt who gave me a little box of Gypsy Foot Relief, which she said was a secret from the desert. After using it a short time, the awful burning stopped, the callouses came off in chunks, leaving the skin on my feet clean and smooth, while the pains from corns and bunions seemed to disappear as if by magic. From that time, I said a joyful goodbye to over twenty years of indescribable foot misery. I would not take a hundred thousand dollars to again go through those years of agony. Now I feel like telling every foot sufferer to get a box of the wonderful Gypsy Foot Relief."

Note.—Gypsy Foot Relief, referred to by Mr. McIntyre, may be applied in a minute, without fuss or bother. Sure, quick relief comes three minutes later, or the makers give back the little you pay. It is sold in this city by all good druggists including

PREMIER E. C. DRURY AT HAVELOCK MEET

Annual U.F.O. Picnic of East Peterboro Accounted For Yesterday—The J. J. Morrison Controversy.

BIG CROWD PRESENT.

HAVELOCK, Aug. 24. — The annual U.F.O. picnic of East Peterboro held here yesterday drew over one thousand people from all parts of the district to hear Premier E. C. Drury discuss the issues of the day.

Took Constitutional

It was the fifth annual picnic of the Assocation but the first held in Havelock. Morley Smithson the East Peterboro director who introduced the Premier declared that from each picnic the organization grew in size and importance. G. T. Brethen, M.P., spoke briefly and E. N. McDonald M.P.P., immediately preceded the Premier. The picnic was held at the Fair Grounds and the speech king from the band stand began after two and was over by four. The Premier was thereby enabled to get away on an early start for Toronto. He, arrived at noon and was met at the Havelock station by notables in the U.F.O. ranks and entertained at dinner. With Mr. Brethen and others he walked to the political gathering plce while the Alderville Indian place while the Alerville Indian

Address of Welcome

An address of welcome was read to Premier Drury by Reeve W. A. Jones and in its confidence was expressed in the Drury government. G. A. Brethen, M.P. declared he had found at Ottawa conditions much as he had anticipated— the old parties were keeping the party more to the fore than the county. "I have tried to support everything that is good and protested against everything that is wrong and I believe the Progressive party has done much to make Canada a better place to live in," he said. E. M. McDonld first opened the discussion on the Drury-Morrison controversy and he claimed that in East Peterboro, the problem of uniting urban and rural dwellers under one banner had been happily solved. He said the U.F.O. weres only too glad to have the support of outsiders providing the persons entered the political organization with similar ideals to the farmers.

Signs of Times

After the Premier complimented the U.F.O. on the attendance while pointing out that the earnest desire of the people to hear political discussion was a hopeful sign of the times, he promptly got around to the engagement he has had with Secretary Morrison "so as not to waste time." He said it was perhaps an unfortunate controversy and he later on commended the work of the Secretary in organization although he went on to say that the Patrons and the Grange the predeceasors of the U.F.O. were virile and had more members.

Broaden Out

He was sharply divided with the Secretary he said as to the scope of the Progressive movement. The Secretary wanted it confined to one class and he desired it broadened out to the extent that supporters of the new party in urban parts could be admitted. "I yield to no one as a member of the farm organization", he said. He proceeded to outline the birth of the Progressive party as a result of the failure of the old parties to recognize in agriculture the basic industry of Canada and so regard it from a political point of view. "There could be no greater calamity befall our country than that our people should have to leave the farm and perhaps be replaced by people of inferior education," he said.

All of the People

The disregard of agriculture led to the Farmers' movement and yesterday the Premier opened his address with an appeal for a united party representing both urban and rural voters and supported by both. He said it was impossible for a class party such as his good friend Morrison desired to exist and the government must represent all the people equally if it is to survive.

Not Hard to Mix.

The Premier read excerpts from Secretary Morrison's address at Kingston the day previous and regarding his statement that it is as easy to mix oil and water as the two classes of city and country people, the Premier said: "I differ with that. I believe the interests of the town and country are one. We cannot build up by being opposed to each other. I believe I can find followers in urban centres to the same policy I am outlining here," he remarked confidently, "That's me," he said with a laugh that seemed to catch the fancy of the crowd when he referred to what Morrison said about the "fellow who wants to broaden out."

Lauds Opposition.

Some good thunder was provided for the Premier by the secretary holding up County Councils as a model of harmonious government. Secretary Morrison's ideas of carrying on the Legislature like a County Council were not practical, the Premier said. His desire to get away from the inigitous Opposition showed an oversight of the fact that the County Councils are close to the people and can't get away from keen criticism. Legislatures are further removed from the people, and the Premier had nothing but good words for a "keen and wide-awake" Opposition. "They act as the eyes of the whole people," he declared.

"The ultimate end of any government is defeat," remarked the Premier, "and I always have that idea in mind. I want to see the farm organization go on. When I leave the government I want to go back to my farm and I hope to become a good member of a farm organization. I do not want a wedge driven between the city and country. I don't want to see a new-fangled government that would carry on its affairs like a County Council."

Good Roads.

The Premier's account of his stewardship occupied the greater part of his address. He enlarged on the government's good road policy and went into the financial scheme by which the expenditure is possible through the capitalization of the revenue from motor licenses. "The traffic is there and it has to be looked after. It is better to spend the money on roads than on automobile repairs," said the Premier. He endeavored to make it clear that the Province is accepting a larger share of the expense of keeping up county and township roads than any other government would. The roads he claimed are practically self-supporting.

Still Has a Hide.

The Timber investigation aroused considerable criticism, he said. "Howard Ferguson said he was going to drive the timber commissioners out of business, but they are still there. I believe he was also going into the hide business. My hide is still on me."

"Harding's hide," suggested a voice.

"His is still on," the Premier added.

He instanced the Shevlin-Clarke transaction to show how the Province had been swindled and he claimed that before the enquiry was over the government hoped to recover about two million dollars. There are examples of over 50 cases of timber land sold to companies without public competition," he said. That's the sort of administration we found. The people of Ontario can take their choice. I am not ashamed of the record of the government or to appeal to the people when the time comes," he said.

Credit and Debit.

Following praises of the Mothers' Allowance Act the Premier launched into a financial statement to show that the government had been economical. He first talked in millions and ended up in thousands. Increased educational demands which he said he supported and increase in the number of mental defectives in Ontario accounted for $380,000 more being spent last year than the year previously. If he had had time the Premier said he might deal with radials and race track gambling, but he satisfied himself with a dashing climax to his address by advising "Canada's Greatest Newspaper," which has charged him with condoning race track gambling on account of collecting five per cent. of the winnings, to take the matter up in Ottawa where it has been decided "time and again" the final powers rest. He said the Globe was making a "tempest in a teapot" or it was the "overflow of spleen from the radial issue."

Havelock Won Cup.

On account of H. B. Cowan not being present, the presentation of the Cowan cup for debating will not take place until a later date. Lakefield won the cup by default from Rush Point. Other clubs who contended were. Peterborough, Zion, Norwood and Havelock. Havelock won the relay race for the Brethen cup, which was the stellar event of the afternoon. A number of teams entered. Havelock captured the splendid trophy and all the good wishes of Mr. Brethen, who immediately presented it. The four Havelock runners were: Douglas Brennan, Charlie Brennan, Harold Buchanan and Nelson Brown. Otonabee was second and Asphodel third.

Although storm clouds came up after four oclock and a heavy downpour threatened, Havelock received only a few drops and the ball game between Havelock and Keene came off as scheduled. Keene made it 12-12 in the seventh and won 13 to 12 in the next frame by holding Havelock in check. The game was ended by a double play. Copp and Quinn were the Havelock battery and O'Dette and Hawkins did the work for Keene.

Keene: Geo. Odette p; F. Hawkins p; Art Renwick 1b A. Fletcher 2b; Chas. 3b; J. Renwick ss; M. Renwick rf; N. Robinson lf; J. Odette cf; M. Fletcher sub.

Declares Men Are More Home Loving Than Are the Girl

Mother Thinks Trouble Rest With Women, Who Want Their Daughters to Have a Good Time.

One of the speakers at the April meeting in Toronto of the Federation of Home and School Associations, during a discussion on the advisability of including in the teaching curriculum an added year to be devoted to the training of young children, made the following remarks:

"Looking at conditions as I see them, it seems to me that a lot of this trouble goes back to us women. We want our daughters to have such a good time. We do not want them to have the hard time we had. When they get married, it is just added enjoyment. You know, I believe that nearly ninety-nine men out of a hundred are much more home-loving than ninety-nine girls out of a hundred. I believe the average man would much rather come home and get his slippers and putter around. Of course, the wife feels that she has been around home all day. You will see on the streets of any town at night (I come from a town and so I know what I am talking about), especially the nights when the stores are open—you will see baby carriages galore and mothers with children out until all hours of the night. They bring children that should be in bed. I realize that the mother could not get out if she did not take the children and a mother would have to be dreadfully devoted to her children to want to give up all her time to them, and not have people in, if it is going to interfere with the training of her children. I feel that as mothers of girls who are getting married, we should endeavor to make our girls understand that they have crossed a great big bridge when they get married. The work for ten years of young married life should be the biggest work in Canada—that is the raising of children—and if your children have to go to bed at seven and you have no maid, you must stay there and face your job."

In a discussion as to the clothes of modern women, one speaker declared that "the present style of dressing is frequently criticized for its immodesty. It is to be deplored that at the present time some of our Canadian girls are following the extremes of fashion to such an extent that the sense of modesty is being weakened. To raise the standard of dress among the girls of our schools and to instil in them proper ideals of dress should be the aim of every household science teacher. If one attempts to follow the fads of fashion, there is likely to be undue spending, which brings us to another present day tendency—extravagance."

But a resolution brought in by the St. Thomas association "that women be encouraged to adopt a more moderate style of dressing," was lost. One delegate said: "I, for one, am perfectly delighted with the fashions of the modern girl," and another explained that the word "moderate" simply meant "so long as they don't wear their skirts too short or their waists too thin."

INSTRUCTION AND FUN IN DEBATES.

Doubtless city dwellers, particularly the younger element, who may have from time to time happened to notice the announcements of meetings of the Young Farmers' Clubs, in which they have included a series of debates on subjects that included such weighty considerations as the tariff, taxes of various sorts, the franchise, the initiative, and the referendum, may have shuddered at the thought of the arid atmosphere engendered by such discussions. Such an idea is very far from the truth. A chance attendance at a recent meeting proved just how much fun these young men and women and their encouraging seniors are getting out of their interesting debates. The subject itself was sufficient to appal an outsider. To think of four young people sitting down on hot afternoons or nights of summer weather, to consider and gather information on such a resolution made the spectator warm and tired. For from depending for a subject on frivilious matters, they choose this sort of thing, (and incidentally, get away with it in fine style); "Resolved, that urban centres should take advantage of the Drury Government's legislation enabling them to decrease the tax on improvements, business assessments and incomes—and to increase it on land values."

To make matters still more interesting during an evening that kept a delighted audience keenly intent, the speakers on one side were unable through illness, to appear, but, nothing daunted, two young men belonging to the Club leaped into the breach in the most undaunted manner, and, with only a half hour of preparation, showed just how cleverly they could present an impromptu front to the careful preparation of the other side. The manner in which the four advanced arguments which included examples of deep thinking and of far-fetched imagination both, was at once educational and enjoyable. One side contended stoutly that vacant lots need special protection from fire and police departments, on account, presumably, of their potentialities as mischief-breeding centres, while the other duo came back with the assertion that buildings were more in need of such guarding care. One speaker considered that a tax on land values would do away with the undesirable citizen, a consummation devoutly to be desired, while an impromptu orator saw in their abolition a future filled with cities where skyscrapers would blot the landscape on every side.

But the majority of their arguments were sound and were delivered with that faculty in the debater which counts for so much, the ability to awake in the mind of his hearers a train of thought which will lead to similar mental explorations on his or her own part. The keenness of intellect and quickness of thought manifested by these young men would be a revelation to those city dwellers who regard the farm as producing only tillers of the soil. Just what hours of mental concentration spent in this way and with these results may lead to, when contrasted with the activities of so many urban people in attaining perfection in the very latest ideas in cheek dancing and bobbed heads, will probably be proven on the political platforms of the country in years to come.

Afternoon Tea An Ideal Way To Discharge Social Debts

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH.

There is no easier or more delightful way of entertaining a few or many friends at a small expenditure of time and money than asking them to tea.

"Tea" used to mean—and still does in some places—the evening meal, consisting of bread, canned or preserved fruit, cake and tea—with possibly cold meat or a light salad.

Now that the evening meal means dinner to most city people, to ask a person to tea is to offer hospitality between the hours of four and six, giving as refreshment some beverage, usually tea, cakes or sandwiches or both.

A tea may be more formal and consist of hot tea, sandwiches, with cakes, candies. High Tea is really an afternoon reception between the hours of four and seven, calling for engraved cards — and substantial food.

What to Serve.

One may serve at such an affair—hot bouillon in cups, buttered rolls, croquettes, salad with mayonnaise, ice cream, cakes and coffee. The bouillon may be omitted, and a choice of salad or croquettes offered—and ice cream, cakes, candies and nuts with chocolate or coffee.

However, the simple afternoon tea is far more acceptable, not spoiling one's appetite for dinner. The housewife can, with the assistance of daughter or friend, serve easily 20 or thirty people. It is well to make two kinds of sandwiches, one with a filling not sweet and one sweet—not forgetting a few plain bread and butter ones.

Allow three small, thin sandwiches for each guest. Cookies, small frosted cakes, shortbreads, nut cakes and kisses may be served for the sweet.

Tea Novelties.

When serving tea, pass both lemon and cream. Insert whole cloves in some slices of lemon—many persons like the combination. The Russians serve a preserved strawberry in each cup and the Hawaiian tea has three cubes of pineapple which have been cooked in a heavy syrup—served in each cup.

The pineapple gives a delicious flavor, and sweetens the tea. One of the best ways of serving tea to a large number of people is to make a very strong infusion, which may be diluted with freshly boiling water to suit individual tastes.

If the tea is put in a cheesecloth bag, no straining is necessary. Many firms are putting up tea in individual bags, and the cost is very little more—and the convenience correspondingly great.

When serving chocolate or cocoa, have a bowl of whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, and put a spoonful on top of each cup. Two very soft marshmallows to each cup make a good substitute for cream.

THE LITTLE FOLK OF TO-DAY INTELLIGENT

The re-action of children to 'movie' scenes is interesting to note. No one can sit in a darkened theatre during the hours when children watch the pictures and realize that the youth of today has a keen intelligence, and a sense of humor that sees the ridiculous just as quickly, sometimes more quickly, than their seniors. In the ordinary type of comedy, the children will get the idea of the joke being portrayed sometimes just a second ahead of the maturer audience, but they are a little slower with the written gems that appear from time to time in the Literary Digest and such-like series. A marked exception to this rule was the case of the little boy heard one night to break into prolonged chuckles long before the older people in the audience had grasped the point of a joke from the Digest that had to do with prohibition and whisky bottles.

They are not slow, the small men and women of today, and they have a surprising amount of sophistication When the heroine in a recent movie drama refused with haughty emphasis to save her reputation by the simple expedient of marrying the man in whose room she had been discovered, the children applauded her decision with uproarious enthusiasm. Even the little things don't say now-a-days "What is the lady mad about, papa? They don't have to have things explained to them. These children knew just as well as the rest of the audience that the poor abused heroine had only gone at at late hour of the evening to pay a friendly call on the object of her platonic affection; they knew that she wouldn't be forced into marrying a man unless she wanted to herself, and her virtuous resolution elicited their loud admiration.

On the other hand, they don't always think alike. A content arose in one theatre recently over the rival merits of the good and bad men of a certain production. One side of the house rotted vigorously when ever the evil genius of the story scored a point, while the other half encored with real vigor every time the stern-visaged, dark-eyed hero gazed into space, silently registering his vows to do and dare.

They are not afraid, either, to express what older people sometimes refrain from saying. "Why doesn't she let the man alone?" demanded an irascible small voice the other day when the golden-haired lady wrapped her clinging arms about the youth who essayed to dash out and fight the villainous crew. They giggled at the spectacle of the well-dressed gentleman in full evening panoply who spoiled the effect by donning a straw hat in a late drama episode, whether from a realization of his error in correct dressing or because he was fooled in his endeavors to win the fickle maiden it is hard to say, and they audibly re-assured the boy who was told by the villain that he would get him by saying "No, you won't, mister." Sometimes they laugh at the wrong moment, like the scene in which the lovers bid each other a fond and sticky farewell, but let one of those tense incidents occur that picture the arrival of the hard-ridden hero at a critical moment, or a good healthy upper-cut delivery, or the foiling of deep-laid horrible plan, and one's heart will be gladdened by the waves of real enthusiasm and wild stamping of feet that signify the pleasure of the younger generation at the triumph of virtue or brawn or brains.

Fashion Hints

SKIRTS.

One wonders just where these new long frocks are going to lead us. Many of them are attaining a generous width, and lace and lovers' knots are being used as trimming on their ample folds.

FIGURED CREPE.

A figured crepe de chine frock owes much to its charm to the collars and cuffs which adorn it. They are of white organdie, arranged in large folds. The cuffs reach the elbow and the collar makes something very similar in effect to the old-fashioned bertha.

FROM PARIS.

Since sports are becoming more popular with Parisian women we are receiving some very attractive sports togs from that city, particularly in knitted silk costumes. Sometimes flowers are appliqued and attractive borders are woven into the skirts.

MONOGRAMMED.

Every summer wardrobe should include one of the handsome white silk blouses, monogrammed on the pocket or the sleeves. Often the monogram is achieved by a cut-out effect.

NEW HATS.

At Lennox, the fashionable watering place, it is said that fully 50 per cent of the women have bobbed hair held in place by a bandeau. Few hats are seen.

POKE BONNETS.

Many poke bonnets are seen in fashionably millinery shops. Usually they are trimmed with flowers, or with large veils wound about the brim.

MATERIALS.

Satins faded out of the sartorial picture this summer in favor of crepes and dull-faced materials but one of the most fashionable materials for fall is a new style of crepe black satin.

TWEEDS.

Dark tweeds are promised great popularity for fall. Imported plaids and checks, too, are being made into very snappy suits and coats.

HATS.

A buyer returning from Paris reports that hats there are enormous often coming below the shoulder. "One is at loss to figure how they manage them while dancing" she observes.

LACE COATS.

The newest sweater coats are made of silk lace, woven in patterns resembling coarse chantilly. They come in delicate shades of lavender, blue and pink, and usually are worn with white.

GREENS.

All shades of green are going to be fashionable this winter. The newest tones are fern green, directoire green and Moroccan green. The last is an especially soft, deep shade.

COLORS.

It is rumored the silk lingerie for fall will not include many novelty colorings and that flesh-colored materials will be the most popular.

SPORT HATS.

Hats of woven ribbon are smart for sport. Often a cascade of ribbone-ends is allowed to hang down to the shoulders of one side.

BRONE PUMPS.

Bronze pumps are back in favor after an absence of several seasons. They come in the fancy strap models with French or Spanish heels and in the low-heeled Greek sandal that will continue into the fall.

NECKLACES.

You may have to get an addition to your favorite pearl necklace for the new ones reach to the waist. If you wish to be particularly smart, you may wear two.

VELVET AND ERMINE.

Sapphire velvet and ermine used in very small bands about the neck and sleeves, are the trimmings used on a black velvet gown with a Paris label.

HOW TO COOK VEGETABLES

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH.

From earliest history vegetables have been an important part of man's diet.

In a little book published in the middle of the seventeenth century, called "Adam's Luxury and Eve's Cookery," the list of vegetables grown and the recipes for cooking them are more varied than those of the average housewife of today.

The Bible speaks of melons, leeks and cucumbers in the time of Moses.

In the diet of many, vegetables take the place of meat, and when so used there should be one vegetable which contains protein, that which builds up, and repairs waste—peas, beans and lentils are among such.

Vegetables contain valuable mineral salts which are often lost in the cooking. If a large amount of water is used and then thrown away much of the value of the vegetable is lost.

How to Cook Them.

Strongly flavored vegetables, as cabbage, onions and turnips, are best cooked in water for 10 minutes. This water is drained off, taking with it the unpleasant flavor—and then fresh water is added to finish the cooking. Asparagus is best when steamed.

Cook other vegetables in as little water as will prevent burning and keep the kettle covered. The water remaining when the vegetable is tender may be used for making a sauce to serve with it or as a foundation for a cream soup the next day.

Carrots cooked in this way taste quite differently, as one gets all of the real carrot flavor.

Starchy vegetables should be put on to cook in boiling water, salted. Greens, as spinach, chard or dandelions, should be washed thoroughly and may be cooked in the water which clings to them. Such vegetables as peas, beans, asparagus and corn should not be salted until nearly tender; salt has a tendency to harden them.

Never allow vegetables to stand in the water in which they were cooked. Drain off the water and keep hot by placing over steam.

Keeping Vegetables Green.

All green vegetables are more attractive if the color can be kept in cooking. It is just a question of setting the color, and bicarbonate of soda, the common baking soda, in very small quantities, will do this.

Do not use more than one-sixteenth of a teaspoon, or as much as can be taken on the point of a vegetable knife, to one peck of spinach or half a peck of peas or beans. If the vegetable stands for a short time in very cold water and then is added to rapidly boiling water the color is kept very well.

Two vegetables that are pretty together and taste well can be served in the same dish or grouped on a platter. Often one can combine several in this way much as New England housewives did when they served a "boiled dinner." Peas and carrots, spinach and beets, cabbage and beets, or cabbage, beets and turnips are good combinations.

Vary Dishes.

Vary the manner of cooking and serving. Sometimes take time to cut carrots and turnips into fancy shapes, mold the spinach in a bowl or pan, keep hot over water, then serve, surrounded with hard-cooked eggs cut in quarters and a cream sauce.

Cut carrots in slices and serve surrounded with peas and when fresh mint is available chop it and sprinkle over the carrots and peas.

Nature's Ways.

Two trillum in full bloom were found in a wood about a mile out of Warsaw on Saturday. They seem to have mistaken the season.

The crop of choke-cherries has been very heavy. A few farmers have all their summer harvest in. There seems to be a great variation in the weight of the sheaves. The weather has been splendid for harvesting. Roots are beginning to need rain.

In the Churches.

On Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Chorley preached in "Ye are not your own; ye are bought with a price". Next Sunday he will preach a "Harvest Home" sermon on "The Gatherings In". At the Movies.

CANADA'S BIG CROPS.

The faintly pessimistic tone prevalent in certain circles in Canada recently, because of the demoralization of export trade, has been changed by the latest crop report from the wheat-growing provinces of the West. Throughout that region estimates place the season's wheat yield as equal to the record-making crop of 1915, Manitoba in the lead with a promise of a phenomenal output. The production per acre is reported as slightly below the usual high standards for Western Canada, but that difference is more than offset by the greater acreage sown.

These crop prospects have blown away the blueness in the Dominion's outlook, and the atmosphere is taking on a rosy tint. Other crops are also estimated at "bumper" proportions, but the fruit and general farm yield is secondary to the magnificent wheat production. With the advantage of phenomenal grain exports and abundant domestic supply we have good cause for looking cheerful, pending the return of prosperity's full tide.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

OCTOPUS VINDICATES HUGO

Attacks Fishermen Near Scene of the Famous Imaginary Combat.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The famous combat of Gilliat with the Octopus in Victor Hugo's "Toilers of the Sea" has caused contemporary naturalists to scoff at what they described as a ridiculous stretch of imagination. Fights between fishermen and sea monsters, although of course not uncommon in tropical waters, certainly are in these parts, but today nature plays a strange trick on the scientists, vindicating Hugo's "imagination."

Jersey fishermen, almost at the very point where the great French writer placed his battle, were attacked by a giant octopus, which with one tentacle seized the boat and came near overturning the boat before the crew was able to hack off the tentacle with knives, while the second tentacle caught a fisherman, who was nearly dragged overboard before his comrade's eyes.

Ultimately with the help of boathooks, oars and knives, they were able to free him, completely exhausted by the struggle against the monster beast's gigantic strength.

Lawson also was charged with stealing the touring car in which he was said to have been riding on the night of the alleged extortion.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

B. MARKSON'S LAST WORD.

247 George Street.

The Editor, Evening Examiner.

Sir,—Would you kindly allow me to answer, as briefly as possible, your criticism of my letter re dictatorship in Russia, which appeared on your editorial page of Saturday last. I intend to make this, as far as I am concerned, the last word on the subject. One does not know what may happen to him if he dares to criticize his own (?) democratic Empire. So let us go to the other nearest land of democracy, the United States, where, on entering New York harbour, the statue of Liberty stands forth, and alien emigrants and Russian exiles before the war, cheered at its sight. Alas, but to ironically cheer the self same statue, as they were being exiled back to their land of their birth, and this, but one year after the war of democracy was won. What was their crime? They dared to express their support of the first Workers' Republic in the world. During and for some time after the war for democracy, even to this day, men and women were ill-treated, lynched and thrown into gaol for merely believing that the war was against workers' interests, or for having anti-war pamphlets in their possession, or for merely belonging to the Industrial Workers of the World. Hundreds are still languishing in prison, because of their political or industrial opinions or associations. Labor leaders such as Mooney, Sacco, Vanzetti, etc., have been sentenced to death on perjured evidence. Organizations of hired gunmen and thugs to shoot down class conscious workers are being formed by the master class, similar to the Fascisti of Italy. Vigilantes, Klu Klux Klan, American Legion, are three such organizations. Strikes are held to be illegal by the 'Supreme Court,' whilst 2,000,000 children between five and fifteen years of age, are being exploited for a few cents a day. The Government passed a child labor law which aimed at preventing at least 756,000 of such children being thus exploited, and that same Supreme Court crushes the bill as being illegal. More than that: When Labor did manage to elect six Socialists to Congress, five of them were expelled. One was re-elected three times, and each time expelled. As Jack London puts it: "As the class struggle becomes more keen, the iron heel of capitalism becomes more ferocious." In "The War of the Classes," by London, we find an essay, that an editor of a magazine, after paying for it, was afraid to publish it, because of its radical nature, and rather forfeited the sum paid for. Nor, offered far and wide during seven years, could any other editor of bourgeois periodicals be found who would publish it. Only in a few cities is freedom of speech allowed, and only last week, W. Foster was kidnapped by Colorado State Police whilst on his way to address a well-advertised meeting in Denver. All this in Democratic United States. You say "that in any democracy, if the workers, agrarians and citizens don't rule, it is their own fault." The slaves' minds are moulded against their own interests and there is a capitalist dictatorship of the schools, the pulpit and the press. Soap box oratory if you like, but nevertheless true. I smiled when I read "that in Russia, if he entertained political ideas inimical or contrary to those of the dictators, he could not get his letters printed." Implying at that point, that my letter was printed because this is a democracy and not a dictatorship, whilst in your own words, the only reason you publish the letter was to convince readers of the Examiner that there was a Bolshevik in Peterborough. Again, you state that there was freedom of the press and liberty of speech under Kerensky, and because of that latitude he was overthrown. I agree with you. The Soviet Government took that lesson to heart, and rightly established a dictatorship. I have nothing further to add re M. Vandervelde and his numerous distinguished and celebrated company. Socialists recognize the names you mention as no longer trustworthy. Whilst Emma Goldman, the anarchist, was never a Socialist. Anarchists are opponents of all governments, Soviet and otherwise. Now a few words on the control of the press. Labor has but two or three daily papers in the whole of the United States; Canada has none, whilst Great Britain has one. Against the thousands of dailies controlled by capital, whose editors, like the priest and the teacher, have to obey the dictates of Capital, to mould the minds of the readers to Capitalism's way of thinking.—I remain, yours truly,

B. Markson.

August 22, 1922.

Ed.—B. Markson intimates that the foregoing letter is his last word on the subject of the Soviet Dictatorship in Russia. He seems to be entirely unaware of his failure even to begin the discussion of that subject in either of his two epistles. He sets out in the above effusion "to answer, as briefly as possible, your criticism of my letter re Dictatorship in Russia," and that is his only mention of either the criticism or the subject. He sidestepped the very issue he raised; he couldn't have been briefer had he tried, and in both his communications he has had so little to advance in favor of the Soviet system, as it has been tried in Russia with disastrous effects, that he ignores it entirely.

The Examiner would have been justified is returning both his letters, for there was nothing revelant in either of them. His silence, therefore, on the failure of Lenin's attempt to communize Russia is an eloquent admission that he has nothing to say.

BEECHAM'S PILLS Sweeten the Stomach

B. Markson asked the Examiner to be fair and thereby to publish his two communications, yet he chooses to wander as far afield as he wishes, and pretends that the above pseudo-socialistic rant is a reply to the Examiner's observations. For that reason his letters did not deserve to be published. However, they have been, and readers readily recognize them as anti-democratic propaganda, which was apparently B. Markson's only thought in writing them. So much for his fairness.

As to his denunciation of the political institutions of the United States, her war-time legislation to safeguard the American soldiers' and the country's efforts to defeat Prussianism, of the Fascisti in Italy and the many other topics he touches upon, there is no intention to try to follow him. You simply cannot argue with or even regard seriously a correspondent who asserts that the American people are slaves or that strikes are illegal. B. Markson pays the Examiner the compliment of agreeing with the only two points in its criticism which he alluded to. And from the fact that he has not attempted to refute the others, it may be assumed that he acknowledges them to be true.

It may be suggested to B. Markson, in conclusion, that Canada presents a barren soil to socialism. Most of the farmers and other workers in this country, which classes represent the vast majority, believe in private ownership, and in the gradual improvement of social conditions they prefer to follow constitutional methods. The Soviet tyranny is unthinkable in a civilized country.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir As an old Protestant now well down in the last lap of this poor life after all said and done let me say to Protestants that individual liberty is a humbug as Prohibition proves. People are not fit to look after themselves. They must be provided for by those capable of doing it. The Protestant Ministers of New York have decided to take control of popular sport. All matters should be referred to the Ministerial Associations in each centre working with the God-fearing Christian Women's Associations. Too much money and time have been wasted in persuasion. We have seen how much better Prohibition is appealing to people is an old grandfather's remedy. A new era and a new remedy shows what improvements are being made "The sacred liberties of the individuals" are proved to be a farce. I would advocate that two ministers sit on the Police Commission. We must put the clergy in closer control of the people and when women are allowed into the pulpit they ought to have a seat on the commission too. This is the age of control of system of leadership and no longer of waste. As the negro proverb has it "a blow in the mouth is worth a hundred in the ear."

LET US GET GOING

August 24th, 1922.

To the Editor, Peterborough Examiner, City:

Dear Sir,—I read with a considerable amount of interest, your article in the editorial columns, the other evening, on the overcrowding of those professions, as distinct from business professions. This article, I understand, was copied from the Kingston Standard. I feel that nothing could be considered as a bigger boost for Technical Education, than just such an article.

This condition will continue in Canada as long as we make provision only for academical training. While agreeing to a certain extent, that possibly the present moment is not propitious for any heavy expenditure in Peterborough, I still feel that the members of the Board of Education should come out flat-footed for the combined Technical and Collegiate extension, to be undertaken at a time when the expenditure will not prove a burden too excessive for the ratepayers.

In any correspondence I have had in the Press, in the past, I have continuously harped upon the necessity of having born and educated Canadians, trained so that they can take high salaried technical positions, in this country. It is unfortunate that, at the present time, most positions, that are worth while in business, are held by aliens, or naturalized Canadians, who were born and educated outside of this country. This is a condition that should not be allowed to exist any longer.

Mrs. W. R. Morris has gone into detail, with regard to expenditure and Government grants for the scheme as suggested for Peterborough, and I do not, therefore, intend to touch upon it.

I consider it exceedingly significant, that McGill University has found it necessary to cut down the entrance of the number of medical students, for the ensuing year, to fifteen. Our crying need in Canada at the present time, is for more technical students, and less academical students, so that we should have a more evenly balanced membership of the professions.

Yours very truly,
J. W. WORTH.

ITALY HAS $10,000,000 LOSS.

Damage by Forest Fires, Still Raging, is Estimated at That Figure.

ROME, Aug. 22. — Partial estimates of the losses through recent forest fires in Italy, have been calculated by the Minister of Agriculture at $10,000,000. Fires are continuing in the provinces. In Messina three districts are ablaze. The road between Navorro and Frane Avilla, is blocked, hampering the work of troops dispatched to that neighborhood to endeavor to prevent a further spread of the fires.

IS PREMIER DRURY PLANNING ANOTHER UNION GOVERNMENT?

Editor, Peterborough Examiner.

Stripped of much verbosity, I infer from his speech in Huron County, that Provincial Premier Drury, who was the fourth choice for U. F. O. leader and Premier in 1919, aims now to establish a Union Government in Ontario. Had the Norris administration been sustained recently in Manitoba, or had the Tories made a showing, it was all planned by the so-called leaders, and the munitions press, to loudly sing the requiem of the progressive farm movement. Provincial politics is only an enlarged county council, and is a small stage at best. The Hearst Government had the almost unanimous support of the daily press of Ontario in 1919, when they appealed to "all the best people" for support irrespective of former or traditional alignments. Premier Hearst was so certain that he was the idol of Ontario that he received the friends of Sir James Whitney with a hardwood smile, that was quite entertaining. We had one Union Government in Canada. There is almost a gramaphone sameness about the speech at Grand Bend by Premier Drury, and the orations and stately editorials produced day by day all over the country in 1917, when the war raged and Union Government was in the making here at Ottawa. It was an ideal opportunity to "broaden out and get the best men," together, for it only required an Order-in-Council to gather them in. The electors and taxpayers, or their sons on the firing line in Flanders, were as so many dumb animals. They had no vote or voice in the selection of the statesmen who were called to serve and advise His Excellency. The Conservative M.P.'s from Ontario were equally mute-like, while Mr. S. W. Rowell, Premier Hearst, Arthur Hawkes and the Canadian Northern Railway promoters decided whether sitting members would, or would not, be permitted to again contest their ridings, or be banished to the political dead house. It is no secret that Premier Borden had little to say; he obeyed his masters and accepted the names of his Ministry. The docility of the deans of Ontario Toryism was appaling. They approached the Cabinet makers with the veneration of disciples, or as peasants among Cardinals. It was not the "re-call" but the lobby call that these gentlemen feared.

Finally the Union Government coadjutors gave the signal and the Cabinet was announced. In all, 21 statesmen, 12 lawyers, but nearly all titled millionaires, who would be further decorated had not the Nickel Bill passed the House in 1918. Most of them boasted that they had no politics, just plain patriots, but the carnival of debauchery and profiteering by this band of psalm-singing pirates would have sent most of them to the penitentiaries, even in Mexico. Mr. Chas. A. Magrath, ex-M.P., the Fuel Controller, was about the only exception. He did not run through the country handing out interviews to the newspapers. He did his duty as Mr. J. J. Morrison and most of the U.F.O. men would have done. The climax of this "broadening out" process was reached when the Meighen administration was christening the National Liberal Conservative party. That name might have charmed Mr. Drury, but that party failed to elect a single supporter in six provinces. That was a real "class government."

The Progressive Farmers' party has many detractors, but when Mr. Morrison went out to convert Ontario in 1919, he was destitute of models. No man who ever came to the House of Commons or had a seat in any Legislature, ejected such offers of wealth and glory as did Hon. Thomas Alexander Crerar, the Progressive Farm leader. The men who owned the Borden-Union-Meighen Governments saw the storm coming and centred their forces to get Crerar. What was he offered? His choice of the Federal portfolios; the Vice-Presidency of the Bank of Commerce; the right to name all the Western Cabinet Ministers, Lieutenant-Governors, Senators, Judges, Commissioners, but, above all, to name a silent partner on the National Railways Board, and share in the exploitation of timber, coal, oil lands and water-powers. These gentlemen talk loud in condemnation of "class legislation" and class consciousness. We have over $7,000,000,000 invested in agriculture in this country, and as one interested in farming in Saskatchewan and Ontario, I hope to be pardoned for pointing out that if we are to have any changes in the name or aims of the movement, the suggestions should come from the men who made the party, and not from those who were made by the party.

LONGER SKIRTS CHANGES DANCES

Season's New Steps Are Cut to Fit--Short Skirts and Jazz Die Together

NEW YORK, Aug. 24. — Long skirts make the dance steps shorter.

The season's new steps are made to catch the fall costumes.

The scandal walk is ancient history; its place will be taken by the waltz, fox trot and American tango.

Emphasis is to be laid on the waltz.

These are some of the edicts of the two conventions of the International Association of Masters of Dancing and the American National Dancing association, simultaneously in session here in the Commodore hotel.

The short skirt and jazz go out together, seems to be the unanimous opinion. If anybody is to rejoice in its passing, it will be the dancing master, who emphatically holds that whatever can be said for short skirts for sports, the long, graceful gown is decidedly preferable for the ballroom.

New dances of the season are to be the tango fox trot and the waltz fox trot, known also under the names of the college trot and American tango.

Instead of the old complicated tango, the new one is a simplified adaptation to four-four time with more turning and less sidelong motions.

Girls to Blame.

That the girl is 80 per cent. to blame for snuggle dancing is the opinion of Maj. Ned Gaynor, Culver military academy instructor.

"The poor modern girl can't seem to dance unless she has a death grip on her partner," he declared.

The male is not entirely exonerated from blame by Miss Marguerite Walz, of Philadelphia. "He doesn't know how to be graceful any more," she maintains.

"American men are losing their finish. They think it wonderful if they tip their hats to a woman. They don't have to be Greek gods, neither is it necessary that they adopt the carriage of a thug."

As for the flapper in the ball room; one of the leaders said she never had been representative of good dancing; she is just a curiosity.

AFRICA'S GOLD OUTPUT.

Estimate of its Value, With and Without the Gold Premium.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The annual report of the Standard Bank of South Africa at London calculates that the value of the gold output of that country in 1921, on the basis of 424,773 pounds per fine ounce was 37,015,772 comparing with 37,135,045, in 1920. The value of the output to the miners, however, was increased by the gold premium.

This the Transvaal Chamber of Mines estimated to have averaged more than 1 pound per ounce during 1921, thereby increasing the value of the output to 45,982,421 pounds in 1921 and 47,687,513 pounds in 1920, when the average premium was 1,-231-13.

PROSPERITY AND PROGRESS NOW IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

Only Three and a Half Years Old, This State Has Already Set Its House in Order.

PRAGUE, Czecho Slovakia, Aug. 24.—(Associated Press).—Although the Czecho Slovakian Republic is only three and a half years old, it is the one state in Europe which has set its house in order and has avoided the evils of the printing press. The Czechs or Bohemians are a hard-working and plucky race, full of common sense, and they have built up an economic and industrial fabric which has made the country one of the most prosperous in Central Europe. Its industry today is beyond the needs of its own population. The Czech crown, which until last autumn had followed the fluctuations of the German mark, has now established its independence in the world's exchanges.

Since the creation of the republic the bulk of trade has been with Germany, although the United States is gaining an increasing share of it. According to official figures, 47.7 per cent. of Czech imports in 1921 came from Germany, the latter country taking 36.2 per cent. of Czech exports. Every Czech realizes that the future of the country's trade is in Central Europe, but he is anxious to avoid as far as possible any economic dependence on Germany.

Like many other European countries, Czecho Slovakia's most vital problems concern the much-needed reduction in production costs, the cost of living, the reduction of taxation, and amelioration of the housing situation. At present Prague is one of the most expensive cities in Europe. One of the causes is the tremendous national budget, which is swollen by heavy military expenses.

Compared with Vienna and Budapest, Prague presents an appearance of prosperity and alertness. There is not that sense of despair, uncertainty and indecision which the American traveller meets in Vienna. While other European capitals suffered by the Great War, Prague was hardly affected until the revolution of 1918, when she awoke suddenly to find herself one of the great capitals of Europe.

Czecho Slovakia's political system is based upon the strictest democratic principles, her policy being one of innovation and evolution along republican lines. Bolshevism has been crushed. Drastic land reforms have been made, to appease the appetite of the masses. No one is allowed to hold more than 250 hectares of arable land or 500 hectares of forest land. Owing to increased wages, the working classes live in comfortable content. There is little unemployment.

As in most other European cities, the housing problem in Prague is acute. Any owner of a flat or house is liable to have his quarters commandeered by the state. In spite of the Government's endeavors to encourage the erection of new buildings, the building trade has remained virtually suspended. Many of the poorer nobility have migrated to Vienna, Munich, Berlin, Poland or Hungary, in order to benefit by the rate of exchange. Others occupy a small corner of the vast palaces which have been in the possession of their families for centuries.

She DIDN'T WANT TO LIVE

"I felt so ill and wretched that I didn't care whether I lived or not."

This was Mrs W.'s experience. If you are not feeling well you should read every word of her letter. She says, "Unless you have actually experienced what it means to be ill, really ill, you don't know what suffering is. I felt so ill and miserable that I didn't care whether I lived or not. I am naturally of an active temperament and as a result I must have overworked myself, because I began to feel tired and weak after the least exertion. At times my face took on a deathly pallor. I was sore all over. I was troubled with dull pains which at times produced nausea. My body felt as if somebody had been pounding it—every bit of it pained. When I laid down at nights I could not get into a comfortable position and the consequence was I got very little sleep. The pains, which followed sleeping in one position for any length of time, gave me frightful dreams from which I awoke weak and perspiring. I consulted doctors and they told me that I was completely run down and needed something to build me up. Their prescriptions only helped me for a while. One day I found a circular about Carnol and the statements in it sounded so honest and true and free from any exaggeration that I decided to try it. In six weeks after taking the first bottle I was as well as ever. If any one had told me that Carnol would do what it did for me I wouldn't have believed them."

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 7-122

TAILENDERS FALL TO OSHAWA NINE

Port Hope Put Up a Good Game But Lost Out By a Narrow Margin.

OSHAWA, Aug. 24.—(Special to the Examiner)—Osha took on the tail enders from Port Hope in a Central Ontario League second section game and for five innings the Hopers held them safe, but in the sixth, Hall, the first man up, hit to right field for two bases, Legge sacrificed him to third and he scored on Fair's pop fly over second base. They were blanked in the seventh but Hall came through again with a hit in the eighth and crossed the plate for the second run of the game when Legge hit safe. Port Hope only faced Gallagher 27 times and were let down with one hit. This is a new record for the league—3 batters facing a pitcher in each of the nine innings.

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

Each year has seen the golf ball become faster and smaller in size, and this has added to the troubles of the mashie player. It was a comparatively easy matter to impart back-spin to the old-time slower and larger ball, but it takes a high degree of skill to make the modern ball hit the green and fall dead. The really fine player will strive to do this with the regulation mashie, though ribbed clubs have been made which make the mashie playing somewhat simpler for the inexpert linksman. The ribs automatically impart the spin to the ball, whereas with the regulation mashie the player must "cut" his ball so as to impart his own spin—really one of golf's most satisfying shots when you can do it.

Robert Gardner, Chicago amateur and former National amateur champion, has made a mashie approach which evidently was very satisfactory to him, this picture shows. Gardner shows as much class with his mashie as with his other clubs. His finish of the full mashie shot as shown here is fine golf form.

BELLEVILLE WON FROM THE PETES AFTER HARD BATTLE

Heavy Hitting of the Petes Went For Nothing When the Breaks of the Game Went Against Them.

A CLOSE GAME

One of the most spectacular catches made in the Central League this season robbed Al Heckman of what should have been a home run with two men on bases, and allowed Belleville to maintain her one run lead and win by a score of 3 to 2 yesterday afternoon at Belleville. Hagerman, Belleville's star left fielder and utility catcher, did the trick when he made a flying catch after a long run for the ball, which was headed out of the lot.

The Petes outhit and outplayed their opponents, but the breaks of the luck were against them and though they put up a sterling battle they were unable to get the necessary two runs to win.

Heckman did the mound work for the Petes and in spite of some rather doubtful decisions turned in a good game. His strike-out list fell to four with one walk, but the Trunks were unable to hit with any effect, the majority of the batters sending pop flies or easy grounders to the infield.

Chris McCarney was the batting star of the day, sending in both the Petes' runs and connecting with a triple and a double in four trips to the plate. His first hit came in the second inning when he whaled the pill for three bags, scoring Frankie Collins, who had got on the runways with a nice single. The necessary hit to bring McCarney in from third was lacking. In the fourth inning he connected with a double, scoring Long, who had just walloped Mallen's offering for three bases, but again the necessary hit to score McCarney was lacking.

Another opportunity to win the game came in the fifth frame when Johnston got a life on Weir's error. Swanston singled and Heckman sent a long, low fly to deep left which Hagerman gathered in for the spectacular fielding feature of the day.

Wolfe also put in a good day in the field and pulled off three good catches Johnston showed up well in the infield with three assists and two put-outs, which was also Heckman's score.

Mallen did the twirling for Belleville, and although the Petes hit him freely they were unable to hit safely when safe hits were needed. There always seemed to be an outfielder standing under them waiting for them to come down. His support throughout was practically airtight, for the one error credited against his team mates did not figure in a run. He fanned six and walked two.

In the ninth inning Manager Solomon went in as a pinch hitter. The Trunks evidently feared his ability with the willow, for they demanded his certificate as soon as he appeared with his bat. The necessary paper was produced, and he was allowed to play, but ran into hard luck, for the shortstop made a good catch to gather in his hit.

How They Scored.

Second Innings — Peterborough: Collins singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Long grounded to second. McCarney tripled to deep left, scoring Collins. Shaughnessy fanned. Bergoyne walked. Wolfe grounded to second. One run, two hits, two errors.

Fourth Inning — Peterborough: Collins fanned. Long tripled to deep right. McCarney doubled, scoring Long. Shaughnessy fanned. Bergoyne sent a pop fly to first base. One run, two hits, no errors.

Belleville—Ross singled and stole second. Casey tripled to deep right, scoring Ross. Casey scored on a passed ball. Hagerman grounded to McCarney. Mallen fanned. Meagher flied out to Wolfe. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

SOCCER OFFICIALS VISIT PETERBORO'

President Dan McNeil and Secretary David Roy of Dominion Association Here Last Saturday.

On Saturday the Peterboro soccer fans were favored with a visit from President Dan McNiel and Secretary Roy of the Dominion Football Association. These officials have been very active during the past few weeks following up the Duke of Connaught Cup ties, the trophy eventually finding a resting place in the west. They have in their travels visited Calgary, Winnipeg, Montreal, Toronto and other of the larger cities and Peterboro was fortunate to have them in this city on Saturday accompanied by Robert Muir, vice pdesident of the D.F.A. and secretary of the Ontario Football Association.

An exhibition between two evenly matched teams was played at the Oval during the afternoon and the visiting officials were able to judge of the high calibre of the soccer played in this district. Williams and Griffin, the two goalkeepers who gave stellar exhibitions, were complimented on their work.

Credit is due the local secretary, W. R. Thompson, whose untiring efforts made th game possible.

The officials expressed themselves as highly delighted with the brand of soccer being played here and were glad to make the acquaintance of the local officials and players after the game. They were able to visit a number of local land marks, including the lift locks in which they were much interested, and a social evening was enjoyed.

The football community of Peterboro have to thank Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sutcliffe for their hospitality shown in entertaining both the dominion officials and the local representatives.

This city has been assured of a return visit from these gentlemen and in all probability with a professional team similar to the Touring Scots of last summer.

RAIL DISPUTANTS MAY REACH AN AGREEMENT

Possibility of Not Needing Offices of Conciliation Board.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 24.—(Canadian Press.)— There is a remote possibility that the Canadian National Railways and their employes with whom they are in dispute as to wages, may come to an amicable agreement, without the necessity of the continuation of the board of conciliation.

At the conclusion of the session of the board yesterday afternoon, at which A. E. Crilly of Montreal, presented the brief for the company, both he and A. R. Mosher for the Canadian Brotehrhood of Railway Employes agreed to a round table conference, which will be continued to-morrow morning. In presenting the railways' side to the dispute, Mr. Crilly sought to justify the proposed reduction of wages to the lower paid employes of the C. N. R. by showing that the wage rate to-day was 45 per cent. higher than it was in 1917, while the cost of living at present was only fifteen per cent. higher than in that year.

RAIL MEN PROTEST ON OVERTIME PAY QUESTION

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 21. — (Canadian Press.)—Preliminary discussion was held here yesterday by the newly formed conciliation board which is to settle the dispute between the C.P.R. and the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, principally with regard to wage reductions, varying from three to four cents an hour which went into effect July 19. There is also a protest from the employees on the question of overtime pay and certain other working conditions.

Will History Be Repeated in National League This Season?

BY BILLY EVANS

Is history going to repeat itself in the National League?

Last year the Pittsburgh club entered the home stretch a hot favorite to win the pennant.

New York really was the only club that stood between them and the National League championship.

A series of seven games was still to be waged between the two clubs. If my memory serves me correctly the New York Giants won all of them.

The reverse that Pittsburgh suffered at the hands of the Giants was the turning point in the 1922 race. Those seven defeats greased the toboggan for the Pirates.

Despite every effort on Manager Gibson's part, the club continued to lose with monotonous regularity, and was lucky to finish in second place.

Recently the New York Giants met the St. Louis Cardinals in a crucial series at the Polo Grounds. The Giants won four of the five games, obtaining a three-game margin on the series.

The Giants looked great, while the Cardinals, because of bad pitching, looked terrible. On the showing in that series a lot of experts began to concede the pennant to the Giants and count the Cardinals out.

Then along came the bold Pirates. Picked to be strong contenders, they had failed to live up to the pre-season dope. They couldn't get started. They played good ball at times, but as a rule they were erratic.

No one figured much on the New York-Pittsburgh series. When the Pirates took four straight the dope was terribly upset; likewise the morale. These victories correspondingly stiffened the Pirates' spine.

Since that series New York has played the erratic baseball, while the Pittsburghers have played like world champions.

In the spring, Manager McGraw of the Giants, in summing up his club's chances, simply said:

"Pittsburgh is the club that we beat if we are to win. The other teams will offer strong opposition but Pittsburgh is the only dangerous club."

At that time most of the experts were selecting St. Louis as the Giants' toughest opponent. At present it is beginning to look as if John McGraw knew what he was talking about.

From now on the Pittsburgh team will bear watching. It is playing the ball it really is capable of.

It would be a strange coincidence if history should repeat itself, by having the four reverses start the Giants on the wrong road as did the seven defeats in 1921 for the Pirates.

FARMER'S SUN IN FIGHT

TORONTO, August 23. Canadian Press. — The Farmer's Sun has thrown itself unreservedly into the Drury-Morrison controversy, on the "broadening out" issue. It has lined up with the Morrisonites and has gone a long way toward burning its bridge by accusing members of the opposing camp of deliberate attempts at deception. In an editorial in today's issue it refers to the steps taken at the current government caucus to oust the present directorate, and says that a statement sent out by the committee appointed at that caucus is absolutely misleadingn when it says that the paper is antagonistic towards the government.

FOUR TEAMS FOR THE RUGBY BILL

Three Teams Already in the Field—Meeting on Friday.

There will be a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce at 8 p.m. on Friday, to organize the Senior City Rugby League.

Three teams are already in the field; P.C.I. old boys, with Dr. MacPherson and Dr. Sheehy in charge; a south end team, with Sergt. Jack Deannard showing the boys a few of the old tricks and a lot of new ones; and the High School boy with Mr. Brown at the helm, will make the South end team sit up and take notice.

There will be some scramble for the fourth place, as the league is limited to four entries. The East City boys want a place and the North and Westenders say they have more right to it.

This will be all settled on Friday so it is up to the various districts and clubs to have a big crowd on hand to carry the day.

We have seen the familiar ball out in the parks already and it looks as if the lacrosse sticks will soon be stowed away for the winter. Lacrosse has made some come back this year but just stand and watch Rugby go by. The league will likely open with a double header on Saturday, September 2.

POOR WORK FROM BEHIND THE BAT.

The Examiner has ever advocated that players on the baseball field or in any other game should accept the decisions of the umpire or referee without an exhibition of "crabbing" no matter how "raw" these decisions might be, and all credit is due to the local ball team for the exhibition of baseball played in Belleville yesterday, for the decisions of Umpire "Lefty" Macdonald were glaringly atrocious.

After his exhibition behind the bat yesterday, Manager Solomon would be justified in refusing to play if Mr. Macdonald is again scheduled to umpire a game in which the Petes participate. Macdonald time and again called them balls when they certainly appeared to be good, and on one occasion the opposing batter had even started back to his dugout, thinking he had been struck out, but the umpire called it a ball and he was given another opportunity.

AMENDMENTS TO RETURNED SOLDIERS' INSURANCE ACT.

Secretary Whatley of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. has received the following, which speaks for itself:—

Amendments to the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act made by Parliament on the recommendation of the Special Committee on Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment, became effective on July 1st and are as follows:—

1.—The period during which applications may be received has been extended for one year. The last date on which application may be made is now September 1st 1923.

2. Provision is made under which the sum of $500, shall be exempt from deduction in the event of a pension being awarded to the wife or child of the insured, providing the policy has been in force for six months or more. In other words in cases where, prior to this amendment, the capitalized value of pension awarded to the widow or child of the insured absorbed the whole amount of insurance and the only insurance payment made was the amount paid in premiums with interest, the beneficiary would now receive $500, immediately upon receipt by the Department in Ottawa of proof of death. If pension is subsequently awarded a proportionate amount of the premiums paid would be returned. If pension is not awarded then the balance of insurance would be paid in accordance with the terms of the policy It is important to remember that ths amendment applies only when the wife, child, or children, or both are beneficiaries and that the policy must have been in force for six months or more.

3. Regulations are made under which the Minister's power to refuse to accept any application for insurance is defined. Briefly, these provide that insurance shall not be granted to ex-members of the forces who are seriously ill and have no one dependent upon them for support. Up to January 1st 1923, ex-members of the forces who have dependents may obtain insurance even though seriously ill from some injury or illness not attributable to service. After that date insurance will be granted to those who are regarded as dangerously ill only when illness is attributable to service and there are dependents.

It is trusted that you will cooperate with the Department in giving publicity to these amendments among the returned men in your locality.

It is anticipated that copies of the Act amending the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act will be available for distribution by the end of this month. Copies may then be obtained upon application. Meanwhile if any further explanation regarding the changes made is required the undersigned will be glad to answer them upon request.

C. B. Topp, for Director of Administration.

ENJOYABLE EVENING AT CAMP DOWN THE RIVER

A very pleasant evening was spent at the camp of Harold Freeman and Cleve Andrews. After some music and a sumptuous supper consisting of roast corn, broiled chicken and desert, all being prepared by Tom Staples. Jack Smith was asked to propose the toast of the evening.

The feature of the occasion was the corn eating contest. This was strenuously contested and finally won by Mr. Goselin in a very dramatic fashion.

After supper a game of blind man's buff was indulged in, when James Lang, who was carefully blindfolded, entertained the party by chasing them all over the lot and some of them into the river. Splendid solos were sung by Miss Grace Allan and J. Smith. Everybody enjoyed themselves immensely and Mr. Freeman and Mr. Andrews were given a hearty hand and all returned home happy.

LOOKS FOR MILD WINTER THIS YEAR.

A weather prophet in Western Ontario is responsible for the statement that the winter of 1922-1923 will be as mild as the past one—with very little snow.

He made a similar forecast, so he says, in the fall of 1921, and it was substantiated in every particular.

The public, he says, need not worry very much over the fuel situation, as there will be very little severe weather.

He is prepared to give the pick of his Jersey herd to a neighbour if his forecast falls flat.

Love Letters That Made History

By JOSEPH KAYE

NELSON AND LADY HAMILTON

The love of Britain's most beloved hero, Admiral Nelson, for the beautiful Lady Hamilton, is one of the world's romances. Lady Hamilton was what would be known today as a "vamp" yet Nelson lavished on her a most noble and loyal love, going even to the extent of asking his government to take care of her after his death.

Lady Hamilton was the daughter of an English blacksmith, Henry Lyons. She was gifted with extraordinary beauty and charm, and a bright mind. Although she began her career as a nursemaid, her qualities won her many admirers in the higher walks of life. After several unfortunat love affairs she became the wife of Sir William Hamilton, who held a diplomatic post at Naples.

In Naples Emma Hamilton was one of the most brilliant figures of the court. She was a favorite of the Queen of Naples and had practically the entire court at her feet. In this position of favorite she was of service to England in some matters and when she met Nelson at the the time he returned from his Nile expedition it was claimed for her that she asssisted him alo. Nelson was becoming a national hero then, and Emma openly idolized him. He immediately fell in love with her, and this heart match continued more or less under the eyes of Hamilton though he and Nel... were good friends.

The beauty of Emma Hamilton has been preserved in the many portraits that weer painted of her by eager artists. The most celebrated of these paintings was done by the great Romney, whose favorite model she was.

"Deal, July 31, 1801.

"My Dearest Emma:

"Did you get my letter from Sheerness on Thursday morning telling you I was setting out for Deal; as I have no letter from you of yesterday, only those of Wednesday, which went to Sheerness. It has been my damned blunder for which I am deservedly punished, by missing one of your dear letters. They are my comfort, joy and delight. . .

"I got to bed last night at half-past nine but the hour was so unusual that I heard the clock strike one. To say that I thought of you would be nonsense; for you are never out of my thoughts. . .

"You need not fear all the women in the world; for all others, except yourself, are pests to me. I know but one; for who can be like my Emma? I am confident you will do nothing that can hurt my feelings; and I will die by torture sooner than do anything which could offend you.

"Give ten thousand kisses to my dear Horatia. . .

"Ever, for ever yours only yours."

August 26, 1803.

"My dearest Emma:

"By the 'Canopus' came all your truly kind and affectionate letters, from May 20 to July 3, with the exception of one dated May 31, sent to Naples. . .

"All your letters, my dear letters, are so entertaining! and which paint so clearly what you are after that they give me either the greatest pleasure or pain. It is the next best thing to being with you. I only desire, my dearest Emma, that you will always believe that Nelson's your own Nelson's Alpha and Omega is Emma. I cannot alter; my affection and love is beyond even this world. Nothing can shake it but yourself; and that I will not allow myself to think of for a moment is possible. . ."

Story Filled with Thrills and Genuine Heart Appeal.

Colonel Haddington is killed, and Meteor, one of his two twin horses, stolen in a raid on the immense Rancho Haddington. His son Bob swears vengeance and starts in search of the cattle rustler who killed his father. He becomes known as Velantrie, head of a daring band which wars upon injustice, disgorging ill-gotten gold from ranch-owners who have mercilessly despoiled the suffering peons.

Velantrie turns the gold over to Father Hillaire for his work at Refugio Mission and there meets Val Hannon of Paradise Ranch. She is the daughter of John Hannon, one of the richest ranchers of district. Later Bob, in a poker game at Hunnewell's store, "wins" Lolo Sanchez, a Spanish beauty, who is jokingly put up as a wager when Brideman, an associate of Hannon, loses his money. Suspicion falls upon Bob as being the "Black Rustler," a notorious cattle thief. Lolo, angered at the indifference of Bob, worms from Brideman the information that "the Black Rustler will raid this week."

Bob learns simultaneously that John Hannon is not only the "Black Rustler," but also the father of Val. He meets Hannon, who has been wounded by his pursuers, changes clothes with him, and is captured by the posse as the "Black Rustler." In the meantime "Redstar," the stolen Meteor, breaks loose from a canyon stockade in which Hannon had hidden him. He runs to the Hannon ranch just as Val learns of Bobs capture and her father dies in her arms. She rides to Bob's rescue and the situation is explained just as they are about to lead him to the nearest tree.

AT THE ROYAL.

MIX DASHES THROUGH A PRAIRIE FIRE IN HIS LATEST PICTURE.

Whirlwind action, with bright spots of romance at the Royal to-night. "For Big Stakes" is a Fox production, starring Tom Mix. It is replete with adventure. It has a love story, too, of exceeding charm. The photoplay is a wholesome, worth-while tale of the way of a man with a maid. The sands and hills of Arizona, the clear skies, the outdoor life—all are here. The acting of Tom Mix—in fact, of the entire cast—is of the highest order. Tom's riding, shooting, and rope-throwing long ago placed him in the front rank of Western screen actors. His horse, Tony, deserves no little praise if we are to include all those who gave praiseworthy performances. This animal does everything but talk. The photography is above the average, the movement of the story never lags, the direction throughout is good, and there are several surprises that will not be described here, for they are too good to be spoiled by foreknowledge. You will make no mistake in going to the Royal Theatre. Probably the most outstanding single incident in this photoplay is the prairie fire through which Tom Mix rides to save his sweetheart.

By Staurt P. West.

NEW YORK, August 24. (Special) — With the abandonment of negotiations to settle the shopmen's strike, following the failure of the anthracite coal conference, Wall street realized exactly where it stood regarding the labor situation.

There could no longer be any pretense that the markets were waiting for news. They knew that the contest with the shopmen was to be fought to a finish, just as they knew that no end was in sight for the hard coal strike. Accordingly the day's happenings were a complete and conclusive test on the part which labor troubles have been playing in financial calculations.

For an hour or so the share list moved about with some uncertainty. A few of the railroad shares dropped off a point, operations in the industrials were suspended waiting to see what would occur with stocks of the carriers. But when it became apparent that no liquidation of consequence occurred even in the securities most concerned with the strike, the market resumed its extraordinary attitude of indifference toward all that was unfavorable in the strike news.

First a chosen set of industrial shares were taken up in familiar fashion, among them the tobaccos, Studebaker, Crucible Steel, Vanadium and the Mexican oils. Then, to the surprise of all who have taken the railway strike seriously as a factor in the market, the buying movement switched to the rails. It concentrated more especially upon Northern Pacific in anticipation that very soon, quite likely at the next meeting, the stock will be restored to a seven per cent. dividend basis. With Northern Pacific rallying over 3 points from the low of the forenoon other dividend paying rails were drawn along sympathetically.

The speculative faction working for a decline were by no means idle. Another sharp drive upon the shipping stocks was a feature in the early hours. It was getting ready for the cut in ocean passenger rates, which is now thought to be inevitable.

In the afternoon heavy selling broke out in t rubber and tire shares for trade reasons which developed as long as a month ago and now well understood. At the same time the report that the new financing of American Telephone and Telegraph would involve a stock issue of over a hundred million dollars brought about a sharp selling movement of that stock. But these weak points failed to ruffle the general share list.

The panic among German holders of the mark grew more intense, as against Wednesday's final of .06 3-4, the quotation fell to .05 1-8.

Again the close sympathy between the movement of German exchange and French exchange was emphasized. At 7.7 where they stood this morning francs were below their previous bottom of the year reported a month and a half ago.

M.P.'s CONTINUED STRENGTH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.— Stock prices continued to move forward during noon. Northern Pacific made a new high, 90 1-4, buying of Northern Pacific was based upon expectation of Oil developments in its territory which are said to add attractive speculative possibilities to the stocks rating as a Standard rail issue. Steady improvement in Northen Pacific earnings over last several months will be accelerated by crop movement, return of the stock to $7 dividend basis is considered likely within next six months.

WHEAT RECOVERED.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Wheat recovering early loss on commission house buying and short covering inspired my strength in corn. Cash demand was quiet. Export sales were estimated around 500,000 bushels. Corn was up 1-3 to 1 cent.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Southern Pacific July gross $21,664,974, decrease $962,534. Net operating income 3,889,327, increase 435,073. Seven months gross $141,792,194, decrease 11,083,679. Net operating income $20,931,852, increase $4,118,976.

Surplus freight cars in good repair for week ended August 8th, totalled 153,880, a reduction of 21,047 since July 31st.

Governors of New York Stock Exchange refuse members request for holiday on Saturday preceding Labor Day.

American Locomotive has received order for thirty Mikado type locomotives weighing 295,000 pound for L. and N.

Midvale Steel operations are close to 50 per cent. capacity.

Average price of 20 rails 92.03, off 0.51.

MARKS SINK LOWER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(London)—German marks dropped to .8500 to the pound or .1900 to the dollar or 5¼, following the receipt of news that France had refused to accept Germany's latest suggestion for a Moratorium of five months.

STUDEBAKER'S EARNINGS BIG.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Special strength continued in special stocks. Vanadium made a new high of 52½ on reports of important developments affecting its control. Studebaker attained higher levels on current recovery on further details which reached the street regarding July earnings. The company's net for the month is said to have been equal to $8.50 a share for common at the annual rate of $42 a share. Chandler's July net was $400,000, but the company absorbed re-adjustment of its price schedules out of this total, which left a net of $150,000, a sum well in excess of dividend requirements. American Brake Shoe at 72 was near the highest; there has been good buying on prospects of larger dividends on common now on a $4 basis. Business has been increasing since January 1st.

Dome Mines made a new high of 39 1-8, reflecting increased earnings. Earnings continue to grow as the value of ore becomes richer, with depth, and indications are that August will be a banner month. No decision has been reached by the directors, who have been considering increasing dividend.

CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS WERE NOT SOLD.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 24. — The proposed sale of Canadian Locomotive Company, Kingston, Ont., to Baldwin has fallen through and the company will operate itself. The works, closed for over a year, are expected to re-open shortly with a Government railway order.

HIGHER WAGES GOOD SIGN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24. — Professionals made an early drive on the market to-day, but when they saw such stocks as Mexican Petroleum, Corn Products, Consumers' Gas and Pullman move up as much as six points, they gave it up. The market simply swept upward, creating new highs throughout the list. Oils were featured by great strength, and led by Mexican Petroleum, this issue closing up 9 points. Rails continued to hold their own, Missouri Pacific Pfd. featuring by making a new high. One reliable New York house says that the impending advance in this group of stocks is so great that most people would think it impossible. Another sign that we are entering a period of great prosperity is the 20 per cent. wage increase for labor by U. S. Steel and other steel companies. This indicates the end of acute unemployment. Bullish operations in stocks are expected to continue by the Rails, and it looks as though those waiting for the reactions will lose opportunities.

Canadian Market.—The local market continues to broaden, the activity spreading to such stocks as Atlantic Sugar and Smelters, these stocks making fair gains to-day. British Empire Steel issues were most active, the Common selling over 13 and the 2nd Pfd. up to 37. In the tractions, Toronto Railway sold below 78 on a continuation of the recent pressure. Canada Steamships Pfd. sold at 53¼; this stock looks to be behind the market, and a sharp advance in these shares is warranted.—Bryant Brothers, Limited.

To the Public:

Dear Sirs:

There are many features that appeal in connection with the opportunities for profit and expansion in Chain Drug Stores.

Having established our first store, we know that success is assured. Most financial authorities agree that an era of industrial prosperity is immediately in sight. The drug business has been consistently recognized as the most stable and substantial in the retail field. The chain store method undoubtedly is the most economic way in conducting retail business today. The material savings in operation, the increased business obtainable, through the linking-up system and the selection of high-grade specialists in managing the various departments are real advantages that are readily apparent. Another feature is the opportunity for placing special preparations on the market.

Having these facts in mind, I have no hesitation in recommending anyone to invest their available funds in this enterprise.

Yours very truly,

BEAVER DRUGS, Limited.

THE GRAND TRUNK BURNS CORDWOOD

In Stationary Boilers—Further Steps Taken to Relieve the Fuel Situation.

Still further measures have been taken by the Grand Trunk to relieve the situation caused by the continued strike of the coal miners in the United States Several carloads of cordwood arrived at Brockville, from Bainsville, Ont, and Danby, Que., to be used in the firing of the stationary boilers at the motive power shops, instead of the customary coal. There is also a report in railroad circles that the same policy which has been adopted with regard to the operation of passenger trains without change of engines between Montreal and Belleville, will be initiated in the case of manifest freight trains. The prospective resumption of operations in the United States coal fields within a very short time is expected to relieve the situation materially in view of the fact that the railway has a controlling interest in one or more mines which under ordinary conditions of labor supply the system with fuel. The opening of the mines will lead to the operation of the car ferries running between Cobourg and Charlotte, which have been practically tied up during the strike.

JOINED FORCES MADE FORTUNE.

LILLLIAN SHAEFER AND (BELOW), GLADYS MERGENS.

Two girls, two years and $200 joined forces and made a fortune.

The two girls, Lillian Shaefer and Gladys Mergens were employed in a shop at St. Paul.

"Let's pool our resources and go into the candy business", said Lillian.

"Agreed, said Gladys."

That's where the $200 came in Six months afterward, their business had attained such proportions they enlarged their shop and started a new one. In two years they had three of the finest candy shops in the northwest.

When they started they made all their products in a back kitchen. Now they have an elaborate workshop where 15 girls make candy all day long.

They have made courtesy the keynote of their business.

WHAT ARE THESE SCENTS?

What are these scents that drift
along the breeze,
And fill the sordid, dingy city street
For one brief space with fragrances as sweet
As golden apples of Hesperides;
What dim Arcadian meadows lent us these Faint breaths of loveliness from other-where,
That let our hearts a fleeting moment fare
Beyond the withered, brown, dust-laden trees?

Perchance the buds and blooms of long ago
When this was open country, still come back
On windy summer evenings to bestow
On prisoned folk the blossomings they lack—
Vague, wistful ghosts, that mourn
'mid slums unclean,
Old orchards and old meadows vanished green.

A GREAT MAN HUNT FOR E. DE VALERA BRAINS OF REBELS

Has Been in Hiding Since Collapse of Last Irish Insurgent Uprising- Agitation for Merciless Campaign by Free State Forces.

FEELING BETWEEN PARTIES IS BITTER

(By George Macdonald, United Press Correspondent).

DUBLIN, Aug. 25.—A great man hunt is on to-day for Eamon De Valera, the brains of the insurgent forces in Ireland.

While the body of General Michael Collins, killed in a rebel ambush, lay in state in the City Hall, hundreds of armed men searched for De Valera, who has been in hiding since the collapse of the last insurgent uprising here.

Merciless Campaign.

Collins was the chief advocate of the policy of handling the rebels with gloves. Now that he is dead, there is a strong agitation for a merciless campaign against the rebels, and one of the first steps in crushing them is to be the capture of De Valera.

Grave fears that the Irish insurgents would break forth in a renewal of their rebellion immediately after the funeral of Michael Collins, unless the Free State strikes first, were expressed by Government officials here to-day.

To Defend Dublin.

William T. Cosgrave, who temporarily took over the duties as Provisional head of the Free State Government, made preparations to defend the city and outposts over the country against rebel attacks.

The feeling between the insurgents and Loyalists was bitter, and it was believed that the respect for Collins during the period of mourning was the only thing that prevented serious clashes.

World Sympathy.

Messages of condolence from all over the world continued to pour into Dublin to-day. Thousands filed past the bier of the slain leader.

Collins' funeral is to be held on Sunday.

The Dail Eireann has been summoned to meet on September 9, to choose a successor for Collins, who was commander-in-chief of the army, provisional head of the Government and Finance Minister of the Dail.

A LOG MUSEUM TO BE OPENED

Memory of Early Explorers of Canadian West Will Be Recalled in Interesting Ceremony.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25. — More than a hundred Canadian authors, historians and others interested in the early exploration of the Canadian West are assembling next week at Lake Windermere, B. C., to take part in the opening of an interesting building dedicated to the memory of David Thompson, the first man to explore the Columbia River from its source to the Pacific, and the first white man to establish a permanent building in Southern British Columbia. It is on the site of this building, originally named Kootenay House, that a museum in the traditional Hudson's Bay architecture of log house with bastions and stockades, has been erected by the Canadian Pacific Railway, in cooperation with the Hudson's Bay Company, to serve as a memorial to the geographer and surveyor, who over a hundred years ago drew the maps, which are the basis of the railway and Government maps of Canada to-day.

For many years the memory of David Thompson has almost been forgotten till it was revived through the publication of his diaries and narrative of his explorations by the Champlain Society. This fascinating volume immediately restored him to his rightful position, and such authorities on the history of this continent as Professor Meany, of the University of Washington, Seattle, do not hesitate to acclaim Thompson as the greatest geographer of the past century connected with the American Continent.

Memorial Fort.

The formal opening of the Memorial Fort, on August 13th, will be accompanied by a picturesque pageant, in which many old timers and delegates from four tribes of Indians of the Pacific slopes will participate. L. O. Armstrong, of Montreal, who conducted the celebrated Hiawatha pageant at Desbarats, Ontario, is directing this pageant, which will reproduce historic incidents in the explorations of David Thompson and Father De Smet, who served among the Kootenay Indians at Lake Windermere in 1847. Two of the war canoes used in the Champlain Tercentenary celebration have been shipped West for this pageant.

Following the pageant, the Indians will conduct a stampede. The four tribes represented are the Flagstone, Kootenay Plains, Steugene Mission, and Shus-Wapu. Many interesting works of Indian art have been collected for the Memorial fort which will serve as a museum for local antiquities and Indian handicrafts.

Sir Augustus Nation will represent the Hudson's Bay Company at the celebration, while Col. J. S. Dennission will represent president of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The Canadian Authors' Association will at the same time hold a camp fire meeting, in which the president, Mr. J. Murray Gibbons, Bliss Carman, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Madge MacBeth, Onoto Watanna (Mrs. Frank Reve), Frederick Niven, Evah McKowan, Robert Watson, Lawrence J. Burpee, W. T. Alison, W. S. Wallace and J. B. Tyrrell, the editor of the David Thmopson volume for the Champlain Society, are expected to participate. Bliss Carman arrives in Montreal on Friday, and leaves for the west on the Trans-Canada after the celebration. He plans to canoe down the Columbia River from Lake Windemere to Golden, spending two or three weeks in the Rockies.

In Montreal a local group of those interested in David Thompson will hod a meeting simultaneously at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Aug. 30, at Thompson's grave in Mount Royal cemetery. This grave has hitherto been neglected, and is not marked even by a stone. The Canadian Historical Association is anxious to erect a small monument to mark the explorer's last resting place. Mr. W. H. Atherton, Mr. George Ham, Mr. W. D. Lighhtall, Mr. Pemberton Smith, Mr. Norman Rankin, Mr. H. Hodkison, Mr. W. Ormiston Roy, Mr. George Clarkson and Mr. A. W. D. Hais, of the Last Post, are among those who are expected to take part in the Montreal ceremony.

SOVIET GOVT. CANCELS ORDER FOR LOCOMOTIVES

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 25.—(Associate Press).—After having ordered 1,000 locomotives from an engineering firm here and having received 300 of them, the Russian Government has intimated that it is now unable to pay.

When the contract was made it was agreed that the engines were to be paid for as they were delivered, and the manufacturers obtained a guarantee for their money.

It is now considered probable that the Soviet Government will cancel the balance of the order, and that the present financial state of Russia and the failure of the Genoa and Hague conferences is responsible.

Reparations Commissions Fail to Agree on New Proposals---Left Berlin Today.

MEET IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Negotiations in Berlin between the Reparations Commission and German Government officials came to an end at noon to-day without having produced any compromise on reparations acceptable to the British and French representatives, according to advices received here to-day.

Sir John Bradbury and Eugene Mauclare, British and French representatives respectively, of the Reparations Commission, were expected to leave Berlin at 2 o'clock this afternoon, arriving in Paris tomorrow afternoon. The French Foreign Office learned unofficially this morning that new proposals were submitted at the forenoon session by the Germans, but they were not considered important enough to warrant the missions remaining in Berlin longer. The Reparations Commission's representatives therefore will bring the proposals to Paris, considering them en route.

LONGING TO BE MARRIED COUPLES PUBLICLY MATED

Weekly Sessions of "Cupid's Court Continue at Hammonton, N.J., with Brisk Business in "Matching" —Thirty-four Are Made Happy

HAMMONTON, N. J., Aug. 25.— (United Press.) — Eight more persons were matched at the regular weekly session of Cupid's Court held here last night in Victor Hall, the leading building of its kind in the town for the holding of public functions.

The most prominent of those "mtached" at this session of the court was a young world war hero living in New York City, who was matched with a Florida woman who longs to live in a small city or on a farm. The man is 46 years old, the woman 35.

A railroad man, living in Arkansas, and a widower with two small children, who says he is desperately lonesome, was matched with a Pennsylvania woman with $3,000 to her credit in the bank, the gentleman himself being worth $3,000.

A Philadelphia business man worth $23.000 was matched with a young Philadelphia widow, who has had a good business education.

A total of thirty-four persons have been "matched" to date.

SHOPPERS WHO WON PRIZES DOLLAR DAY

Mrs. Riley of Peterborough and Mrs. D. Beck, R. R. No. 3, Peterborough, Tied for First Place—Event as Successful as Usual From Sales Standpoint

Dollar Day, according to the reports from the merchants, was fully up to previous events as a shopping day, but the tickets in the box dropped to a much lower figure than usual, due largely to the fact that shoppers did not use the tickets which were given them at the stores. This is quite evident when the number distributed is taken into account. The Examiner printed in the first lot the usual 35,000, which has always been sufficient heretofore, but the demand during the day necessitated printing an additional 10,000 in order to keep the stores supplied.

This shows that the blanks were given to the people but were not so uniformly filled out and deposited in the box, as on former occasions, and is no evidence of a decrease of business done on the popular semi-annual shopping event.

The estimates on by far the greater number of tickets ranged around the 20 to 26,000 mark, that being the figure reached a year ago, but a smaller proportion tried a lower figure and so successfully that the winners, twenty in number, were all within eight of the correct number, 15,913. while two were exactly on the mark. Mrs. D. Beck, of R. R. No. 3, had a lot of tickets, very close to the winners, and managed to land no less than four prizes, which net her the handsome sum of $57.50. Her winning ticket with the exact number of 15,913 on it was the only one of her three winners which had been secured at the Examiner office, and this entitles her to the Examiner special prize of $10, which with the 9th and 12th prizes of $5.00 each, makes her share of the treasury fund $57.50.

The money will be paid out at the Examiner office on Tuesday morning after nine o'clock.

SERIOUS CHARGE IS MADE BY WIFE AGAINST HUSBAND

Serious charges against Russell Hill, one of the Hills of Dummer township, of assaulting and making threats against the life of his wife, were heard by Magistrate O. A. Langley to-day.

At the time of going to press the case was still proceeding. Adjournment was made at one o'clock when Robert Hill, the father, concluded his evidence that the relations between Mr. and Mrs. Hill had been comparatively harmonious, and that he had seen Russell on Saturday last kick Mrs. Hill but twice.

Evidently in the wilds of Dummer this 'cave man' stuft is not recognized as an offence against the law, and it was a fact that Mrs. Hill was not noticeably hostile toward her husband to-day.

After Mrs. Hill had wept and worried in the box over starting the case against her husband, and had blamed the whole thing on her bad temper, J. O'Brien for the accused suggested that the charge if not withdrawn should be reduced to one of common assault. The witness did not prove a tower of strength for the Crown. She failed to make out that she had been badly battered and stated a willingness to go back and live with her husband. This statement was somewhat embarrassing to the authorities after they had taken such care that she should not have to return to the vicinity of Norwood.

Got Along Nicely.

Mrs. Hill claimed that she and Russell had got along nicely, but she objected to Davis Hill, a brother, and Jack Edwards staying with them. She claimed she had to work hard on the farm and in the house, and "had to wash Edwards' dirty shirts." If these two men were not there, she said, she would not mind living on the farm with Russell; otherwise she would like to live in a house he owns in Norwood.

"In fact, Mrs. Hill, were you not in my office to speak to me about withdrawing the charge?" asked Mr. O'Brien.

"Yes. I was in your office. I didn't want to see Russell sent down."

"When was that?" "On Wednesday."

"When was the assault?" "On Saturday."

"When you were in a fit of bad temper you laid that charge?" "Yes."

"Would you be satisfied to withdraw the charge with the Crown's consent?" "Yes, I would."

"You have in all events forgiven Russell?" "You can forgive, but not forget," said the wife, who was in tears through the trying ordeal.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton asked witness if actions of Jack Edwards and Davis Hill justified the assault, but Magistrate Langley ruled out this question, as he said it was for the Magistrate to decide that point, and worse than that, the Crown Attorney was asking her opinion.

ALL ATTEMPTS TO SETTLE RAIL STRIKE FUTILE

Negotiations Looking Toward Individual Agreements Between Roads and Men Broken Off.

PREPARING REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.— (Canadian Press.)— Attempts to end the rail shopmen's strike by separate settlements with individual roads failed to-day, and the conferences were broken off. The break came after the Brotherhood leaders had spent two hours this morning conferring with executives representing about 30 per cent. of the country's mileage. These negotiations looking toward individual settlements began Wednesday night after the Association of Railway Executives as a whole had rejected any proposal involving a surrender on the seniority question.

The Brother hood men withdrew from the conference shortly before noon to return to labor headquarters for a conference with shop craft heads.

The first intimation that negotiations were off came from the Yale Club, where the executives continued in conference after the labor chiefs had withdrawn.

The report soon was confirmed at labor headquarters in the Hotel Woodstock. Both sides then remained behind closed doors drawing up their official statements for the public.

Re-Elected For A Fifth Term

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.— (Canadian Press.)— Tom Moore was today unanimously re-elected for a fifth term as President of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress.

P. M. Draper was also given an acclamation, and embarks on his twenty-third term as secretary-treasurer, having been first elected in 1900.

Vancouver Next Year.

Congress has decided on Vancouver, B.C. as the convention city of 1923.

QUALITY LIVE STOCK SHOULD BE IMPROVED SAYS W. R. MOTHERWELL

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.— (Canadian Press.)— Great opportunity for improvement of farming in the west is being missed in not better quality of live stock, declared Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, who reached here last night on his way east from an inspection of experimental farm and conditions in the west.

"This is a serious drawback and should be remedied," he said. "Quality is what is needed for our live stock. A man who has a good beef animal ready for the block need never fear for want of a market."

PASSIVE RESISTANCE IN THE STRIKE AREA.

SYDNEY, N.S., August 25 (Canadian Press). — "Silent as the grave" is the official report from the strike area this afternoon.

The United Mine Workers are continuing their policy of passive resistance, with special police patrolling the streets and highways and disposing all gatherings which might serve as an excuse for reading of the Riot Act.

In Sydney mines Great War Veterans' Association has received telegrams from the Hon. James Murdock and Premier Mackenzie-King reaffirming their previous attitude on the issue of withdrawing the military from th islands.

THE COAL STRIKE.

WASHINGTON, August 25 (Canadian Press). — The President would be authorised within his discretion, to acquire by condemnation or otherwise, and operate any or all of the coal mines in the country under an amendment to the Borah Coal Commission Bill proposed today by Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey.

The amendment also would have Congress declare the existence of an emergency resulting from economic and industrial conditions in production and distribution of coal.

SECOND TRAGEDY OF THE YEAR YESTERDAY IN OTONABEE RIVER

Little Henry Dowson, Aged 7 Years and 10 Months, Lost His Life While Playing on the Banks—Was Oldest Boy

MAY NEVER KNOW STORY OF DROWNING

The second drowning of the year took place yesterday afternoon in the Otonabee river, at the foot of Antrim street; and it is a coincidence that should not be disregarded that two children have lost their lives through playing about the water. Henry Dowson, aged seven years and ten months, who was drowned during yesterday afternoon is the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. William Dowson, 186 Antrim street.

The story of the tragedy will probably never be known. Donald Gilchrist, 701 George street, and Charlie Sharpe, 693 George street, his playmates of about his own age and who arrived at the Dowson home after three o'clock with the news "that Henry was drowned", failed to tell a coherent story of what had occurred.

Mrs. Dowson was alone at home when the youngsters returned without Henry. Her exclamations when the children burst out that the little fellow was drowned attracted the attention of J. W. Carey, who lives across the road. So agitated and alarmed were the two small boys that the information they gave was useless; and, at his wits' end; Mr. Carey called the police. By this time Mrs. Dowson had collapsed and little Charlie Sharpe was so agitated that he was sent to bed. P. C. William Carey had some influence with the youngsters, and after a time the boys pointed out where Henry had disappeared.

Dragged the River

P. C. Carey, P. C. Naples and George Lee dragged the river for a half-hour, and the body was brought up from eight feet of water. It was then 5.30 o'clock and the body appeared to have been in the water several hours. Coroner Dr. T. N. Greer decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Dangerous Playground

Marks on the bank indicated where the children had been playing. The Examiner was informed that the steps down the bank have been removed and the landing place is rarely used. The rest of the bank is securely fenced, and the opening to the water here provides a dangerous playground on the shore for children, as the spot is practically out of sight from the street on account of the dense shubbery.

Rescued Before

It was recalled to-day that at exactly this same spot three years ago the little fellow was nearly drowned. He was bravely rescued by a little chum, Roy Dunlop, one year younger, who caught him by the hair as he was sinking and dragged him to the bank. Yesterday, however, the other children were in such a state of exeitement that their first thought was to inform the mother. According to one report, however, they loitered about the corner of Antrim and George for half an hour before imparting the news. As the youngsters left the Dowson home at about 1.30 o'clock, it was thought that the child may have been in the water a much longer time than was believed at first and efforts at rescue would have been futile.

Warned the Boy

The parents had warned the child about going to the water and Mr. Dowson stated that he could not understand his playing there, as he was afraid of the river and when he had taken him bathing at Inverlea the little fellow refused to go in. He had never known him to play around the bank, he said.

The family live at 186 Antrim street. Mr. Dowson is employed at the C.G.E. and when he arrived home from work last night the news of the fatality was broken to him by Mr. Carey. At that time the body had not been recovered.

A Juvenile Forester

The child was born in Peterboro attended school, and was a recent new member of George Street Sunday School. He was formerly a member of Trinity Sunday School. About a year ago he became a member of the Juvenile Lodge, Ancient Order of Foresters, and the night before the tragedy attended lodge with his father. He marched to St. John's church with the Foresters in June, and was one of the youngest children in the parade. There is one other brother, John, aged five. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 2 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

TOM MOORE,
Again Head of Dominion Trades and Labor Congress.

OBITUARY

MRS. H. GELLING.

The funeral of the late Mrs. H. H. Gelling was held yesterday afternoon from the family residence, 13 Maple avenue, to the Little Lake cemetery, Rev Dr. Meyers officiating.

The late Mrs. Gelling passed away in Nicholls Hospital, Tuesday, after a lingering illness. She was in her 24th year and is survived by her husband and two young children. Two brothers, George and Thomas Robson, reside in St. Davids, Ont.

KODISH DANCE FROCKS RUFFLED

Seven layers—count them—seven! And more than that if you want them. The ruffled dance frock — never entirely out of fashion for girls and young women has billowed into popularity once more.

The newest dance frocks are shown in several shades of green which are expected to be fashionable all winter. Other new colors are mimosa, tiffin, wallflower and tangerine. Nickel grey is still another coming favorite.

The many-flounced dance frocks are shown chiefly in chiffon and are usually very simply made. The model sketched shows a new sleeve that is graceful and becoming.

PRICE THREE CENTS — PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1922 — PRICE THREE CENTS

LABELS WERE OFF THE BEER BOTTLES CHARGE DISMISSED

No Means of Identifying the Strong or the Weak Beer, So Charges Fall Through.

EARLY PURCHASE.

SARNIA, Ont., August 25. — Canadian Press. — The charge against the Labatt Brewing Company of London, of delivering for sale beer of greater strength than 2 1-2 per cent., to T. J. Johnson, local restaurant and pool room keeper, was dismissed by Police Magistrate Gorman in the police court yesterday after several adjournments of the case had been granted.

Johnson admitted that the beer was seized on his premises but declared that he had bought overstrength beer from the Labatt Company prior to May, 1921, and could not tell whether the beer produced in court was some of that or some purchased since the present Act went into force. The labels were off the bottles, he said.

The magistrate said he thought the witness Johnson must have had some means of identifying the overstrength beer in the ice box but no case against the defendant company had been established, and he dismissed the charge.

BIG BROTHERHOODS STILL IN THE DARK.

The Door to Peace in the Railway Strike is not Entirely Closed.

NEW YORK, August 25. Canadian Press. — "We are like bats—we can't see a way out." Thus did the chief of one of the five big brotherhoods describe the position in which the running trades found themselves after their last efforts to settle the shopmen's strike in the United States.

More than 50 main lines and subsidiaries were represented in conefrence with the brotherhoods, and although both sides professed themselves as no nearer an agreement last night it was evident that the door to peace was not entirely closed.

READY TO START WORK.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Aug. 25. —(Canadian Press.)—A meeting of the Atlas Local of Drumheller will be held to-day to sanction the agreement for returning to work on the scale specified which as it is understood is the 1921 scale without alterations.

Many of the miners have already signed up to go to work at various mines and are now waiting for the whistles to blow. The railway yard office here states that they will spot the mines with cars to-day.

MINES RE-OPENED.

Coal Miners Lost Tremendous Sum Through Strike

CALGARY, Alta., August 25. Canadian Press. — Coal miners in district 18 comprising Alberta and Southeastern British Columbia, during the recent strike, it is estimated, have lost approximately $3,500,000 in wages, while the members of the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association are faced with a loss of $9,000,000. These figures are arrived at from evidence as to earnings given before the Knowles Conciliation Board. The strike has been in progress for practically five months and was the second longest strike in the district, that of 1911 lasting three months longer.

From interviews with various operators it is predicted that the mines will now be working to their utmost capacity, and it is anticipated that quite 3,000,000 tons of coal will be mined by the Union collieri by December 31st next.

In addition to the association mines there will be a very considerable output by the non-union companies, totalling probably about 400,000 tons a month.

SAD DROWNING IN OTONABEE RIVER

Eight-Year-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dowson Fell Into the Water.

While playing about the Otonabee River at the foot of Antrim street yesterday afternoon with two other small boys, Henry Roy Dowson, aged seven years and ten months, fell into the water and was drowned. Donald Gilchrist, 701 George street, and Charlie Sharpe, 693 George street, the two youngsters who had called for Henry to go playing about two o'clock, ran to the Dowson home on Antrim street and told Mrs. Dowson that Henry was in the water. The police were called, and after considerable delay the badly scared youngsters were induced to point out where Henry sank. After a half-hour's dragging, P. C. Carey, P. C. Naples and George Lee recovered the body. The boy was said by his parents to be afraid of the water, and the parents have been unable to secure a coherrent story of the tragedy from the two little boys. When recovered the body had been in the water about two hours, the police said. One other brother, John, is five years old. The family live at 186 Antrim street.

FREIGHT STRIKE END IS STILL FAR AWAY.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Aug. 25. —(Canadian Press.)—There seemed to be little hope yesterday of a speedy resumption of work at the freight sheds. It has been given out that if the strike continues the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will send no more freight up the lakes, but will handle it all by rail, while the Northern Navigation Company with a dock at Duluth will send all its freight for western Canada through by Duluth in bond.

LIVELY TIME AT HEARING OF THE PENSIONS BOARD

Dr. Henderson Moves For a Dismissal of Charges of G.W.V.A. But Is Refused.

FILES PRODUCED.

OTTAWA, August 25. Canadian Press. — A motion for dismissal of the G.W.V.A. charges against the Pensions Board enlivened for a few moments yesterday afternoon's proceedings of the Royal Commission which is investigating the charges. The motion came from Dr. Gordon Henderson of Ottawa counsel for the Pensions Board. H. R. Bowler, the counsel for the G.W.V.A., arose and said he thought it hardly necesary at this stage to argue against such a motion. Colonel Ralston, chairman of the Commission, indicated that the motion would not be entertained at this time, and the matter ended.

Yesterday afternoon's hearing brought representatives of both sides to the witness stand and also saw the introduction of the first of the individual files which are to be consulted by the G.W.V.A. in their effort to show a change in the policy of the Pension Board with respect to attributability to war service of disabilities for which pension is sought.

Dr. Arnold, chief medical advisor to the Pensions Board, and also Major Burgess of the Medical staff, were called in respect to the file produced. The latter official had told the 1920 committee that the amendment then proposed to Section 11 would not affect C.E.F. men. Today he admitted that his statement, which at that time had been made in good faith, was incorrect. He pointed out however that interpretation of the amendment after its passage was not his duty but that in regard to the question of attributability he acted under instruction in requiring that it be shown that disabilities were attributable to war service.

The hearing continues at ten o'clock this morning.

Tom Hales Accepts Blame For the Murder of Collins

Admits His Guilt, Throws Down His Arms and Offers to Join the Free State Forces — Collins' Brother Has Trying Experience.

CORK, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Tom Hales, who led and accepted the responsibility for the ambush which killed Michael Collins, repudiated it yesterday, threw down his arms and offered to join the National forces.

Tom Hales is the brother of Sean Hales, a pro-treaty member of the Dail Eireann. The former has been a fierce opponent of the treaty, and it is not known whether his offer to join the Nationals, will be accepted.

He and his sister on last St. Patricks Day, set fire to the platform at Bandon, where a demonstration in favor of the treaty was being held under the auspices of his brother Sean and Canon Cohalan, parish priest of Bandon.

His present change of front is regarded as significant, and as giving point to the prevailing belief that the death of Michael Collins may not have been in vain, as his action may animate his comrades to do likewise.

Sean Collins proceeding from Clonakilty Wednesday to attend his brother's funeral, had a trying experience. He was arrested on the Bandon-Macroom Road by rebels, who taunted him with lacking the courage to "stand up and be plugged" and spoke jubilantly of having "plugged Mickeen, the traitor," referring to his brother Michael.

Sean Collins remained in custody overnight, but was released yesterday morning, reaching here last evening. He left by special steamer for Dublin with General Ennis and Sean Hales.

DRASTIC ACTION PROPOSED TO SETTTLE COAL STRIKE

OTHER BILLS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Government operation of United States coal mines and Federal control of coal distribution in such a manner as to prevent profiteering, were proposed in measures introduced yesterday in the Senate. Other developments in the coal and rail situations included:

Decisions by the Senate Labor Committee to substitute the Borah Coal Commission Bill for the Winslow Commission Bill, passed yesterday by the House.

Demands in the Senate for prompt and drastic Government action to end both the coal and rail strikes.

Announcement by Secretary Hoover that within a week daily bituminous coal production would be sufficient for United States needs, but that the country faced a shortage of freight cars, which would be acute within a month.

A declaration by Chairman Cummins, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, that Congress, at its next session, would take up industrial problems with a view to determining "what place unionism should occupy in the civilization of the United States."

A resolution empowering the President to take over and operate the mines, was introduced by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, after a long and heated debate, and was referred to the Interstate Commerce Committee. To this same committee, was sent an administration bill offered by Senator Cummins, proposing to create a Federal coal distribution agency, which working through the Interstate Commerce Commission, would control not only distribution of, but profiteering in coal.

The Senate is expected to act first on the Borah substitute for the Winslow bill, which Secretary Hoover, plans to call up to-morrow. It proposes a commission of five members to investiagte the whole coal industry and make recommendation to Congress.

No Changes Expected In Free State Government

Policy Founded By Collins and Griffith Will Be Carried Out By Their Successors.

THE CABINET.

DUBLIN, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Irish Free State Government, will be continued in the lines marked out by Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, whose views, freely exchanged with their cabinet colleagues, anticipated the necessities of the whole situation. No new lines of policy are contemplated.

Schemes for developments await the definite establishment of the Free State and all the efforts of the Free State Government will be directed to establishing the new state firmly in accordance with the terms to which the adherence of William Cosgrave and Richard Mulcahy, will be as strict as that of two dead leaders.

The Ministry needs little reconstruction. Arthur Griffith held no portfolio, and Michael Collins had been obliged to lay aside his duties as finance minister, owing to his more urgent task as Commander-in-Chief. Any pressing financial matter was attended to by other officials, Mr. Collins having organized a very competent financial staff.

It is assumed that Mr. Cosgrave will be head of the Ministry, but it is not known whether he will take over the financial portfolio or remain in charge of local Government. An important personage on the civil side is Professor John MacNeill, who was speaker of the Dail. He is a man of great knowledge and experience and his counsel is considered especially valuable and judicious in a difficult situation. He provokes no antagonism and has had a successful administration of his department, which includes law and police, and is likely to retain office. Joseph McGrath, formerly an official of the transport workers union, has as Minister of Labor, assisted in the settlement of several trade disputes.

The great department of Agriculture, has been capably handled by the Minister, Patrick Hogan, a young solicitor. Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Economics, has made many visits to London and was one of the most valued colleagues of Griffith and Collins. Temporaily he is acting as assistant adjutant general of the army. He is the nephew of Timothy Healy.

General Beasley, is at present in charge of the military censorship, but in the future Free State Government, he is likely to be identified with education. A probable new name for the Ministry is Darrell Figgis, who was one of the Committee which drafted the Free State constitution, and who enjoyed Mr. Griffith's confidence.

The appointment of Richard Mulcahy as Commander in Chief of the National Arm is universally approved.

The death of Michael Collins is indirectly likely to avert the threatened strike of 20,000 building workers next Monday. Out of respect for the late head of the Government, the Dublin building trades employers Federation decided yesterday to defer notices of a wage cut, already announced and negotiations will open to-day for a settlement.

The Dail Eireann it is semi-officially announced will not meet on Saturday as expected.

DUBLIN MOURNS WHILE COLLINS RESTS IN STATE

FUNERAL SUNDAY.

DUBLIN, August 25. Canadian Press. — Twice yesterday the body of Michael Collins was carried throuhg the streets of Dublin which were lined with sorrowing spectators. Early in the day, in impressive procession, the body was taken from the steamer Classic, and transported on a gun carriage to St. Vincent's Hospital. Last evening it was removed to the city hall where it will lie in state until Sunday.

Military and civic guards, ministers of the government, members of the Dail Eireann, and many clergy, among them three bishops, followed the coffin, which was covered with the Free State tri-color, while in the mourning carriages, were the brother and sisters and other relatives.

Irish pipers played a lament while officers of Dublin Brigade acted as pall bearers. Dense crowds had gathered hours before the appointed time and on all sides, poignant grief was displayed as the cortege passed. Hundreds of Dublin guards formed an escort with arms reversed, and a vast procession of bareheaded men and women followed. The coffin was placed on the same catafalque on which had rested the body of Arthur Griffith.

An exhibit which every man from this city attending the National Exhibition at Toronto should see is that of the Regent Tailors, which will be found in sections numbered 81 and 83 under the Grand Staud. Every man from this city calling at the booth will be presented with a souvenir.

Despite the quiet period in the tailoring trade, the Regent Tailors have forged ahead during the past twelve months, and their exhibit shows the wonderful progress they have made in the designing and making of men's clothes. The number of men who are finding out that Regent Tailors' values are the greatest in Canada is surely and steadily increasing. 2d-25-I

Winnipeg Asks For Some Western Men On Railroad Board

WINNIPEG, August 25 (Canadian Press). — A deputation of the Winnipeg Board of Trade interviewed the Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, here yesterday, and emphasised the need for adequate Western representation on the new directorate of the Canadian National Railways.

It was stated that the West had nearly as much railway mileage as the East, and that the earning power was very high on the Eastern division.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press.)— The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has leased the last of its terminal elevators, namely elevator "D" at the head of the lakes on a long term lease to the Consolidated Elevator Company interests, D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Western Lines of the C.P.R. stated this morning.

Mr. Coleman was here for a short time en route to Victoria. He declared that the outlook in Canada was much brighter with the bountiful harvest. He also expressed keen satisfaction at the settlement of the Alberta coal strike.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR SETTLEMENT OF N. S. COAL STRIKE

Company's Counter Proposals to Men's Demands Are Presented to Settlement Board.

STATEMENT ISSUED.

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Further substantial progress toward settlement of the Nova Scotia general coal strike was thought to have been made at the third session of the British Empire Steel Corporation-United Mine Workers peace conference yesterday.

The company's counter proposals to the men's demand for 1921 rates, length of contract and retrospective payments were discussed, and adjournment was taken to Friday afternoon.

President Dan Livingstone, of the mine workers, made the following official statement on behalf of those present:

"The third session of the conference between the executive officers of the United Mine Workers and the management of the Company took place on the afternoon of the twenty-fourth, Hon. D. A. Cameron, Minister without portfolio being pre-

ATHLETICS FOR GIRLS.

The question of athletic games for girls has just been investigated with care in England by a committee appointed by the College of Preceptors. Its report, while admitting the possibility of excessive and injurious strains, and condemning football, among a few other sports, as bad for girls because they run against and not with feminine nature—whatever that may mean—was highly commendatory of tennis, basketball, lacrosse, swimming and, of course, cricket. What they would say of baseball can only be guessed.

The right sort of games for girls, they held, were those that engage and hold the minds of the players and form mental and bodily tonics. Such harm as girls suffered from excessive devotion to athletics the committee held to be almost negligible as compared with the consequences to them of following the ideals and standards that were established in the Victorian age. Everything, in those days, was sacrificed to the production of an ultra feminine type, a woman so weakened in health as to be incapable of any sustained effort. The apprehensions felt and expressed by the praisers of past times over the abandonment of the notion that pallor is beautiful and facility in fainting a mark of refinement have not been realized.

It is to be rememebred, too, that girls can be athletic without aspiring to the glories to be won in international competitions. As always, is it excess that hurts and moderation that is beneficial.

RETURN OF THE BEARD.

"Beaver" is the name of a new game which, it is said, originated at Cambridge University, England. Students, sitting at a club window or strolling along the street, win points by their comparative celerity in "spotting" men wearing beards, whiskers or moustaches. A full beard is the best "card," whiskers coming next and moustaches last. The prize is awarded the one who first gainst an allotted number of points. Now, oddly enough, this highly intellectual pastime, originating in academic circles, has spread to the street gamins of London, who run about shouting "beaver, beaver," much to the disgust and embarrassment of citizens liberally endowed with facial foliage, and the police have been asked to interfere in consequence.

The significance of this new pastime is that it emphasizes the return of the beard and whiskers among Englishmen. With them the moustache never "went out," as it did in this country. The military tradition sustained its popularity. In America the smooth face for men has been the chief fashion for a number of years, although in the current issue of a popular magazine which each month prints the pictures of a dozen celebrities in the news of the day it is noted that half of the photographs show men with moustaches. The moustache does seem to be coming back slowly in an abbreviated form. It is not likely that what used to be known as the "fireman's moustache" will ever return to popularity. It flourished in the era of the now almost forgotten "moustache cup," weeping willow pattern. The vogue of the smooth face is largely due to the safety razor.

Our young men have been wont to take many of their styles from England, but they would take up the beard in self-defence; to have something masculine, at least, that the women can't wear.—Kingston Whig.

AN IRISH PARADOX.

A touching phase of the death of Michael Collins has been the warm and generous expressions of respect and condolence from his adversaries of a few months ago, the leaders of the British Government. After all the misunderstandings, the relentless strife and the loss of life and property that clouded the period of recent Irish history which ended with the treaty incorporating the Free State, Englishmen and Irishmen were still friends.

In the conference that slowly prepared the way for peace, Griffith and Collins met Churchill and Lord Birkenhead and Lloyd George, and out of their conversations developed reciprocal sentiments of confidence and esteem which have been so clearly reflected in the sympathetic messages reported from London with the deep regret of His Majesty the King. These were not simply formal notes of condolence. They ring with a personal note that is superadded to the official.

It is a pleasang trait of the English character to think well of opponents. In the war the Germans sang their Hymn of Hate against England, but Englishmen sought to excuse the faults of the enemy. And of the competitor who fights bravely and resourcefully against odds they frankly acknowledge a certain admiration. It is easy to imagine that Winston Churchill recognized in Michael Collins a man as two-fisted and upstanding as himself; and undoubtedly in the atmosphere of sincerity and honesty of purpose at the conferences, there was something of the sporting spirit of the athletic field, where after the game is done men know, and, if it has been fairly contested, esteem each other better.

Michael Collins had harassed, tantalized and discomfited British officers and the military administration, but he soon found that no rancour remained in the British mind, and the way was open to a lasting friendship which blundering folly had done its worst to prevent.

And yet while his old opponents, hardly his enemies came to regard him as a friend, old friends turned against him in his hour of victory, and—shot him down from behind a hedge. It's a grim and heartbreaking paradox to those who, like Michael Collins, believed that Ireland's strongest place was in the British Empire, and that, with the United States, the English-speaking peoples might exert their full influence for good in the world.

The eering fate that seems to mock the Irish nation's desire for unity has struck again; this time with the pistols of Eamon De Valera.

MUSIC AT THE TORONTO "EX."

The fortnight on either side of Labor Day invariably brings out of their obscurity those persons who habitually attend the Toronto Exhibition and return with the gloomy verdict of "just the same old thing." They must belong either to that class which likes to affect a sophistication impervious to novelty, or to that other class of plain boobs who have eyes and cannot see. As a matter of fact we believe they fancy they are exercising a petty, pretense upon us, for any person who fails to find a wealth of new interests at the Toronto "Ex." every year must be a dull clod indeed. And if their enthusiasms are blunted, and they have become uncurious and unreceptive, they are beyond repair unless a new set of glands might help.

As for ourselves, the Canadian National Exhibition teems with interest compared with which the crowded hour at a three-ring circus is uneventful. This year it will be more than ever a problem of eliminating the lesser novelties. The new Food Process Building should offer a host of features, but, after all, our eagerness centres about the elaborate programmes of music which range from the town band contest to grand opera.

This phase of the Canadian National Exhibition deserves special commendation and the public's loyal support. Toronto is the acknowledged music centre of Canada, despite its lack of an orchestra or concert band, but in choral work its corps of singers have won recognition as being unsurpassed on the continent. The big chorus that has been organized as an added feature with the evenings of grand opera and the competitions that were established a few years ago, are efforts worthy of Toronto's musical ambitions and should be immediately successful. These are heavy undertakings and are an earnest of the directors' zeal to promote the musical experience of the people of this Province. Many of the million or more visitors will hear for the first time Carmen or Aida, perhaps both, and, if the caste be capable and the atmosphere theatrical, will enjoy the thrills of operatic art.

Visiting bands from year to year have enlarged the musical knowledge and outlook of thousands of persons. This year they will perhaps be introduced to grand opera and to the choral music which on a lesser and probably a finer scale, Toronto's big choirs have developed to a high degree of excellence. In this respect alone the Toronto Exhibition is progressing in strides, and it is to be hoped that their plans realize a sweeping success.

Voice of the People

Dear Sir,—

Allow me a small space in your paper as regards to the band concerts in Victoria Park. I think it is quite high time something should be done to keep a little better order, as there is very little pleasure in going to try and listen to the band. All the people can hear is boys and girls yelling and shouting and climbing the rails of the band-stand. The music is good, but the people can't hear it. I am sure some of the good gentlemen of the city can do something to stop all the terrible uproar.

Yours truly,
DISGUSTED.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: Allow me space in your valuable paper to express my deep indignation, and protest in the name of Chritian decency to the party or parties who during the present week deliberately, no doubt, stripped a grave of flowers in St. Peter's cemetery.

Those flowers were placed there and preserved by a devoted mother, to adorn the resting place of her only son. This cherished spot is visited frequently and tended with beautiful bouquets and wreaths. Apparently this despicable act was done under cover of darkness, and under any circumstances was unchristian.

This letter should suffice to prevent any such depredations in the future. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, yours sincerely,

AN R. C. CITIZEN.

To the Editor of Examiner:

Sir: There apepared in your paper of Tuesday's issue a letter written by Mrs. Hehphill, complaining of her boy having received foul treatment at the hands of P. C. Bromley. As this has aroused public curiosity as to its outcome, and being one in the "know," I might state here that Mrs. Hemphill has frankly and sincerely accepted an apology made by P. C. Bromley, and is desirous that the whole matter be dropped. This she personally requested of the G.W.V.A., who immediately put their machinery in motion when the letter appeared in your paper, it being their first intimation of the trouble. My information is that as a matter of courtesy the G.W.V.A. have no other desire than to comply with Mrs. Hemphill's request, providing they can stay the hands of those in whom they have placed the matter.

CARDINAL LOGUE SENDS A MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY.

DUBLIN, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Cardinal Logue yesterday sent a message of sympathy to the Provisional Cabinet on the death of Michael Collins: "Young patriot, brave and wise, who was the chief hope of a peaceful and prosperous Ireland."

FORT STE. MARIE II, CHRISTIAN ISLAND

There is no more heroic or pathetic chapter in early Canadian history or in the annals of missionary endeavour than that connected with Fort Ste. Marie II, on Christian Island, Georgian Bay. Here, in the winter of 1649-1650 the Huron nation, under the protection of a band of Jesuit missionaries and their staff, but now reduced to less than 8,000, fled for refuge from the terrible Iroquois who infested the mainland and made life for the Hurons and their protectors unendurable.

On this island the missionaries, with the assistance of the Indians, built a strong stone fort after the European model and around the dwellings of the natives built a palisade redoubt to shield them from attack in case the enemy crossed the three miles of water between the island the mainland. For ten years the Jesuits had had a similar military fort on the river Wye, not far from the present town of Penetanguishene, known as Ste. Marie I. This they had made their headquarters for the score of missions they had founded in the surrounding country. When

RUINS OF FORT STE. MARIE II. IN 1855.

The interesting ruins of the Jesuit Fort Ste. Marie II., on Christian Island, Georgian Bay—where the Huron nation made its last futile stand against the Iroquois enemy, and where all but 300 perished of starvation and disease—are to be preserved and commemorated by the Canadian National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior.

the persecutions of the Iroquois drove the Hurons to their island refuge the missionaries decided to follow them and on June 14th, 1649, they destroyed Fort Ste. Marie I and removed to Christian Island. They built a second and strong fort called Fort Ste. Marie II with the stone and lime which they found at hand, and when the work was completed they rejoiced greatly in the hope that at last they had found safety for themselves and their flock.

Two pathetic passages in the Relations, one written in 1649 and the other in 1650 tell of the indomitable courage of the missionaries and of their radiant gratitude for any conditions where hope might abide, with, as is characteristic, much briefer references to the fears and dangers by which they were surrounded. The first passage states that they had been on the island for two months and that God had powerfully succoured them—Dieu nous a si punissamment secourus. The beautiful old French is scarcely translatable. They were in a fine state of defence. They believe now that the enemy with all his efforts could not harm them. Yet they had to confess that the Iroquois infested the whole country of the mainland and held the refugees in a state of famine which was really more terrible than war itself. The Jesuits had followed the Hurons and dwelling had to be erected to protect their flock.

The second reference is one of those lyrical outbursts of gratitude, so often found in the Relations, on the grandeur of the country where their perilous lot had been cast.

These great forests which since the creation of the world have not been broken by the hand of man received us pour hostes and the land without digging furnishes us with stone and ciment which we needed to fortify ourselves against our enemies so that, thanks to God, we find curselves in a very good state of defence, having built a little fort so strongly that it will easily defend itself and fear neither fire nor mining nor the escalade of the Iroquois.

There was no invasion of the Iroquois but their power to starve the island community, as the missionaries saw, was very real and was implacable. Soon the fear and certainty of starvation became a new terror by the side of which even the direct attacks of the Iroquois were tolerable. The Jesuits did what was possible to store food for the winter, Indian corn and smoked fish, but their supplies grew pathertically inadequate and by the end of the winter all but 300 of the once powerful nation of the Hurons had been carried away by starvation and disease. There is to-day a grave on the island, 25 feet in circumference, where 300 or 400 of the Indian dead must have been buried together.

In such tragic circumstances the Jesuits decided to leave the island. Five of their own number had been taken away by death. On June 10th, 1650 they set out on their long and sorrowful journey to Quebec, accompanied by the remnants of their flock. Fort St. Marie II had promised a permanent shelter for the missionaries and their helpless charges, but the thickness and height of its walls were of little avail against the still more powerful enemies of famine and disease.

The ruins of the fort are to-day easily traceable though much overgrown with trees and brush. The site is on the northern side of the great bay which indents the south-eastern coast line of Christian Island. The ruins lie about 130 feet from the lake shore. The fort was originally 72 feet square, flanked by four bastions, solidly built in stone and mortar and covering about a quarter of an acre. It is believed that the walls were 14 feet high, testifying to the energy of the missionaries and their native helpers who must have carried through the work during one summer. These walls are still in places two to four feet high. Within the inclosure is a wall extending at right angles some 16 feet which was evidently a part of the interior building plan. There are also interesting traces of a palisade around the fort. These practical missionaries laid cedar sills beneath the swampy ground to support the stakes. One of these was recently dug up in an excellent state of preservation by an officer of the Canadian National Parks Branch. Within the fort is a protected spring built up in solid masonry about five feet square, and a cedar drain constructed by the missionaries to carry away the water, is still visible. Of other interior buildings there is now no sign.

At present the island is an Indian Reserve and for some years the present inhabitants have busied themselves digging for relics and for imaginary treasure. Two years ago an Indian was fortunate enough to discover a brass cannon three feet long, clearly abandoned by the Jesuits on their departure for Quebec. This cannon was bought from the Indian by the Mayor of Penetanguishene and placed in the local museum of that town. The broken remains of the chapel bell have been found in a corner of the ruins and brass utensils bearing French inscriptions, together with a number of coins of the period. A steel stamp bearing the three letters "I.H.S.", used for making sacramental wafers, was discovered in 1848 and is now in the British Museum.

Tradition says that when the Chippewas migrated to the island in the early part of the eighteenth century from the Lake Superior region they found there a few Christianized Indians speaking a language quite different from their own. This circumstance seems to have given the island its present name. Originally it was called "St. Joseph's Island." The tribal name of the Indians then found there is not known, but it is supposed that they were a remnant of the ancient Hurons who had gathered about the ruins of the last stronghold of their race.

It is hoped that during the present summer the preservation work contemplated by the Canadian National Parks Branch will be carried out. It is intended to place a memorial tablet on the site and to clear, drain, fence and guard the property so that national piety may not be charged with neglect of one of the most interesting historic sites in Canada.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Dupont was dissatisfied. It seemed to him that some secret of the little house had escaped them. He could not shake off the impression of the presence yet of some of the gang, an intuitive feeling strengthened now by the fact of Kali's return, the ease with which the pygmy had slain the would-be traitor, the mysterious manner in whidh he had disappeared again.

He borrowed the flashlight belonging to the officer left on guard and re-entered to make a new and careful and more painstaking search of the premises. Dawn had broken, giving him the aid of the rising daylight. He overlooked nothing, tapping floors and walls, investigating every little detail of the rooms and corridors.

Last was the windowless room behind the living room, beyond the beaded curtains associated closely in his mind with his first visit to the place. From this alcove had come the mysterious voices. Triumphantly he noted that the farther wall sounded hollow to his knuckles. Elatedly he found the hidden door, breaking t open when he failed to locate the spring. With the flash before him he invaded an ill-smelling, cramped chamber, just large enough to contain an iron bed. By the foot of the bed was another door, standing open, a low, narrow door, leading to descending stairs. From below there rose the damp, musty smell of an underground passageway. This was the explanation of the escape of Renard, and Dupree, and Kali.

While he wondered whether to follow his discoveries alone or call the officer something impelled his attention to the bed. There lay a figure, cov red with a filthy, ragged blanket, one hand and arm protruding. He felt of the hand, gingerly. Quickly dropping it, he turned, looking for a light of some sort. On a shelf stood two candles, which he lighted. Then he turned to the figure again. The man was dead. He could not mistake the cold claminess of the flesh. He wondered who it was, whether a member of the gang or a victim.

With distinct repungence he pulled back the blanket. Then he staggered against the wall in horror. The dead man was Phantom Face, as fearful an object in death as in life.

For a long while Dupont stood still, gazing at the corpse spellbound. In the light of the candles the mysterious iridescent sheen of the features was as eviden as when the man had lived, as when Dupont had seen him alive in the abandoned chemical works. Now eyes and nose and mouth wer plainly evident—this was the illusion of it—and now th re was nothing. It was indeed a phantom face.

Finally the scientist and investigator in Dupont brought him to the man's side. H reached out with delicate, sensitive fingers to touch the man's features, and as he did so he understood. It was a mask In shape it was a round oval bulb. In substance it was something like opalescent glass. Rounding over his face it revealed and concealed the features alternately, but never clearly.

Was it an artificial or a natural mask? A near as his fingers could tell him it was part of the head, it grew from the forehead and cheeks and from below the jaw as a cocoon spun by some invisible psychic chrysalis. In his studies Dupont had heard of strange pathological, vampiric growths, of physical monstrosities resulting from occult causes of which there were traditions among the black races of both Africa and America. He put pressure upon the shell. It broke with a brittle snap, like the dead body of an insect. Beneath he saw the flesh, red and utterly skinless. Before his eyes, as the air struck it, it began to discolor. The process of decay, only arrested by the presence of the bulb covering, set in so rapidly that he drew back with a cry of utter nausea.

"Robert Dupont"

The voice came to him, faint, and far away, not through his physical hearing but directly to his subsconcious self. With the voice th re swept over him an influence he recogn zed, the orce of the Mystery Mind he had vanquished twice before.

"Do you begin to understand," queried the voice, "the power of the curse of the Devil God? Phantom Face was my priest Carno, who betrayed the secret of the sacred treasure. For punishment he was forced to wear the bridal veil of horror; he was sent fo th to recover the secret and so redeem himself. But he has failed. Now he is twice accursed."

Suddenly Dupont squared his shoulder What was there about this influence that he should fear t? He brought his own power to bear, driving away the thought of his mysterious enemy.

"Do you brave the curse of the Devil God?" asked the voice, but very, very faintly.

Dupont laughed. A final effort of will and the atmosphere cleared, as spring air after a storm. But at the same moment the light pattering of feet behind him caught his ear. He tu ned, too late. He caught the fla h of some weapon in the dim candlelight; then knew no more.

THE SECRET PASSAGEWA..

Paul Noyes made no effort to touch Violet. Rather, as she shrank away from him, he became embarrassed and ill at ease,

"I hope you will pardon me, Miss Bronson," he exclaimed. "I do hope you will appreciate the desperate necessity of my course. It—it was quite necessary to take advantage of he confidence you placed in me. Usually—usually I am quite a gentleman."

The voice of Vera came to them rather petulantly from the centre of the studio, interrupting. "You're a hell of a gentleman, Paul Forget it"

He flushed. Violet noticed now the weakness of his chin, the lines of indecision in his face. Undoubtedly he was only a tool of Phantom Face, his work simply to lure her to this studio.

"What do you want, Vera?" he asked rather sheepishly.

"You—" Ignoring Noyes, she addressed the hunchback sharply. "Your, Case, get busy in the bathroom mixing your plaster. You've got to hurry, and besides, I want you out of the way." Then she gave her attention to Violet and the artist. "You come away from the e, Paul, and don't you look at me as I beat it behind the screen. I've old-fashioned ideas and I'm not used to prancing around in gauze."

He colored a bit unde the lash of her tongue. Apparently he was decidedly a raid of her. "If you don't need me to help guard Miss Bron on I'll—I'll go out in the bathroom too and help with the plaster."

"By all means go," she snapped. "I'd spare you for the plaster if I'd a dozen little wildcats to watch."

In a moment the two men had left the studio itself. Dacca still lay prone on the floor, unconscious. The slam of the bathroom door indicated that the girls had the full privacy of the larger room.

In the heart of Violet mounted black despair. From her first glance of Vera Collins in the House of Horrors she had feared her. She had not forgotten Nerva's seance. She would never forget the expression upon the face of Vera as the snake-woman raised her arm and stood—with knife poised and pointed directly at her heart. Why should Vera hate her so? She sensed it as a thing deeper and more ingrained than the purposes of the gang, terrible as they were.

The patter of bare feet warned Violet of the approach of the other. She drew into the very corner of the room, praying that the walls themselves might open and enfold her.

"Afraid of me, li'l Violet?" purred her tormentor. "Well, well" Then her expression hardened. She realized the passage of time; seemingly she nerved herself to her task. "Strip" she directed. "Off with all the pretty things"

"But——" In horror, she knew not of what, Violet literally clung to the clothes upon her.

Vera laughed. "It's not as bad as all that. Here" She picked up her own undergarments, then indicated the lineman's clothing. "All I want is something decent to get away from this place. As for you"—a shrug which barely concealed the sheer maliciousness beneath—'you'll do as well in the greasy stuff as anything else. Get into it, or stay in your shimmy as you want, but give me your clothe , and quick."

H. ELSON, MILLBROOK, RETURNS FROM TRIP.

Had An Interesting Seven Weeks' Visit to British Isles.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25.—H. Elson who recently returned from a seven weeks' tour overseas, sailing from Quebec and landing at Southampton, made London his headquarters during his stay in England, remaining there two weeks and visiting such interesting places as the Tower, Westminster Abbey, St .Paul's Cathedral, the House of Commons, where he heard Lady Astor speak, among others) British Museum, Maadme Tassuad's wax-works, and various other places in the vicinity of the world's metropolis. Relatives in Cornwall were met with for the first time, and other cities and counties in England where some time was enjoyed were Kent County with its seven miles of concrete docks, and the large manufacturing centres of Leeds and Manchester "where you see nothing but smoke and dirty people"

Many historical places in Glasgow and Edinburgh were seen, including Holyrood Castle and the homes of Sir Walter Scott and John Knox, and with a delightful trip through the Trossachs, will always remain a pleasant memory. Some time was spent in France, Paris being one stopping-place, but the especial point of interest was the devasted battle-fields of that brave country in the region of the Somme and at Amiens; the latter town was famous for its cathedral, with the "leaning Virgin" which the Germans carried off, and which the French have so far been unable to recover Some of the cemeteries where those who "died on the field honor" lie buried were also visited including the grave of Lieutenant Lawrence Carveth, one of Millbrook's sons who gave his life during the Great War.

Mr. Elson, who tells in a most entertaining and interesting manner of his trip, and who sailed on the "Victorian" from Glasgow for home, landing at Montreal, made many friends both on shipboard and during his land journeyings. He speaks in the highest terms of the generous hospitality of the Scotch and English people.

"Men Are Shapely—Women Are Shapeless"

Astonishing Decision of London's Foremost Tailoring Expert After a Review of Britain's Fashionable Set at the Epsom Races, and Here Are the Complete Pictorial Documents for YOUR Decision

Captain Henry Thompson, of the Life Guards.

Lady Maureen Stanley and Lord Ivor Spencer Churchill, Presenting a Study in Contrasts.

Another Example of Waistless Shapelessness and Perfect Tailoring.

Lord Frederick Hamilton, Formerly in the Diplomatic Service, and at Right, the Hon. George Lowther, Who Served in the British Navy.

Commander Norman Douglass Holbrook, of Dardanelles Fame, Accompanied by Mrs. Holbrook.

WHY was the editor of the London Tailor and Cutter, who has an eye for women's styles as well as men's, dreadfully shocked by what he saw—and didn't see—at the recent ultra-racing meet at Epsom?

After watching the fashion parade for more than an hour—titled sportsmen in morning coats and shining top hats, British lords and Scotch lairds, distinguished statesmen from Downing street and young male "exquisites" from the universities, duchesses, dowagers, flappers, great court ladies, music hall beauties and Parisian manikins displaying the latest modes of the world's greatest tailors and dressmakers—he summed up what he saw in an eloquent tirade which ended:

"Men are shapely; women are shapeless!"

Urged by exclamations of protest and inquiry as to the exact meaning of his words, he explained:

"From a close observation of the best-dressed men of the day as they appeared at Epsom, one striking fact has emerged—man has a waist. His exquisitely cut morning coat, beautifully balanced, with cut and contour perfect, fitted the waist closely. At back and sides it defined the figure and was held at the front by a button on the waistline.

"This is in marked contrast to the fashionably dressed woman of 1922. She has no waist, no bust, no hips; in fact, she has no lines at all. That is why I say men are shapely and women shapeless."

The famous arbiter of men's fashions made it clear that in comparing the figure of man with the figure of woman he was not discussing anatomy or art, but the figure fully clothed in fashionable clothes. He was not discussing body lines, but "clothes lines," as it were.

Comparison of the intrinsic beauties of the male and female human form he was quite willing to leave to sculptors, scientists and producers of musical comedy reviews. He was speaking purely from a sartorial viewpoint—the only viewpoint on which he claimed authority.

What he said about men's clothes fitting more closely at the waist and displaying the lines of the figure is verified by the statements of leading London tailors and American tailors who follow closely the British styles.

Whether or not American men will submit to the tight waistline remains to be seen, but the style is being more or less generally accepted by the Britishers, and the tailors are "insisting" that it is the only correct way to cut a morning coat.

For many years England has been the arbiter in styles for men, just as Paris has been the headquarters for new styles for women, and the fashionable London tailor regards himself as a real power which will brook no interference when he makes up his mind to establish a new mode for masculine attire.

To what extent they are "insisting" on the new style is told by Keble Howard, well known for his independence in dress and better known still for his learned literary contributions to the London Sketch. When he asked his tailor to modify a tight-waisted coat just completed, the tailor not only refused, but fell in a rage and slashed the garment to pieces. Here is what Howard said about the incident and about the new style:

"All this business of men being shapely is very fine," said he. "But I don't agree that the first duty of man is to be shapely. His first duty, both to his neighbor and himself, is to be comfortable. I know these coats that fit the figure closely. My tailor can do them to perfection and I have to watch him very carefully lest he should do one for me. I do not mind the coat being held at the front by a button on the waistline, but I will not have my breathing apparatus hampered.

"We have had terrible rows about it—my tailor and I. The last time we clashed he took out a pocketknife—just an ordinary pocketknife—and slashed the coat to ribbons.

"'In the future,' he said bitterly, 'I shall write under your name in my ledger the words, Oxford Professor.'

"I don't see how any tailor could say anything much bitterer than that."

Lest the American reader miss the point of this "bitter" comment by the tailor it may be appropriate to explain that Oxford professors are notorious for their baggy and ill-fitting clothes.

The "shapely man" is something new for Anglo-Saxon countries in this generation from a sartorial standpoint, but in certain Latin countries men are just as proud of their "figures" as women.

Italian cavalry officers—regarded by many people as the best-dressed men in the world—not only wear tight-fitting coats, but wear corsets as well when they are in full-dress uniform.

If the tight-waisted morning coat which made such a sensation at the Epsom races is generally adopted throughout Great Britain and by well-dressed men on this side of the Atlantic it is quite possible that it may bring the man's corset into vogue with it. Of course, it isn't just exactly a corset. Corsets, in the old sense of the word, are more or less passe, even for women. The thing that goes by the name of "corset" now is frequently little more than a supporting belt.

So much for the explanation of what the Tailor and Cutter editor meant when he said that the modern well-dressed man was "shapely."

And now what justification did he have for saying that the modern fashionably dressed woman was shapeless?

He meant, it is explained, that the silhouette lines of the clothes of the modern woman are not the lines of the human female figure. The lines may be intrinsically and independently beautiful draperies—but they are "shapeless" in that they completely conceal or change the beauty of line of the natural figure.

Less than a quarter of a century ago the fashionably dressed woman was all "figure." She had a waist—very decidedly a waist. The tighter-laced and smaller and more noticeable the waist was by its smallness, the more stylish and charming she was supposed to be.

She had hips. She had a bust. If she hadn't, it was a misfortune to be camouflaged as much as possible by her dressmaker. Bustles and other fantastic contrivances accentuated her figure.

But with the progressive change in fashions, according to the editor of the Tailor and Cutter, woman has completely "lost" her figure. The figure itself may not have changed, but the clothes have. She no longer has a waist, she no longer has any bust, she no longer has any hips. The flatter and straighter and more like a man's her figure looks, the more she is "in style."

The last curve of all that woman continued to show was the curve of her leg. But now that long skirts are coming into vogue again, even this curve is disappearing—at least, so say the sartorial and dressmaking experts of London.

All this violent excitement in London—all these heated pronouncements about such a subject as styles and clothes—may strike the average reader as trivial and absurd, but as a matter of fact, serious-minded students of human affairs see in it grounds for optimistic reflection. For the first time since the World War, London is beginning to take a profound and active interest in the subject of dress. Its newspapers print columns about the new togs Princess Mary brought back from Paris—about the fact that Lord Lonsdale wore white duck trousers with a frock coat at the Derby—about the fact that the Prince of Wales wears square-winged collars, or that the King is going to have his new breeches creased at the sides. And all this may be taken as a sign that England is at last really recovering from the cruel experiences and depressions of the war; in fact as a sign of cheerfulness and of a "return to normal things."

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—At a meeting of the Board of the Grand Trunk Railway System held here W. D. Robb was appointed ranking Vice-President of the company with the title of Vice-President and General Manager. Mr. Robb will take up the duties of Mr. Howard G. Kelley, whose resignation as President of the railway is announced.

"The Chairman, Sir Joseph Flavelle, laid before the meeting a copy of an order-in-Council approved on the 14th of August, 1922, accepting the resignation of Mr. Howard G. Kelley as a Director of the company, and appointing Mr. Graham A. Bell, Deputy Minister of Railways, in his place. In as much as Mr. Kelley's resignation from the Board of Directors has, under the Railway Act, the effect of rendering vacant the position of President of the company, it was thereupon resolved that Mr. W. D. Robb shall be the ranking Vice-President of the company with the title of Vice-President and General Manager, and shall exercise the authority and perform the duties hitherto exercised and performed by the President."

Mr. Robb is the first native-born Canadian to be called upon to occupy the chief executive office on the Grand Trunk Railway System. He is also the first chief executive of the Grand Trunk to have risen step by step, with unbroken service, from an apprenticeship in the company. Mr. Robb was born at Longueuil, Quebec, in 1857, his father having come to Canada from Scotland to join the Grand Trunk in its construction stage. He received his early education at Sherbrooke Academy and at St. Francis College, Richmond, Que. He began his career with the Grand Trunk in 1871 as an apprentice machinist. He was appointed night foreman at the Montreal shops in 1883, and was promoted to the position of foreman at Belleville in charge of motive power and car departments in the same year. In 1897 he was appointed Master Mechanic of the Middle Division with headquarters at London, Ont., and in 1901 was made Acting Superintendent of Motive Power at Montreal. Mr. Robb was promoted to the office of Superintendent of Motive Power in 1902, a position which he occupied until his appointment in 1917 as Vice-President in Charge of Motive Power, Car Department and Machinery. His jurisdiction was extended in 1918 to take in the operating, maintenance and construction departments of the system. Regarded as one of the most practical railroad chiefs in the Dominion, Mr. Robb is a man of great energy who holds the confidence of the whole of the large organization of which he is the head.

A Grateful Mother Speaks in Favor of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets

Mrs. C. E. Earl, Toronto, says:

I am pleased to inform you that our boy, Eddie, has been completely cured of Bladder Trouble through using Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets. He is now 14 years old and has not been able to retain his urine which caused us a great deal of worry and trouble. We tried different doctors and medicines but never received any help until advised to try your Tablets. After treating with them for a few weeks they have completely cured him. I would advise mothers who have children afflicted in this way to give them a trial. I will consider it a pleasure to explain his case more fully on request.

Should you or any of your children be afflicted in a similar way we are confident they would produce similar results. Don't fail to give them a trial.

SONG OF THE OLD.

In our young and eager days
How we thrilled to fame or praise—
How we laughed and fought and struggled side by side!
But our dreams have faded quite,
For the day draws into night
And we know no more the spur of youthful pride.

Ah, the visions once we had!
We were young and fierce and glad
And our blood leaped hot within us in our youth.
But the seasons come and go,
We are old and dull and slow,
And our dreams have left us face to face with truth.

Youth and joy are past and gone,
Sere old age is creeping on—
How we used to laugh and dance upon the way!
But our weariness must rest
And for sleep the night is best—
So to youth we leave the burning light of day.

We are old and dull with pain
And we'll never feel again
All the beauty and the wonder that we knew,
Now we rest upon our oars,
And we drift to stranger shores,
For the struggle and the weariness are through.

—Violet McDougall.

Thoughts on Bathing Girls' Pictures in the Newspapers

Until the recommendations of the recent conference on radio telephony at Washington are enacted into law, is seems that we are in for some friction between broadcasting stations.

There seems to be considerable difficulty in several parts of the country to arrange radio programs without conflicts. Several of the larger stations seem to feel that their claims on the ether should receive first attention.

As a matter of fact, those interests which provide the highest quality of program will eventually win out over those who are content to supply the public with canned music.

Open competition for the public ear, without interference or congestion, is the thing which will bring out the best in broadcasting.

A great deal is expected from the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, which announced that it would enter the broadcasting field from its new station, WBAY. Hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in research work has given them equipment which is second to none. Many who have these stations in test operations prefer them to tthose which are already in operation.

It is understood that A.T. & T. originally failed to get into the regular broadcasting field as a result of its inability to obtain a license to operate a toll broadcasting station on a wave length of about 435 meters. However, this station, which is intended for commercial broadcasting, has been assigned for the present, by the U.S. Department of Commerce, a wave length of 360 meters.

Hours Assigned.

This does not permit simultaneous operating on the same wave length in the New York area. As a consequence, certain hours have been assigned to the stations in the New York district by an agreement among the stations themselves and with the approval of the Department of Commerce.

Under the A.T. & T. plan, anyone who wishes to provide some good radio features for the public may rent the station for periods of 15 to 30 minutes. In announcing the selection, credit will be given to the organization providing the performers and paying for the use of the station.

A. W. Drake, general commercial manager, in charge of this station, says that there have been close to 100 applicants for the programs which they will provide.

While radio advertising has not as yet been prohibited by laws or regulation, it is considered, in the public interest, that applicants for the use of this station should provide programs of general interest.

In this way, it is expected that considerable publicity will accrue to the renter and a very high class program will be broadcast. It is doubtful whether any of the great merchandising companies would care to have their names associated with anything other than first-class entertainment.

Simultaneous Concerts

To satisfy the two larger factions of radio audiences, one that demands classical music and the other that enjoys the popular productions, the Radio Corporation of America is planning the erection of a superstation, from which both kinds of music will be broadcast at the same time. This station will have a range of 1500 miles. It will be atop one of the business buildings in the heart of New York. Two 100-foot towers will suspend a 200-foot aerial 380 feet above the ground.

From the same aerial, but from separate studios, both classes of music will go out on different wave lengths. Both programs will be studies, but modulation will be governed from a central control room.

Rivalry between the several competing organizations getting permission to broadcast their programs and such other radio organizations as have their own stations is sure to raise the standard of the material that will be sent out.

EUROPE FOLLOWS U. S. IN RADIO DEVELOPMENT

BY PAUL F. GODLEY.

America's lead in the development of radio can no longer be ignored by foreign countries. They are beginning to sit up and take notice.

Nine months ago, with the exception of one daily, newspapers in the British Isles seemed to be decidely against any comprehensive radio programme. But the strides made by America have forced them into line.

The British Postmaster-General is about to take up the licensing of broadcasting stations throughout England.

The French were more prompt in realizing the potentialities of radio broadcasting. Some time ago they initiated a program which, although somewhat limited, nevertheless broke the ground for more extensive developments later on.

Notwithstanding this interest, no move has yet been made toward the adoption of a public broadcasting program. But there is little doubt that such development will come in the very near future. All the foremost nations of the world soon will be listening to radiophone concerts.

It is now proposed to divide England and Scotland into broadcasting areas of about 60 miles radius centering about London, Cardiff, Plymouth, Birmingham, Manchester, Newcastle, Glasgow and Aberdeen. One or more broadcasting stations will be licensed in each area. These transmitters will be operated by British firms who are bona fide manufacturers of wireless equipment.

One of the largest of London's department stores has already begun to demonstrate inexpensive receiving apparatus of British manufacture. This equipment makes use of a crystal detector and is sold at a price which is equivalent to about $30.

Marconi's Wireless Telegraphy Company, Ltd., has in production 50,000 receivers of similar type which it expects to be able to market during the next few months

Many other companies are also getting ready for the big rush.

THE CARE OF MILK IN EVERY HOME.

In an interesting booklet on "Milk," issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, there is a page devoted to "Care of Milk in the Home," which says:

"The consumer has a right to demand clean milk. Dirty milk is not only disgusting, but sometimes dangerous. Very often, however, milk which has been carefully handled by the producer is spoiled by careless treatment in the home. 'Cleanliness' should be the watchword of every person who has to do with milk, on the farm, in the dairy, during transportation, or in the home.

"When we consider some of the characteristics of milk, we cannot but realize the importance of proper care in handling it. Bacteria grow readily in milk and pasteurization is the method commonly adopted for the destruction of disease germs which may find entry into it. In many cities pasteurizaton is compulsory, but if it has not already been pasteurized, it can easily be done in the home.

"Because the growth of bacteria is more rapid in a warm temperature, milk should be kept as cool as possible. Below 50 degrees F. growth is retarded. In the home, a refrigerator is the most convenient way of keeping milk, but if a refrigerator is not used, it is a good plan to wrap the bottle in a wet cloth and stand it in a dish of cold water by an open window. The evaporation of the water will keep the milk cool.

"Milk should not be exposed to dirty or dusty air. In cities, the best way to buy milk is in bottles. If these are delivered early in the morning, a small covered box to hold the bottles will protect them from the sunlight and from prowling cats and dogs.

"Milk absorbs flavors easily and should not be placed near foods with a pronounced odour, such as onions, cabbage, fish, etc.

"If a refrigerator is used, the milk should be placed on the lower shelf and should always be kept closely covered. After the cap has been taken off the bottle, a satisfactory cover is an inverted tumbler. It is better to keep milk in the bottle, pouring out only enough for immediate use. If any of this amount remains, it should not be poured back into the bottle, as it will be of a higher temperature. As soon as the milk bottle is emptied, it should be rinsed in clear cold water, then washed and thoroughly scalded. All utensils, such as milk pails, separator, milk bottles, towels, etc., which are used in caring for milk should be kept scrupulously clean. Daily exposure to strong sunlight will aid in keeping them sweet and wholesome."

NURSE THINKS NOTHING BETTER

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Advised for all Women in Poor Health

Toronto, Ontario—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years and it is the only patent medicine I ever recommend. I am a nurse and if I find a woman is in poor health I always tell her to take it. Although you know that doctors and nurses do not use patent medicines I must say that I think there is nothing better than your Vegetable Compound. When I first took it I was so tired when I got up in the morning that I could not eat, and when I went to bed I was too tired to sleep. My mother-in-law told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was just what I wanted so I tried it and only took two bottles when I felt better. Since then I have found that there is nothing that makes me feel so well, for it seems to build my system right up. I don't know any other medicine that has done so much for women."—Mrs. W. H. Parkes, 19 Wellesley Ave., Toronto, Ontario.

Women testify again and again that they have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound "after other medicines have failed." It has been tried for nearly fifty years and not found wanting.

If you are suffering from any of the various ailments which accompany female weakness try it.

Milton Bronner, NEA Service European manager, went to Germany to make a first-hand study of Stinnes and his operations. Bronner has just completed a series of six articles on this man whose far-flung activities pale other individual achievements into comparative insignificance.

THE GROWING MIND.

Some minds seem to be always growing, always susceptible to new suggestions, always alert for new ideas. These minds never seem to reach the limit of expansion. No matter how old these people may be in body, their minds are always young, responsive, fresh, vigorous, impressionable. The habit of enquiry, of absorbing knowledge, of pushing out into new fields, of learning new things, constantly follow them to the very last. There does not seem to be any limit, any bounds, to their growth.

Back to Flowing Tresses

(By H. T. Phillips.)

Off with the Short Hair, on with the Long!

The hairdressers have decreed it. New style charts are out showing that bobbed hair must go the way of bobbed skirts and bobbed stockings. Thousands of Sweet Alices who allowed themselves to be docked at the ears during the last few months are now ranting through the flat in indignant distress beseeching Allah to wither the hand of the hairdresser.

* * *

They are tearing their hair—or trying to tear it, which is quite impossible owing to the difficulties of getting a grip. They are as shorn lambs bleating in a blizzard. A movement for the Relief of Devastated Scalps is in order.

* * *

Meanwhile there seems nothing for the Bobbed Hair ladies to do but go over and sit with the Japanese dolls, fresh country eggs, and billiard balls until somebody figures a way out.

* * *

From all over the land there arises the pathetic, heart-stirring cry, "Gimme hair! Gimme hair!"

* * *

Very recently two young women killed themselves in despair over the change in styles. They should have killed the hairdresser. No man or woman has a right to make a girl look like an O'Cedar Mop and live!

* * *

Of course, the hairdressers have a defense. They claim they started the hair bobbing business to settle a bet that women really had ears.

* * *

Anyhow, it reflected the struggle and determination of women to enjoy the same rights and privileges accorded men, with special reference to the right to have a barber say "Pardon me, but it's getting a little thin on top," "Do you wish bay rum or witch hazel?" and "Shall I comb it wet or dry?"

* * *

Whatever the cause, it was a terrible thing to start. Through the ages it had been the pride of beautiful women that they could undo their hair and let it fall to their waists. For the past few years a woman has been lucky if she could undo her hair and have it fall to her collar bone.

* * *

Hair bobbing has made every girl look like her father. Or worse!

* * *

And it has killed romance of the Romeo and Juliet order. Juliet lived on the third floor of a walk-up apartment. Romeo called one night without a key. Juliet let down her hair from the window and Romeo climbed up. There were no hairbobbers in those days. But were Romeo to come back today and expect to get into Juliet's apartment by her hair she'd have to live in a basement. 'Sawful how times have changed!

But we appear to be getting back to normalcy. Everything is getting longer—even the time between drinks.

* * *

All of which is a great blow to Reformers, Girl Welfare Workers and Preachers.

"What's the Matter With the Woman of Today?" has been a standard topic for three or four years now. The answer has been: "Bobbed hair and short skirts." Now they'll have to get a new one.

* * *

The Hair Ribbon & Curling Iron manufacturers are delighted with the hairdressing edict. They look for the first business boom in their line since 1918.

* * *

And the problem of what to do with old newspapers is to be solved anon. The girls can start doing their hair up in the crime news once more.

* * *

One thing is certain with the passing of bobbed-haired maidens: there will be fewer runaway horses. Drivers no longer need heed the Kipling warning:

* * *

"If your horse is easily frightened
Hide his head within a pail;
For the Female of the Species is more close-clipped than the male!"

Present and Past Property Values in Peterborough City

At the session of the Ontario Legislature recently closed about two hundred and thirty changes, amendments, and new fandangoes were whipped into shape and placed on or amongst the statutes. It seems to be the case that increasingly is legislation put forward by those known as "good-motive" faddists, calculated to help the proletariat and make life better for the common man. But at whose expense? This is not as yet directly determined, but there is a section of the community that has taken alarm, according to the Financial Post, that of the loaning and investment companies, and people dealing in real estate as investments. And it is intimated that investments in lands and buildings, hitherto remunerative, might be withdrawn and the avails salted by in good dividend paying securities.

Be this as it may, we have the case in this city, within the last two months where four excellent store properties have been purchased from the company owner, a transaction that could not have been anticipated some years ago. And which points to a situation as yet undecided as to how far rates and taxes and government enactments may go, and influence.

To-day houses and buildings, if undesirable, are estimated in values at the replacement costs. Not what it cost to build years ago, but what is the penalty of building now. This is seen in the case of dwellings with their enhanced rental values, and, unless there be impelling reasons, increased sales prices. We may get a line on what is goin on by comparing the accepted values of properties to-day and the prices of the same or others like them in years that have expired. And while the assessment on any or certain properties, as we have it to-day, might be taken as evidence of increased values, such is not always the case. Increased assessment has in the main resulted from the fact that the town or city, as it progressed, needed money and in two ways secured it. By raising the rate and by applying that rate on an advanced assessment. So the assessor practically accomplished that much exalted feat of making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. We certainly needed the money. And who does not?

The Penalty of Taxes

The advent just now of the municipal taxes' bills has provoked serious thoughts among property owners and reatpayers. Men express their convictions by an eruption of expletive that may be forcible if not convincing. The peacock-blue papers contain figures and sums that are disconcerting. Especialy to those who paid taxes on the same old properties in what they refer to as the good old days when the rate was at ten mills on the visible dollar and property values had not soared. That is, some properties. Plenty of it has not even been appraised as worth more than formerly. And in the general spirit of resentment, wholly undeserved, it is safe to say that if a paving or draining, or general or schools by-law showed its head—or even its preamble, which is worse—the proposition would be summarily slayed. For of such is the fruits of repentance.

We need the money. Those who in the last analysis have to provide—the property owners—must realize that giving assent to civic propositions in the last ten years, has brought us to a civic rate that pinches those who have not incomes that match the rate. Of course if one is in business, or engaged in making things, the advance is serenely passed on to the consumer—the public. None of it is what the financial sharps term "absorbed." Which means in the vernacular as used down by Hales' Bridge, pay it yourself. On the other hand, the considerate thing to do is to turn from the taxes sheet to look at what we get for what we pay. In service, utility, convenience, and real work. None of us would willingly go back to digging holes in the garden to hide the garbage, nor to heaving the coal ashes over the neighbor's fence. Or blunder around on the streets with a lantern, carry water from the creek or river as was the fashion and much the custom when the rate was ten mills on the dollar. Even if it does cost four times as much to run the fire department as it did to run the whole town in the first ten years of municipal life. Such is modern improvement. Yet down at Keene the people have none of our modern improvements except electric light and are as happy and quite as comfortable as we are or seem to be. Let's all go.

Ground and Store Values

Ground on which to erect buildings for commercial purposes, (stores, offices, etc.), is valuable only on the basis that the location affords opportunity to do business. Which means that where people congregate, pass and re-pass, or gather to transact business values become enhanced. For instance: a cigar store, a hall-way four feet six inches wide, and eighteen feet deep, converted into a shop, on a street in New York, near Macey's, pays a rental of $28,000 per year. But it is stated that 220,000 people pass the store every day. So from the hurrying throng the proprietor shaves off enough to pay expenses.

Let us see if we may gain an appreciation of ground values, and store values as well, in Peterborough, say in the business section and along George Street, by applying this rule of business accessability to the situations.

Take the Market Square. Originally bestowed on the future town, with other lands, to form a basis for municipal credit and as security for borrowing and raisings of school monies; along with other lands so given. At the time of incorporation, the square was an open piece of land, very sparsely occupied and outlined by the streets surrounding, as at present. Only three or four wooden buildings on it. So Lawyer Elias Burnham, the town's first solicitor, a man of austere appearance but alert and sagacious, came to the Town Council on March 13, 1857 and made him this offer. At the time there was, of the frontages of the block, 482 feet still open. George Street was fairly imploring for some one to erect business buildings to replace the many burned from time to time. Besides the above, the frontage on Charlotte Street, except that part occupied by the old Colborne Hotel was unused. And Mr. Burnham's proposition was that the council should lease to him a part of the market blocks, facing on George and Simcoe streets, at the rate of 7s. 6d. per foot, for mind you, twenty years. He to erect three-storey brick buildings, single or double stores, at discretion, and within two years. The council was undecided, and called a public meeting, which discussed the proposition and recommended it to the civic body and it was adopted. The first building of brick was built on the corner (where the Dominion Bank now stands), and was when completed occupied by D. G. Hatton as the first store devoted to dry-goods and millinery in Peterborough. Unfortunately, this building was destroyed by fire the year following, but replaced. The interest attached to this real estate transaction lies in the fact that the ground rent for a building twenty-five feet wide, on George Street and along Simcoe Street to the lane, amounted to nine cents per foot per year or a total of $1.50 per foot for twenty years. Ground is dirt and the remuneration to the town may be said to have been dirt cheap. But there you have something to snub to. In successive years, the ground rental was advanced until now the site coupled with the one adjoining, pays a rental of $1000.00 per year and the usual taxes, both on ground and buildings.

Our City and Other Buildings

The eastern part of the present city building, as we know it, was built by Daniel Hopkins in 1863 the corner, (Water and Simcoe Streets), to be used by the Bank of Toronto and where the bank was housed until it removed to its present location. James Stevenson afterwards acquired the property and eventually sold it to the city, (as far west along Simcoe Street as the part now used by the collector of taxes) for $4,500.00 The city spent $1500.00 in fixing it up. In after years the police station was added, and for a time part of the premises was used as the civic Fire Hall. It would be interesting to have a figure set on thi property to-day. It will be remembereed that in th purchase price the value of the ground did not enter, the building being on a part of the Market Square.

In 1869, the movement and call for a larger and more commodious public hall, or theatre was met by the enterprise of Thomas Bradburn, at that time one of a half-doxen prominent and enterprising men of the town. The spot selected was on George Street, and we know the premises by the old name of "Opera House Block." The premises are still in use and will be so for many years. The ground was, and is, subject to a yearly rental at so much per foot, payable to the City Trust. The rental value of the ground, and other parcels, is fixed by the Trust at the end of each twenty-one year period. The frontage occupied 106 feet. In the building were provisions for housing the civic officials, council chamber and other public service conveniences. The third, or upper, flat was the Opera House, (now Victoria Hall). The council was impressed with Mr. Bradburn's enterprise in meeting local needs and cheerfully met his object The ground rental, for the term of 21 years was fixed at $139.00 per year. This figures out at about $1.30 per foot frontage, per year. This was renewed in 1896 for a further term for $6.00 per foot or $636.00 per year. Again renewed in 1917 for the ensuing term at a rate that is about $1500.00 per year. Does this throw a light on the usable value of business city property. The usual city taxes apply, as well.

The town trust commission of the earlier years, and at the time of its institution, seems to have struck a uniform rate of $1.50 per foot per year; for the site of the now Neill building carried such charge. Originally it included two leases, one to William Lundy and one to T. & R. White, owners of the Review newspaper. On the following revision, (coupling the lots together), rentals of $450.00 and $800.00 per year were paid during terms or periods. Now fixed (from 1920) at $1000.00, per year. This lease extends until 1941. The Allen Theatre, (formerly Chamberlain Estate) pays $800.00 ground rent for the period as noted above. Further down the street the Commissioners own the city building and the several stores are paying combined charges for ground and building rentals. All this income is carefully husbanded and invested by the Commission and the avails used to meet city liabilities accruing from time to time.

Real Estate Transactions

Possibly this view of the values of business places may be of interest. In February of 1861, George A. Cox, who was acquiring considerable property in Peterborough, having faith in the future of the town and a progressive man himself, effected a deal with William Cluxton, by which Mr. Cox took possession of the following places, and Mr. Cluxton's residence as well. On the ground now covered by the Bank of Commerce stood the Stewart House, one of the leading hotels of that day. Mr. Cox took the hotel, its stables and quite a block of yard room. Then the buildings on Hunter Street to the west as far as, and including where the Higgins' hardware store is located. Also on the west side of George Street the stores from Hackett's dry goods store, (now part of Cressmans'), to the corner of George and Hunter Streets, west on Hunter Street stood Daly's hotel. That was added, and the stables on Chambers Street as well. And the store occupied by James Best, (now part of Grafton's), and the residence of Mr. Cluxton, (now block now the site of Trinity Church). He paid for the assortment just $120,000.00. Of these buildings, with exception of the hotel and main residence are standing and in use to-day. Assuming that the hotel was still standing, for it was a very fine building, what would the real property value of all that real estate be to-day. Some financial and estate sharp might figure it out for us. And then, the whole lot appeared in the assessment roll of 1869 as assessed for $27,730.00. Now will you be good.

In 1825, Richard Birdsall made the survey and plotted the site of the future town of Peterborough. At that time, so far as building and occupancy was concerned, Peterborough was a hit and miss proposition. Twenty years after, (1845), Frank Ferguson, acting as government agent so'd an acre of ground, west side of George Street, between Charlotte and Simcoe Streets for $301 Charlotte and Simcoe Streets for 301 pounds, or less than $1500.00 This property was opposite the Market Square. As a guessing proposition try for the value of an acre of that ground, built on to-day.

Does it Pay to Hold Property

It seems to be a feature of business life in nearly all localities, that once a street, often one side of a street, becomes desirable, no person or combination may change it. The preference—originally indicated by the public—may not be set aside. In Lindsay, the north side of Kent Street has ever held the preference and nearly all the improvement in premises adorn that side of the street. We see the same thing on Charlotte street, in this city. The north side has the call and preference and along the sidewalk throng walk in ignoring the south side. Building seventy years old still stand on the south side, and no evidence of anything but trifling improvement.

So the question ever intrudes, does it pay to own lands or business places in the business localities. If eligible and desirable and occupied, likely so. But if non-productive, hardly. More especially unproductive lands along business streets Let us consider one proposition or plot, righ in the very heart of the business section, but by some queer twist of fate or reluctance, not as yet remunerative. That open piece of street frontage on Hunter Street west of the Bell Telephone Company's building and as far west as the building on the margin of and partly astradle of the creek.

This frontage has gradually been brought to the street leve by a process of attrition. Some thousands of loads of excellent gravel has been taken from the lot. Excavated back to the dividing line between Brock and Hunter streets, the level as now appears at the division line was about that of George Street, above Borck Street. Many years ago and perched on top of the elevation was a large rough-cast or clap-boarded cottage, which, the original owners having passed away, became the home of Dr. John O'Sullivan when he took up practice in Peterborough in 1869. Gravel explorations and excavation drove the doctor to seek other premises and the plot was brought to the level as it now shows. Apparently too far from George Street for use for store purposes, it nearly secured the new Opera House, and in fact the ground was acquired for that purpose but set aside. This property has fine value for some purpose of the future, as the Bell people realized when the local building and headquarters of the company was so placed. But the interest attached to the ground, as an example, is the cost to the owners for the years gone past and of the present in taxes.

The ground came into the possession of a gentleman-settler named Roache, in the early 'forties, as a gift from the Crown. He built the house and in 1857 his wife was still living in the old house, and from her heirs, Dr. O'Sullivan bought the property. This lot has had only two changes of ownership in eighty years. And unproductive all the time. It would be an interesting revelation if one would take the value at the time of the O'Sullivan purchase, and capitalize the money at compound interest, and the taxes similarly compounded, and find out what has actually been paid in good money, and then conclude if it pays to hold vacant city property, or rather, property in the heart of the city.

Some Assessment Values

Ever so often a section of the general public gets the notion that the assessment valuations of the town or city are all wrong. That palpable and rank injustice exists. And the proletariat clamors that the roll be published. It has been placed in newspaper print several times but nothing resulted. For no citizen, no matter how irate, would be caught appealing against the other fellow's assessment. It is not done, don't you know. If a man did appeal in such manner he would lose caste, as the Hindoos say, and be no gentleman. But a few examples from the published roll of 1869 may be of interest, and as showing how considerate and sympathetic assessors, (they went about in couples), might be in those years.

James Trotter Henthorn had built the block at the corner of George and Hunter Streets. Now Kent's drug store and the several stores to the north. The property land and building, figured on the roll for only $2000.00. It was just like finding money.

Nicholls & Hall had built and occupied the fine premises on Simcoe Street, (now St. Peter's T.A.S.). The assessment on this property stood right up in the array as a veritable constellation of the first magnitude at $10,000.00. Forty years afterwards, it sold for exactly the amount assessed in 1869. Business, retail, would not frequent Simcoe Street, east of George.

It is of interest to consider the case of Samuel Dickson and his holdings at that time, in relation to assessed values. At the time (year before his death) probably the most active and prosperous of the manufacturing men of the town. The properties assessed in an itemized list included his residence, ten locations or lots, all built on, two sawmills, piling ground and water privileges on the mill reserve, the whole assessment at $9000. Extra was an income assessment of $3091.00.

The store occupied by Jame. Stevenson, (now the north half of the Grafton premises), building and land was on the roll for $2800.00, the upper flats not being furnished, and full of stoves and furnaces, est than the assessment on an ordinary dwelling o-day. The store adjoining, occupied by Thomas Bradburn, (now Fair & Co.) was placed at $4900.00 being built back deeper on the block. These examples will give appreciation of the assessments all along the street.

Harry Strickland carried on a store, under the firm title of Strickland &

Already! Interesting Autumn Garments Are to Be Seen on the Second Floor

Time and tide wait for no man, and neither do the seasons. Autumn, 1922, is on our threshold and about to enter. We are rapidly putting our house in order to receive our new guests. Our preparations have reached the stage where we can INVITE YOU TO INSPECT THE AMPLE ASSORTMENTS OF WOMEN'S SUITS AND COATS

The New Coats Make a Fine Impression

Loose lines, of course, with deeply cut sleeves and collars and cuffs of fur—beaver, fox, link and caracul—supplying most of the warmth and ornamentation. The materials are wonderful in weave and rich in colors. Mavella is one of the leading fabrics and also ramona. They are soft drapy textures that lend themselves admirably to the drapy styles. Besides these there are English velours, Normandy cloth and duvetyne. Warm tones that are closely allied to brown predominate and navy blue will also be a favorite. The deeply cut sleeves quite often narrow in at the cuff, but as often as not flare out to a great width.

SMART NEW COAT MODELS FROM $25 TO $125

Enters the 1922 Coat With the Voluminous Folds

A glorious mantel of navy blue marvella cloth. It is one of those deep nap fabrics with a rich appearance. The general lines are loose and flary, and this is particularly true of the sleeves. Its loveliness is capped by a deep black caracul collar and caracul also appears in the form of deep bands at the bottom of the side panels. Under the arms is a group of five long loops of the materict itself. A narrow string belt encircles the waist. Price $110.

The Suits Strike a New Note

One is immediately impressed with the length of the coats and their slender lines. They are longer, much longer than those of former seasons. The correct materials are French broadcloth, duve de laine, Poiret twill and tricotine. Tailored models vie with fur-trimmed styles for supremacy, and the latter resort frequently to the use of grey Persian lamb or collar, cuffs and sides. Brownish and fawnish tones and, of course, navy blue is much to the fore.

PRICED FROM $39 TO $95.

Dark Brown Duve de laine Supplies the Material for This Model

It emphasizes the increased length and slenderness of the new suit coats. Braiding, too, plays an important part in its prettiness. This braiding is done on strappings of the material that appear on the sides. A genuine beaver collar fastens snugly around the throat when desired. Priced at $89.

Delightful Suit Model

of navy blue Poiret twill. Made on the approved long, slender lines with slightly flared cuffs. The convertible collar is of grey Persian lamb and the loose black embroidered tabs that hang loosely from the hips are finished with the same. A correct model even to the minutest details. Priced at $82.

ELIMINATE STATIC TROUBLE IN RADIO

BY PAUL F. GODLEY.

Since the inception of radio all kinds of devices have been tried out in an effort to eliminate the great bugaboo, static.

Years ago eliminators were being carried around the country in little black boxes. These were operated in a mysterious manner. Sometimes they worked. More often they didn't.

The first real step forward was taken by R. A. Weagant, an American engineer, during 1917 and 1918. At the expense of considerable time and money, Weagant erected experimental antennae along the Atlantic coast. Some of these were six miles long.

With these aerials, the engineer was able to get a remarkable elimination of static—at times. There is no doubt that his system did cut down static to a degree. But it did not always work.

Unlike its forerunners, it could not be put in a "little black box." But it was coated in a theory, which Weagant termed a new law of nature. He said that all static was propagated in vertical directions, while radio signals were propagated horizontally.

Activity stirred up among radio engineers by these disclosures soon developed many flaws in Weagant's theories. But it did more than this.

It stimulated such great interest in this greatest of radio problems, that it could soon be said with certainty that static was not in any great degree propagated in vertical directions. Like the radio signal, it travelled in the main, horizontally.

It was also learned that the greatest natural disturbances came from certain directions almost always.

Our greatest American source is in the Gulf of Mexico and northern South America. The greatest source for the Eastern Hemisphere is over Africa. No static of consequence originates over the sea.

In laying out the high-power transoceanic stations, advantage has been taken of these discoveries. Sets are installed to receive from east and west and not from north and south.

A continent or island in the tropics upon which there are high hills or mountains is most certain to be a source of static. The larger the land, the higher the mountains, and the more tropical the clime, the greater the energies stored up in the natural disturbances.

SUPER-REGENERATIVE RECEIVER OUTFIT

BY PAUL F. GODLEY.

Build your own super-regenerative set.

It is not difficult if you get a clear understanding of the fundamentals.

This type of receiving set, perfected by E. H. Armstrong, can give an amplification of 1,000,000! Extremely small energies — such as those set up in the receiving coils—are magnified into strong signals without even using an antenna!

At distances up to 20 miles a proper combination of circuits gives plenty of volume without any aerial. Using a loop or coil antenna, the same volume may be had at double the distance. To go further than this—that is, to connect the set to an outdoor aerial—is at present impracticable.

The super-regenerative set is essentially one which finds its main application where it is either impossible or undesirable to erect an outdoor aerial. As yet, it does not seem to operate successfully in covering great distances. Except to the engineering student, it offers no particular advantage over the present regenerative receiver and its outdoor antenna at points remote from the transmitting station.

Complicated

For reception at extreme distances there is no doubt that the super-heterodyne receiver that I used during the reception of the American amateur signals in Scotland last winter, is the peer of them all. Regenerative- super-heterodyne and super-regenerative receivers—all are the inventions of the same genius—Armstrong.

The actions within the super-regenerative set are complicated—but easily comprehensible. To be certain of success in setting up one's set, he must be sure to understand its action. There is small chance of successful operation of an experimental set-up of the circuit unless one does.

The operation of the super-regenerative set is based on that of the regenerative receiver. This takes advantage of the repeater characteristics of the 3-electrode vacuum tube.

This tube is so constructed that energies which are passed through it are magnified several times. The regenerative receiver makes it possible to pass these signal energies through the same tube many times in rapid succesion. Each trip amplifies them further.

Theoretically this enlarging process could go on until the signal strength reaches an infinite value. Actually, however, on signals which are initially strong, the carrying capacity of the tube limits their value.

On signals which initially are extremely weak, the transient phenomena within the tube—such as minute irregularities in the emissions from the filament—defeat full amplification.

Hook Up.

The diagram gives the hook-up of the Armstrong super-regenerative receiver circuit.

Here, in addition to acting as detector, the vacuum tube is supplying oscillatory energy at two frequencies and acting as amplifier. The secondary circuit and tickler are adjusted for oscillations at the frequency of the wave it is wished to receive.

The circuit comprised by 2, 7 and 14 is adjusted for oscillations at a frequency of about 12,000 cycles, which is very high-pitched audible frequency.

RACE TRACK OWNERS WILL CANCEL MEET

BELFAST, Aug. 25. —(Canadian Press.)— Remarkable concession to nationalist sentiment is seen in decision of Down Royal Corporation, owners of Maze race track, about ten miles from here, in cancelling second day's programme next Monday, the date of Michael Collins' funeral. Promoters had previously declined to postpone Saturday's events although an Orange demonstration will be held only four miles from the race track the same day.

PROF. FLEMING MADE THE TUBE RADIO POSSIBLE.

The man who made modern radio possible is John Ambrose Fleming, professor of electrical engineering at University College, London since 1885.

His invention of the thermionic valve in 1904 has extended the use of radio to all parts of the globe. It is considered the keystone of the arch of modern wireless telegraphy.

Before the development of this form of vacuum tube, wireless telegraphy was restricted to the use of crystals as detectors of radio frequency currents. Only short distances could be covered and signals could not be amplified. Radio telephony was not practicable.

Lives Saved.

Now, with the aid of this tube, thousands of miles have been covered in a flash. Flying airplanes, ships at sea, submarines undersea, have been able to communicate with land. Lives and property have been saved.

Before Prof. Fleming's invention, Thomas Edison had discovered that a burning electric light emitted a flow of electrons from the filament. Prof. Fleming experimented on this phenomenon until he found he could make use of these escaping electrons by inserting a plate in the vacuum. The plate, of nickel, was sensitized positively from a battery.

When he applied an alternating current to the tube, Prof. Fleming found the tube acted like a valve, allowing the current to pass only in one direction and shutting off the returning current.

Main Purpose.

This is the chief purpose of the thermionic valve—to catch the high-frequency alternating current transmitted through the ether and convert it to a direct current that could be heard through ear phones.

It was Dr Lee Forest of New York, who interposed a zig-zag wire or grid between the filament and plate, to control the flow of electrons from the filament to the plate This formed the starting point for further devolpments of the thermionic valve which have finally Brought about the present three-electrode tube.

NATIONAL TROOPS CAPTURE VILLAGES

BELFAST, Aug. 28. — National troops to-day captured towns of Kinsale and Dunmanway, last two positions held by irregulars in County Cork, according to advices received here.

THE "HARD-UPS" APSLEY VILLAGE HAD GOOD TIME

Unique and Jolly Party Was An Unqualified Success—Apsley News.

APSLEY, August 25. — A successful Hard Times Party was held at the Methodist parsonage on Friday, and was well patronized. Every visitor was supposed to be attired in a costume demonstrative of hard times and the results attained can be better left to the imagination than described.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker were awarded the prize for the best representation of "hard ups." Games were held on the lawn after which the visitors had to parade for inspection and to be fined for any infringement of the rules such as wearing jewellry, tie pins, collars, etc. They were also charged according to height, five cents a foot and a cent an inch over five feet.

A concert was given from the balcony, those contributing to the programme being Mesdames W. Staples, W. Carr, W. Lean, C. Smith, J. Tucker, Miss M. Spence, Messrs. W. Carr, T. Lean and W. Earnshaw.

During the evening refreshments and ice cream were served. The proceeds amounted to about $32.

Cattle Sold.

Another drove of cattle, mostly yearlings, went out to-day. They were bought by Walter Young of Young's Point.

Cutting Marsh Hay.

Most of the farmers are busy cutting marsh hay. The weather is ideal for this and for harvesting which is in full swing. Help is scarce.

Near Frost Line.

The thermometer dropped to 34 degrees on Sunday night, and in some localities tomatoes and cucumbers were nipped.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tanner spent the week end in Peterboro to attend the christening of the former's grandson.

Miss Waterman, who taught school here a few years ago, is spending a vacation in the village and renewing old acquaintances.

BERLIN DESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.— The French demands for German payment is working havoc in business and finance here, and are causing despondency in official circles.

New Centre Meat Is Not Simply Something To Sell But Is Something To Eat

NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET has attained its first anniversary. A year ago it was opened to the public with a definite purpose, which it has faithfully endeavored to fulfil. NEW CENTRE was not chosen merely as the name of another meat shop. It was selected as the trade mark of a retail service, which we were confident the people of Peterborough would appreciate.

NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET has now passed its first milestone, and the business it has established in this city bears proof of the soundness of our aims and ideals. These ideals not only included courteous attention, prompt delivery, general efficiency and thorough sanitation, but also a careful, personal selection of the meats we offered to the public at as low a price as possible.
NEW CENTRE meat is not simply something to sell but is something to eat, the public's food. That is our main concern, and NEW CENTRE cleanliness is our guarantee to consumers.

Looking forward we may recall the advantages in prices which NEW CENTRE brought to the people of Peterborough a year ago. This benefit we have maintained at a big saving to many families, and it shall continue to be our guiding policy.

NEW CENTRE MEAT MARKET takes this opportunity of acknowledging the public's patronage and their co-operation with us, and promises no slackening of service in our new business year we are now beginning.

One Year Ago

NEW CENTRE startled the meat consumers of Peterborough by making a substantial reduction in the retail price of meat. It was a bold step, and naturally met with some criticism, but not from the consuming public. Our policy to-day is unchanged. Our volume of business is increasing and we enter upon a new business year firm in the conviction that our efforts are appreciated. In brief, our policy is to serve the meat-buying public of Peterborough with first quality meats at reasonable prices. To this end we employ NEW CENTRE SERVICE. Buyers with years of experience to their credit purchase the cattle from which NEW CENTRE quality meats are cut. When the meat reaches our retail store it is placed in the cooling rooms and properly and carefully chilled. An efficient sales force is ever ready to supply the most exacting demand. Added to this is NEW CENTRE SERVICE, which means the clean, speedy and efficient delivery of NEW CENTRE meats to all parts of the city.

CHINA PAINTING
Mrs. Langley McCarthy Teaches Biscoff's New and Beautiful Work in CHINA PAINTING

The drop of 2 1-4c during the last four months is a measure of deterioration in French credit since the failure of the persistent efforts to settle the German reparation problem.

The market for French securities was more sensitive than on any day for a long time due to weakness in the exchange. French Government 8's and 7 1-2s fell over a point, the latter reaching the lowest that they have sold the last three months or more.

NOON SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—To-day's trading showed a slight decrease in volume, although the aggregate amount was large. Most of the stocks opened about the same as last night's close and had a tendency to improve their prices. Again it is a day of specialties, with New York Gas a strong feature. It opened at 129 1-8, and inside of an hour sold at 131¼, with a strong tendency to improve its position. Baldwin made a gain of a point and U. S. Steel further advanced its price to 105¼, which is the highest for many a long day. In fact all steel stocks were strong. Vanadium sold at 53, a gain of 2 points from yesterday's low quotation. Studebaker has been steadily gaining ground and seems to be able to justify the claim made of going to 150 before November. The last month's report shows a most enviable position. Chandler Motor also had a good monthly report, and some who profess to know say the shares are destined for higher prices. Mexican Petroleum eased off its lead of a few days ago and was selling from 183¼ to 185. The rails showed a halting attitude, although none were pressed for sale. The grain carrying roads will reflect the immense grain acreage. There is not much improvement in the strike news at this hour, but the public is watching for news emanating from the conference of rail officials. The earnings of Studebaker are at the rate of $42 per share. The bears should take warning and trim their sales for the bulls may make a snap movement and rush the stock higher.

U. S. STEEL BUOYANT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Rails continued inactive in the early afternoon. Most issues of this class were steady, but St. Paul stocks evidenced special selling, which was attributed to liquidation for account of influential interests long associated with the road's financial management.

Industrial leaders were firm around the day's highest. Steel Common's buoyancy induced accumulation in the entire Steel group. Steel companies are increasing prices as a result of increasing costs incident to higher coal and increased wages. Increased prices mean larger profits and predictions are that many steel companies that were compelled to pass dividends last year will resume payments next year.

MEXICAN SEABOARD PERMITS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Company officials have been advised that the Mexican Government has issued company permits to drill on its property. Two rigs which have been completed, and awaiting permits, will now start drilling.

U. S. STEEL AT NEW HIGH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Price in the industrial group strengthened following irregularity in early dealings. Steel reached new high for year. Studebaker made new high also. Lower prices for cars means little to Studebaker. Estimated July earnings were at a rate of $42.00 a share on common. August and September will show some falling off due to seasonable condition decline in price of cars simply meant an adjustment. This car will be banner year for Studebaker but company is preparing for a business in 1923 that will eclipse that of 1922. Many traders who sold their Studebaker on announcement of increased dividend are now buying it back on theory that profit taking is over.

Conference of minority of railway executives and mediating brotherhoods will be resumed to-day. Both sides indicate progress has been made, but seniority issue is stumbling block to the settlement of the shopmen's strike.

Secretary Mellon denies knowledge of any agreement by which Great Britain guaranteed loans by U. S. to the Allies. He says advances directly to Great Britain stand alone and in no wise involved in loans to other Powers.

Secretary Hoover says three-quarters of normal weekly bituminous supply of 6,000,000 tons will be mined this week and the production next week should reach 7,000,000 tons, says problem now is supplying sufficient coal cars.

Special meeting of stockholders of C. and O. Railway called for 26th September to vote on the proposed issue of $30,000,000 preferred stock.

MARKET APPREHENSIVE OF EUROPEAN FINANCES.

By Stuart P. West.

NEW YORK, August 25. — Interest in the financial markets shifted to-day from the Domestic labor situation to developments in the European money centres.

The home security markets have settled down to a complacent attitude towards the shopmen's and the anthracite miners' strikes.

There was disappointment that no grounds for settlement had been reached but no adequate reason was found in this failure of negotiations for the throwing over of security holders.

The primary test to-day was whether the same imperturbability would be shown in the face of the latest evidence of Germany's financial breakdown and the serious implication which it has for French finances.

The panic on the Berlin Bourse, and the mark fell to .04 1-2 as against Thursday's low of .05 1-8. Later in the day there was a partial recovery. But more striking even than the collapse in the German rates was the extreme weakness in French exchange and the reaction which this had upon French public and private bonds. Breaking well under 7.60, the franc was quoted at the lowest since December, 1921. It was in the first week of that month that the recovery set in which carried value of the franc from 6.83 to high of 6.37 in middle of April.

FRANK SCOTT RESIGNS FROM GRAND TRUNK.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—The resignation is announced of Frank Scott, vice-president and treasurer of the Grand Trunk Railway System. In a letter to the board of directors to-day, Mr. Scott asked to be relieved from office. The board accepted the resignation and announced that James A. Yates had been appointed treasurer of the railway.

Play doubtless would become very tiresome if we had to do it to earn a living.

SERIOUS CHARGE

"Did Russell ask you at the jail to go to Mr. O'Brien's office?"

"I don't think so. He said something about it being too bad I got him in here."

"You would go back and live with him if the others kept away?" asked Mr. O'Brien. "Yes, if he used me right."

Assaulted on Road.

Mrs. Hill claimed she was assaulted in the house and on the road. Her husband was angry because she objected to his going to Norwood, and because she struck at Edwards with a stick of cordwood. He choked her and kicked her with his boots she said.

Chief Newhall gave evidence that Mrs. Hill showed him her shoulder, and it was black and green.

"You'll be surprised to know Mrs. Hill said she only had one small bruise," remarked Mr. O'Brien. "Do you still want to adhere to your story?"

"Why certainly, why should I take back my story," said the Chief.

The Chief said he did not advise her to withdraw the charge or not to withdraw it, but he knew who advised her not to withdraw it. He refused to say if it was one of the constables.

"You don't know what occasioned the bruises?" asked the Magistrate.

"I'm not a doctor," said the Chief.

"Well even a doctor wouldnt know unless he was there," the Magistrate said.

Gave Lip to Hubby.

Mr. O'Brien claimed the case would never have developed, on Mrs. Hill's own admission, if she had not a bad temper and had not given 'lip' to her husband. The best interests of society would be served, he said, by reducing the charge to common assault, if not by withdrawing it altogether. The Magistrate, however, called for him to go with the defence.

START TOMORROW AND KEEP IT UP EVERY MORNING

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath"? you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles according to hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limeston phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

CIVIC EXPENDITURE IS ON THE INCREASE

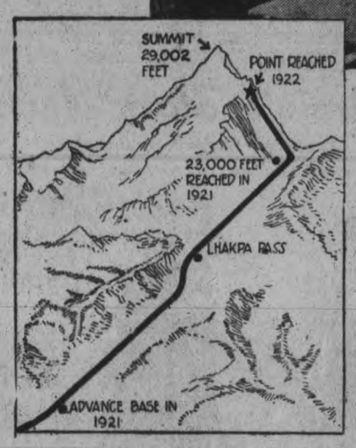
How the "Ice Goddess" Defended the Unscaled Peak of Mt. Everest

A Member of the Expedition Wearing the Oxygen Helmet, a Necessary Part of the Equipment on the Higher Slopes of Mt. Everest.

—And the Snows of World's Loftiest Mountain Top Are Still Untrodden by Man Despite the Desperately Heroic Drive That Reached Beyond Any Previous Expedition in History

Baggage and Stores Carried by the Mt. Everest Expedition Up to the Point Where the Final and Most Difficult Stages of the Climb Began.



Star Indicates Point Where the Climbers Stopped and from Which They Retreated After Their Final Unsuccessful Dash for the Top.

WAS it the monsoon or was it "mountain fear?"

A weird and mysterious story has just come out of Asia in the wake of the failure of General Charles G. Bruce's expedition to reach the summit of Mount Everest after ascending to within a few hundred feet of the final goal.

The official message which came back to civilization stated that the attempt had been abandoned "because of the unexpected early breaking of the monsoon," which raged in a terrific fury of wind and icy rain around the ice-clad peak.

But some of the native Thibetan bearers, according to an account from Bombay, declare it was not the monsoon that caused the collapse of the expedition.

They say it failed because the white men of the party were attacked by "mountain fear"—that strange psychic malady which has never been analyzed by western science, and against which—like shell-shock and certain other strange nervous diseases—the hardiest bodies and most courageous souls are at times helpless.

The superstitious natives declare that this "mountain fear" was a magic spell cast on the white men by the dreaded "Goddess Mother of the Mountains," a Thibetan deity who is supposed to dwell amid the ice and clouds, and to whom the summit of Mount Everest has been sacred for thousands of years.

She is the awful "Ice Goddess" of whom the most fear-inspiring legends have been told from immemorial time in the wild fastnesses of the Himalayas. Her breath—the chilling hurricane from the region of eternal snow; her touch—the icy hand of death.

But to the natives of Thibet the "Goddess of the Mountains" is more than a mere personified force of nature. She is personal and real. She guards with jealous eyes the approach to her sacred dwelling place, and by her supernatural power strikes down the intrepid unbelieving wanderers who would scale her heights.

It was she, the mighty goddess, Chomolungma, who said, "Thus far and no further!" to the white explorers, according to the story of the native guides. It was she, according to the native belief, who froze their hearts with the "mountain fear" and forced them to give up the quest.

Mountain climbing experts in America, especially those acquainted with the higher ranges of the Himalayas, believe there may be some truth in the story of the native guides. It goes without saying that they do not share the fantastic beliefs of the Thibetan peasants about the "Goddess of the Mountain," nor do they attribute any supernatural origin to whatever influences forced General Bruce and his companions to abandon their effort with its end only a few hundred feet away. But they say that "mountain fear" is a very real thing which has been experienced in the past by other mountain climbers, and which is thoroughly recognized, though not altogether understood, by modern medicine.

Captain Achmed Abdullah, who was born in Afghanistan, soldier of fortune, explorer and now a well-known author and playwright, living in New York, tells of having observed the effect of this "mountain fear" years ago when the historical Younghusband expedition made its reconnaissances of the higher slopes of Mount Everest.

"It has nothing to do with mountain sickness," he declared, "and is not directly the result of any physical hardship or discomfort, though the cold, rarified air and weakness may make a man fall easier victim to it. 'Mountain fear' itself, however, is a purely psychological phenomenon. It may be compared to the terror which is sometimes inspired in the bravest heart by confrontation with something which seems to be ghostly, occult or supernatural. It seems to be induced by the appalling loneliness, the tragic grandeur, the other-worldliness of the amazing landscapes which are encountered above the clouds among the peaks and the ice and snow. Though born and bred in the wildest mountains, I myself have felt this peculiar fear, and I assure you that it is very real. It is a deep psychological mystery over which the conscious mind and will have no control. I believe it is quite possible that the Everest explorers may have experienced it. If such a thing did occur it was entirely beyond their control. Bravery and strength of will are no defense against it. To have succumbed, if they did, from this cause, would be no more a reflection on their courage than if they had been struck by lightning."

Personnel of the Expedition. Seated: Captain Finch, General Bruce, Commander, and Mr. Strutt. Standing: Messrs. Crawford, Norton. Mallory, Somerville, Morshead and Wakefield.

Whether it was mountain fear or not that turned them back, other experts declare that whatever it may have been it was not the monsoon.

The native bearers who were with the expedition say the monsoon—which is a great driving wind and hurricane accompanied by rain that sweeps across Asia at the opening of the rainy season—never reaches the higher Himalayes, and that the rains and winds which the climbers believed to have been the monsoon were merely a passing storm. They assert that if the expedition had waited at a height of 20,000 feet it might have encountered calm, sunshiny days later on, when the summit could have been reached.

What seems to have actually happened, from the reports, is that the party, including General Bruce, Captain Finch, Messrs. Mallory, Somerville and Norton, reached a height of 26,800 feet without the use of oxygen, and that in a final dash from this point General Bruce, Captain Finch and one Gurkha made a dash with oxygen tanks for the top, and reached the height of 27,200 feet—only 1,700 feet from the summit which is 29,002 feet high.

Remaining at 26,800 feet, suffering incredible hardships, other attempts were made to reach the summit, but without success. Seven native porters were killed by an avalanche, and white leaders of the party narrowly missed destruction. Even the failure, however, was a glorious one, for they had climbed higher than human beings had ever climbed on foot before.

There is much discussion as to whether a subsequent expedition can succeed where this one failed. Many believe the failure of General Bruce proves the task humanly impossible. Sponsored and financed by both the Alpine Club and the Royal Geographical Society, the party set out equipped with every appliance science could suggest and money could buy. They had electrically warmed clothing, "artificial lungs," the most nourishing of tinned foods, mule transportation up to 20,000 feet, and perfect motion picture apparatus to visualize the "footage" made on the ice-clad steeps.

When the mules could go no further, native carriers were used, so that the explorers could conserve every ounce of muscular energy for the final dash.

A mountain climber of twenty years ago, who had nothing but his knapsack, ropes, ice hatchet and alpenstock, would have been amazed at the picture presented by the General Bruce expedition two-thirds of the way up the mountain.

He would have seen a long line of Thibetan mules loaded with silk tents, carrier packs, boxes of food and scientific equipment. Strangely garbed, thick-chested, swarthy natives, some of them as heavily laden as the mules, would have aroused his curiosity, and he would have been even more amazed at the long cylindrical metal tubes which were the most important part of the equipment. These, with masks and harness to be strapped to the back, were the "lungs" of the men, to be used in the last extreme effort to scale the ice-crowned peak.

When an expedition equipped in this manner, and composed of the most intrepid and experienced mountain climbers in the world failed to reach the summit of Mount Everest, it is no wonder that many experts flatly declare the ascent to the summit to be humanly impossible—despite what the native bearers said about the monsoon never reaching that altitude.

Opinion, however, is divided among mountain climbing experts both in England and America, and there are those who believe that a future attempt may meet with success. Certain it is that if Mount Everest's summit is ever to be reached on foot, it will have to be by the same route, and by much the same methods used by General Bruce's party.

How to Test the Efficiency of Super-Regenerative Receiver

BY PAUL F. GODLEY.

If there is any difficulty in putting the super-regenerative receiver into operation, test each of the vacuum tubes separately

With one of these working, place the telephone receivers in the plate circuit of the tube until you are satisfied that it is operating properly.

Using the telephone in the circuit of any of the tubes will not affect the operation of the phones are at a by-pass condenser.

For example placing the telephone in the the plate circuit of the oscillating tube will enable one to ascertain whether the radio frequency oscillations are present. If they are not, something is wrong. Either the tube is not oscillating, or, if it is, the frequency of oscillation is too high to be heard and full amplication cannot be derived from the circuits as a whole.

Oscillations

In determining whether a circuit is oscillating, it is only necessary to touch its grid terminal. If a "pluck" is heard in the telephones both when the finger touches and when it is removed from the grid terminl, there are oscillations.

The degree of coupling between the grid and the wing (plate) circuits of the regenerative tube will have to be much greater for super-regenerative operation than for oscillatory indication when the tube is operating alone. With some makes of tubes, this coupling will have to be somewhat closer than that provided with the coil and variometer arrangement shown previously.

To accomplish this, the variometer may either be rewound so that it carries 50 per cent more turns, or the tube which supports the grid circuit winding may be sufficiently large to slip over the variometer half way.

Arrangement.

The larger coils of the grid and plate circuit of the oscillator tube should not be placed near each other.

If this is done it may offer a capacity path for the currents which the choke coil controls, or it may effectively prevent oscillations in the oscillator tube circuits.

In arranging them on the table or panel, they should either be kept well part or so set as to be at right angles to each other.

Well Built Induction Coil Adds Efficiency to Set

BY PAUL F. GODLEY.

Uniformity of operation and the effectiveness of a radio receiver are in a great measure dependent upon the care used in the construction, as well as the design, of those units which go to make up the whole.

Those who build their own outfits in most cases go wrong when making the simplest piece of radio equipment —the inductance coil.

Losses within the radio circuit result not only in weaker signals but also in lack of selectivity—the ability to tune one station in and another out.

Even with the most common materials at hand, a fairly good radio coil can be built without much trouble if a few precautions are taken.

The form upon which the winding is placed must be moisture proof.

A cardboard tube will do—if it is dried in the oven. While still warm apply a coat of shellac. Dry again and then give it another coat—both inside the tube and out.

When you are sure that the tube is dry, start winding.

Taps.

If it is desired to take off taps at intervals, do it whie the winding is in progress. If the wire is of a size not smaller than No. 26, the taps may be taken off conveniently after the winding has been finished. The work will be done more neatly too, if a soldering iron is handy.

When completed, the winding should be thoroughly dried in an oven so that all moisture may be removed from the surface of the coil and insulation. Then apply a final coat of shellac and dry again.

An induction coil which has been treated in this manner will always function uniformly. Damp, muggy weather will not affect it in the way that such weather affects so many of the cheaply-built receivers.

The use of enamelled wire in the construction of radio receivers is ill advised. A double covered wire—either silk or cotton—is recommended.

Tap leads should not be jumbled into a bunch. Keep them separated and short as possible.

Entire Island Disappeared During Night

Islands, in some instances, are a very uncertain kind of real estate. Twelve years ago an island off Salvador, in the Ilopango lagoon (Central America), suddenly began to sink. Boats carried off a good many of the inhabitants, but there were not enough for all, and 170 men, women and children were drowned when this patch of what had been supposed to be terra firma slid into the depths. The catastrophe occurred in the night, and in the morning there was no sign of the island.

Oceanic islands have a way of popping up and down now and then. Not many years ago a brand new one made its appearance near the volcano group in the Pacific, amid a tumult of the sea and great clouds of ashes and steam. When the disturbance had subsided, it proved to be nearly three miles in circumference, and the highest part of it was 480 feet above the waves. The Japanese landed on it when it was cool enough, raised their flag upon it, and called it Nii Shima. Whereupon, it proceeded to melt like sugar in a teacup, and at last accounts, it was only a few feet above sea level.

Handell, Alone, Ordered Meal for Three

Many great musical composers had exceptionally large appetites. When Handel dined alone at a restaurant he generally took the precaution of ordering a meal for three. Once, on asking, "Iss de tinner retty?" at a tavern where he was little known, he was told, "As soon as the company comes," and he astonished the waiter by seating himself with the remark, "Den prink up de tinner—I'm de company."

Handel, always voracious, delighted in dining alone, and was known to consume a meal that would have satisfied five ordinary appetites.

"Tennis Court Oath" Taken in France, 1789

The "Tennis-Court Oath" was a solemn oath taken by the members of the national assembly of France in 1789, to the effect "that they would continue to meet for the dischrge of business wherever circumstances might require, until the constitution of the kingdom had been established upon sound and solid foundations."

The oath derived its name from the royal tennis court at Versailles, where the assembly met on that occasion, admission to the hall of the Menus Plaisirs having been refused them by Louis XVI.

What is Meant by Term "The Reformation"

"The Reformation" is the name given to the great religious revolution of the Sixteenth Century, which resulted in the establishment of Protestantism throughout a great part of western Christendom. Although the Reformation originated during the Renaissance, it did not assume definite shape until 1517.

The Reformation achieved its greatest success in Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Scotland and England. In Spain and Italy it was crushed by the Inquisition; in France it gave rise to the Huguenot Wars; while in Bohemia and parts of Germany its development was greatly retarded by the Thirty Years' War.

HOME CIRCLE

THE ROAD TO LONG AGO

By James J. Montague

Often, while I hear the stories that a Little Fellow tells,
Of a land of summer sunshine, singing brooks and quiet dells,
Where there's neither work nor worry and one listens all day long
To the crooning of the crickets and the robin's nesting song,
I'm reminded as he chatters, with his eager eyes aglow,
That this land was my own country, in the time called long ago.

From the hilltop which he fancies that his feet were first to tread
I have heard the mother robin call her children home to bed;
I remember how the crickets stilled their song when I drew near,
So I never could discover if they sang by note or ear.
Sometimes I heard fairy voices in the rustling maple tree,
But however hard I hunted, not a fairy could I see.

There were bears in my own country, so it wasn't safe to roam
When the woods were filled with shadows very far away from home.
Quite a wicked little goblin lurked beside the river's brim,
And the better part of valor was to keep away from him.
Still the sun seemed always shining through the long and pleasant day,
And I wonder rather often why I ever came away.

I would like to journey back there from this world of cares and men,
And to wander through the woodland and beside the brook again,
I would like to hunt those fairies, for the frost is on my brow
Meaning years and haply wisdom, and I'd surely find one now.
Countless times I've dreamed about it, but I've come to learn at last
That all travel is forbidden on the pathway to the past

Broadmindedness in regard to religious matters is a mighty fine thing. There is nothing as narrow and bigoted as the man who says another man is not as good as himself just because he has a difference of opinion in regard to religion.

But it seems that increasing broadmindedness has come to mean a laxity in regard to religious matter which is really quite appalling. Our educational curriculum has been completely stripped of any kind of religious observances. People will say this because of differences of belief, but there are certain things which are common to every religion and which could easily be included in the daily regime of the school. At the present rate children will soon be in total ignorance of the history of the Ten Commandments. And they will undoubtedly tell you that the sermon on the Mount was preached by Billy Sunday.

Another phrase of this laxness in religious matters is seen in the increasing number of people who baldly proclaim that they "do not believe in anything." Perhaps we should not say "baldly" for it does not take any great amount of courage to make this statement now. Ten years ago perhaps, but now the speaker is gladly joined by a bunch of kindred spirits who congratulate him on his courage to speak his mind. He begins to think himself an extremely clean fellow. But he is not the least bit original. Bob Ingersoll spoiled his chance for that.

The Bible has stood the test of centuries and those believe it will not be disturbed by this surface ripple in religious thought.

The world likes a good loser. It looks with favor on the man who smiles when things go wrong and courageously makes a fresh beginning. It's a good quality to cultivate, but don't carry it to the point where you acquire the losing habit.

Many a man's failures are his stepping stones to success. Do not waste too much time regretting the mistakes for it is by mistakes that we learn.

If you cannot have the best, make the best of what you have.

CHECKING UP

A well known sales manager tells the story of a colored boy who walked into a drug store and asked the druggist if he could use his telephone. This is what the druggist heard:

"Hello, is dis Mistah Johnson' residence"—"Is Mistah Johnson theh?"—"Mistah Johnson, Ah heahs is how yo is needin' a boy to look after you cyar and drive yo cyar?"—"You says yo already has a boy?"—"Is de boy givin' you satisfaction?"—"Yo say he am givin' yo puffect satisfaction?"—"All right, Mistah Johnson, Good-bye."

The boy hung up and the druggist said to him: "Boy, are you looking for work? I am looking for a boy to help in the store." "No, suh, I'se not lookin' fo' wuk—I wuks fo' Mistah Johnson; I'se jst been checkin' mahself up."

ADANACS LEAD IN SECOND SCHEDULE

Victory Over Holy Name Last Evening Gave Them the Edge in Junior City League.

One of the fastest and best games in the Junior City League at Riverside Park last evening resulted in a 1 to 0 victory for the Adanacs over the Holy Name Society, and placed the Adanacs safely in the lead for the second half. Both teams showed up with practically errorless ball and staged some of the most spectacular fielding seen in some time.

Shaughnessey who did the twirling for the winners won his own game when he banged out a three abse hit to score C. Turner who got a life on one of the few errors of the game.

While practically every man on both teams played stellar ball the work of Hensley at short stop for the Adanacs and Jim Hall in the field for the Holy Name was exceptionally good. Hensley accepted five difficult chances without a slip, while Hall plucked off four good catches out of the air.

Both McPherson, who was on the mound for the Holy Name and Shaughnessey for the Adanacs turned in good games. Twice McPherson retired the side via the strike out route and on one occasion Shaughnessey fanned three after two men were safe on the runaways.

The players were:

Holy Name—McPherson p; Halliday, c; Miller, 1b; Scates, 2bb; Malloy, 3b; Roddy, ss; Hall, lf; Jones, cf; Holland rf.

MOUNT PLEASANT LOST TO OMEMEE

OMEMEE, Aug. 25—In a C.M.E. league game played yesterday between Omemee and Mount Pleasant at Omemee the home team won by a score of 6 to 1. It was a good game of baseball. J. Boyd handled the game to the satisfaction of all concerned. The teams lined up as follows:

Mount Pleasant—H Jamieson, p; G. Adams, c; McDowell, rb; G. Shields, 2b; B. Lowes, 3b; N. Fee, ss; E. McLean, rf; Ira Lows lf; H. Bland, cf.

THE GOOD SPORT

One who wins honestly. Loses cheerfully. Hopes increasingly. Differs fairly. Accepts praise modestly Meets all mankind smilingly. Works as hard as he plays.

Twin Brother Pugilists

The Hahn Twins are not generally known in fistic circles, although Bernie, the flashy bantam, has punched his way to a contender's place in the championship glare.

Bernie own a large farm and turbulent West Virginia, and while Bernie fights out of Wheeling he resides in Wellsburg, within a few miles of the recent mine war at the Cliftonville (W. Va) mines.

Bernie owns a lareg farm and really has spent some time as a true rustic, but Brother Bennie, is the genuine farmer. Still, he finds time on the side to aid Bernie in his training though he himself never has considered the professional side of the arena.

While the two are twins, Bernie has an edge in weight and does the most of his battling at the 122-pound mark at 3 o'clock. Bennie is a 119-pounder and despite the lure of the ring, as painted by Bernie, does not have the inclination to take it up as a means of livelihood.

Hahn battled Patsy Brannigan, veteran bantam, at New Castle, the fight being postponed for over four hours while an electrical storm played havoc with the lighting plant. The bout got under way at 1.15 a.m. and Hahn bunched out an easy win over the old-timer who was game and kept coming.

MILLBROOK AND BETHANY BATTLE TO A TIE SCORE

Darkness Put An End to Fast Game at Bethany With the Count 6 to 6.

GOOD FIELDING.

"Doc" Hamilton's Bethany hustlers kept Millbrook away from the Cavan-Emily - Manvers baseball championship by holding "Pop" Edmunds scrappy crew to a 6-6 count at Bethany last evening. Millbrook won first half, and a victory over Bethany would have given them the second half and the bunting. Bethany now has a chance to tie Millbrook, but in order to do so must defeat both Mount Pleasant and Omemee and win against Millbrook, last evening's game bringing no decision, being called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness.

The teams put up an exciting battle, Millbrook taking an early lead, getting a run in the first and a pair of tallies in the second, while Bethany failed to get him. An error at first and two two-baggers gave Bethany two runs in the third, to which they added a trio of counters in the fourth after two were gone. Bethany looked to have the game by a good margin when a sixth run came in the fifth. Millbrook, however finished strong after two were out in the sixth, getting three runs and tieing the score. The teams were retired in order in the seventh, Ryley, the Bethany heaver doing his part well by fanning H. Nattress and Sayles.

Went Atfer "Jake"

The players were working at high pressure and the visitors were inclined to dispute umpirial decisions at the bases. Base-umpire Solomon had a stormy passage in the fourth after calling Sisson safe at second, Millbrook players surrounded the umps but he won the "bout."

Some sterling fielding performances were turned in by the opposing camps, the work of McCartney at short for Bethany being prominent.

Bethany sent Bruce Ryley to the mound and he performed in good style, while Millbrook pinned their hopes on Ross Edmunds. The two flingers engaged in an interesting duel, and for the most part were able to keep the hitting scattered Edmunds was hurt going into the plate in the first.

Visitors Start Early

Leading off for Millbrook C. Nattress was safe when Johnston, with the sun in his face, failed to handle the grounder. Nattress was forced at second by Richards. Johnstond erred again on Edmund's grounder, and Richards who had stolen second scored on McCrory's single. Edmunds was caught at the plate on Johnston's throw off Russell's tap. With two on, H. Nattress grounded through Johnston but McCartney by quick work got the ball and stopped McCrory going into third.

For Bethany. Sisson was safe when the pitcher failed to handle an easy chance. T. Staples and Lang fanned and Ryley flew to C. Nattress.

Sayles hit, only to be forced at second by Needler. Lancashire singled, and the pitcher threw out C Nattress, Richards poled out a long single, scoring Needler and Lancashire.

Arnott hit for a base and went out at second following McCartney's grounder to Edmunds McCartney went out when hit going to second by C. Staples' grounder. Johnston was thrown out by Edmunds.

Millbrook were retired in easy fashion in the third, Tom Staples lending a hand by going back and taking Sayles' foul fly.

Bethany scored two. Bigelow got a life when Sayles dropped the ball. Sisson fanned. T. Staples doubled, Lang fanned but Ryley shot a hot one into middle field, scoring Bigelow and Staples. Lancashire misjudged the ball went through him. Bethany fans called for more runs but Arnott ended the frame, being retired by Edmunds.

Millbrook got the first two batters on but the top of the batting order failed to land the punch. The ball got away from Sisson when McCartney fielded Needler's biff. Lancashire drew a single. C. Nattress fouled out to T. Staples. McCartney took Richards' fly and Edmunds popped to Ryley.

Bethany took the lead in their half of the fourth. McCartney singled and was caught stealing. C. Staples was passed and Johnston hit. Bigelow was thrown out at first and when Sisson sent up a high fly over short, and Millbrook infielders allowed it to drop, C. Staples went home. Tom Staples scored two more runners with his single. Lang fanned.

Millbrook went out in a row in the fifth, but Bethany scored one, when Arnott got home, after his hit, a steal, a wild pitch and McCartney's infield out.

Sayles was thrown out by Ryley and Sisson took a line drive from Needler. McCartney was playing deep, and Lancashire beat out his grounder. He stole second and third and scored when C. Nattress sent a grounder to short and beat it out. Richards doubled to the hay area in right, and Edmunds singled, two more runners getting in, making the score a tie. McCrory ended it with a fly to short.

Russell starting the last frame for Millbrook popped to short. H. Nattress and Sayles fanned.

For Bethany, Ryley flew out to Edmunds, Arnott lined out to Sayles, who also took McCartney's fly. The game was then called.

PETES UP AGAINST LINDSAY GREYBIRDS

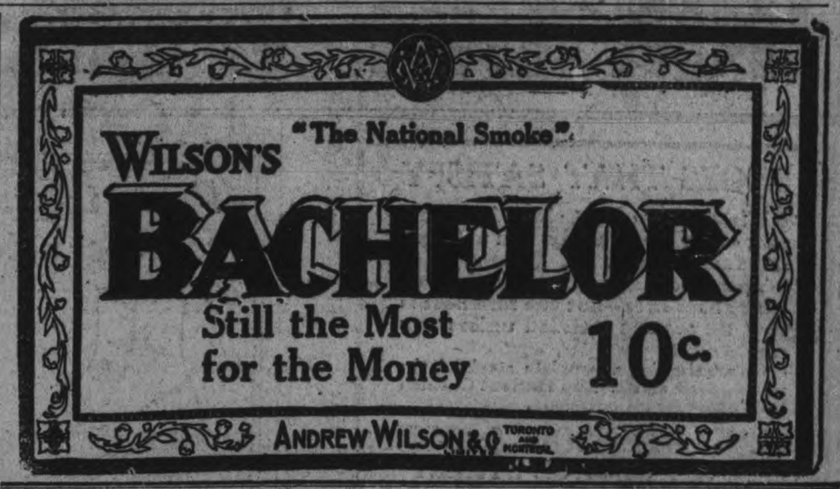
To-Morrow's Game Expected to Be One of the Fastest and Best of the Season.

The game with Lindsay tomorrow, the last Saturday game on the home diamond, is expected also to be one of the best. The Petes and Lindsay have been running neck and neck right through the second half of the schedule and are now tied for third place. Both still have a chance, though a slim one, to go into first place for the second section, but to do so must win tomorrow's game. Since both can't win, one will be out of the running entirely, while the other will have a chance to go higher, depending on the results of the other games on the schedule.

Belleville and Cobourg, the two teams that are ahead of Peterborough and Lindsay, also play tomorrow, and if Belleville wins Cobourg will be on even terms with the winner of the Lindsay-Peterborough game. If Cobourg wins Belleville and Cobourg will be in a tie for first with the winner of the game here in the next position.

Heckman will be on the mound for the locals and either Oulette or Allen for Lindsay. Allen has made three starts against the Petes this summer and has lost twice, being relieved by Oulette in each case. His last start he won, handing the Petes their only shut-out of the season. Every game with the Greybirds has been a battle from start to finish, and tomorrow's game is not expected to be any exception to the rule.

The game will start at 3 o'clock sharp.



Diamond Dust

Stan Hensley, the Adanac brilliant stop, gave a wonderful exhibition of fielding in yesterday's Adanac-Holy Name game. He handled several chances without a slip, a couple of them being spectacular.

* * *

There seems to be a fatality attending the ninth straight victory for a pitcher. Bush, Mays, Shocker and Babe Adams reached that figure last season and each of them took a thrashing the next time out. Wednesday Bush's effort to make it ten in a row encountered earthquakes and eruptions.

When Tris Speaker, who is a favorite wherever he goes, loomed up to bat in New York, the crowd gave him a robust welcome. The fans didn't withdraw their approval from him entirely when he responded by poking the ball into the upper stand, but a shade of sadness and reproof tinged their acclamation.

* * *

We have yet got to see Jimmy Hall of the Holy Name miss one. Yesterday's game was no exception of his past performances, for he pulled down four lovely catches in left field.

* * *

Owing to an error in the Central League standings as published last evening the local team was credited with second position instead of third. Cobourg holds second place with five victories and three defeats while Peterboro and Lindsay are tied for third with five victories and four defeats.

* * *

The Lindsay-Peterboro game will start tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock sharp.

* * *

Roseveir and Barnes are on the schedule for the umps tomorrow.

* * *

Apparently all an opposing manager has to do to beat Toronto is to announce that a left-hand pitcher is to face the Leafs. That pretty nearly settles it.

Lakefield's 8 to 6 victory over Otonabee last evening put Lakefield in the lead for the second half of the East Peterboro League schedule.

* * *

New York and Cincinnati played a game yesterday in which no errors were scored against either team. A feat which is seldom accomplished.

Football

The following C.P.C. players have been asked to be at the Oval Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Shaw Curtis, B. Downer, Briley. Follis, Lasenby, Bradbury, Rickard, Bryette Clark, Hotstone Davis, Murduff and Batley.

"SHUFFLIN 'PHIL" TRYING TO GET BACK IN THE FOLD

Lawyer Gathers What He Considers Important Affidavits in Fight to Reinstate Banished Pitcher.

Edward Lauterbach, attorney for Phil Douglas, continued his preparations yesterday for the fight to get the banished pitcher back into organized baseball. Following another lengthy conference with the former star of the Giants' pitching staff, the attorney announced that he had succeeded in gathering several affidavits that will have an important bearing on the case when it is heard either before Commissioner K. M. Landis or in the civil courts. No word had been received from Judge Landis yesterday in reply to the letter sent to Chicago on Sunday asking that the ruler of baseball grant a hearing to the banished player.

"I have been able to obtain several important affidavits," said Mr. Lauterbach yesterday, "and I expect to be successful in gathering some more important evidence in the case in the very near future. Some of the ones that I have already obtained are from persons who were present when Douglas was forcibly taken from the apartment of a friend and brought to a sanitarium, where he was confined against his will. These will go a long way toward proving that Douglas was not himself and that he could not have been in his right senses when he wrote the letters which brought about his expulsion from organized baseball.

"Other affidavits that I have obtained have to do with the telephone message that Douglas sent to Boston asking that the letter be destroyed. Douglas took this action as soon as he relized the full import of his hasty act. I am confident that when I have completed my collection of the necessary affidavits I will have plenty of evidence to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that Douglas committed no crime and that he had no criminal intent in writing the letter.

"I anxiously watched for a letter from Judge Landis today in response to my communication sent to him on Sunday requesting a hearing for Douglas, but I have received no word from the Judge. Unless I get some sort of a message from Judge Landis by tomorrow morning I intend to send a telegram to Chicago asking him to reply to my letter at the earliest possible moment. I am waiting to hear from him before taking any definite action in the matter."

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

I play the mashie only for full shots, with an almost square stance and the same swing that I use for wooden clubs. I use a shorter swing on the wood, however, than the most players do. On a windless day I play the mashie all the time in preference to the jigger and the back-spinner, and on a windy day I pick the mashie for what ordinarily would be a jigger distance. More and more judgment seems to be required in the selecti n of the right club, we now have so many efficient ones for good approaching.

In the illustration we have Mr. C. Hodgson, the fine British amateur who defeated Francis Ouimet in last year's British Amateur championship. In this Hodgson has swung a midiron which takes practically the same swing as the wooden en clubs. The midiron is the only iron that is so swung; the jigger, the stoppum and the mashie take the shorter swing with practically no wrist action.

'WAY OUT OF THE WET

What's the "secret" the two Weismuller boys talk about, in explanation of their wonderful ability as swimmers?

They won't tell.

It appears, however, that it accounts for their extraordinary balance in the water. Its effect is to lift them higher out of the wet than anybody else, in these days, is able to get himself.

But they say the old Venetians knew this same "secret" about 1,000 years ago, and it enabled them to float around their little lagoon for whole afternoons at a time without moving arm or leg.

The art was lost and staid lost for centuries. Seemingly the Weismullers have re-discovered it.

Rogers, where the Warne Drug Co. is now located. For some unexplained reason the assessment is placed at $500.00. Compare this with the basis for taxes to-day.

The store occupied by Mr. Moncour, druggist, was in the hands of Thomas Lannin, tinsmith, etc. Assessment at $3000.00. William Lech, (now Lech Bros.), for $3600.00. Oak Hall store, for $2300.00.

Recent Changes in Proprietorships

Of buildings erected in the last ten years, for commercial purposes the Neill and Turnbull buildings are fine examples. Both are of inside steel construction. Also the fine Barrie building and the Capitol theatre and the Royal theatre are quite in line with the best. Each has fine value from the real estate point of view, and are, we hope, remunerative, and deservedly so, in recognition of enterprise. We have a clear case of present day values in the change of ownership of premises in the block, west side of George Street between Hunter and Brocks Street. It is understood that the Examiner Office and the Trebilcock store have been acquired by the Examiner at about $15,000.00 each or $30,000.00 for both. The Trebilcocks, so to speak, turned out of house and home serenely, jog along the street and acquire the Moncur drug store and Oak Hall for $28,000.00. These prices fairly well establish the values for north of Hunter Street, and it is assumed the west side of the street is more desirable than the east side. The premises disposed of as above, and presently in the hands of the new proprietors, we may expect a renovation of the store fronts that will to some extent match those of the west side of the block, lower down, from Hunter to Simcoe Streets. It is doubtful if any city in Canada, large or small, can show a finer display of attractive fronts and window allurement than the range of stores from Turnbull's to the corner above. By the enterprise of the several proprietors these premises are kept lighted at night and the display, to the visitor, is most convincing that the merchants are fully up-to-date in beautiful store fronts, ample selections of goods and ability to cater to and serve the wants and needs of the city and its increasing population. And the east side of the street has entered on a generous rivalry of improvement of premises that will lend attractiveness to the commercial centre of the city.

Port Hope Guide Explains Why Golf is Such a Popular Game.

Port Hope Guide: We motored over to Cobourg this morning to offer our sympathy to the ball team and transact a little business. In passing the town hall we noticed Chief Ruse surrounded by a number of young men attired in white trousers and knickerbockers. Upon enquiry we learned why the game of golf is so popular, and this is a question that has bothered us for a long time. Golfers always tell you that it is one of the best forms of exercise and probably it is. But from what we learned this morning, the wonderful exercise is not much good without a stimulant and some of the Cobourg players have been paying more attention to the stimulant than they have to the game. Last week License Inspector Goodrich visited the Club House and found a quantity of liquor and also many empty bottles. The occupant of the house pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than his own residence and was fined $250 and costs.

At The Theatres

Capitol Entertainment

Those who long for the free open life of the plains will find much to interest them in the picture "North of the Rio Grande" which is now showing at the Capitol. Jack Holt and Bebe Daniels are heralded as the stars in this production but the average movie fan will agree that this particular cast is full of stars. The picture carries lots of action from start to finish and unlike many pictures staged under similar conditions is not over done. There is very little shooting and rough and tumble fights such as is usually present in productions of this character. The audience gets a real surprise when they discover that the "Black Rustler" is none other than John Hannon. How Hannon's daughter saves Velantrie from a rustler's fate makes a thrilling climax to a well balanced picture. "North of the Rio Grande" is a real cow country picture with lots of trick riding and cowboy exploits. Included in the cast are Alec Francis, Charles Ogle, Shannon Day, Will Walling and Jack Carlyle.

Lloyd (Ham) Hamilton in "Robinson Crusoe" provided a fun producer as a preliminary to the main picture. It is a clever piece of comedy and the large audience last evening was thoroughly appreciative of its merits. Hamilton as usual does some funny stunts. Other pictures that make up a well balanced program is the usual Pathe news, screen snapshots which gives the audience a peep behind the scenes at the big studios and a Snub Pollard comedy. The week-end Capitol program is well selected and will make a strong appeal to Peterboro theatre goers.

O.B.A.A. SUB-COMMITTEE HOLD SPECIAL SESSION

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—At a special meeting of the sub-committee of the O.B.A.A. held last night at the rooms of the Amateur Athletic Union, an appeal was heard from the Tweed Club, of the Trent Valley League, from the decision of the executive of that league with respect to the Madoc team having used a player named Davey who did not have an amateur card and who had not signed an O.B.A.A. certificate. It was proven to the satisfaction of the committee that the game, which was played against Tweed, was played under protest, and that Davey did not have an amateur card, and accordingly a resolution was passed throwing out all of the four games in which Davey had participated, he having played twice against Deloro and once against Belleville, in addition to the Tweed game, but this was the only one in which the Madoc team were the winners. The other matter in connection with the protest was left in the hands of the Trent Valley League, and Davey will not be allowed to participate in any more games in this league should any of them be replayed.

TOM MIX PUTS OVER ANOTHER SUCCESS IN "FOR BIG STAKES"

Last night, at the Royal Theatre, Tom Mix took a firm hold on his audience and swept it through a constant whirl of action and romance. This Fox picture, "For Big Stakes," tells of Arizona, plots and adventure of deeds worth doing, of one man in particular and of the girl he loves. Incidentally, if you have an appreciation for horses who display almost human intelligence, the performance of Tony, Tom Mix's horse, will delight you.

The personal work of Mix throughout the photoplay is up to his highest level. There are many strikingly forceful points in the progress of the story, but that which impresses itself most strongly on the imagination is the fine direction shown in the handling of a prairie fire. Rarely has a fire scene been so well done. Tom Mix does some remarkable shooting, some skillful rope throwing, and riding of the finest sort. In fact, a good description of this photoplay in one line would be: A forty-four calibre film that hits the bull's-eye.

The appeal of the story is almost universal. There is something in the picture to attract everyone.

VANCOUVER WON LABOUR CONVENTION.

MONTREAL, August 25. (Canadian Press). — J. W. Wilkinson, of Vancouver, B.C., a prominent delegate to the Congress, was chosen as fraternal delegate to the 1923 British Trades Union Congress, defeating Narcisse Arcand, of Montreal, by a vote of 157 to 112.

Vancouver, B.C., also won the convention from London, Ont., by a sweeping majority, receiving 180 votes to London's 73.

Ottawa trailed third with 19.

The selection of Vancouver came as a huge surprise to the convention, and was effected by the solid support given by the Montreal delegates who had pledged themselves at Winnipeg convention to support the Coast city in 1923 as a return for the latter having retired in favour of Montreal for this year.

The executive was elected as follows:

Ontario—Chairman, Joseph Gibbons, Toronto; members: R. Heissell, London; Donald Dear, Ottawa; J. Lockwood, Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hutchinson delightfully entertained the members of St. John's A.Y.P.A., at their summer cottage at Chemong yesterday afternoon and evening. A CO-PARTNERSHIP WITH EMPLOYEES BOOSTS BUSINESS.

This Principle Has Been the Foundation of Gigantic London, England, Establishment.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Associated Press).—At the mammoth establishment of "Lever Brothers, Port Sunlight," Lord Leverhulme has long demonstrated to the commercial world that it pays to treat employees well. The co-partnership idea has been the foundation of his gigantic business. He has just carried that idea a long step further.

Life insurance policies will be taken out by the company for every co-partner in the firm, from laborers to directors. The policies of ordinary members of the staff will be worth from £100 to a maximum of £1,000; those of foremen from £200 to £2,000, and those of managers from £400 to £4,000. A system of grading is to be instituted to determine the amount of the policy allotted to each person according to duty and efficiency will lead to promotion to a higher grade and an increase in the amount of the policy, while for insufficient or careless work an employee may be graded down.

Should an employee retire with the company's consent, the company will try to arrange that he continue to pay the premiums. In the event of an employee leaving in any other circumstances, the company will try to secure that the assured person, if he so desires, shall continue payments at the ordinary rates witnout medical examination.

Under the unemployment scheme the firm will pay a co-partner such a sum as, with all allowances from other sources, will equal half wages. Benefit will be paid on a similar basis in the case of sickness extending over a week. This benefit will run for four weeks, and its continuance will then be considered.

Lord Leverhulme, explaining the scheme to a meeting of the employees, who adopted it with enthusiasm, said that it was not something in place of wages. The payment of trade union rates of wages was the basis of the plan, but the idea of the new proposals was to reward and encourage diligence and efficient service.

"We feel," Lord Leverhulme added, "that there cannot be any greater stabilizing effect than that of removing the dread of unemployment and removing the possibility of dependents being left destitute in the case of the death of the breadwinner."

Lord Leverhulme spoke highly of the value of co-partnership. "The last two years of stress and strain that we have gone through in business have proved," he said, "that co-partnership is a sheet anchor in such a time. We may have adversity in the future, but I am certain that the co-partnership principle will come out triumphant and with flying colors."

SAYS RESTRICTED USE OF ALCOHOL IS NOT INJURIOUS.

American Doctor Advises That Temperate Indulgence in Liquor Decreases Death-Rate.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Associated Press).—All American doctors are regarded by foreign medical men as more or less expert concerning alcohol, both as regards the consequence of going without it altogether, over-indulgence and the various stages of inebriety betwixt and between.

Therefore, the assembled doctors at the meeting of the British Medical Association at Glasgow listened with great interest to what Dr. John T. MacCurdy, of Cornell Medical College, had to say about "alcohol in its relation to human economy."

Each one of us in varying degrees, he said, has the same difficulty in meeting the world as the unfortunates who demonstrate their incapacity dramatically. The 'normals" drugged themselves with cheap fiction, theatres and moving pictures; above all, they forgot themselves in social intercourse.

"When, however, a man is tired or oppressed with care," Dr. MacCurdy went on, "how can he forget his obsessing anxieties sufficiently to become social. If he be normal a small amount of alcohol will give the necessary relaxation. Conviviality is more important for the maintenance of our mental ability and effectiveness than we realize. Innumerable people are happier and therefore healthier because they indulge moderately in alcohol.

"We live in an imperfect world—imperfect largely because we have not yet gained the capacity to govern our own instincts. Alcohol is a crutch that man has discovered to help him with this disability."

Dr. MacCurdy dealt with what he called the "paranoiac group." In them, he said, a drink or two brought out quarrelsome and dangerous tendencies. They were apt to imagine slights and insults. Frequently they were women haters, and affected the company of men almost exclusively.

"These men are not well-adapted people, and rebel at discipline or authority. Drink brings these anti-social tendencies to the surface. As marriage makes the most persistent demand for social adaptation that we know of, many of these men begin to drink only after marriage.

"The innate rebellion at the bondage of marriage appears when alcohol has liberated their inhibitions. They become querulous, and beat or abuse their wives every Saturday night. Later, delusions and infidelity may appear, and eventually become fixed. Then the victim becomes certifiable, and is confined."

Sir James Barr, of Liverpool, continuing the discussion, said the main value of alcohol was social.

"People like myself," said Sir James, "take it because they like it. A great deal of social unrest is due to the high cost alcohol. I notice that cutthroats in Ireland and Russia are largely teetotalers."

Dr. C. Sullivan, Medical Superintendent of Broadmoor Asylum, said that "alcohol, as regards insanity, is a negligible factor."

Dr. M. Hindhede, of Copenhagen, discussed the effect of the severely restricted supply of alcohol on mortality in Denmark. The surprising result of the war-rationing system, he said, which included the restriction of alcohol, was not the reduction of the mortality rate, but the rapidity of the reduction. The most natural explanation of this seemed to be that the effects of alcohol were not limited to drunkards only. The death rate of the whole country dropped from 12.5 to 10.4 per 1,000, which was the lowest mortality figure that had ever been registered in any European country at any time.

RAILROADS AND MEN RE-ALIGN FORCES FOR A FIGHT TO A FINISH

"We are Going Home to Start a "Real" Fight Whether It Lasts for Three Weeks or Three Months" Declares President of Brotherhood.

BOTH SIDES PREDICT AN EARLY VICTORY

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press). — With the peace effort launched by the Big Five Brotherhoods definitely abandoned, rail executives and shop crafts leaders to-day re-aligned their forces for a finish fight in which both sides predicted an early victory. "We are going home to start a real fight, whether it lasts for three weeks or three months," declared W. F. Ryan, president of the Carmen's National Brotherhood. "Our organizations have plenty of funds to conduct a long fight, and our men are willing to make the sacrifices needed for a decisive victory." B. M. Jewell, head of the strike organization of crafts, was positive of the outcome of the battle which, he asserted, the railroads left as the only course for the unions to pursue.

Regrets Expressed.

In the rail employers' circles, news of the disruption of the peace parties was given a varied reception. Officials of roads which were not a party to the negotiations, having joined the majority which declined to resume discussions with the Brotherhoods after last Wednesday's meeting of the Association of Railway Executives, to-day were frank, "I told you so." Representatives of 77 roads, with 86,000 miles of track, and including such powerful systems as the Chicago and North-Western, Chicago-Milwaukee and St. Paul, Erie, New York Central and Seaboard Air Lines, to-day expressed regret at the sudden termination of efforts to compromise, but expressed no doubt as to the outcome. "We'll break the strike within a week," was their general prediction.

No Mediation Now.

Failing in their efforts to bring about separate agreements with a group of individual railroads, the chiefs of five train service brotherhoods yesterday abandoned their attempt to end the nation-wide shopmen's strike by mediation.

All peace negotiations now being off, the Shop Crafts National Strike Committee immediately sent telegrams to the leaders of 400,000 striking shopmen throughout the country, urging them to renew the fight with increased vigor. Railway executives also announced that efforts would be doubled at once to replace the shopmen and break the strike.

Back to Jobs?

Now that all uncertainty of the situation has been cleared away, and the strikers left without hope of victory through negotiations, they will flock back to their jobs, it was predicted.

The Metropolitan Strike Committee has prepared to send organizers and speakers into every shop district in the east. Railroad employment agencies got ready to enlist men, while company guards who had released their vigilence during the days of the conference, returned to rigid patrol duty.

Owing to the absence of any worth-while showers the parks and some of the lawns were commencing to present a burned and brown appearance. Yesterday afternoon's shower totalled .60 of an inch, and should prove beneficial, especially to the root crops.—W.P.

EXPLOSIVES AT THE INCINERATOR

Persons unknown attempted to shoot up the employees of the municipal incinerator yesterday, stated Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton, to-day. Shots rang out merrily around the place for a few minutes. Some careless persons had placed a large number of cartridges in the garbage pail and whether accidentally or negligently, the result would have been the same had any of the men been struck. The lead flew briskly about the place, but the employees miraculously escaped. The unpleasant occurrence was merely a repetition of others in the past and if householders persist in putting ammunition out with the garbage someone is going to collect an accident or death policy. If it were possible to ascertain who placed the shells in the garbage prosecutions would follow.

LAST BAND CONCERT OF PRESENT SEASON.

The 57th Regimental Band will play their last concert of the season at Victoria Park to-morrow evening. By special request there will be a number of selections played that have featured the other concerts.

For ten of the fifteen concerts the band did not play a repeat but so insistent were the demands for several repeats that the band complied to some extent. The one thousand dollars spent on the concerts has been well spent according to Ald. J. Crowe, and from what Ald. Crowe has been able to glean the citizens have appreciated the concerts. A feature of the last concert Sunday night will be J. Minicolas' vocal solo, "The Garden of Your Heart."

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS IN NORTH MONAGHAN.

NORTH MONAGHAN, August 26. — The men have been busy on the road near Crawford's Grove, repairing the bridges. For some time past these bridges have been dangerous to heavy traffic, but one of them has been entirely replaced and widened and the other has been repaired.

Another new culvert, 30 feet long, is to be installed near Whitfield's Corner in the near future.

EDWARDS WILL BE HELD OVER FOR FEW DAYS

Said To Be a Source Of Some Of The Trouble In The Hill Home — Gave Evidence Yesterday.

HILLS GO HOME.

As he left the Police Court yesterday after giving evidence in the Hill case of assault, Jack Edwards, a son of Mrs. Emma Jane Edwards, now held for the alleged murder of her son Ernest, in Dummer Township, was arrested by the police on a charge of vagrancy and locked up.

To-day he pleaded not guilty, and was remanded for a week.

According to the police he admitted he had not been regularly paid at Russell Hill's, where he had lived much to the annoyance of Mrs. Hill, since last spring. He is 19 years of age. His removal from the household will be a big factor in restoring peace between Russell Hill and his wife, according to what Mrs. Hill said.

Davis Hill will likely go home as soon as the quarantine on his place is lifted, and there will not be a rift in the marital clouds over the prosperous farm in Dummer where Mr. and Mrs. Hill reside.

The farm is 200 acres, and one of the best in the district. It does not lack for machinery, and the Hills own their own threshing outfit.

CHILD SWALLOWS OPEN SAFETY PIN

Surgeons Pushed It Into Her Stomach and It Finally Was Passed.

The three-year-old daughter of Corporal and Mrs. Gabriel, Kingston, was the victim of an unfortunate victim of an accident during the week-end, when it swallowed a safety pin. Surgeons worked over the child at the General Hospital for some time and on Tuesday morning the youngster was sent home relieved of the pin and feeling little the worse for the disagreeable experience.

To make matters worse, the pin was unclasped. The blunt end was naturally swallowed first so that when the pin caught in the narrow gullet of the youngster, the pointed ends were directed upwards. At the hospital Sunday morning the pin was located under the x-ray but it defied all attempts to dislodge it through the mouth. Every move made to pull the pin out only pulled in into the tisues and so it was decided to push the pin into the stomach in hope that it would remain in the same direction and pass through the remainder of the tract. This fortunately took place and the child passed the pin Monday night. If the pin had caught in the bowel it might have necissitated an operation which would be heavy for so young a child to withstand.

A Seam of Anthracite Coal Opened Up a Short Distance From Sudbury

SUDBURY, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Seam of pure anthracite coal with slate above and below, was reached twenty inches below the surface in the Larchwood district, about twenty-two miles from Sudbury yesterday by A. F. A. Coyne, Toronto, geologist and a gang of experts and miners. Samples of coal are on display here.

Prof. Coyne claims that the quality is the same as that found near the surface of the Pennsylvania coal fields.

People of this district are very enthusiastic over the discovery, as Prof. Coyne declared yesterday that he will be able to supply the coal requirements of this district in two weeks.

Prof. Coyne left here last night with several bags of new found coal, samples of which will be sent to leading universities of the coutinent for analysis. Work will continue in the coal area on Monday. Definite challenge to the government in respect to development of the coal fields in the district was issued by Mr. Coyne to prove his claim that anthracite coal exists in commercial quanties. Terms of challenge are that the Provincial government pay him the sum of one million dollars on condition that he produce on the surface ten thousad tons of coal from Chelmsford and Larchwood district within less than twelve months from date of accepting the challenge.

Upon that security he claims practical men will advance the required $350,000 required to mine, clean and ship anthracite.

SAY LLD.GEORGE PANDERING TO GERMANS NOW

Belgians and French Are No Longer in Sympathy With England's Policy on European Questions.

A BELGIAN'S VIEWS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26. — Judge Panneton, of the Montreal Superior Court, who has returned home on the C.P.R. liner "Minnedosa" after a holiday in France, said he spent his vacation in Bretagne, and was delighted with his experiences. We Canadians of French original, said Judge Panneton, have to go to Britanny in the west of France to learn our history and appreciate the fact that we descended from a great French race. "Bretagne is not often visited by Canadians," he said. "I have been over to France five times, and always pay a visit to Britanny. The cities and towns are so quaint in building construction and the people so simple in living. The houses are old stone, and the farm laborer still occupy thatched roof cottages, interwoven with each other. But they are so happy in the practice of their religion and perfection of their simple lives that it is a pleasure to go to Britanny and take observations of the country and people.

"I paid a visit to Paris, but as I was on a holiday I did not study political or economic conditions there and the south of France. Therefore, I am not in a position to relate any interesting experience in that respect."

Belgium Recovering.

Mr. Biersmans, president of the Belgo-Canadian Pulp Paper Mills, Shawinigan, also a passenger on the "Minnedosa," in an interview, said he went over to Belgium to confer with interests there in connection with the Shawinigan Mills, and arrange for financial matters that would allow for the extension of these mills and doubling the capacity of their output from two hundred tons per day to three hundred and fifty tons. "This, of course, requires capital, which I have arranged for, and doubling the size of the mills and the capacity of their output means the employment of more hands. We must do this in order to keep in the forefront of other similar industries in the Province of Quebec," he said.

Speaking of observations in Belgium, he said the country was recovering, but the political atmosphere in Europe must be cleared before Belgium can come back to her own in trade commerce. "The Belgians and the French are no longer in sympathy with Lloyd George. They feel that he is pandering to the Germans, and if he were to adopt the same stand as the Belgians and the French, the Germans would be less obdurate and seek some means of settlement that would be acceptable to France and Belgium. I may say that the better-informed and higher classes in England agree with France and Belgium in this respect, and are out of sympathy with Lloyd George.

"The roads and streets in Belgium have been cleared of all debris, and buildings put up have been constructed with the greatest care to preserve their architectural identity as they stood during the war. This has all been done by borrowed money and not by any corporation favor received from Germany.

SAW MILLS TO INVADE POLISH VIRGIN FORESTS

FUEL COMMITTEE GETS INTO ACTION

Two Hundred Cords Of Wood On Order for Peterboro Citizens.

It was revealed to-day that council's fuel committee has gone into action. Hardwood to the extent of 57 1-2 cords has already been purchased and 149 cords of mixed wood. Further supplies are in view and Ald. Dr. Holloway, chairman of the committee, is satisfied with the outlook for supplies of wood.

Although they were given authority to purchase coal on account of the situation being still "up in the air" nothing has been done. It is evident that the advice received by the committee has been to "sit tight." This is the same attitude taken by many dealers.

ARE STILL LOOKING FOR A WAY OUT OF GERMAN SITUATION

PARIS, Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press). — Sir John Bradbury and Eugene Mauclere, British and French members of the Reparations Commission, arrived here from Berlin at noon to-day. Although they were unable to effect any dennite agreement in their negotiations with the German Government officials on which to base recommendations for a moratorium on German reparations payments, they said they still were hopeful that some compromise might be arranged to bridge over the situation until the projected allied conference on the general debt question could be held this autumn.

Another Hearing.

British reparations officials will urge that Germany be given another hearing by the full membership of the Reparations Commission before the final determination of the reparations question is made, it was learned in an authoritative quarter here to-day.

DISTRIBUTION OF COAL SENT TO THIS SIDE

Heavy Allotments of Soft Coal For The Canadian Market—Prevent Profiteering.

HARD COAL STRIKE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—It was announced by officials of the Federal fuel distribution organization that heavy allocations of bituminous coal have been made for Canada. This coal is to be shipped from Pennsylvania. No details as to the amount which is to be sent to the Dominion were available.

Action on the administration bill designed to present profiteering in coal through extension of powers of Inter state Commerce Commission and creation of Federal fuel distribution agency was blocked to-day in the Senate Inter-State Commerce Committee and the whole subject went over to Monday.

HARD COAL ISSUE.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press.) — Secretary James Davis, of the United States' Department of Labor, was expected in anthracite circles to confer here to-day with President Lewis of the United Mine Workers and with Samuel Warringer, chairman of the Operators Policies Committee in an effort to find a way to bring about peace in the hard coal fields.

THE J. J. TURNER EXHIBIT AT SHOW

Featuring a Large Assortment or Made-In-Peterborough Goods.

Few firms advertise the city any better by the sale and distribution of their products than the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons, Ltd. A striking instance of this is the Turner Company activity at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, which opened to-day.

For the past two weeks the company have had a crew of eight men working on the grounds, erecting tents for dining halls, exhibiting of machinery, etc. Some idea of the amount of canvas used in the construction of these large tents may be formed from the fact that eight of these supplied by the above company and used on the grounds are fifty by one hundred feet, each one representing an area the same size as covered by the Turner factory.

Each of these tents represents a value of approxmiately $2,000.00, so that in this one size tent alone more than $16,000.00 is invested.

In addition to this, they have supplied many other tents of formidable size, such as forty by eighty feet, thirty by sixty, twenty-five by fifty, etc., down to the smallest refreshment stand, measuring ten by ten feet.

Wherever quality and service are appreciated, the Turners are always to the front.

For the twentieth consecutive year the firm is exhibiting at the Big Exhibition, and are located, as in former years, on the lawn to the left just inside the Duttern Street entrance. Here is erected a store front fifty feet wide, and equipped with one of Turner's patent gear roller awnings of a very elaborate design, which cannot help but command attention and admiration.

In addition to this, their new "Autocamp" tent, which has just recently been designed, will be found on exhibition, and shown in use with an automobile, so as to give the prospective tourist or camper an exact conception of this extremely comfortable but yet compact camp outfit.

A splendid display of fairy lawn tents is being shown, as well as silk tents as used by prospectors in Northern and Wetern Canada, the whole exhibit prominently brought out with handsome gold signs bearing the company's name, together with their products.

As usual, it is in charge of Mr. Reg. H. Turner, and Exhibition visitors from Peterborough will be made welcome, and any information that can be supplied will be cheerfully given by members of the Turner organisation.

DEBT PAYING CROPS COMING FROM WEST

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press). — "The West is going to harvest a 'debt-paying crop' that will alleviate and stabilize," declared W. B. Lanigan, freight traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, here, last night, on his arrival from the West, when speaking of crop conditions.

"I don't say it is going to bring about anything in the way of a boom, but it is a revival. It is going to alleviate industrial conditions in the east and trading in the west. That will make for a general revival in the commercial state of Canada."

IS BOUND OVER TO KEEP PEACE

Russell Hill Escapes With Suspended Sentence—Wife Sought Reconciliation.

Magistrate Langley and the local police court were somewhat astonished yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Russell Hill of Dummer township had charged her husband with assault and with making threats against her life, denied that while in the Police Chief's office shef opened her blouse and showed Police Chief Newhall her blackened arm and breast, as he testified.

Mrs. Hill seemed horrified at the suggestion and bluntly denied the entire statement of the chief. She was willing in the open court, however, to show her injuries. When she made ready to open her blouse the officials were seized with modesty, however, and material evidence of the bruises alleged to have been suffered was not required.

Mrs. Hill was noticeably sympathetic towards her husband and her manner towards her spouse had undergone a material change since she rushed into town to lay informations against him. When she appeared in court earlier in the week she was afriad to even return to the Hill settlement; but yesterday she was afraid to even return to reconciliation.

Magstrate Langley found the husband guilty of common assault, and he reduced the charge. He found that Hill had struck her with his boot, and he warned the young man that if Mrs. Hill made any further complaints of brutal treatment he would be severely dealt with. Even if Mrs. Hill was a little sharp as she admitted he had no cause to strike her.

Suspended Sentence.

The magistrate dismissed the charge of threats, and bound Hill over to keep the peace on suspended sentence. The recognizance bond was fixed at five hundred dollars, and if at any time within a year accused breaks the peace he will be brought before His Worship for seutence. Hill had to pay costs of $37.35. He was represented by J. A. O'Brien.

TAILORED BLOUSES BACK INTO FAVOR.

Tailored blouses which were not worn so much for a while are popular again. This is due probably to the vogue for white sport wear and the fact that the skirt and blouse seem to be a popular—because a comfortable—hot weather costume.

Tailored blouses with either a round or pointed collar are being worn under sheer woollen sweaters.

When shown with separate skirts or summer suits these attractive blouses often have wide frills down the front—a widening of the tiny pleated frills shown last summer on all lingerie blouses.

Colored pipings and checked gingham collars and cuffs are seen as well and all-white and pastel shades are not unusual.

Potatoes Took a Drop and Sold at One Dollar a Bag —The Gardeners Comment on the Keen Competition—Tomatoes ar Cheaper.

WOOD SOLD.

Although there was a big market last week, to-day's completely eclipsed it and space was at a premium. The string of wagons and automobiles turned the corner of Water and Charlotte streets and swung up towards the south entrance. The basket market was also remarkably busy and the tables were well laden. Prices showed very little change. Eggs were plentiful and sold at 25c., butter was 38c. and fowl sold from 25c. to 30c. Birds that have become too old to lay sold at 25c. a pound, while the tender meat was 30c. A number of farm ladies had ducks and asked 35c. a pound or sold a three pounder for $1.00.

Keen Competition.

The gardeners lamented the fact that so many have entered the business and competition is so keen. By the variety of the rigs to-day the lamentations of the ones who have been in the business for years might be justified. There was a glut of everything. Probably on account of the poor sales a week ago, potatoes had sagged to $1.00 a bag and one grower was noticeably depressed over an item he was reading that predicted low prices. There will be a big crop in this district he said. Tomatoes sold at reduced prices today. Thirty-five cents or three baskets for $1.00 seemed to prevail. Cabbages and cauliflower were five and ten, cucumbers 60 and 80 a basket, corn 15 and some asked 29, and lettuce, radishes, etc., five a bunch.

Apple Crop.

Duchess apples were in nearly every load and sold at 25. "That's a high price," one city man declared. "I could have bought the same apples for 10 cents a peck from a Norwood man yesterday." The fruit growers didn't seem to have any trouble getting the price, however. Plums sold at 10 cents a quart of three for a quarter and green gages by the large basket were 65. Pears were offered more generously than last week at a prevailing price of 70 or 75. While a few baskets of chokecherries sold to home brewers, the advent of grapes was encouraging to some. One farmer had two small baskets but promised more in a week or two.

Lots of Honey.

Several men had honey. In the combs it sold at 25 and 30 and by the pound was 18. Pickling onions were 25 a quart, 'and you can't make 50 cents an hour after you've fixed them up like that," said the gardener as he proudly held up the shiny white round onions. The flower display was even more gorgeous than a week ago. Two little boys huddled beside the big entrance kept unnecessary watch over three bunnies securely secured in a box. A pair were a quarter.

The usual din of the market was heightened by the presence of two auctioneers and a jewelry salesman. From the vantage point of a buggy seat the latter expounded on the merits of his display of watches, stick pins and brooches and he offered a miscellaneous collection, including a gold wrist watch for five dollars. Although one farmer maintained that no one in the audience had that much money a five spot was produced by a man and the lot disposed of. "Oh, he's your partner," the first party insisted. One of the auctioneers did a brisk business in men's working shoes at $2.25 a pair and if any men wanted to try them on he let them up on the wagon. The invitation was accepted.

A single load of hardwood offered to-day was somewhat reassuring, but the price of $7 a half cord had a depressing effect and the load was slow in being sold.

NEW BRIDGE NEEDED PETERBORO TO LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Aug. 26.—It is declared by residents in Lindsay and district that the Ops swing bridge on Lindsay street south is too antiquated and too small to properly handle the traffic that is bound to develop on the improved highway between Lindsay and Peterborough. A resolution embodying this belief and asking that steps be taken to relieve the situation, has been drafted by the Victoria County Good Roads Board and forwarded to the Department at Ottawa.

A considerate man will never smoke in an automobile unless he first asks permission of the women in the car. It is hardly logical, to say the least, to take a lady airing in the park in the evening and then fill the car and her lungs with tobocca smoke.

SCHOOL TEACHER HAS DISAPPEARED FROM LABRADOR

Five Days' Search Yields Absolutely No Trace of Miss Margaret Lindsay.

WENT FOR WALK.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Letters received here by the Labrador mail boat which has just arrived in port, make extended references to the mysterious disappearance of Miss Margaret Lindsay, the Canadian girl who was teaching school at Cartwright, Labrador. Writing under date of August 9, five days after the disappearance of Miss Lindsay, Rev. Henry Gordon states that although bodies of men had searched the woods, and fleets of fishing boats had scoured the waters for considerable distances in both directions along the shore from the settlement, absolutely no trace of the missing girl could be found.

Just before noon, August 4, Miss Lindsay informed her fellow-teacher, Miss Stiles, that she intended to go for a walk along the strand and would later go in bathing. She started alone and has not since been heard from. Between the time she started and nightfall five boats at least are known to have passed along by the portion of the shore where she should have been walking or bathing. As none of her garments have been found it is generally presumed she did not enter the water at all.

Miss Lindsay's father resides in Montreal. Mrs. Herbert Drummond, Vancouver, is her aunt.

EMILY TOWNSHIP ROAD MAY BE ELIMINATED

LINDSAY, Aug. 26.—The County of Victoria proposes to delete Road No. 5A which runs on the 14th Concession of Emily, from S.S. No. 3 o S.S. No. 15, or almost to King's Wharf. This road which is about five miles in length runs for a mile or two through a swamp and the County Road Board believe that it would be a waste of money to attempt to build it up. It would, in the first instance be an expensive job and the road would be liable to sink in the swamp at any time. There are only a few people that use the road, the majority taking an alternive route, an the County Road Board this afternoon re touring the district with a view o deciding on an alternative route.

FISH HOOKS ENTERED ABOVE THE RIGHT EYE

LINDSAY Aug. 26.—Master Roand O'Leary, William street, north landed three large lunge near Rustic Bay. The third fish apparently resented Roland getting so familiar with the mysteries of the deep so made a jump at his face, the result being that the hooks weer firmly imbedded above his eye. His wound was attended to at the Ross Memorial Hospital where he is doing nicely.

Wage Conference Is Down to Brass Tacks In N. S. Coal Strike

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press)—"We are getting down to brass tacks at last" remarked one of the members of the British Empire Steel Corporation-United Mine Workers wage conference when it adjourned at six o'clock last night.

The conference went back into secret session and was not expected to break up until a late hour.

It is learned that it is very probable that when the United Mine Workers leave they will carry building they will carry with them a definite proposition, possibly sufficient to warrant an immediate referendum of the members of Nova Scotia.

SCENES OF SORROW AT COLLINS' BIER.

DUBLIN, Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press.)—Scenes of great sorrow were witnessed yesterday in the city hall as long lines of people passed the bier of Michael Collins, Free State commander-in-chief. A pathetic scene was witnessed at mid-day when Sean Collins, brother, reached the city hall to pay his last respects. He broke down completely and threw himself across the body. Government declared Monday, when General Collins will be buried, a day of general mourning, and all industry will cease.

STRIKE SETTLED IN NOVA SCOTIA

Agreement, If Ratified, Will Last Until January, 1924.

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— After a conference lasting until early this morning, representatives of the British Empire Steel Corporation and United Mine Workers of District 24 arrived at an agreement for settlement of Nova Scotia coal strike. The contract, if finally ratified, will last until January 15, 1924.

Acceptance or rejection of proposed scale rests with twelve thousand striking miners of the province, who will be asked to vote upon it in referendum, date of which has not yet been fixed, but which will probably be Wednesday, Aug. 30. It was one o'clock this morning when mediators announced that basis of settlement had been reached.

Newer Form of Iron Quickly Increases "Pep" Strength and Energy

"You cannot be well and strong and full of vigor, force and power unless your blood is rich in iron" says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Department), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "It is your red blood that enables you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale, and watery. Poor blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you may have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all run-down and tired out."

When your blood lacks iron do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron which is like th iron in spinach, lentils and apples and is in a form easily assimilated into your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks and if you have not, like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. The following local drugists will sell you Nuxated Iron with this "satisfaction or money back" guarantee. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; McDermid & Jury.

MOTORLESS PLANE MAKES FLIGHT OF OVER THREE HOURS

A Remarkable Record is Established By Student at Annual Competition in Germany.

OTHER FLIGHTS.

GERSFELD, Germany, Aug. 26. —(Canadian Press)—A remarkable motorless airplane flight lasting for three hours and ten minutes marked the close Thursday of the formal programme of the annual motorless flying competition. Herr Hentzen, student flier of the Hanover Technical School, made the flight, thereby beating by one hour the record he established Saturday, when he remained in the air for two hours and ten secon[illegible].

Hentzen's latest accomplishment was made in the same machine with which he surprised the aviation world on Saturday. He flew in a westerly wind from ten to 12 metres per second accompanied by gusts sometimes as strong as sixteen metres.

Herr Hackmedt, of Harmeta[illegible] remained in the air for ninety minutes in Thursday's competition.

For their feats of Friday and Saturday Herr Hentzen and Johnson Maertena, who flew for 60 minutes have been awarded 70,000 and 50,000 marks respectively.

OVERWORKED NERVES

The Most Successful Treatment is Through the Blood

The early stages of nervous debility are noted by restlessness and irritability in which the victims seem to be oppressed by their nerves. As the trouble advances, common symptoms are a tired feeling; weakness in the knees and ankles headaches, backaches and sleepleslness. The matter requires immediate attention, for nothing but suitable treatment will prevent a complete breakdown.

The nervous system governs the whole body, controlling heart, lungs digestion, and brain, so that it is not surprising that serious disturbances cause acute distress. For troubles of this kind Dr. Williams' Pink Pills succeed when other treatment fails for these pills make new blood, enriched with the elements on which the nerves thrive, and in this way reach the root of the trouble. In proof of this is the statement of Mrs. Dockerill, Stratford, Ont., who says—"My daughter Matilda, was suffering from nervous debility, and the usual remedies did not seem to help her. I was advised by a friend to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and soon we found they were doing her a great deal of good. She complained of pains in the stomach, and a severe fluttering of the heart, with a general weakness. Under the use of these pills she continued to gain, and I beieve they have saved her from going into a decline."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AGNES McPHAIL TOOK IN PICNIC

J. J. Morrison Says the Farmers Must Stay in Politics As a Party.

CAYUGA, Aug. 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Owing to inclement weather the U.F.O. picnic here yesterday was poorly attended. Chief speakers were Agnes McPhail, M.P., and J. J. Morrison. Miss MacPhail made a vigorous attack upon party politics and claimed that every man elected desired to serve interests of his constituents, but owing to the fact that in the past he had always been chosen by headquarters and forced upon the people, and was elected by funds subscribed by interests he could not do so. She declared that they always had class legislation because all governments had been controlled by interests. Mr. Morrison told the gathering that farmers must stay in politics as a party so that they could get away from all political denomination.

EFFORTS TO SETTLE RAIL STRIKE PROVE FUTILE AND CONFERENCE IS BROKEN UP

The Question of Seniority Again Proves to Be a Big Stumbling Block in the Negotiations.

TEST OF STRENGTH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.— (Canadian Press.) —The rail strike in the United States yesterday developed into a fight to the finish, when peace negotiations were blown sky high.

Heads of the Big Five railroad Brotherhoods acting as mediators between executives and striking shopmen in a final effort to effect separate settlement with individual roads after the Association of Railway executives as a whole had rejected the running trades' first peace overtures, reported to the representatives of 77 roads at the Yale Club yesterday morning that the shop crafts had turned down a proposition made to them Thursday by the carriers.

Negotiations then were sharply broken off and executives, strike leaders and brotherhood chiefs packed up their bags and began leaving town, prepared for a test of endurance.

Before he departed for his headquarters in Chicago, Bert M. Jewell, official spokesman for the strikers asserted that he believed the executives who had lingered for the parley of individual settlements soon would be able "to bring home to their hard-shelled colleagues the railroad situation in its grim reality."

"We shall be content to let the conditions of equipment prove that the railroads cannot operate with unskilled strike-breakers," declared Mr. Jewell, adding later that "we can and will fight for our terms and for a nation-wide settlement."

Labor leaders then dispatched telegrams to all parts of the country, calling upon strikers to renew the struggle with redoubled vigor.

The later peace proposal, centering as was the case with all the others on the question of seniority, briefly was that roads interested in individual settlements would pledge themselves to find employment for all strikers not convicted of acts of violence; would not curtail pension rights "or other privileges" and would agree to submit to a Commission of ten brotherhoods leaders and executives all disputes which could not be settled by direct conference.

The strikers, who have maintained that they had not authorized the Big Five to suggest individual settlements, rejected this proposal with the explanation that it did not guarantee seniority to the men who might return on one-third of the roads in the United States and at the same time would destroy the effectiveness of the strike being carried on on the other two-thirds.

Then, from the mediating brotherhoods, came the statement and they reluctantly notified all concerned that they considered further peace efforts futile and had nothing more to suggest.

U. S. GOVERNMENT IS READY TO TAKE RAILWAY CONTROL

Will Take Over Coal Mines Also If Production is Not Resumed Within a Few Days.

BILLS READY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press.)— The administration will seek legislation from Congress authorizing the taking over of certain United States railroads and anthracite mines if there is not a radical improvement in the industrial situation within a few days, it was indicated last night after Senator Cummins, chairman of the Senate Inter-state Commerce Commission and Attorney-General Daugherty had conferred with President Harding for more than an hour.

The rairoads will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to furnish adequate service ,it was declared, but those which cannot give proper service will be taken over by the United States Government under present plans. If production of anthracite is not resumed "within a few days," it was added, a bill will be introduced in Congress to authorize the Government to take over the mines and produce coal. Legislation to enable such seizures, Senator Cummings predicted, would quickly be rushed through Congress.

The conference at the White House was held after President Harding had discussed the entire industrial situation with his Cabinet at its regular meeting to-day and after the New York rail conference had been terminated without result.

LABOUR CONGRESS REFUSES TO BACK LOAN FOR RUSSIA

"Paltry $15,000,000" Can Be Spent to Much Better Advantage Among Canadians.

SUPPORT STRIKERS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26. —(Canadian Press.)—The Dominion Trades and Labor Congress yesterday refused to back an appeal to the Dominion Government to make a loan "of a paltry $15,000,000" to the Soviet Government of Russia.

President Tom Moore, in his fight against the loan to Russia argued that when unemployment and destitution had been relieved in Canada, when the Russian Government took its soldiers away from the workers' throats, then the Canadian Government might consider making a loan.

Moore earlier in the day received his fifth acclamation to the Presidency of the Congress, carrying with him P. M. Draper, as secretary-treasurer. Draper's new term begins his twenty-third year in office.

Congress pledged its aid to the United States' railway shopmen now on strike and recommended to the delegates to send financial aid to the strikers to help them continue their fight against the railways.

The famous resolution which suggested that Congress prevail upon both the Federal and Provincial governments to relinquish office, change the present constitutional system of Parliamentary representation and copy the Soviet plan met with a brief fate. A unanimous non-concurrence vote was registered, the sponsors of the resolution being without representation on the floor.

To-day the Congress will present its formal request for amendments to the Industrial Disputes Act and this, with a few minor items still on the agenda, will bring the congress to a close.

On an appeal by G. W. Powesland, one of the executives of the Canadian Railway Shopmens' Unions, delegates were asked to pledge financial support from their organizations to the striking rail shopmen in the United States. J. A. McClelland, of Montreal, declared the American strike to be one of the finest in the history of organized movement. They had been out for some two months, 400,000 of them, and were being fought by the railways who had engaged hundreds of thousands of men to fight the unions by intimidating them. The strikers, however, were as firm as on the day of the walkout and would continue to resist wage reductions.

Frank McKenna, another Canadian executive of the shopmen declared that the principle at stake merited Canadian labor's support .In Canada a board of conciliation was already framing a decision and if the decision was not satisfactory to the workers, the latter might soon be in the same position as their brothers in the United States.

OSHAWA WANTS A GOOD QUALITY MILK

OSHAWA, Aug. 26. — Ohawa's Board of Health may shortly take steps to see that all milk that is sold in Oshawa comes only from cows that have been tuberclin tested and have shown that they are free rom the germs of uberculosis. A movement is now on foot to have such a step taken and at the first full meeting of the Board fo Health the matter will be brought up and discused and without a doubt the Board will take such action as will make the tuberclin testing of cows supplying Oshawa's milk a necessity.

Showing Route of 1018 Miles through Mountain Passes from Edmonton to Vancouver—New Link in Trans-Canada Highway

Overland First Car to Cross Rocky Mountains Over All-Canadian Route

VANCOUVER—Completing the thrilling, and at times hair-raising path-finding run from Edmonton to Vancouver, the Edmonton Automobile Club Overland car piloted by C. W. Niemeyer, and Frank Silverthorne, rolled into Vancouver, the men exhausted, but happy. They described their journey as one of marvellous beauty and remarkably hard work, but they said they had opened the pathway to Edmonton, and that the expenditure now of a comparatively small amount would make it a permanent and pleasant trail. They encountered muskeg, burned bridges, rock slides, grizzly bears, railroad trains, windstorms and furious rains, but they came along with only three blowouts, and those caused by rail spikes.

Leaving Edmonton, the Overland, equipped with the famous Triplex springs, proceeded westward. It had a heavy load, but never once did the sturdy car cause any trouble during the entire grinding trip. The car weighed 1,800 pounds, carried two to four men, and was outfitted with picks and shovels, axes, hammers, four twelve-foot ten-inch planks and several shorter pieces, a complete set of tools and spare parts; two spare tires and a spare wheel; fifty gallons of gasoline and five gallons of oil. They made the entire run on forty-one gallons of gas and six quarts of oil, and came every foot of the way on their own wheels, via deserted railroad grade, active railways, tote roads, and Pacific highway, demonstrating once again the wonderful economy of the Overland Four.

Through Yellowhead Pass

From Edmonton they proceeded through the Yellowhead Pass trail, taking the abandoned G.T.P. railway grade near the mountains and following it to Jasper, where they picked up Baldy Robb, a well known mountain guide, who was with them through the trip. At Jasper they took to the steel railway and bumped the ties to Lucerne, resuming the abandoned grade one mile west of that point and following it to Red Pass. They then took steel to Tete Jaune Cache and the old tote road, thence to Alfreda, steel to Blue River and Avola, tote road to Lytton, steel and tote road to Hope and the Yale road to Vancouver. You can imagine what a tremendous strain this was on the units of the car. Yet throughout the entire trip the motor ran smoothly and powerfully. The all steel body stood up exceptionally well and the motor remained cool and quiet under the worst travel conditions.

The motoristic Alexander Mackenzies arrived in Vancouver with blistered hands and sore muscles, even though they started out in good shape. They brushed and built miles of road, constructed 36 bridges, some of which were good enough to be called permanent structures, killed a 14-foot grizzly bear with a 303 rifle, and took 200 pictures of the wild life of the trail, Rocky Mountain sheep, deer, birds and each other. They drove their car on the railroads around curves and along precipices where the variation of a hair would have thrown them hundreds of feet to death. The car wheels straddled the rails the outer wheel being on the outer edge of the ties. The ties in many instances were projecting out over a yawning space which fell straight to the roaring river hundreds of feet below. At one point where erosion had worn away a tote road for some hundreds of feet, they went down to the river and leaded a trail through the water around a rock point and then back to the road. At another they found a rock as large as a house right in front and they had to cut their way around through shale.

Thrilling Experiences

One section was a mass of fallen timber, due to a great windstorm that came down on them. This was near Tete Jaune Cache. They cut their way through. Everywhere they went they left a passable trail behind them.

There was one near accident, they say. They do not speak of the fly climbing stunts going round the precipice curves on a railway grade as a near accident. They were proceeding on the steel toward a tunnel and had not been notified of an extra train. It came belching out just before they reached the entrance. The driver swung off and against a pile of rocks, bending an axle, jarring his friend, but permitting the train free passage.

At Victoria, Mr. Niemeyer was presented by the Victoria Automobile Club with a gold medal for having been the first man to drive a car from Alberta to the Pacific Coast over an all-Canadian route.

A FEMININE RETIREMENT

The feminine invasion of the positions which men have immemorally regarded as their special prerogatives has finally been halted in its advance with the resignation of the first woman Marshal. When the villagers of Des Lacs, North Dakota, elected a complete administration of women last spring, Mrs. Bertha Ward was decorated with the Marshal's star and club, and invested with the full authority of the village.

The other day, however, she returned the baton to the Council, regretting that she hadn't run for Reeve or Clerk, something soft and "cushy," and acknowledging that she had been bowled out by the biological factor in the person of fractious, and belligerent drunken men.

Mrs. Ward admitted the doubts with which she had accepted the assignment, and when he went about her duties of maintaining order she realized that she was only a woman, and not a strapping Juno either. Too late she ruefully discovered that her woman's persuasiveness moved stubborn hootch drunks ogly to laughter and herself to tears, and in her helplessness she retreated from the rough and tumble business of trying to make hard the way of transgressors.

Mrs. Ward had led the feminine assault wave up to men's last reserve trenches, the police force. With their claims of equality, they accepted full responsibility, too, but the liberated ladies of Des Lacs carried their logic one step too far. The job was too tough for Mrs. Ward, whose retirement illustrated to her sisters that law and order are based on force, that in the last analysis the strong arm of man and not the smiles or appeals of misplaced women exposing themselves to ridicule is the sanction of peace.

THE FARMER AND THE RAILROAD WORKER

The Railroaders insist on a certain "standard of living," David Friday, president of the Michigan Agricultural College, states that the persons engaged in railroad transportation number less than 4½ per cent. of the total working population of the United States and in 1921 received 7 per cent. of the nation's purchasing power, while the farmers, numbering 26 per cent. of the working population, received less than 20 per cent. of that same buying power. The figures for Canada would no doubt point to a similarly significata conclusion.

What the farmer did with that 20 per cent. of the nation's buying power is admirably told in a letter by a farmer's wife to the Macon, Ga., Telegraph. Last year they sold $772.06 worth of canteloupes, paying $611.20 to the railroads to get them to market and netting $160.86. They sold $1,029.50 worth of watermelons, paid the railroads $865.90 and netted $163.60. They sold $2,922.77 worth of peaches, the railroads got $2,109.62, the picking and packing cost $671.25, and they netted $141.90. Their total "profits" came apparently to $466.36, but out of this came the cost of fertilizer, spraying material, etc., and the farmer's wife is begging her husband to give up the business—go on strike as it were—declaring they were working only for the railroads.

She wants to know if the farmer as well as the railroad man is not entitled to some kind of "standard of living."—Financial Post.

DESIGNS ON AUSTRIA

Failing to secure Britain's support to her reparations policy, France appears to have turned her attentions to Central Europe in the hope of establishing an alliance that would guarantee her security by the political and economic isolation of Germany. This might be accomplished by the extension of the Little Entente comprising Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, and also Rumania and Poland to which would be added Belgium and France, thereby encircling Germany with a ring that would be syHpathetic to, and strongly influenced by, France.

Reasons for such an alignment are found in the Rapallo agreement between Germany and Russia, and also in the precarious weakness of Austria, and the determination of the Little Entente to prevent both her annexation to Germany and the resotration of the Hapsburgs in Vienna or Budapest. This mooted union would greatly strengthen the political position of France, but might also conflict with certain Italian interests in the Adriatic.

For many years, Italy directed her foreign policy chiefly against Austria—Hungary, and, with the dissolution of the Dual Monarchy, would naturally try to prevent the union of Germany and Austria. On the other hand, Italy has not settled with Jugo-Slavia questions pertaining to the Adriatic, and, in further negotiations respecting these differences, might be opposed by the Little Entente.

It is a complex and delicate situation from which early developments may be expected. Austria is the pawn in the game, and her financial relief the first concern of Euroze. France proposes that Austria be included in the Little Entente the establishment of which received French encouragement. Italy's self-interest demands an economic union between herself and Austria, while Germany suggests that amalgamation with her broken war partner presents the most effective scheme for their mutual economic salvation.

THE CHIVALRY OF THE SEA

Becalmed for 43 days in the Pacific, the crew of the schooner "William H. Smith" went 12 days without food because they wanted to preserve the life of the captain's wife, who had just given birth to a child. It is a story of heroism and chivalry worthy of the best traditions of the sea. The crew of the "William H. Smith" were just simple, rough folk, the rugged, sometimes despised kind, that go down to the sea in ships. They were not sustained in their heroism by the glare of publicity and the plaudits of the world which so often momentums valor upon land. Alone, far out upon the Pacific, with nothing but sea and sky about them, with no plaudits ringing in their ears, the prepared themselves to die that a mother and child might live.

Thank God for such chivalry and courage. It is one of those revelations of the innate goodness of men which strengthens one faith in mankind. One of those little epics which teach us that love and chivalry and courage, still burn brightly amidst so much of the selfishness and the littleness of the world —Ottawa Journal.

TOMMY TO PAT SAMMY'S BONUS?

British war veterans will provide the funds out of which the American veterans will receive their bonus. It is possible that President Harding will adhere to his previous declaration and veto the bill, but Senator McCumber who has sponsored it states that he can see no reason why it should not receive the President's approval and signature.

The McCumber Soldiers' Bonus Bill, which may be voted on in the United States Senate to-day comprehends the disbursement of the stupendous total of $4,500,000,000 to the men "who won the war." In discussing this legislation which follows closely in sequence and importance the Tariff Bill, Senator McCumber asserted that it was not a bonus bill, but an adjusted compensation bill.

"Is there a moral obligation on the part of the American people to adjust the compensation that the American soldiers received during the war to make it more nearly conform to the added compensation received by every other American citizen during that war? And remember that is all there is to this question."

There is no evading the McCumber logic. The Senator recalls the "scandalous profiteering on the part of both employer and laborer,"—while "our soldiers were dying in France or in cantonments."

"The Government ought in justice and square dealing pay in cash to the soldiers this $1 and $1.25 per day for each day's service, as provided in the bill," he proceeds. "If it did this the entire cash cost would not exceed $1,561,000,000. But as the Government has not the cash on hand, the Congress, acting as the agent of the Government, says to the soldier; "Let us fix on some basis of payment that will give the Government an extension of time in which to make this payment."

"So they sit down at the table and the soldier says: "I will not ask the Government to pay a penny for twenty years, if I live that long. So give me a paid-up insurance, the equivalent of the cash due me with interest, for those twenty years. Most of our number will take that plan. But as there may be some few who may wish to purchase a home or land, we ask you to help those to fulfil thier purchase-price engagements. They will not be many. We desire, however, the right to borrow upon our certificates, but for the first three years we are willing to take our borrowing chances with the banks of the country if we shall be pressed for cash. After that, if we borrow from you, we shall pay you the same per cent. of interest which you allow us.'

"To my mind, every precept of financial justice and every principle of political honor demand that this Soldiers' Compensation Bill be passed into a law at this session of Congress."

Such is the moral obligation which may be fulfilled without additional tax levy for the Senator depends on the war loan payments to meet the bonus requisition.

"Great Britain is preparing to meet the interest due this fall, and if she does so we will have in advance," he indicates "a sufficient sum from that source alone to more than meet the first two year's obligations under this measure."

"The British Government recognizes that interest on its obligations to the United States will be due in September of this year. The British Government has included in its budget of expense for the ensuing year an item to cover the interest due the United States. That sum is just as much assured as though the actual bonds had been issued. That answers the President's request for delay. From the source, indicated by the President we can meet the 1923 obligation of this bill and meet it nearly three times over without either issuing bonds or levying additional taxes."

In brief, Senator McCumber proposes to divert as a bonus to the American soldiers the payments Great Britain makes on her loan from the United States. Surely this is not the light in which the American legionaries are accepting this enormous gratuity. The ex-service men of Great Britain who were fighting before three years reinforcements came from the United States are burdened with taxes to meet the debt incurred by their country while they were in arms, "dying in France and army cantonments," to use Senator McCumber's expression. And a large part of those taxes, it would seem, are finally to be distributed as compensation to the American ex-service men, many of whom never saw France.

The American ideals in the late war, so beautifully enunciated by ex-President Wilson, appear to have escaped Senator McCumber.

However, President Harding holds the veto and his friends maintain that he will use it.

Memories of British Tour By The Canadian Kilties Band

A few of the many people who take scissors and lawn mowers to William Taylor at 226 Hunter street for sharpening, or on a rainy day remember an umbrella needs repairing, have, if he is inclined to be communicative, heard an interesting account of his musical experiences. If they have shown a sincere interest it is likely that Mr. Taylor produced a photograph taken about 17 years ago in Hamilton in which he is encircled by a musical monstrosity invented by Sousa for impressive concert work, and perched comfortably over his head in the horn which appears like the smokestack of the "Rocket" is his little daughter and a pup—which is apparently enjoying the aerial position.

This unique photograph was taken upon the completion of a two-year concert tour of the American continent and the British Isles with the Kilties Band of Belleville. The same organization is playing today, but the concert demands have required the formation of a twin band and the headquarters of the bands are now in Chicago. Through the late Bandmaster Robinson of the 13th Regimental Band, in which Mr. Taylor was playing a bass horn, he was induced to join the Kilties, of which William F. Robinson, a son, was in charge. He first played at Willow Grove, Philadelphia, on July 4th, 1903, before 60,000 people, and that year and in the summer of 1904 the band played the American continent. At the St. Louis Exposition in August they were the only band allowed to charge an admission to the Million Dollar Festival Hall.

To the Old Country.

Fifty-three strong, the band went to the Old Country to fill engagements, and was away nine months. On September 27 the band was taken by special train to Balmoral Castle to play before King Edward, and in leaving London were shown the unusual distinction of being driven through Hyde Park. So enjoyable did the King evidently find the concert, which was of somewhat a popular nature, that on November 9th, his 63rd birthday, he had the organization provide the evening entertainment at Sandringham. The invitation to play before His Majesty on two occasions in such a short time was considered an especial mark of appreciation.

Queen Alexander displayed an interest in the band and particularly enjoyed "The Warbler's Serenade," joining in with the band in the whistling parts. The band was accompanied by pipers, dancers and a bugle band. Mr. Taylor's nephew, Ernest Taylor, played the clarinet, and like his uncle found a romance in the tour. He married one of the dancers. Mr. Taylor found his bride in the Old Country, but was not married until after returning to Canada. He gave up his Soussaphone to begin housekeeping. Had he not chosen the home life he would have gone with the band on a three-year trip through Australia, South Africa and Asia, but he desired "to settle down." He wound up his career with the band at a concert in Massey Hall. In June, 1905, he played in Peterborough with the Kilties after their return from overseas.

The concert party was organized by private enterprise. The 48th Highlanders had just discovered the American relish for Scotch concerts. The Kilties, as organized by T. P. J. Powers, capitalized it, and the tour was profitable, according to Mr. Taylor. Altogether he travelled 10,000 miles with the band. During the last four years Mr. Taylor has been playing with the 57th Regimental Band and he is taking a great interest in the development of this band. He considers there are bright possibilities of building up a strong band. He is not worrying about the influence of popular music and does not consider that the standard or classical music is in any danger of going into obscurity. "It is just a matter of educating the people to good music," he said. "If they get nothing but ragtime all the time, why naturally they lose their appreciation of standard music. Of course, some popular music is all right, but give me the standard compositions. It not only appeals to the people listening, but is appealing to the players."

"What do you like to play?" he was asked.

"Oh, the good stuff. There's some beauty and harmony to it."

The favorable impression created by this city when he was here with the Kilties Band in 1905 induced Mr. Taylor to come to Peterborough several years ago. While learning the German grinding trade he was in Rochester and Buffalo, and there played with the Park and 65th Regimental Bands in the respective cities. Mr. Taylor was born in Sheffield, and on account of his work in the States, understands both the English and German methods of grinding. His two sons served in the Great War from Vimy on, and both were fortunate in dodging shrapnel and high explosives.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

Still Violet hesitated. Flushing angrily Vera swung the screen around so that she was shielded. "That suit you any better?" she demanded.

With fingers numbed, as with cold, Violet slipped from her dress, the dress she had donned because she knew it to be one of Robert's favorites. At Vera's sharp request she handed it over the screen, not without a catch of fear in her throat. Then the other girl demanded and obtained, heartlessly, her petticoat and slippers and stockings.

In a daze Violet put on the khaki shirt and rough dirty trousers discarded by Vera. The cheap material scratched her and was uncomfortable. She looked down at herself and felt a sense of immodesty of attire not so much from the fact they were men's clothing as that they were some one else's clothes. She colored. Then her fear became panic. In her bare feet, forgetting how she looked, thinking of nothing but the mad unreasoning impulse to flee, she started for the door.

Vera caught her with ease. Violet, clutched in the other's arms, discovered the hard muscles of her captor's back, in amazement found herself utterly helpless in the grasp of a woman.

"I can handle Paul," Vera boasted, "so I guess you won't elude me, my shrinking Violet. I used to throw knives in vaudeville, and I was a high diver, and once I pitched for a woman's baseball team, and I wouldn't bet I'm not as strong as that big husky lover of yours, at that."

"What—what do you want with me now?" Violet gasped.

"Come along and see."

Half leading, half dragging her captive, Vera marched to the bathroom door, opening it and pulling Violet in behind her. The two men, with sleeves rolled up, were bent over the tub. There, with its fine white flecks of solid foam, was a mixture of plaster of paris just about ready to set. This meant nothing to Violet, but upon the face of Noyes she caught an expression of disaster and fear as he straightened, facing Vera.

"Listen, Vera," he began. "This is a terrible——"

"Stop" She drew back, making a little courtesy. "Am I not beautiful?" she asked, with apparent irrelevance.

The summery dress might have been made for her. She had removed her wig so that her own hair fell about her ears in attractive disarray. Her mocking smile revealed her teeth and the warm red lure of her lips.

"Am I not beautiful?" she insisted. Then before he could frame his inarticulate thoughts, she changed. Her mouth twisted, cruel and hard. Her eyes narrowed and darkened as they bored into his gaze. "It you want to love me, Paul Noyes, you will have to do exactly as I wish. Are you willing to give your plaster bath?"

He nodded, unhappy but wholly in her power.

She whirled upon Violet. With the full strength of her fingers she pressed into the flesh of Violet's arms. She leaned forward, so that her breath was burning hot in Violet's face.

"You asked me what I wanted with you. This is what I want. I want your life. You came between me and the man I loved. You are responsible for the death of the man I loved. You allowed him to be torn to pieces by a dog beneath your eyes. While I cannot turn you over to the tender mercies of a beast I can devise a fitting death. You have been given to me by Phantom Face. I purchased the right to kill you, Violet Bronson. Do you understand? I purchased the right to kill you."

At a motion from Vera the hunchback tied the ankles and hands of the helpless girl, quickly. Noyes, hands trembling, placed cotton in her ears and nose. Then, as he approached with a bit of reed pipe with a rubber arrangement to go in her mouth she understood. The bath was for her. She was to be placed in the plaster. She was to be left to die in an artist's mold extemporized in the tub.

"It will not be a quick death, little Violet," gloated the other woman. "You will be able to breathe, and to do a lot of thinking. And don't take short breaths, because if you do your shroud of plaster may be too tight a fit.

Violet struggled, uselessly. As they lifted her everything went black. Consciousness left her, mercifully.

Her next coherent thought was the realization of a peculiar phenomenon. It seemed to her that she was in the arms of her Robert, clasped tightly to him. But in her half-conscious state she imagined that every time she attempted to take a breath he squeezed her. He was not allowing her to get sufficient air. She was choking to death, slowly. Though she pleaded with him he only laughed, continuing to hold her tight. Then, suddenly, her thoughts cleared and she understood. She was in the mold. The plaster had hardened. She was not able to move a single muscle. Even an unconscious effort to open her eyes was balked. The sense of oppression came from the fact that the mixture had set while she was unconscious, while she was only taking short and gentle breaths. Now it was impossible for her to fill her lungs. Her throat was caught so that she could not make a sound even through the tube. In the sheer horror of it she fainted once more.

When she awoke again she lay in bed, in her own room. Beside her was Doctor Sutton, reading, waiting for her to wake.

At first it seemed impossible that she could be alive. She wanted to believe the experience a nightmare, but on a chair within her view were the boy's clothes she had obtained from Vera. They were covered with the plaster and were indisputable evidence of the reality of her ordeal.

"How did you find me?" she asked abruptly, tisinz in the bed.

"Oh" Doctor Sutton was startled. "Dacca returned to consciousness while they were in the bathroom with you. He saw what they were doing through the door, which was not quite closed. He stole out and came for me and the police."

"Did you catch them?"

"No No one was there when we arrive."

"The picture——?"

"Is safe" His eyes softened. "Dacca told me how they tricked you. You could not suspect that our neighbor was one of them."

Now that it was over, she began to feel of herself. "Am I—am all right?"

"They wrapped a towel about your head and put cotton in your ears and nose. The plaster wasn't very hard. Dacca and one of the policemen scooped it out with their hands."

"Vera Collins—that's the woman—me me give her my clothes. That's why you found me in those," Violet explained, pointing toward the chair.

Peterboro Hotelkeepers Claim They Are Discriminated Against

The appended letter appeared in yesterday's issue of the Toronto Star.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—We, the undersigned, hotelkeepers of the city of Peterborough, are aware that The Examiner is in favour of fair play in connection with the Ontario Temperance Act, and believe that much of the opposition that exists in many quarters against this law would be lessened if its opponents were convinced that the conduct of the act were characterized by complete fair play. We would respectfully call your attention to what we consider one weak point in the armor of its defense. The supporters of the act profess a desire to support those who, having lost heavily through prohibition, are lawfully endeavoring to operate hotels for accommodation of the travelling public. The license department sends out a commission to investigate, in the public interest, hotel affairs throughout the Province. This is done mainly to assure better service for the travelling public by aiding and advising hotelmen in regard to their business. This is a good policy, but in some cases how does this commission work?

Recently the city of Peterborough donated $50 towards entertaining the commission. This was granted in an endeavor to improve local hotel conditions so that transient visitors might get better accommodation. The $50 was used to entertain the commission at the Empress Hotel in this city. Arrangements were made to have the local hotelkeepers meet the commission and discuss business. The hotelmen met as arranged, except the Empress, where the commission was banqueted. They met, they waited and they departed as the commission, having enjoyed the $50 banquet, had gone "joy-riding" to a summer resort at Oak Orchard! The O.T.A. is said by some to be class legislation. This neglected meeting would indicate that the hotels who cater to less wealthy, but equally respectable, people are not worth consideration. In no village, town or city in the Province do hotelkeepers observe the O.T.A. more rigidly than in Peterborough and such treatment as recorded above carries little encouragement. The hotelkeeper is neither an imbecile nor a crook and faces conditions, in his effort to make an honest living, that are unique in their discouragement. In the face of a shortage of fuel the hotelkeeper has to spend hundreds of dollars to keep not only paying guests, but professional chair-warmers comfortable. Farmers, whose vote was largely instrumental in passing the O.T.A., bring a lunch to town and use the hotel lavatories and parlors gratis, and Greek and Chinese restaurants sell, without any attempt to provide accommodation for the public, all the soft drinks that the hotelkeeper must sell to enable him to furnish bedrooms. The Dominion Government puts a tax on the material the hotelman buys as a basis for soft drinks and then compels him to keep books for the purpose of paying a further tax on the finished drinks. Another injustice, if the hotelman is supposed to operate houses for entertaining travellers, is this: The Ontario Government charges a license fee of $15 for each billiard and pool table. Greeks and others, who have no possible regard for the transient visitor, pay the same license without investing one cent for entertaining the public. How can a hotelman expect to make his billiard room help to pay his overhead charges under such conditions?

Mr. Editor, to enable the hotelman to live by his trade of entertaining the travelling public the hotelman must get a bigger slice of fair deal or go out of business.

After Suffering 25 Years, Completely Relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. EDWARDS

MAPLEHURST FARM, HILLHURST, P.Q.

"I am in my 78th year. About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach. One doctor said I had Cancer; another said, Ulcer of the Stomach; another, Gall Stones; others, Ulcers of the Liver and Inflammation of the Gall Bladder.

Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gall stones removed. I was then 74 years old. I said "NO."

Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives". I found they helped me a lot, and I still take them occasionally, and I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much"

A GOLDEN JUBILEE AT CAIRO SCHOOL

Three Hundred Former Teachers and Pupils Took in the Event.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 26. — The celebration of the golden jubilee of a rural school is an event unique in the history of such institutions in this part of the country at least, and seldom heard of in any section of the Province, but "Cairo" School carried such an occasion to a most successful issue on Thursday, Aug. 24th, when, from far and near, about 300 former teachers, pupils and ex-pupils, with their friends, gathered in the grounds of this fifty-year-old red brick schoolhouse, erected, as its name-plate signfies, in 1872. Invitations had been sent out two weeks in advance, and a reception committee made all guests warmly welcome immediately upon their arrival. Fortunately the rain clouds which had threatened all morning cleared away about noon, and a genial enthusiasm prevailed as, with happy babel of voices, old neighbors were seen and recognized, and former pupils, now grown up and with children of their own accompanying them, greeted teachers who had imparted instruction to their young minds "in days of yore." At least three generations of the student life were represented, from white-haired grandfathers and grandmothers, to the small boys and girls who form the present-day pupils, Miss Helen Waterman, whose home is in the immediate vicinity, being the teacher now in charge.

Cairo School belongs to two sections, No. 9, Cavan, and No. 4, North Monaghan, and tradition asserts that it received its name from the fact that some of the early settlers, who were all good North of Ireland stock, "the royal stock of Canada" as one speaker expressed it, once came into this part of the country to buy corn, thereafter calling it "Egypt" (having Biblical knowledge in mind), and its academy of learning, "Cairo," after the capital of that Eastern land. The school is situated about mid-way between Fraserville and Springville, on the Provincial highway, and has at the present time 42 pupils' names on the roll—an unusually large list for a rural section.

Former teachers who were present and gave brief reminiscent addresses were: John M. Roszel, of Fort Frances (1,100 miles distant); T. A. Mills, of Bobcaygeon; Douglas D. Barton, of Enniskillen; Miss A. M. Vance, of Millbrook, and Miss C. E. Crookshanks, of Peterborough (the last two named asked to be excused from speaking), while the ex-pupils included: Rev. G. M. McCall, of Brockville: Messrs. Fred. and Will Preston, of Midland: Thos. Hunter, of Springville. Rev. R. M. Paterson, of Fraserville, acted as chairman, and Mr. F. Clarke gave the address of welcome, the pupils of the school singing "O Canada" during the programme. Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville, made the concluding remarks, emphasizing the place and importance of the school in the community.

With their usual whole-hearted hospitality, the ladies of the section served a bountiful picnic tea, and afterwards races for the younger element were run off in a nearby field, though the fast gathering darkness prevented the juniors having their intended ball game, nor could the tug-of-war between Cavan and Monaghan be brought to a decisive issue.

An unusually interesting event during the afternoon was the reading of a historical sketch of Cairo School by Edgar H. Finlay, an ex-pupil now of Kansas City, Mo., giving important facts and dates since the time of its erection in the summer of 1872, the pleasing manner in which the sketch was delivered adding greatly to its effectiveness. Mr. Finlay stated that "in periods varying from a few months to one, two, three and four years, a long list of teachers have helped to lay the foundations of education (and incidentally of Empire), at Cairo. In approximate succession came the following: Johnston, Armstrong, Sanderson, Britton, McKague, Troop, Robertson, Strike, Miss Strike, Miss Vance, Miss Howson, Hawkins, Mills, Foley, Breckenridge, Gilmore, Roszel, Miss R. Fair, Miss Rutherford, Miss Walsh, Miss Weatheritt, Mr. Barton, Miss Waterman. This school has given to the world ministers, lawyers, doctors, teachers, and farmers, many of whom have attained prominence in their chosen professions, and is not without representation on "Flanders' Fields," since two of its pupils, Bert Elliott and Bruce Fisher, paid the supreme sacrifice during the Great War.

The trustees of the school, which is in excellent state of preservation, had its interior handsomely redecorated for the occasion, while the flag flying at top-mast, flowers blooming, etc., added to its outdoor attractiveness. Mr. G. Bennett, now of Buckhorn, who, as a young man, had assisted his father in the erection of the building, was present, and received many compliments on the splendid workmanship in connection therewith, the passing years having proved its enduring quairties. General regret was expressed because Rev. Harvey Strike, of Ottawa, an ex-teacher, was unable to be in attendance, the older folk agreeing in their opinion that "Mr. Strike was the most popular teacher Cairo School had ever possessed." A letter was read from Mr. Strike, stating his great disappointment that circumstances prevented his acceptance of the invitation to be present.

Much credit for the success of the golden jubilee is due to Mr. Fred. Clarke, with whom the idea originated, to Mr. W. Waterman, and others of the trustees who cheerfully assumed the arduous labors connected with it, and who certainly spared no pains to make the occasion one that will long remain a pleasant memory with those who were privileged to attend the re-gathering.

Love Letters That Made History

By JOSEPH KAYE

LORD BYRON AND THE COUNTESS GUICCIOLI.

George Gordon Byron, gifted with all the physical and mental graces that a generous nature could bestow, immortal poet and, in the words of a contemporary, the only man to whom the term "beautiful" could be applied, was as notorious a lover as his own "Don Juan." Born of erratic parents he inherited a temperament which could ascend to the pinnacles of idealism and the depths of dissipation. At the age of twenty-one he made a tour of Europe and experienced a love episode with a Mrs. Spencer Smith. Mrs. Smith soon yielded her place to a trio of "Ladies"—Lady Caroline Lamb, Lady Oxford, Lady Webster. He contracted an alliance with Claire Clairmont who threw herself in his way. On a journey to Venice and Eastern Europe he met the Countess Teresa Guiccioli, his chief passion.

The Countess was a beautiful young girl who had married a man many times her age and she fell in love with Byron at first sight. She went away with him, and they remained together four years in spite of the scandal which this alliance produced. In Austria, in fact, they were refused admittance and they had to live on the Countess' home territory.

The letter given below was written by Byron to the Countess on the fly-leaf of Madame de Staels' book "Corinne," and was one of the many the poet addressed to his beloved:

"My dearest Teresa—I have read this book in your garden; my love, you were absent or else I could not have read it. It is a favorite book of yours and the writer a favorite of mine. You will not understand these English words and others will not understand them—which is the reason why I have not scrawled them in Italian.

"But you will recognize the handwriting of him who passionately loved you, and you will divine, that, over a book which was yours, he could only think of love.

"In that word, beautiful in all languages, but most so in yours, amor mio, is comprised my existence here and hereafter. I feel I exist here; and I feel I shall exist hereafter, to what purpose you will decide; my destiny rests with you, and you are a woman, seventeen years of age and too out of a convent. I wish you had stayed there with all my heart, or, at least, that I had never met you in your married state. But all this is too late. I love you and you love me—at least you say so and act as if you did so, which last is a great consolation in all events.

"But I more than love you, and cannot cease to love you. Think of me sometimes when the Alps and ocean divide us. But they never will, unless you wish it. "Byron."

Fall Fashions for the Little Ones

Peg-topped rompers are fashionable for very young men and shops are showing bloomer dresses with a new collar for small girls.

An attractive example of the latter was made of tangerine colored cotton crepe and trimmed with brown velveteen stitched with blue and brown yarn.

Velveteen, by the way, is expected to be fashionable for all two to ten-year-olds—at least so we are told by those designers who consider children's clothes very serious matters.

Velveteen will be used especially for little girls' dresses and the favorite trimmings will be ribbon quilling and hand embroidery.

Long waists and straight lines, they tell us, will be modish for little girls as well as their mothers, and several new materials are promised for coats and dresses.

PERCENTAGE OF INFANTILE DEATHS HERE IS VERY HIGH

Average Mortality Is Computed as Sixteen Per Cent. of the Number of Births—Appalling Comparison.

An estimate of a "normal" rate of infant mortality—that is, the death rate among infants that may be expected at any time under the best conditions—has been placed by competent authorities at from five to eight per cent. of the total number of births. That is, the number who will die between birth and the first twelve months of life. Taking into consideration the assertion, undeniable on the face of it, that the highest death rate is in industrial centres, and the fact that Peterborough, although an industrial city, still retains most of the natural aspects of a small-town community, the percentage of infantile deaths in Peterborough is abnormally high. The average mortality of sixteen per cent. revealed by official figures for the first six months of this year, is one of which the rate stood at 27 per cent. is appalling, when compared with figures compiled in recent years in some of the large, over-crowded, industrial centres of the United States, which stand as follows: In New York, 8.1; St. Louis, 7.5; Boston, 9.6; Pittsburg, 11.5; Cleveland, 9; Philadelphia, 8.9; Buffalo, 10.9; Detroit, 9.6; Chicago, 9.1; Baltimore, 9.7.

In the city of New York, an infant mortality rate of 9.4 in the year 1914 was lowered to a rate of 9.1 in 1919, through the use of preventive measures and a general campaign against contributory causes. A resume of these efforts is interesting, including, as they did, a campaign for better, cleaner milk; a renewed interest in municipal sanitation, such as better paving and cleaning of streets, and more adequate measures for disposal of garbage, ashes and rubbish, and for installation of interior plumbing; a determined extermination of the common house-fly, and, finally, the encouragement of a system of pre-natal nursing, in the home visiting of community nurses, to dispense advice and instruction to expectant mothers. In 1918, Bailey B. Burritt, one of the investigators of such conditions in New York City, said: "Last year there was 5,118 deaths of infants, under one month of age in New York City, 2,559 of whose lives might have been saved if educational nursing of their mothers had been available."

Unsanitary conditions, bad housing, wage-earning mothers and low-wage fathers are other factors, more noticeable in the larger centres. "While poverty exists, infantile life will be needlessly wasted," says one authority, while another, Miss Julia C. Lathrop, chief of the Children's Bureau at Washington, D. C., says: "Maternal ignorance is often regarded as the chief factor in the causation of excessive child mortality. There is little reason to believe that the average ignorance of the working-class mother is much greater than that of mothers in other classes of society, but the ignorance of the working-class mother is dangerous, because it is associated with relative social helplessness. To remedy this, what is needed is that the environment of the infant of the poor should be levelled up with that of the infant of the well-to-do, and that medical advice and nursing assistance should be made available for the poor as promptly as it is for persons of high social status."

Factors necessary for a definite campaign to reduce the mortality amongst infants under one year of age are considered to be:

1.—Medical and nursing care at the service of all mothers of infants.

2.—Adequate teaching in the normal hygiene of maternity and infancy made available for all girls and women.

3.—Community responsibility for decent housing and sanitation.

4.—A decent income, self-respectingly earned by the father is the beginning of wisdom in these matters; the only fair division of labor between the father and mother of young children, and the strongest safeguard against a high infant mortality rate.

EXPECTS TO SHIP COAL TO CANADA

British Collieries Anticipate a Big Demand.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(Associated Press)—A question of immediate practical interest, raised in England by the American demand for British coal, is that of the capacity of the British mining industry to meet the demands with the least injury to the requirements of other customers.

The pressure continues to increase, and it is estimated that the American requirment will soon approximate 100,000 tons a day. The tonnage already taken up, however, does not justify that estimate, for the fixtures reported since the boom began represent a deadweight capacity of between 600,000 and 700,000 tons only. A circumstance to be reckoned with is the advent of Canada in business.

There are many indications in the supply of bituminous and anthracite coal from the United States on which Canada, under normal conditions, depends exclusively, and in the event of a continuancy of the coal and railway difficulties in the United States, a strong demand or large supply of English coal from Canada will doubtless soon have to be reckoned with. Coincident with the inquiries from America, there is a growing demand from Germany and the Scandinavian countries or Northumberland, Durham, Yorkshire and Scottish coal.

These markets in which South Wales competes only to an insignificant extent, but the more the northern coalfields export to the Continent of Europe, the less they will have or shipment to America and the more acute will become the demand from the United States for Welsh coal. This gives rise to the question as to what the Welsh coalfields can sell to America under existing conditions.

The margin for the coal-exporting districts is bout 680,000 tons a week. No arbitrary limit can be placed to the quantity which it is possible for the colleries to produce in a seven-hour day, but the circumstances under which trade has been carried on during the past 12 months go to show that it is not possible to improve to any appreciative extent on that quantity.

Studebaker

SPECIAL-SIX TOURING

Was ~~$2075~~ Now $1795

SAVINGS resulting from capacity manufacture are now offered to the buyer of the Studebaker Special-Six. The new price of $1795 is $280 under its former price.

Studebaker reductions became effective August 7th after Studebaker had completed the biggest seven months in its 70 years' history. And at a time when Studebaker had 15,000 unfilled orders on hand! It is a Studebaker policy of long standing to share manufacturing savings with the customer.

The performance, durability, comfort and quality of the Special-Six is recognized everywhere. And here's new proof of its endurance: Studebaker's sales of repair parts, covering accidents as well as service, for the first seven months of 1922 averaged but $7.00 per car. That's less than they were for the first seven months of 1919, in spite of the fact that 186,000 new cars were sold and put into operation since January 1, 1920.

The Special-Six at $1795 represents a new standard of value—the greatest value Studebaker has ever offered, and that means a value that is positively unapproached anywhere in the industry.

Cowl lights; cowl ventilator; massive head lamps; tonneau light with long extension cord; rain-proof, one-piece windshield; windshield wiper; eight-day clock; thief-proof transmission lock; tool compartment in left front door.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the house where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Diamond Dust

Manager Jake Solomon yesterday notified the officials of the Central Ontario League that the Peterboro team would not participate in the future in any game in which either Umpire MacDonald or Gloster were the arbiters. The schedule for the Umps calls for MacDonald on bases in the Peterboro-Leaside game on September 9 and Gloster behind the bat for the Oshawa-Peterboro game on September 13.

* * *

Cobourg paper has the following:

Mac Donald, the Toronto umpire in the Central League, is making a very poor showing, and without a doubt it will be his last year in this league. He should never have been appointed in the first place. At Belleville yesterday for the second time in succession, he was half an hour late in arriving, and Umpire Barnes, of Cobourg, handled the game alone until he arrived. MacDonald's decisions on balls and strikes were weird, and twice Pitcher Heckman of Peterboro walked off the diamond. Heckman is not easily riled, but MacDonald's decisions must have been pretty rank when Heckman will object that strenously.

RADIO 26 YEARS DEVELOPING

The progress of radio has not been so fast as its last year's development would lead people to believe. In fact, it has been even slower in gaining popularity than the automobile.

It was 26 years ago that Marconi succeeded in signalling without wires for a distance of 100 years. For years before 1896 he had been experimenting on his father's farm in Italy.

One year later he signalled nine miles and in two months increased distance to 12 miles. In July, he signalled 20 miles and in his wireless message crossed Atlantic Ocean.

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

The mashie is never taken back as far as the wood clubs are, and the proper mashie shot, in my opinion, has very little wrist action in it. The arms and wrists are kept stiff and the clubhead swings exactly like a pendulum, picking up the ball and sending it forward. Too many players strive to hit the ball up off the ground. All you have to do with the mashie is snap the clubhead through the ball; the loft of the club will attend to getting the ball up.

Here is a perfect form for the finish of a mashie approach shot, the picture showing how Bob McDonald, the great Bob O' Link professional, does it. The body must never be permitted to get into the golf shot, and this applies particularly to the mashie swing; the stroke is made entirely with the arms and shoulders, and the introduction of any other bodily effort will destroy accuracy.

Athletic Commission Will Stage Track and Field Day

Events Will Be Open to Both Public and Separate School Pupils From Peterboro and Surrounding Counties—Medals For Winners.

Saturday, September 23, bids fair to be one of the biggest field days for the youngsters of this vicinity that they have seen in years. Plans are under way, and in fact are practically complete, for the Ontario Athletic Commission's sports day, the arrangements being in the hands of the P.A.A.A. The events will be open to all school children of both the Public and the Separate schools and will include races and other events for girls as well as for boys.

Prizes consisting of gold, silver and bronze medals will be presented for first, second and third in each event, with four gold medals for the winning team in the relay race.

Capt. Edward Archibald, former Olympic champion pole vaulter, has been in town for some days past assisting in drawing up the plans and is taking a close and active interest in the meet.

Notifications have been sent to the School Inspectors in the counties of Peterborough, York, Victoria, Ontario, Haliburton, Durham and Northumberland, and entries are expected from schools in all these districts. No entrance fee will be charged and the meet will be open to all pupils in both Public and Separate schools.

The events will include: 75-yard dash for boys 13 years and under; 75-yard dash for girls 15 and under; 100-yard dash for boys 15 and under; 220-yard dash for boys 15 and under; running broad jump for boys 13 years and under; running broad jump for boys 15 years and under; running high jump for boys 15 years and under; pole vault for boys 15 years and under; 8-pound shot put for boys 15 years and under; 880-yard relay for teams of four boys, each to run 220 yards.

A committee has been appointed to look after the Peterborough entries, with Walter Smail, Chairman, pro tem; J. Munro and A. Parks, representing the Public schools; J. Sullivan and J. Corcoran, representing the Separate schools, and Dr. Frank, representing the P.A.A.A. This committee will hold a meeting in the immediate future to take any necessary action.

Peterborough should be well represented at this meet, for the school meets held during the early summer showed that there is some excellent material in the local schools. These boys have already had some practice in these early meets and should give a good account of themselves against the other schools.

Wichita Falls Winner in 25 Straight Ball Games

The Wichita Falls baseball team, Texas league, set a new record for the league and came within two games of tying the world's record for consecutive wins.

The team won 25 straight games, coming within two of the world's record held by the Corsicana team old Texas league, in 1922, and the Baltimore Orioles, International league, in 1921.

The major league record is 26 straight wins, held by John McGraw's Giants, and set in 1916.

This large number of victories brought the Wichita Falls club from the bottom of the league in standings for the second half to the top, leading by three full games.

The winning series was cut short on Saturday, Aug. 13, when the Dallas Marines defeated the lucky team by a score of 4 to 1.

The list of victories began on July 21, when the Wichita Falls Spudders captured a 16-inning game from Dallas, 2 to 1. After that they took a series of games from each team in the league with the exception of Fort Worth, which feat they had accomplished, however, before the string started.

In the 25 victories the Spudders scored 194 runs as against 83 for their opponents. All the games, with the exception of one, were on home grounds.

Baseball Records Go by the Board in Hectic Bathing Bee

CHICAGO, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Two baseball records were smashed and two other marks were equalled in a hectic slugging match which Chicago won from Philadelphia yesterday by a score of 26 to 23.

The total runs scored by both clubs — forty-nine — is the biggest score in a game of all time, according to records available here.

On 12th July, 1890, Brooklyn and Buffalo (P.L.) scored 44 runs. The previous world's mark, made since 1876 was forty-three runs made in the game between Chicago and Louisville on 29th June 1894, when Chicago collected 36 and Louisville 7. The greatest score since 1900 was made in the Boston-Philadelphia game of 20th May, 1901, when a total of 35 runs was scored.

The record for the most hits by both teams since 1900 in one game was also shattered, a total of 51 hits being made. Newark and Cincinnati in the National League scored 49 hits during a contest on 9th June, 1901. St. Louis and Cleveland, while in the American Association, made 53 hits on 30th April, 1887. Bases on balls at that time, however, were counted as hits. Philadelphia outhit Chicago yesterday 26 to 23.

Outfielder Callaghan, of the Chicago Club, equalled the world's record for the number of times to face a pitcher in one inning. He came up three times during the fourth inning batting rally of the Cubs, and smashed out two hits and struck out once. This record is shared by T. Burns, Fred Pfeffer, F. Goldsmith, and Billy Sunday, who faced the pitcher three times each in the seventh inning of a game between Chicago and Detroit on 3rd September, 1883. This record was tied on 18th June, 1894, by T. McCarthy in the first inning of the Baltimore-Boston game in the National League, and again by R. L. Murphy, in the Washington-Baltimore (American Association) first inning on 17th June, 1891.

By scoring 14 runs in one inning, the Cubs tied the modern major league record made by the New York Americans against Washington on 6th July, 1920. They also came within four runs of tying the world's mark of 18 made in the Detroit-Chicago game of 6th September, 1883.

It required three hours and one minute to play the game.

FOR FLYWEIGHT TITLE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press)—Johny Buff, American flyweight champion and former holder of the world bantamweight title, and Pancho Villa, Philippine flyweight yesterday were matched for a flyweight contest in Brooklyn, September 11.

UMPIRE RELEASED.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press)—John Conway Tool, President of the International League yesterday announced the release of Umpire William McGowan effective September first. McGowan has been under suspension since last Monday. He was involved in a fist fight with two Syracuse players at Baltimore on August 20.

RUGBY PLAYERS HOLD MEETING

Many Matters of Importance Discussed at Last Night's Meeting.

At the meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Association held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last evening entries were received from three teams, and it is expected that the P.C.I. team will also be entered as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. The teams entered included one composed of the old boys of P.C.I., sponsored by Max Sloan; one composed chiefly of players from the Belmont Club, sponsored by Dr. Frank, and a team from the south end of the city, sponsored by Sergeant Jack Deanard and Louis LeBarr.

These teams will hold meeting early next week to appoint a member to the Executive Committee and decide the attitude they will take toward financing of the City League and the team to be entered in the O.R.F.U.

A hope was expressed at last night's meeting that all the teams would see fit to allow the association to handle the finances of both the City League and the O.R.F.U. team and so save a great deal of confusion.

The matter of grounds was discussed, and the President was given the power to go ahead and make arrangements. It was not definitely decided when the opening games should be played, but the league will probably start on 16th September.

A letter from the Secretary of the O.R.F.U. was read regarding the entry of a Peterborough team in the union, and the President was instructed to reply outlining the plans for the local team.

ELKS HAVE FOUGHT A FRUITLESS FIGHT

Now Hold the Cellar Position With the Beavers, But Hope to Pull Out in Final Game.

The Elks ball team hold the cellar position with the Beavers in the fight for Jerry Coughlin's Cup in the Corner Lot League. There remains one more game in the league—between these two teams occupying the lowly position of last—and the Elks have hopes of leaving the East City gang in complete possession of the cellar.

Ed. Vinette and his crew have had an uphill fight all the way. Manager Vinette thought the championship looked easy when he lined up his players early in the season, but he reckoned without the attraction of the "Old Swimming 'Ole." Many of his players were to be found in the river instead of on the diamond when a game was in progress, and many times he had to press would-be rooters into service as ball-chasers in the garden lots.

Ed. Vinette did most of the pitching himself. He has a world of steam, but lacks control, and in another season he ought to be one of the best. In the last couple of games Ken. Baker worked nicely behind the bat and Mike O'Brien covered the ground around second in fine style during the entire season.

The Auburn gang have strong designs on the cup next year, and Manager Vinette hopes to get his team to play ball and forget the river.

NOW IN PRO. CLASS.

McKenna.

The latest star of the "Simon Pure" ranks to turn professional is Charley McKenna of New York, national, state and metropolitan heavyweight champion.

McKenna has signed a five-year contract to work under a management of Ike Dorgan and in his amateur starts has made so profound an impression that experts declare him to be excellent material for stardom in the professional pugilistic world.

HUGGINS SAYS 92 GAMES WILL WIN

Race Is Not the Same As Last Year—Good Chance For a Dark Horse to Step In and Win.

BY BILLY EVANS.

Miller Huggins says 92 games will win the pennant in the American League this year.

Last season Huggins, who knows his baseball, said that 96 games would be enough to win.

Huggins' dope was correct. The Yankees won 98 and lost 55 for a percentage of .641 in 1921. The Yankees won the pennant.

This year Huggins says that 92 games will be enough to win. When asked for an explanation of why he figured less games would win this year than last, he simply replied:

The opinion of Manager Huggins bears out the statement I made in a recent article, that this was a season made to order for a dark horse to slip in and win the pennant unless the New York club soon hit its stride.

At the opening of the season the Yankees were generally picked to win the New York club with its great pitching staff and hard hitters certainly loomed up as the class of the league.

Things have not broken for the Yankees as it had been hoped. The club is not out in front by a goodly margin as the experts felt certain it would.

The American League race has consideration. The Athletics and Bostons appear to be the only clubs that haven't a good chance. The great pitching staff of the Yankees seems to have hit its stride. If the sluggers start whaling the ball, the Yanks will prove most troublesome.

Will 92 games win the American League pennant?

The National League has been in existence since 1876. During that time only one club has won a pennant with 92 games on the right side of the ledger.

This was in 1915 when the Phillies came through with a percentage of .592.

The American League has been doing business since 1900 and in those 21 years, three clubs have won a pennant with a slightly smaller percentage than Huggins figures to win in 1922.

The clubs are evenly balanced in the American League this year. Every game is a battle. There are no soft spots. That is why 92 games won may cop the pennant. That is why a majority of the clubs have a look in.

The terse statement of Manager Huggins best explains the situation in the American League.

BILL HART CASE

(By H. I. Phillips.)

Well, Bill Hart has hung up a new record for moving picture actors. He has lived almost a year with his latest wife!

* * *

Last December Bill, most famous of two-gun movie stars, got off his horse and out of his cowboy clothes long enough to take unto himself Lillian Westover, movie heroine, as his bride. It was a sort of Winning of the Westover, as one might say.

* * *

Forty million sweet young movie fans throughout the country who had come to love Bill via the cinema heaved heavy sighs, tore up their programmes, and vowed they'd just have to give him up for eight or ten weeks.

* * *

They based their reckoning on previous experiences with movie idols who had put on the yoke of matrimony. But William fooled them. He and his wife went on living in the same house and everything for—let's see—yes, nigh on to eight months!

* * *

All of which is hailed by Will Hays, Mogul of the Movie World, as a sign of great changes for the better in the sinema—beg pardon, cinema—world. The case of Mr. and Mrs. Hart, avers Will, is significant as proving a tendency among movie people to remain together long enough after the ceremony to spell out their full names for each other. Eventually a movie actor and movie actress will enter the state of wedlock and remain together long enough to get quite well acquainted, he predicts.

* * *

Mr. Hays has just returned from a study of Hollywood. He returned unwounded and without becoming mixed up in any scandal so far as is known. The story was circulated that as film-master general he had tried to arbitrate in the difficulty between Hart and his bride, but the former G.O.P. chief had only to point to his record as a politician to prove that he knew better than to try that sort of thing.

* * *

Just what led to Hart's estrangement hasn't been announced. It is understood Bill argued that married life cramped his style when it came to shooting up prairie saloons for six-reel thrillers and that it took away a lot of time he ought to devote to the care of his horses, saddles and firearms.

* * *

After a man has been spending years riding mustangs up and down mountain sides, across swollen streams, up steps, into the dance halls of polka saloons and 'round and 'round the movie camera it becomes very difficult for him to sit quietly around his own home with nobody to pay any attention to him except his wife.

* * *

"It was like this," said a friend of the unhappy couple in a special interview for this department, "Bill was so used to firearms and horses that he just couldn't live in an atmosphere without 'em. If the dear little bride had let him ride through the four rooms and bath on horseback, shooting away from a .43 automatic to his heart's content all would have been well. But she wouldn't allow it. I don't know that you can blame her; horses raise rim with new furniture and hardwood floors!

* * *

"This is merely a rumor and I wouldn't want it repeated, but I heard that the real cause of the split was a request by Mr. Hart that Mrs. Hart clean and polish his saddles. Hart has something like 23,456 saddles.

* * *

"Of course, there's much to be said on both sides. Now, take the case of Doug Fairbanks: I understand Doug, through mere force of habit, will be sitting in the parlor of his fine home when, without warning, he will let out a whoop, make a flying leap to the top of the piano, jump from that to the top of the bookcase, plunge through space, swing on the chandeliers, and finally hurl himself headlong through the stained glass windows. He's been doing it so long in the movies he can't help it. But his wife keeps right on reading her book and pays no attention to him. That's why they get along so well."

* * *

Be that as it may, there is a chance of a reconciliation soon. Now, if they could get together and have a Hart to Hart talk——.

A MUSICAL REVUE COMING TO GRAND

Jimmy Evans and Company Will Open The Season On Labor Day.

The announcement of the Jimmie Evans Big Musical Revue at the Opera House for an indefinite period commencing Monday, September 4th (Labor Day), Matinee and night.

To theatre critics it is an established fact that the Evans show is the most unusual musical comedy offering that has ever entered the Ontario field. With a record of over three years, booked solidly in Canada, and runs in cities that never have been equalled, the show will be seen by local audiences complete in every detail, with special electrical effects and costuming, the same as has been offered by the bigger and better class theatre at a dollar and a half top price. The show has a record of 42 week's engagement in Halifax, N.S.; 36 weeks in St. John, N.B., 18 weeks Moncton, N.B. and 18 weeks at Sydney, N.S. From which territory the show made an unbroken jump direct to the New Bedford Theatre for four weeks engagement following they played a 4 weeks engagement in Boston. They then open at the Grand for an indefinite run, coming direct from Boston.

With Mr. Evans will be seen many popular favorites of the legitimate stage; many among them have been recognized with the big Broadway productions of the past few years, and it is to this fact and the high class performance given that Mr. Evans can attribute his marked success. Among those in the cast will be heard Miss Grace Palmer, late prima donna with the Pitter Patter Co., Harry Conners, formerly with the "Winter Garden Four," Joe Dewin McKenna, Miss Lucile Clifford, Miss Florence Pippin, Larry Goft, and a chorus of beautiful girls who hold records for waltz clog, hard shoe and soft shoe dancing and the more difficult and intricate acrobatic dance numbers.

The show is known as a singing and dancing revue and no comparison can be made between the Evans production and the so called lighter musical offering of the present day, as they are equipped with material to play an engagement of eight weeks and never repeat scenery or costumes. A special car is carried to transport the scenery and other effects. A cast of 25 people is required to interpret the scripts which were written and produced exclusively for this company. A policy new to the Peterboro patrons will be introduced which should register the approval of the lovers of all kinds of amusement as the programme will include in addition to the show, vaudeville features, the same as is now being offered by the bigger houses throughout the country. Pre-war prices will prevail. Special feature added for the children on Saturday matinees. Prices 20, 30, 50 and 75c, gallery 10c.

In her ne wpicture, Miss Dana has one of the most diverting of her many delightful roles. It gives her ample opportunity for indulging in the brand of comedy for which she has become famous. The story is thoroughly interesting and is sure to prove one of the most popular of this famous star's productions.

Miss Dana is cast as Diana Webster, a millionaire orphan, who makes her home with her charming aunt and brother. She goes to the city on a shopping tour, accompanied by her aunt's suitor. Because of the storm their car is stuck in the muddy road and they are obliged to put up at the only hotel in the village. To save themselves inconvenience and questioning by the hotel owners, they decide to register as man and wife. Diana returns home a few days later, and finds there as a guest of her brother, Bruce Terring. Bruce recognises her as the girl he had seen at the hotel, accompanied by a man. To him, seeing is believing; and when Diana tells him that she is unmarried, he gallantly informs her that her "secret" is safe with him.

Diana plans to turn the tables on Bruce, of whom she becomes very fond, and decides to place him in an equally compromising situation, and then appear on the scene at the right moment to prove to him that what we see is not always to be believed. To put her scheme across, she enlists the aid of an actor and his wife. Instead of carrying out her practical joke, the "actors" prove to be professional blackmailers and succeed in involving Diana in a serious predicament. How she and her friends are extricated from a plot which, for a time, threatens to land them in jail, is told in the conclusion of this highly entertaining comedy-drama.

In support of Miss Dana are Allan Forrest, Edward Connelly, Gertrude Astor, Philo McCulough, Harold Goodwin, Josephine Crowell, and others.

"Seeing's Believing" was adapted for the screen by Edith Kennedy from a story by Rex Taylor. It is a Harry Beaumont production for Metro, and wes photographed by John Arnold.

RADIO REPLACES PARK BANDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The brass bands that have been entertaining fresh air seekers in New York's parks will soon see their last days. Radio will replace them.

This is one of the changes in public entertainment that has just been decided on by the city officials. It will be inaugurated when the new municipal broadcasting station is completed atop the Municipal Building. A room has been set aside for the studio and another for the transmitting station.

Alterations are being made also on the bank stands of every park in the city. Instead of the music racks for the musicians there will be a receiving set and loud speakers. In this way a single concert broadcast from the Municipal Building will be heard in all parts of the city.

When noted persons are received by the city, the ceremonies will be broadcast through this central station. At other times, official city news will be sent out.

1,000 RADIO PATENTS.

More than 1,000 patents have already been issued by the U. S. Patent Office, covering new designs of materials connected with radio. Between 2,000 and 3,000 patents are pending. With this work ahead of the officials for investigation and approval, the patent office is one of the busiest places in Washington.

Change No Advantage.

A Missourian from the Ozarks recently went to the city to see the sights. He had never been in a big city before. He walkd down the streets, looking in the windows and enjoying himself hugely. At one place he saw a sign reading, "Woman's Exchange."

He hurried into the store, which was filled with various specimens of feminine handicraft.

"Is this the Woman's Exchange?" he asked.

"It is," answered a very tall, very gaunt and very spinsterlike person behind the counter.

"Be you the woman?" and he eyed her keenly.

"I guess I am."

"Wall, I guess I'll keep Sal," he said, and hurried out.

The Latest News.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Jones!" exclaimed Mr. Brown. "What a coincidence, meeting you. I ran into your husband an hour ago."

"How funny!" replied Mrs. Jones. "And how did you think he was looking?"

"Pretty poorly."

"Well, I'm surprised to hear you say that. Everyone says he is looking much better lately."

"Well, he looked bad enough an hour ago," said Mr. Brown.

"I wonder why that was," said Mrs. Jones.

"Oh, I can tell you that," said Mr. Brown. "You see, I was in my car when I ran into him."

"Hugo, First" Supplants the Kaiser As Germany's Uncrowned Ruler

By MILTON BRONNER.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—There is still a foolish impression abroad in America that the great war was fought for the aggrandizement of the House of Hohenzollern and, especially, of Emperor Wilhelm the Second of Germany. Come here to the immense capital of the country, or visit the Ruhr Valley and you will find many who will swear the conflict was fought for the enrichment of the House of Stinnes and that Hugo the First, Only and Unique, is really the uncrowned king of this so-called republic.

BRONNER

King Hugo the First is everything Wilhelm Hohenzollern was not. Wilhelm was blond and erect, Hugo is black and stooping. Wilhelm was talkative as a hungry parrot. Hugo is silent as the traditional claim. Wilhelm sought the limelight. Hugo flees from it. Wilhelm loved to be photographed. Hugo avoids the snap shotters as if they had the black plague.

Wilhelm liked to doll up in glad rags. Hugo wears the same old black suit and claps an old "dice-box" on his head. Wilhelm made a bluff at appreciating all the arts. The only picture Hugo likes is the lithograph of a factory with the smoke pouring from all its chimneys.

Their single resemblance is that the Hohenzollern power was founded when the family made themselves masters of the Mark of Brandenburg and the Stinnes power was founded when they got hold of a coal pit at Mulheim.

How Stinnes Started.

Back in Napoleonic times Matthias Stinnes at the age of 18 started the family fortunes. The Stinnes before him had worked on the Ruhr and the Rhine. They were shipping people, engaged in hauling produce up and down the rivers in the days before steamships and railways.

To Matthias came a vision. Coal was supplanting wood as a fuel. He would combine three businesses—shipping, coal digging and coal selling. His own ships would carry his own coal to his own yards. It was a simple formula, but he worked it out long before his neighbors.

Everything his famous grandson has done has been to expand this formula until now the Stinnes enterprises, instead of being confined to the Ruhr region, are spread all over Germany, and extend into Finland, Sweden, Austria and Switzerland.

The capital with which Matthias Stinnes started his career was exactly 1240 depreciated Rhenish German thalers. But he was enterprising. He was the first to introduce the steamship into the Rhine hauling business. At his death in 1845 he possessed four coal mines, a shipyard, a fleet of coal carrying ships and barges and 29 coal yards where the fuel was supplied to the purchasing community.

All the Stinnes family had to do was to keep the property together and grow up with the country. No boom district in America ever saw an increase in wealth, population and industry similar to that of the Rhenish Westphalian region centred about the waters of the Rhine and the Ruhr. This was especially marked after Germany's victorious war with France in 1870. This gave her Lorraine, whose precious iron was added to the boundless coal of the Ruhr. Cities sprang up like magic.

Unaffected by War.

Today even—with Germany defeated, Lorraine back in French hands and world business in the doldrums—there are few scenes like those to be witnessed in the Stinnes home country. Take all the towns around Pittsburg in America and Birmingham in England, multiply them by five and you have the Ruhr.

It was amid such surroundings that Hugo Stinnes grew up. The coal and smoke seem to have entered his blood and colored his hair. That's why Dr. Herman Brinckmeyer, a noted German publicist, called Stinnes an animated lump of coal and a German newspaper called him an Assyrian king. His black hair, his dead white face, his curved nose make many think him of Jewish blood. But he isn't. Back to Luther the Stinnes have been Evangelical Protestants.

Started Early.

In his early years Stinnes had a career similar to that of many sons of American business men. He went to a commercial school in Coblenz, got some practical work in a coal mine and completed his education at a mining academy in Essen.

At 19 he entered the Stinnes firm and at 23, emulating his grandfather, he struck out for himself. Characteristically he called his firm "Hugo Stinnes, Incorporated." His capital was 50,000 marks. Even 29 years ago that wasn't a large sum in the Ruhr, but it sufficed.

Stinnes went forward from success to success. He did not excite the public imagination, nor stir it to fear, anger or admiration. He was just one of many German business men who were piling up their coin. He lived plainly and simply in his native Mulheim. His office was and still is just a little room with a desk and a few chairs. The same simplicity rules today in his offices in Berlin.

The war both gave Stinnes his opportunities and made him well known. Stinnes had in his hands the things a war-making nation needs the most.

Monarchist circles became aware of Stinnes' existence. He was often called to Berlin for consultation. He became a valued adviser on industrial mobilization of German resources. And what is remembered against him most bitterly today in Germany, and especially in radical circles, is that he advocated policies that gave Germany such a black name.

They say he urged the submarine war to the limit. They say he advocated the dismantling of Belgian mills. And finally they say he advocated the wholesale deportation of Belgian men and women who were carried into Germany to replace the labor Germany lost when she sent her last sons to the war.

Since the armistice Stinnes has played an even larger part in Germany's life. He has brought about combination after combination in big business. He has formed both horizontal trusts—in which one commodity like coal is dealt with—and vertical trusts in which, for instance, iron ore is taken and put through every process from pig iron up to and including a thousand articles manufactred of steel or of cast iron.

Stinnes' name appears in the editorials and news columns of the German papers and is heard on the lips of political speakers as much as that of the ex-kaiser in former days.

Indeed he has accomplished something no Hohenzollern ever achieved. He has added a new word to the dictionary. When an editor writes that a business has been "Stinnesiert," everybody in Germany knows it means the business has been gobbled up by one of the Stinnes trusts. He has been called hard names such as "vampire of the proletariat" and "immoral opportunist."

Ambition Unknown.

Nobody knows what his real ambition is. Some time ago a German labor leader, after a somewhat heated conference with him, bluntly asked: "Why do you work so hard to pile up the money?" Stinnes' answer was: "For my children." There are six of them and the boys are in business with him.

Stinnes has never revealed his real self. When he speaks in the Reichstag, where he is one of the representatives of the German People's party, it is with a high reedy voice which is unimpressive. And his utterances are mainly about business matters.

I was specially interested to find out how he got along with the nearly million men who work for Stinnes or the enterprises in which he is a large shareholder.

He himself is quoted in a labor pamphlet as saying: "When we want to undertake a big business proposition we ask two questions first of all. First, who is the man will direct it? Second, where are the thorough workmen? If one can't find both, one lets the thing alone. We must have this division of work in the future, too. We must leave to the undertaker of the enterprise what is his—the direction. And we must strive to see that the workers get the greatest possible benefit of the enterprise."

"Ford of Germany."

Some people call him the Ford of Germany. They tell you that he leads in paying good wages. They say he led in building homes and workmen's colonies and was one of the first to institute workmen's committees which could recite their grievances to the bosses.

But I found the great labor paper, Vorwearts, was opposed to Stinnes as anti-social. As one of the editorial staff explained to me: "Stinnes pays good wages, but with the understanding that he is going to demand big prices. He thus seeks to set his workmen up against the nation as a whole. He seeks to segregate his men. We want fair pay for his workmen, but we also want fair play for the whole people of Germany."

In his next story Bronner tells how Stinnes built up his huge empire.

You left behind a vacant chair
Which no one else can fill.

You suffered long and patiently,
You murmured not at all,
But God said "come," and cheerfully
You answered "I give my all."

You lived your life for others,
Your service you did give,
Our prayer is that all mothers
May live as you did live.

BY STUART P. WEST.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.— (Special to The Examiner.)—Industrial shares were well sustained and a number of them were decidedly strong whiue the Rails were disposed to sag in to-day's dull market.

There might have been some selling in the Railway list induced by the present threat to seize all roads which could not provide adequate facilities as the result of the shopmens strike. But the slight decline in this section of the market could have been explained just as well by the technical position, the necessity of some reaction after an advance which had lasted for over a week and carried prices up two points or more.

The outside news, apart from the strike developments, was favorable. Latest Washington information that the bonus bill was not likely to be repassed over a veto was decidedly welcomed from the standpoint of the investment community. It had no immediate influence upon Liberty Bonds or upon the rest of the bond market of the day, but it was a supporting factor in trading.

So too, the check to decline of the foreign exchanges was helpful. Cable advises that the German Reichs Bank had sought to stem the panic by dumping over dollars and foreign securities in exchange for marks accounted for the restoration from Friday's low of 04. 1-2 to 05. 1-2, the quotation to-day. Francs and other continental rates improved with marks.

In the stock market there were a number of interesting features. The public utility group was notable for new high records in North American and Consolidated Gas, American Tobacco Stocks, which on the investment yield have been selling out of line, had a brisk advance. An early decline in Studebaker was speedily checked and the stock went up again. American Telephone and Telegraph with a further recovery, continued to reflect a restive view of the financial plan, which is that the new stock will be readily taken and that the extra dividend requirements will be easily covered from the increased revenue after the expenditure of the proceeds of the offering.

MONTREAL, Aug. 25. —Closing stock letter:

Canadian Market.—The tone of the local market continued good. Montreal Power was no doubt the leader, selling up a point to 99. National Breweries rose 2 points to 56 on renewal of pool activities. Can Steamers Pfd. demonstrated that the floating supply has been taken off the market the shares easily rising to 54. In the papers Laurentide and Wayagamack featured with rises of 2 and 3 points respectively, Riordon remained neglected, and sold at 8. It is understood that the holding of a defunct pool are being liquidated. In connection with this property the Wall Street Journal says: "This company is working to capacity and steadily reducing obligations. It probably has the greatest potential assets of all the Canadian pulp and paper companies."—Bryant Brothers Limited.

IS ONE OF GREATEST WOMEN OF THE DAY.

Winnipeg papers are suggesting to their women readers just now the possibiltiy of an invitation being extended to Miss A. Maude Royden, of England, to come to Canada after the tour which she is now making of the United States, under the auspices of the American Y.W.C.A.

Miss Royden, who is characterized as one of the greatest women of today, is one of the outstanding women lecturers of England. She was educated at Cheltenham College and later at Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford, where she took honors in modern history. At Oxford she was known as a brilliant debater. After completing her studies, she became a sort of "quasi-curate" in a poor country parish in Rutlandshire, and the rector, Rev. W. Hudson Shaw, said that he had discovered in his life only one true democrat as wholehearted in the faith as St. Francis of Assisi himself; and that one was Miss Maude Royden. Then for four years she lectured all over England under the Oxford University Extension Delegacy in History and Literature. A woman had never done it before and both the Oxford authorities and the audiences had to be convinced that a woman could do it. From 1905 to the outbreak of the war she gave all of her ability and enthusiasm to the suffrage movement. She lectured, work on committees, edited the suffrage paper. In 1917 Miss Royden accepted the position of pulpit assistant at the City Temple, London. Since then she has been preaching every Sunday to immense congregations. In collaboration with Dr. Percy Dearmer, she started in 1920 at the Kensington Hall "Fellowship Services."

One who heard Miss Royden speaking in Kensington Hall in the spring of 1920 says of her: "It was her logical thinking and her personality that dominated the meeting. She saw clearly and intended to 'live up to all she saw at any cost.'" "If we do not believe in the Sermon on the Mount in such sense that we consent to live by it when it is dangerous, we shall not find the world ready to listen to it when it is safe."

The secret of her influence is regarded by this writer as being exemplified in Carlyle's essay on Mirabeau: "The real quantity of our insight—depends on our patience, our fairness, our lovingness."

In her books, "Christian Obedience" and "Christ and Peace," she says:

"No man is converted by a preacher who does not in his life prove that he believes what he teaches; and everyone who does so is a preacher whether he speaks in pulpits or not. There is no missionary force like a life."

"What is the Christian ideal? Submission to evil? Resignation to the sufferings of others? No. 'Be not overcome with evil—but overcome evil with good.'"

Two Tubes Simplify Super-Regenerative Set

By Paul F Godley

America's Foremost Radio Authority

The circuit diagram of the super-regenerative method of reception shown in the first article of this series called for the performance of all the necessary functions by one tube.

As a matter of fact, two tubes may be used—with the circuits of the second and third articles associated.

To those not skilled in handling vacuum tube circuits this arrangement will prove simpler.

Conductive Coupling

It will be noted that Figures 1 and 2 differ only in the method of association or 'coupling'. Inductive coupling between the two circuits can scarcely give sufficently close coupling. Conductive coupling is, therefore, resorted to.

Thus the pick-up coil is actually made a part of the controller circuit A common battery supply is also used to simplify the set-up.

The controller circuit is adjusted to generate oscillations of approximately 10,000 a second. This produces ta wave length of about 30,000 meters.

The regenerative circuit is tuned to 360 meters and generates oscillations at the rate of about 830,000 a second.

To construct this two-tube super-regenerative set the following parts are required:

2 Amplifier tubes (gassy tubes will not do).
2 V. T. sockets.
2 Rheostats.
1 six-volt storage battery.
4 to 6 22 1-2 volt blocks of "B" batterp. 2
2 1500-turn honeycomb coils (125 M H.) (L3 and L4).
1 Air core choke. (L5).
1 By-pass condenser (fixed) with a capacity of .005 MF (C3).
1 "Vario-coupler" combining pick-up circuit inductance (L1) and Tickler inductance (L2).
1 Loop having a dozen turns, size 4 feet square.
3 Variable condensers having a capacity value of .001 MF (C1, C2, C4).

Most of these parts should be bought in a supply store. The money and effort expended in making them would not be commensurate with their utility.

Air Choke

It should be noted that condenser C2 is connected across grid and plate of the regenerative tube. Since its presence there would enable the passage of regenerated currents through it and thus prevent operation, an air core choke coil must be placed in series with it.

The coil will choke back the high frequenty currents without affecting the operating of the oscillator (controller) tube.

Such a choke may be made by winding 300 turns of No. 28 double cotton covered copper wire on a four inch tube.

Attention is also called to the insertion o condenser C4. This passes the regenerated energies to the grid of the oscillator tube. When this tube is in the positive half of its cycle, it provides, in effect, a short circuiting of the regenerative inductance L1— thus stopping the action of that tube.

A True Sign of Life

The spirit of "Keep Smiling" has aided the human race through the crisis of its history. The "Head up! Face forward! Keep Smiling!" attitude is to-day one of the most admired traits any person can possess. It is the attitude of success. It carries with it the surety of accomplishment.

Acquiring the "keep smiling" spirit is no easy task sometimes. The smile that keeps on smiling, that inspires others to smile, and gets its wearer over hard spots in the road to success is the smile that comes straight from the inside out; and that kind of a smile has good health, good humor, energy and determination written large in its curves. That's the smile that counts! Such a possession is worth more than dollars and cents. It is the symbol of Health. And Health plus ambition and pluck is the one combination that can't be beat when it comes to living a life.

The surest way to "keep smiling" is to keep healthy. The sanest and surest way to health is to take Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments.

GRIEF SELDOM EQUALLED FOR IRISH LEADER

Michael Collins Laid to Rest To-day—Immense Throngs Attend the Funeral.

ROMANTIC FIGURE

DUBLIN, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—After demonstration seldom equalled in long centuries of Irelands' troubled history, Michael Collins, heroic and spectacular leader of Irish Free State was laid to rest today in famed Glasnevin, where lies bones of many brave and noted Irishmen who gave their lives for Irelands' sake.

Arthur Griffith was buried with all honor due great leader; but Michael Collins, beloved adventurer, romantic figure, fighter and statesman, went to his grave amid tears of a nation that worshipped him for his gay bravery.

Good humor, power or oratory and laughing, disregard for death, were his, and while immense throngs filled cathedral and adjacent strets at funeral service, congregations gathered in every town and hamlet of Southern Ireland to mourn his passing.

Among those attending funeral were representatives of Provision government, including Richard Mulcahy new army chief, and General McKeon "blacksmith of Ballinalee" whose dash and fire have awakened akin to that won by Collins, Sean Collins, brother, sad figure of broken hearted Kitty Kiernan, Collins' bethrothed, civil servants, members of provincial corporations, English representatives and members of consular corps, Lord Mayor of Dublin, distinguished members of Universities and learned representatives of various public bodies.

Cortege Imposing.

The cortege was imposing. First came an advance guard of National army cavalrymen then several hundred clergy. A firing party of Dublin guards and then the gun carriage with the body surrounded by its guard of honor.

Following came the cabinet members and the general headquarters staff with the chief mourners riding in carriages. Then the members of the Dail walking slowly, followed by the Lord Mayor and the members of the Dublin corporation.

Next a piper band playing a dirge as they marched, and numerous delegations representing Irish activities and organizations.

The body was buried in the plot of ground reserved for those who have fallen in the cause of the Irish Free State in the existing was of rebellion.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Until medical or asylum authorities reverse the jury's verdict that Adelarde Delorme, alleged slayer of Raoul Delorme, is insane, Provincial Government will not interfere in the case. To-day, on his arrival, Premier Taschereau declared that the Government would not be represented at the interdiction proceedings here on Wednesday against Delorme.

THE IRISH SITUATION IS SUBJECT OF CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press). — Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, is here to-day conferring with Hon. Winston Churchill on the Irish situation, arising out of the deaths of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins.

DAY OF REST PROLONGED.

A coloured couple stood before the probation officer for the second time.

"Now this," the officer said to both, "seems to be to be a case where there is nothing very much the matter ,except that your tastes are different. You, Sam, are much older than your wife. It is a case of May married to December."

A slight pause, and then Eva, the wife, was heard to remark in a tired voice:

"I—I really doan't know what you means by yer saying May is married to December. If yer goin' to talk that way, it seems to be a case of Labour Day married to de Day of Rest."

Rail Maintenance of Way Men Asking Increase in Wages

CHICAGO, Ill., August 28 (Canadian Press). — Railway maintenance of way employees, comprising approximately four hundred thousand men whose threatened strike with the shop crafts last month was held in abeyance pending new wage hearings, placed their demands for increased pay before the United States Labour Board to-day.

They base their claim for higher wages on increased cost of living.

LOCAL POLICE RECOVER AUTO

Was Reported Missing by a Blacksmith in Bobcaygeon -- Police Court News.

A five-passenger automobile stolen from a blacksmith in Bobcaygeon early Sunday morning was recovered by the police here yesterday afternoon. It was in possession of Edward Kelsey, a young man who has lived here from time to time, but whose home is in Bobcaygeon. The blacksmith went to get his car at 11.30 yesterday and he found that during the night the lock had been sprung and the automobile stolen. He got in communication with the police here and his suspicions that Kelsey had taken the automobile proved correct. It was found that the young man had stolen other number plates and put them on the car, for the original markers were found under the seat. Kelsey will be prosecuted either in Lindsay or Bobcaygeon. Meanwhile he was nominally charged with vagrancy and remanded until Wednesday.

Carried a Gat.

Arthur Hines had a loaded pistol on his person when accosted by the police and he consequently faced the serious charge of unlawfully carrying firearms. To enquire into his antecedents the Chief of Police asked for a remand until Wednesday.

Fast driving on the Chemong road on the day of the park regatta cost Walter Jopling, John L. Johnston and Harold Sanderson, $10 and costs of $4.40 in court. In three cases County Constable A. R. Moore testified that their speed was over 40 miles an hour, and in the fourth Inspector J. Stewart gave the convicting evidence. Pleas of guilty were accepted in all the cases. Harold Sanderson pointed out the police had his number right, but not his name. He was set down in the information as "Bert." The Magistrate gave the speedsters two days to settle or spend a week in jail .The witness fees were divided three parts to A. R. Moore and one part to Inspetcor Stewart.

Stop Speeding.

Only eight spectators wandered into court to-day and interest fell at a very low ebb. Several went out. Another man came in and shook the building when he floundered to a bench. One of the spectators didn't bother to sit down but draped his person over the radiator. It is generally conceded that nothing short of an O. T. A. case will draw the crowd.

"This speeding has got to be stopped," declared the Magistrate, addressing himself to the 40 mile an hour drivers. "There are lives at stake, to say nothing of the property damage. There were two men killed at Belleville only the other day, and I intend to strictly administer the law here."

BANK ROBBED OF $10,000 IN CASH

Bandits Make Good Haul at Killarney, Man.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press.)— Ten thousand dollars in cash was secured by bank robbers who early to-day blew open the safe of the Bank of Hamilton branch at Killarney, Man., and escaped, probably by motor car, with more than three hours' start over the pursuit.

Similarity of method leads the police officials to believe that the bank was robbed by the gang which made attempts recently on bank vaults at MacGregor, Man., and Carievale, Sask. At MacGregor only $20 was secured, and at Carievale the bandits had no financial return whatever.

Some citizens of Killarney heard an explosion at 2.30 a.m., but apparently no attempt was made to investigate its cause. A business man discovered at 6 a.m. that the bank premises had been wrecked, and inquiry showed that the safe had been blown open and all the cash stolen. Securities were not taken. The telegraph and telephone wires had been cut.

AN ARAB GIRL MAKES A PLEA BEHALF SYRIA

Played a Prominent Part in Fomenting Revolt Against French Rule in Her Native Land.

NOW A FUGITIVE

HAIFA, Palestine, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Nazel al Abed, an Arab girl who played a prominent part in fomenting the revolt against French rule in Syria last May, and who later managed to escape from prison where she was serving a life sentence, gave the representative of The Associated Press an interview in which she set forth her reasons for the unpopularity of the French mandate in the Near East.

"The French press," she said, "accused Charles R. Crane, former American Minister to China, of being the cause of the disorders of last May. This is absolutely false. The disorders were the direct result of the oppressive and offensive rule of the mandatory power in Syria.

"We Syrian people," she continued, "are liberty loving. We pride ourselves on the fact that we are the intellectual and moral leaders of the Arabs. In welcoming the French army in 1918, we had hoped that France would help us realize our aspirations for self government. We have been deceived. Instead of just treatment, we find that our country is occupied by black troops, who are our inferiors; our government turned over to inexperienced French officials who try to government by force, and our leaders lodged in jails.

"In the face of all these abuses," she declared, "a nation can do no less than revolt and rid itself of the yoke of the oppressor."

Nazel al Abed is about 30 years of age, of commanding personality and with a great charm of manner. She was born in Damascus of a wealthy and influential family. A mission school provided her with an education which seems to have instilled into her heart the love of country and independence.

During the war she served in the Red Crescent, a Turkish organization similar to the American Red Cross. Since 1919 she has been the accredited leader of all the women organizations in Syria. Because of the part she played in organizing the demonstrations in Damascus last May, which resulted in great disorders and bloodshed, she was arrested and condemned to life imprisonment She remained in prison, however, but a short time, soon making her escape.

Asked if Syria is prepared as yet for independence Nazel de Abed replied: 'Those who know anything of Syrian politics will admit that so far the mandate system has proven an absolute failure. On the one hand it introduced fresh encroachments on the sovereignty of our beloved country in favor of an imperialistic power, and on the other hand it brought to us great social as well as commercial suffering due to the separation of Syria from her sister country Palestine."

Nazel al Abed complained that the world, and especially America, is so ill informed about Syria. "The French occupation," she asserted, "has been a curse instead of a blessing. We Syrian people to-day are treated like slaves. We are forced to accept French habits, French customs, a French civilization and even a French language, in spite of ourselves. Is it any wonder that we revolted last May?

'All we ask now is to be left alone, free to rebuild our country in undisturbed quiet; free to live our life in our own way, and to solve our problems after our own manners. We still hope that America will not fail to help us realize our aspirations."

PETERBORO GIRL WON PRIZE AT EXHIBITION

Graduate Local Business College Secures Canadian National Diploma.

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—Beatrice H. Ieeson, graduate of Peterborough Business College, won the Canadian National Exhibition diploma for expert typewriting in the contest here Saturday evening.

Above was the gratifying message received this morning by J. A. McKone, principal of the local business college. The contest is open to all Canada and he naturally feels proud that one of his graduates should have brought distinction to his institution and incidentally to Peterborough City and County.

These tests for speed and accuracy will be conducted each night during the exhibition and the winners will finally compete for a grand prize.

Miss Ieeson, winner of the first evenings' test, is a daughter of Mr. John Leeson, r.r. no. 10, Peterborough. She is 18 years of age, having enrolled for a shorthand and typewriting course at the Peterborough Business College, in November 1918 at the age of 15 and graduating in May the following year. She is now filling a good position in Toronto.

HAS GOLDEN RIBS AND HE LIVES IN FEAR OF THIEVES

Youth in Hospital Four and a Half Years and Surgeons Replaced His Shattered Ribs With Gold and Platinum

BERLIN Aug. 28.—(Associated Press.)—A young man with ribs of gold and platinum is working in a cigarette factory at Breslau.

When he was a locksmith's apprentice, several years ago, he fell from the roof of a house and was badly injured. He was taken to a hospital, where the doctors found that his skull was fractured and all his ribs but one were broken. The youth was in the hospital for no less than four and a half years, and finally the surgeons undertook to repair or replace his shattered ribs.

A metal plate was inserted in his skull and the fractured bones were replaced by ribs of gold and platinum. Two and a half years later the man was able to leave the hospital, and since then he has been working in a cigarette factory. In view of the present value of gold and platinum, it is evident that he is carrying about in his body quite a considerable amount of wealth, and is is stated that special measures are being taken to protect him against criminals.

INTERESTING PIECE OF LOCAL HISTORY UNEARTHED IN SHED

Old Fashioned Headstone Found in Rear of Residence at 547 Water Street--Stone Records the Death of Captain Andrew Fraser, a Former Police Magistrate Here

While removing a lot of lumber and other matter from a shed in the rear of his residence, 547 Water Street (the house so long occupied by the late Mrs. Graham), Mr. Edward Conroy came across a slab of marble, two feet wide and four feet long, bearing the inscription as follows:

Erected to the Memory of Capt. Andrew S. Fraser,
By his beloved wife, Charlotte Fraser.
Born May 10th, 1795
at Edinburgh, Scotland.
Died Nov. 12, 1866.

The deceased officer served with distinction in most of the actions in the Peninsula, and at Waterloo, and for many years acted as Police Magistrate of the County of Peterborough. Beloved and much respected by all who knew him.

Why the headstone remained where it was found is only a matter of conjecture. At the time of his death, the old cemetery, or burial ground, now Central Park, had long been closed from interments, possibly for ten years before, and the Little Lake Cemetery in use.

At the time of the opening of the latter burial ground, the remains of several of the officers of the British Army, and of others who had lived at and in the vicinity of the town, were transferred from the old burial place, including Col. Alex. McDonnel, Col. Forbes, and others.

The venerable headstones may be seen about the burial plots at the Little Lake Cemetery, very carefully and respectfully cared for.

It may have been that the stone, after being prepared, proved not to be suitable, and that another was made, and now in the cemetery.

Mr. Conroy will have the slab taken to the cemetery, where the superintendent may find a place for it among others now to be seen.

Capt. Fraser familiarly known as Simon Fraser had an eventful career as had many others who came to settle in Canada, on half pay after the disbandment of several regiments of the Line, 1818-1823. A native of Roxboroughshire, Scotland, he entered the British army at the age of fifteen years and passed through the Peninsula war, (Portugal and Spain) and took part in the battles of Quatre-Bras Waterloo. After which he retired from the army, with the rank of Lieutenant and on half pay.

In 1833 he settled in the township of Victoria, adjoining the Dunsford and Langton settlements, but in 1847 removed to Peterborough. He was captain in the 7th Provisional Battalion of the Peterborough Militia established during the rebellion of 1837-38. For many years he was leading Justice of the Peace in the town and county, and as the headstone briefly states, was deeply respected and esteemed for his wise and beneficient administration of his duties at a time when to be Justice of Peace was a mark of respect and acknowledgement of judicial attainments of no mean order.

More Distress in Old Country This Winter Than Last

While industrial and economic conditions in the British Isles are improving, surely if slowly, distress among the working classes promises to be more acute this coming winter than last. Such is the impression left on Hon H. P. Kennedy, formerly a resident of Peterboro, after a three months' visit to the Old Country and France, in company with Mrs. Kennedy.

Talking of their visits to the war-devastated areas of France and Belgium, Mr. Kennedy was struck by the rapid building up of ruined Belgian towns, while many in France which had been wholly or partially effaced by German guns, show but little signs as yet of reconstruction. In both countries, however, he was simply astonished by evidences on every hand of what he concludes to be a remarkable agricultural recovery. He found also that the French and Belgians have not forgotten the part Canada and the United States played in ultimately saving their countries and peoples from Germany's ambitious despotism; and Canadians and Americans always are met with open-handed hospitality and an effusive welcome—especially so Canadians. This national gratitude to the fighting sons of the two Anglo speaking races in North America, is also reflected in the military cemeteries in France and Belgium where lie those gallant Canadians and Americans who made the supreme sacrifice in defence of the glorious principle that each nation shall live their own lives. These cemeteries, he says, are rapidly being put on a permanent basis by their respective governments, and are now exceptionally well cared for.

Mr. Kennedys trip was' mainly a business one, and while in England he represented Canadian interests in the cattle embargo question.

SCHOOL TEACHER DROWNED

HAMILTON, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Getting beyond her depth while swimming in the Grand River near Caledonia on Saturday afternoon Miss Mary Genieve Bell of St. Catherines was drowned before help could reach her. She was 21 years of age and was a school teacher in St. Catherines. She will be buried this afternoon in Victoria Lawn cemetery.

TO AVOID A DIRECT MORATORIUM VOTE

Commission Will Endeavour to Reach a Compromise.

PARIS, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press)—Members of the Reparations Commission will spend the next three days in an effort to reach some form of compromise which will avoid a direct vote on the question of a moratorium for Germany it was forecasted today. The idea is to leve in suspense the general reparations agreement, if possible, until the projected allied conference is held in November.

French reparations circles are showing an earnest disposition to reach a compromise, and there was less talk today of independent action, although officially Premier Poincare's position remains unchanged.

The Belgian Proposal.

Serious consideration is being given to the Belgian proposal made several weeks ago, under which Belgium would accept long term notes for the remaining German cash payments this year, all of which go Belgium under a former minority agreement.

Under this plan Germany would deposit 210 million gold marks, or one fifth of the Reichs Banks gold reserve, in the bank of England as a guarantee that these notes would be paid. A moratorium for the remainder of this year could be voted under the terms of this plan.

British Financial Experts Declare Allied Governments Will Have to Get Together on Settlement

THE GERMAN MARK

MONTREAL, August 28. — The Canadian Pacific steamer Montclair, from Liverpool, in command of Captain R. C. Lalla, arrived at Quebec yesterday morning with 864 passengers, including returned Canadians, prominent Americans, and well-known Britons.

Among the 535 cabin passengers, 22 of whom were landed at Quebec to continue their journey by rail, were Sir James Hope Simpson, general manager of the Bank of Liverpool and Martins, with Lady Simpson, Sir B. A. Ridsdale and Lady Ridsdale of London, Mr. H. Hansen, nephew of Dr. Nansen, the Arctic explorer, of Chestensen, Norway, Major J B Johnson, of the Canadian Government Intelligence Service, Ottawa, Dr. and Mrs. Martin, of Vancouver, B.C., E. V. O'Meara, editor of the Ottawa Journal, who went to Ireland in connection with the Irish Olympic Games, Dr. C. M. Carton, of Los Angeles, Cal., and a party of 40 American tourists, Miss F. Witherow of Toronto and party, Miss H. J. Camp, niece of Sir Norman Hill, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Cole, of Temple Tours, Mr. Auilla and family, Toronto, manager of the Dominion Textile Company.

Sir James Hope Simpson, manager of the Bank of Liverpool and Martins, who arrived by the Montclaire, in an interview this morning, said he had come to Canada with Lady Simpson for the benefit of his health. He had put aside all his banking activities, and had now only one thought until he returned to Liverpool—a pleasant tour through Canada and a good rest with the object of recuperating his strength.

Financial Crisis.

Sir James was rather reluctant to give an interview on European political questions. During the war he did good work for the British Government in regard to financial questions, as well as made a special mission to Norway. He admitted, however, that the French-Belgian reparation question would have to be settled, and the sooner the better for Europe. He said until the Allied Governments get together and agree upon some scheme of settlement, the German mark will continue to depreciate, and eventually bring about a serious financial crisis in Europe that is likely to have more serious consequences which will involve the entire world.

"I have a strong friendship for Canada," said Sir James, "and I intend, after leaving Montreal, to make a trip to the Rockies and the Pacific Coast, returning back East, and I will spend some time in the Province of Quebec."

The third-class passengers, to the number of 329, were landed for immigration inspection, and at nine o'clock the Montclair left for Montreal.

A Sudden Death.

A sad case of sudden death was discovered a little before seven o'clock this morning, when one of the steamer stewards went to call a third-class passenger named Robert Jones, aged about fifty years, a returned Canadian, who resided at 68 Division Street, St. Catharines, Ont., and found him dead.

It is presumed that deceased must have died from heart disease during the night. His family has been notified by telegraph.

The body was coffined by the Canadian Pacific authorities, and brought ashore, and now awaits advices as to its dispositon from St. Catharines.

THREE INJURED IN MOTOR CRASH

William West Stepped on Gas Instead of Brake Descending Steep Hill

Stepping on the accelera - instead of the brake while descending a steep and tortuous hill between Bethany and Coe's Corners, about four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, William West of Millbrook and the other occupants of his new automobile, were seriously injured. Mr. West was badly crushed and the full extent of his injuries could not be fully ascertained. Mr. Clifford Nattrass of Millbrook, was cut about the throat, and Albert Tinney of Cavanville, is in the hospital with a broken thigh.

Mr. West intended to slow up in passing over a depression in the road at the bottom of the hill, but when he put his foot on the accelerator instead of on the brake, the car shot forward, crashed into the deep rut, and was flung to one side, smashing into a tree. The automobile which Mr. West purchased only a short time ago, was extensively damaged.

WOULD ASSOCIATE VARIOUS NATIONS

Scheme Revealed in Report Submitted to International Institute.

GRENOBLE, France Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Plan for "world association of states' to link together the league of nations, pan American union and those governments which are not members of either was contained in report submitted to day to Institute of International Law here by Prof. Alejandro Alvarez of Chile.

The new association would seek to encourage regional and continental groups rather than attempt to replace the mentinely.

While the league of nations has many merits its operation, the report finds, has tended rather to separate than to draw Europe and America closer together.

The report directs attention to fact that meetings of highest importance, like the Washington, Genoa and Hague conferences and next years pan American congress, are held outside the league.

The report icluded a series of basic principles with which the proposed organization must comply resented in the form of a convention containing eighteen articles.

"The association" it says, "will consider questions of world or continental interest. It will have its duties notably to watch over the general interest of humanity, take measures to eliminate the causes of war, initiate adequate methods of pacific settlement of conflicts between United States and strengthen bounds of all sorts between countries."

AN INTERESTING TALK ON THE HOG INDUSTRY

Rotarian G. S. Matthews Shows That Peterboro Holds Foremost Position in Canadian Pork Packing.

EXPORT TRADE

An address upon the hog industry in Canada, in which there were some complimnetary references to Peterborough's foremost position in connection with the industry, was delivered to the Rotary Club to-day by Rotarian G. S. Matthews, manager of the Canadian Packing Company.

The luncheon was largely attended. Adjutant Bunton's successor, Rotarian Arthur Smith of Ottawa, was given a warm welcome. Other visitors were: Rotarian Herbert Kehew, Danville, N.Y.; Rotarian J. Thorn, Bay City, Rotarian Col. Odell, Cobourg, Dr. I. Dela Matter, Hastings. Mr. Robinson, Hamilton, Alec. Darling, Peterborough.

It was decided, on account of the holiday next Monday, to have the luncheon on Wednesday at the usual hour. Martin Chenhall, Jr. furnished some enjoyable cello solos, and had to respond to encores. V. J. McElderry presided.

The following address by Rotarian G. S. Matthews held interest throughout:

Pork packing in Canada is a leading industry and also a very desirable one, said Mr. Matthews. Canada can only consume the products of approximately 50 p.c. of the hogs produced here, the remaining 50 p.c. are exported.

Exporting bacon from hogs that have been fed on Canadian grain is just as important as exporting the grain itself. It is therefore only logical that the government and the people should encourage the farmers to raise more hogs of the English bacon type, when it means, that the bacon from every extra hog raised will be exported.

England is the largest bacon importing country in the world, bacon is received there from Ireland, Denmark, Holland, Sweden, Canada and the United States. After the home killed product, Irish bacon commands the top price in the English market, Danish second, Canadian third, with in the last few years Dutch and Swedish products a fraction above or below the Canadian. United Staes bacon draws the lowest price.

For many years the attention of Canadian hog producers has been directed to Danish competition and the methods of breeding and feeding by which the Danes' Wiltshire cut has become so popular. In Denmark the siilings average around 40,000 per week, of which over 90 p.c. are shipped into England. The Danish factories are all small. Forty-six are co-operative factories, thirteen privately owned. Danish bacon reaches the English market from twelve to sixteen days after the time of killing, while Canadian bacon does not reach that market for a month or six weeks after the time of killing. In Denmark the hogs are graded and the top price paid for hogs that are suitable for the English trade only. Lower prices are paid for hogs over or under finished, or hogs of breeds such as Chester white, that have too thick a shoulder and are therefore unsuitable. The desirable hogs are Yorkshires and Tamworths, and as these are just as economically raised as the undesirable types, the farmers in Denmark have gone in for these breeds almost entirely and have received enormous encouragement from the Danish government.

During the war Canadian bacon was the best bacon that could be procured in England. Since the war, the Danes have resumed shipments to the old country and have put a large quantity of Canadian bacon off the market.

It was very unfortunate that when the Danish bacon came on the market, there was in England a large quantity of stale, salty Canadian bacon that had been purchased and held by the British Ministry of Food. This bacon had been bought for war purposes and it was made particularly salty by the Canadian packers at the request of the British Ministry of Food.

Mild Bacon Demanded.

The Englishman was extremely tired of salty bacon and therefore there was a demand for the mild Danish bacon from all parts of England. This meant that Danish bacon was distributed over the whole of England to places where Canadian bacon had always been the best bacon, and where no retailer had ever handled Danish bacon.

It was nearly a month later that the first shipment of mild Canadian bacon was received by our agents free of government control, and our selling organization have had a hard struggle to keep Canadian bacon on the market at a price reasonably close to Danish.

The Canadian packers are doing their best to improve the quality cure and selection of their bacon and have reached the point now, where the spread between the Danish and Canadian price is the smallest it has been in four years.

It is unwise to guess the weight of a letter to determine the amount of postage required. Such guessing often results in "Postage Due" which may cause delay in delivery, and, in the case of business letters often results in a dissatisied customer.

LONG DISTANCE RECORD.

Summer static didn't bother the radio operator on the tug Oneonta, which was anchored at Columbia River Harbor, Astoria, Oregon, when he heard Atlanta recently. This is a distance of about 2,400 miles. It is considered a record in radio telephony and is the more interesting in that it was made during warm weather.

RUM-RUNNERS USE ELEVEN AIRPLANES TO SMUGGLE BOOZE

Prohibition Agents Are Greatly Upset By Alleged Successful Bootlegging Enterprise.

FROM CANADA.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Discovery that an organized ring of rum runners is using a fleet of at least eleven powerful airplanes in smuggling liquor into the United States from Canada has led the prohibition authorities to plan for the use of air craft in trailing International bootleggers, it was announced tonight by Zone Chief Appleby of New York and New Jersey.

According to information received by the prohibtion officials, the air fleet operates between points in Canada and isolated locations on Long Island. Regular trips are made, they say, each one taking four or five hours. Usually the machines land on Long Island early in the morning or just before dark in the evening, but it was said that on several occasions the fliers have landed their illegal cargoes in the day time.

The system so far has worked out without a single capture. The landing spot for each trip is apparently chosen by some person directing the operation of the fleet, as motor trucks are always on hand to take off the illicit liquors.

Zone Chief Appleby said that Commissioner Haynes and other high officials of the National prohibition department are now discussing sites for an air station here.

STAND BY IRISH TREATY TILL END.

Is Determination of British Govt. and Free Staters

LONDON, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Wiliam T. Cosgrave, acting head of the Irish Provisional Government, has received a message from Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies in the British Cabinet, assuring him of the confidence felt by the British Government that the treaty will be favourably and resolutely maintained.

"For our part, we hold ourselves bound on the treaty basis," continues the message, "and will meet good faith with good faith and good will with good will to the end."

Mr. Cosgrave, after referring to the loss of Arthur Griffith and General Collins, declared that "We, their colleagues, have the same faith, and stand by the same policy; and though overwhelmed with sorrow, take up the same task with the same determination and confidence."

Lack of Coal Will Make Thousands of Men Idle

Henry Ford Will Lay Off One Hundred and Five Thousand Employees on September 16.

OTHERS AFFECTED.

DETROIT, August 28. Canadian Press. — One hundred and five thousand employees of the Ford Motor Company throughout the country will be without jobs after September 1th.

In addition several hundred thousand other workers employed in industries furnishing materials for the Ford plants will be affected.

Mr .Ford gave these figures Saturday in announcing that his three big motor plants in Detroit suburbs, and his assembling plants throughout the country, would be closed on that date because of the coal shortage.

The announcement was the most severe blow that industrial Detroit has sustained since the industrial depression of two years ago. It means, according to Mr. Ford, 75,000 men employed in the Highland Park, River Rouge and the Dearborn plants of the company here, will be without work. Thirty thousand others now working in the various assembling plants scattered throughout the entire country also will be thrown out of employment.

How long the machinery in the Ford factory is to be stilled will depend entirely on the coal supply of the future, the Detroit manufacturer said.

Mr. Ford criticized the fuel distribution machinery, which he said, had made it impossible for his railway, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, to obtain sufficient fuel at the various junctions to keep his factories here supplied.

The price of steel and other materials also entered into the decision to suspend operations, Mr. Ford said, adding that he had received notice of an advance in steel prices to be made shortly.

In his stand against prices of coal and steel the manufacturer took the same position that prompted his decision to cease operations two years ago, that prices asked were unwarranted and that he would prefer a suspension of work and a greater financial loss to the payment of the higher prices on material.

Industry in the United States must "throw up its hands in surrender" within a few weeks if the rail and coal strikes continue, Mr. Ford said.

Mr. Ford held financial interests responsible for the industrial tie-up, declaring the "money barons" were manipulating the labor unions, and that public officials, state and national, were impotent in the crisis. The deadlock in the strike negotiations indicated, he declared, the existence of "a plot to unload the demoralized and run down railroads on to the government at their own price and to mulct the people through excessive coal profits."

BELIEVES CANADA NEIGHBORLY TO U. S.

Commends the Opening of Doors to American Automobilists.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Tribune believes that Canada, in opening wide the doors to U. S. automobilists, has done something profitable as well as neighborly. After summarizing the changes in the regulations governing visiting motorists, the paper declares:

"All this is neighborly and makes for better acquaintance and improved relations. Likewise it makes for thrift, so far as Canada is concerned. A report issued by the Dominion Government's Department of Parks estimates that in 1921 American tourists spent $75,000,000 in Canada. It is also estimated that 100,000 American automobiles entered Canada last year. Probably automobiles hailing from every State in the Union crossed the northern border in 1921. Canadians compute that this means upward of half a million American automobile tourists. The figures may or may not be accurate, but the fact remains that American automobile travel is an important item in the Dominion's sources of revenue.

"Now that restrictions have been removed it is expected that this form of American travel will be increased. Whether this happens or whether the tide of American tourist travel changes its course, Canada's share of it is likely to be large. And the bigger it is the better. The more people on both sides of the line mingle together the better they become acquainted, and the better they become acquainted the more readily do the bars go down that tend artificially to separate them."

126-Year-Old Man Has Passed Away

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—John Drysdale, a farmer said to be 126 years old died at his home near Craigsville, according to a despatch received here yesterday. Drysdale was born in Scotland and a family record gives 1796 as the year of his birth.

The centenarian is survived by several relatives. Those who reside on his farm regard his birth as authentic.

IMMIGRANTS ARE NEEDED IN WEST

Hon. Charles Stewart Finds That the West Wants More Agricultural Producers.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Hon. Charles Stewart minister of the combined departments of immigration and interior, returned to Ottawa yesterday afternoon after an extended trip through the western provinces in connection with matters concerning his two departments. While in the west the minister was taking up with the provincial governments the matter of co-operation between themselves and the federal department in the bringing of immigrants to Canada and distributing them on the land where they are most needed to become producers. The views set forth by the western governments will be placed by Hon. Mr. Stewart before his colleagues of the cabinet sub-committee on immigration and also before the cabinet as a whole.

As a result of the conference between Hon. Mr. Stewart and the provincial authorities, it is expected that new immigration regulations, designed to meet the wishes of the provinces, will be formulated by the government. These regulations may be made, under the immigration act by the governor-in-council.

The west is demanding immigrants, regardless of where they are brought from, with two conditions attached to the demand, it was learned on Mr. Stewart's return. One of these conditions is that they must be people, regardless of the country from which they emigrate, who will go on to the land and become producers. The other condition is that wherever they come from they must not be brought to Canada and settled in "colonies." These are practically the only conditions attached to the request, the people of the western provinces declaring themselves willing and able to look after assimilating the immigrants if they are of the right type to make good farmers.

ELEVEN RADICALS WERE ARRESTED

Jack Shullman, of Winnipeg, Amongst Those Taken Into Custody in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Jack Shullman, Winnipeg, and ten other radicals attending the convention of the Trades Union Educational League, were taken into custody by United States' Federal agents and the police in a raid on the hall in which the sessions were being held Saturday night.

Amoug those seized were two men who were said to be wanted in the Berrien County, Mich., authorities in connection with a convention of alleged radicals held here recently. The nine others will be held for deportation as undesirables.

One hundred or more delegates sat quietly in thir seats while the Government agents went from row to row picking those they wanted. The other delegates were allowed to go. A crowd which gathered during the proceedings jeered the delegates as they left the building.

EAMON DE VALERA REPORTED INJURED.

Rumor Says That He Is Now Convalescing From Wounds—In House Near Bandon.

CORK, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press)—Eamon de Valera is convalescing from wounds in a house near Bandon, according to what is considered authentic information. He was recuperating in a house at Bealnablath, a few miles from Macroom, the scene of the Collins ambush, but later shifted his quarters.

Intense fighting has taken in the Blarney district, following bomb and rifle attacks against the Nationals position upon the hotels in the village and the famed Blarney Castle grounds. The Nationals suffered minor casualties.

Since Thursday the rebels are reported to have lost twelve killed and many wounded in repeated attacks in this area.

HARVESTING IS WELL STARTED ON THE PRAIRIE

Harvest Conditions Are Favorable and a Good Yield Is Expected in All Parts.

NO FROSTS YET.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Manitoba's crop yield will average this year higher than than any crop year in the past decade, according to estimates announced Saturday by the provincial department of agriculture. This year wheat will average 20 bushels to the acre aaginst the ten year average of 16.4; oats will run 40 to 45 bushels, against 34.5 and barley 30 bushels against 24.5. The above estimates are based on reports from all districts in the province.

SASKATOON, Sask., Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press.) — Wheat crop yield in Saskatoon district is estimated at about fifteen bushels to the acre. Eighty per cent. of it is cut, There is a plentiful supply of harvest labor at $3.00 and $3.50 a day.

CALGARY, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press.)— Harvesting is now in full swing in Alberta, cutting having been general since the first of last week in all parts. In some districts where the rainfall was rather light, cutting started two weeks ago. It is estimated that from 35 to 40 per cent. of the crops of the province have been cut and threshing started last week in the north-eastern part of the province. Harvesting is not so far along in the south where only 25 per cent. has been cut.

The yield in the north is unusually light and will not average above 15 bushels to the acre. In the south the average will be about 25 bushels. In general, the demand for farm labor has been met so far this year better than in othera years.

LETHBRIDGE, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Harvesting is 20 per cent. completed over the whole of Southern Alberta. In the Eastern section where the corps are lighter, harvesting is well advanced, but in thee western sections the crops are much heavier, and in the Cardston, Pincher Creek, Claresholm and Raymond districts last week has seen a start made in cutting.

There has been no frost to date and with the best of harvest weather prevailing the next ten days should see cutting operations almost completed. Shortage of farm hands is the chief difficulty at the present time. Crops of wheat which are being threshed are going from 12 to 25 bushels to the acre, but no threshing has been done in the best areas. The second cutting of alfalfa is under way, which is also a good crop.

REGINA, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Local rain showers and high winds, especially in the central portion of the province have resulted in delay in harvesting operations in Saskatchewan during the past week, according to a crop report issued yesterday by the provincial department of agriculture. In the south, both east and west threshing is in full swing and a good average yield of all grains is looked for.

Some slight damage from rust is reported in certain sections, but it is not anticipated that this loss will amount to anything serious so far as the whole province is concerned.

PROBABILITIES

Moderate winds mostly fair with stationary or a little higher temperature.

Thousands Mourn as Body Of Michael Collins Passes

Body of Great Irish Leader Is Taken to the Dublin Cathedral—Murder and Outrages Continue.

NATION MOURNS.

DUBLIN, August 28 (Canadian Press). — With imposing military honours the body of Michael Collins, Ireland's warrior statesman, was borne last evening through the streets of Dublin and placed on a catafalque before the main altar of the great Cathedral.

Here this morning a solemn requiem mass will be celebrated for the repose of his soul.

Sunday's total suspension of civic activities permitted the people to render unrestrictedly the homage they so wished to render to the memory of their beloved leader. Not from the metropolis alone, but from the country districts nearby there streamed to the City Hall, where the body lay in state, countless thousands to gaze upon the features of the man to whom, more than anyone else, the people had looked for a peaceful settlement of Ireland's woes.

They came by train, by donkey cart, by jaunting car, and on foot; they choked Dublin's streets, yet without disorder formed in line, awaiting their turn to enter the cathedral, and passed before the coffin of their comrade who had given his life in the cause of the Free State.

They knelt before that coffin, beneath the flickering candles, and prayed for the eternal happiness of Michael Collins and for the advent of peace in their unhappy country, in which terrible things continue to occur.

The war of hate and ambush goes on. Yesterday's newspapers reproduce a striking portrait of Collins from a painting made by Sir John Lavery as a memento of the signing of the treaty between Ireland and Great Britain. He is seen sitting with folded arms, his handsome, intellectual face in repose, his manner debonair. Underneath are printed complete details of what the news editor calls "Dublin's latest shocking sensation."

Here is the incident in brief.

It is a tragedy of the "Yellow Lane," a peaceful suburb of Dublin, where last evening young people and children were playing. Suddenly, from the city appeared a large open automobile travelling swiftly. Seven or eight men were passengers, and some of them seemed to be struggling. The car stopped a few hundred feet down the lane, and a man got out and went to a gate leading to a field.

The struggle in the car became violent. Two men were trying to get away, but were held and were carried to the gate. They were moaning and protesting. One was heard by witnesses to cry out, "But what is it for?"

They were given a few moments for prayer, and then were held against the stone pillars of the gate. Their captors drew revolvers and shot them through the head and heart.

That is what little Irish children saw yesterday while the whole nation mourned for Michael Collins.

There are ambushes and sniping, where innocent civilians, including women, are wounded, and some killed.

The main fighting in the field is over, but the sudden attack on Bantry, south-west of Cork, on Friday by a force of so-called rebels shows that the revolution is still in progress, and that Richard Mulcahy, the new Commander-in-Chief has much to do before it can be said that peace and order have been restored throughout the land.

Hon. Charles Stewart Finds White Men Are Working Indian Crops

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—"Lo, the poor Indian" is having a litlte of "his own back" on one of the western reservations this year, due to the splendid crops in Saskatchewan. On one of the reservations visited by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior during the past couple of weeks, the minister found the Indians with such splendid crops of grain that one of them was employing white harvest labor from the east to help him save the crop. This rather unusual state of affairs was creating some amusement in the neighborhood of the reservation, which is in the File Hills section of Saskatchewan.

Throughout all the Saskatchewan reservations visited by Hon. Mr. Stewart the crops were stated to be much better than the average Crops in Alberta and also in Manitoba were stated to be somewhat lighter though above the average.

GAVE ADDRESS ON THE NAVY LEAGUE

Main Objects of League Explained to a Lakefield Audience.

LAKEFIELD, August 28. — Mr. C. Adams, travelling secretary of the Navy League of Canada, gave a brief address in the Council Chamber to a number of those interested in the great work of the League.

One of the main objects of the League is to create a sea-conscious spiritin Canadians, and knowledge and interest not only in the Royal Navy but in the merchant marine. Wherever one travels now in Canada, one sees monuments and memorials to our dead soldiers, but seldom or never to the 14,000 men of the mercantile marine or the 33,000 men of the Royal Navy, who gave their lives in the great World War. Those deceased merchant sailors have 65,000 dependents, who receive absolutely no support from the Government. When the merchant sailor signs up, though not an enlisted man, he gives up his insurance, and his dependents receive no patriotic money or separation allowance. Every little comfort which made life in the trenches more endurable, every letter which brought news to or from the soldier, was carried by the merchant marine.

In 1917 the Navy League of Canada was formed to compensate the dependents and provide adequate pensions for merchant sailors. Another work of the Navy League is to provide and support sailors' homes, of which there are six in Canada—Halifax, Sydney, Montreal, Kingston, Fort William, and Vancouver. Many men would have no place to call home if it were not for these institutes.

The third aim is to train 2,000 boys from 14 to 21 years of age for the sea. Havelock Wilson says that at the beginning of the war 90 per cent. of the Canadian boats were officered by foreigners. There is little doubt that many a merchant ship was sunk through treachery.

In these troubled times we feel that "the Fleet is our safe, and if we are to be safe on land, we must be supreme at sea.' Britain's supremacy on sea safeguards the Empire and all the world.

In the campaign which will be brought on in Lakefield next month, the objective will be $200,00, and this sum will no doubt be easily raised.

MORATORIUM FOR GERMANY IS AGAIN UNDER DISCUSSION

Reparations Commission Has Invited Germany to Appear Before It on Wednesday.

SEEK DELAY.

PARIS, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press)—In a strong desire to reach an unanimous decision on Germany's request for a moratorium, the Reparations Commission yesterday morning found a pretext for further delay by resolving to invite Germany again to be heard before the Commission on Wednesday. Meanwhile the members of the Commission will consult together in the hope of avoiding a vote which will divide it.

The members of the Commission met at eleven o'clock yesterday and sat until one p.m. The delegates expresed their views on Germany's request of July 12 for a three years' moratorium. Semi-official declarations later showed that unamity had not yet been reached except on the point that the present uncertainty should not be prolonged, and that a decision of the Reparations Commission should not be rendered at the soonest possible moment, Wednesday, if possible.

After the meeting a communique was issued to the effect that the Commission considers itself not in a position to render a decision before Wednesday on the request of Germany for a moratorium. It added that the Commission had informed Germany that if she desires to exercise her right to be heard, the Commission will listen to her representatives during Wednesday.

Thus the Commission now have official efforts to find a formla upon two clear days before it for unupon which it can agree unonimously. The representatives of Germany, if it is decided to acwill be heard Wednesday so that a decision will be forthcoming from the Commission Wednesday evening at the earliest. Sir John Bradbury, the British member of the Commission, does not expect a decision to be handed down before Thursday.

EASE OF MODERN DIVORCE ATTACKED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Strong warning against making divorce easy in Canada was uttered by Rev. Byron Stauffer, of Toronto, in preaching in St. James' Methodist church here yesterday. The attitude of the preached was that divorce should be granted for one reason only, that of infidelity, and that the lead given by the United States by dissolving marriages for incompatibility of temper and minor differences between married couples must end ultimately in the destruction of society upon its present basis.

U. S. GOVERNMENT IS PREPARING FOR POSITIVE ACTION

President Harding May Be Authorized to Seize Both Coal Mines and Railroads

IN NEAR FUTURE.

WASHINGTON Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—The exact scope of the United Staes administration's policy in dealing with the rail and coal strikes is expected to reveal itself within the next few days as a result of preparations for legislative and executive action which appeared last night to be nearing completion.

Whether the emergency legislation to be definitely urged upon Congress will include a presidential authorization to take over an operate rail and coal properties was a question that still remained unanswered but it was indicated that administration officials probably would make a final decision on that point in the very near future.

In some quarters it was believed that the proposal to arm the executive with these emergency powers would be finally threshed over among the leaders who are with President Harding on his week-end cruise down the Potomac, and that a definite announcement of policy ould follow the return here of the Presidential yacht Mayflower this morning.

YOU JUST CAN'T HAVE FEMINIST DOUGH AND CAKE OF CHIVALRY, TOO!

By MARGARET ROHE.

Oh, woman, lovely woman,
Here's a problem up to you:
You cannot have your freedom
In the manner that is new
And be a he-man's equal
And still chivalry have too;
So choose—Is it equality
Or chivalry for you?

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Well here's a pretty how-do-you-do and a kettle of fish and then some!

Just when all the dear girls were all a-twitter because they had the vote, economic independence and equal opportunity for self-development just the same as John, Tom and Percy, along comes Anna Garlin Spencer, Unitarian minister, educator, social and reform worker, peace advocate and suffragist, and takes some of the joy out of their free life.

Not that she takes away any of their hard-fought-for feminist perogatives—it's only the feminine ones she says they can't expect to keep at the very same time.

No Use, Myrtle.

In her lecture at Teachers' College, Columbia University, the other day, Mrs. Spencer came right out and said woman simply couldn't have equality, social and economic, with the male and still expect chivalry as her due. In other words you can't be a self-assertive free economic factor and yet be a clinging vine.

It's simply no use, Myrtle, you can't expect to take your economic place in the world and still take "his" seat in the subway. If you are going to be his equal, why should he take off his hat in reverence on a draughty elevator just because you are one of those present?

In the days of the cave man, when woman was kept in what man thought (and still thinks) was her proper place at his tootsies, she did all the little odd chivalry chores around the cave herself.

Such as pulling out his chair for him at dejeuner, etc.

In the real days of chivalry knights of old did all the chair pulling for their ladies fair, but nowadays it's a case of everybody pulling out his or her own stool at the lunch counter of life and reaching for the horseradish and the clam fritters, man to man.

In Disasters, Too.

No longer can the militant female expect to profit by the "women, children and cripples first" movement in the face of fire on land or wreck at sea. She's got to trample her way to the fire escape and push herself into the lifeboats along with the rest of the men.

Raising the hat from the head at the sight of a bit of feminine fluff will soon become an abandoned gesture among the males of the species and as for walking on the outside of the thoroughfare when in the company of an "equality sister," the male will walk where he listeth and let the automobiles strike where they may.

That really is all the dear girls can expect. They can't eat their feminist dough of equality and still have their feminine chivalry cake.

"Ladies first" will soon be as obsolete a phrase as "Have one on me."

How about it, Mignon, do you still want to be a feminist?

HOME TRAINING COMES FIRST.

One of the latest of the many uplift movements that develop from time to time has to do with teaching school boys honesty by an "honesty bureau." A big New York surety company is fostering the movement, which is organized as an antidote to the increase in crime. Possibly some good results will come from instruction of the sort that is proposed. It is the "honesty bureau's" plan to work through teachers first and eventually through the home and the church, to give boys more moral training than they have been receiving. As a matter of fact, the public schools are now operated in a way to impress on pupils what is right and what is wrong. This province has always been fortunate in having in its service teachers of splendid character and noble aims.

But, after all; isn't it in the home that effective moral instruction must be given? If parents can be impressed with the need of teaching their boys' honesty, and if in the family circle a policy of fair dealing is scrupulously followed, the need of an "honesty bureau" to work through the schools would be slight. Without examples of honesty at home, some school boys may be helped by the proposed new movement, but it is a question how effective the venture will prove. —Kingston Whig.

STILL HOPE FOR IRELAND.

Friends of Ireland inclined to despair in consequence of the death of Michael Collins may snatch hope from the spirit in which the nation is meeting his loss. Instead of producing chaos and submission, the only manifestation brought forth by the fall of the Commander-in-Chief is one of heightened determination to carry on the work for which he gave his life. Mr. Mulcahy, one of the ablest minds of Sinn Fein and Collins' chief lieutenant in the Free State army, becomes Commander-in-Chief, and Mr. Cosgrave, a member of the Dail Ministry, and a former chairman of the finance committee of Dublin Corporation, succeeds Mr. Griffith as President of the Dail. Both leaders signalized their appointments by ringing declarations that the Free State shall be upheld.

This is a revelation of the only spirit by which Ireland can be saved. The demand of the hour is not for unmanly dread, or for futile repining, but for a resolute assertion of the power of the Free State, responsive to the will of the Irish people. With the military situation what it is, with De Valera, as despatches indicate, driven from his last strongholds in Cork, all that will be needed is courage and firmness in stamping out what remains of rebellion, now hardly distinguishable from mad and revengeful methods of fanatics, if not assassins.—Ottawa Journal.

NO MORE WAR.

The past month has seen great crowds gathered in Berlin before what was once the royal palace, carrying placards with the words, "Die Wieder Krieg," "No More War." There is not a country in the world where the majority of the people do not cherish the same wish. If anything was necessary to remind the public that wars fall heavily upon victor and conquered alike, the great struggle of 1914-18 supplied, with its aftermath, the proof.

The people do not want war. From a sense of patriotism they may support even a war in which their country is at fault, after their country has been committed to that war by those who are in power. From a sense of patriotism and duty they will undoubtedly support a war which has been thrust upon their rulers by the action of some other nation, as the Great War was thrust upon England by the invasion of Belgium. But on the general issue of war or no more war the people of all countries would vote overwhelmingly for war's disappearance.

It is upon that sentiment, crystallized into action in the form of disarmament and international friendship, that the future of the world depends. The minority who think war, talk war and favor a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude towards other nations must, in all countries, be shown in unmistakable fashion that war is the desire which is furthest from the minds of the masses of the people.—Toronto Star Weekly.

WALKING A LOST PLEASURE.

It would be difficult to convince automobilists that walking has still a few devotees who regard it as a pleasurable exercise, and that pedestrians consequently have some small right on country roads. Within the cities they are tolerated, at their own risk, and in reluctant deference to traffic rules. To the confirmed and therein impatient motorist every person on foot is broadly classed as a "jay walker," and conversely every car driver is a "joy rider." Hence it would seem that the old groups of rich and poor have altered somewhat in their composition under modern preferences and manners, and the dividing line of social cleavage is represented by the city curb or the township ditch. The pedestrian crosses either at his own peril, and along his narrow right-of-way he is never absolutely secure, for the average car under certain impulse and impetus has a dangerous facility of leaping over ditch and curb.

It would be absurd, therefore, to offer a protest for the poor pedestrian, and to suggest that on these balmy autumn Sundays some highways should be designated for foot traffic only. When the Provincial, county and township governments, aided and abetted by the city, are spending unheard-of sums on rural roads, and transforming them into speedways, to use the odious epithet of some ratepayers who have fallen behind the modern procession, it would be inviting ridicule to make some plea for the last of the walkers. To employ the term hikers, denotes a special class which in some parts of the country runs largely to breeched flappers.

Many a man who drives his family seventy-five or a hundred miles for a Sunday outing these days, used to enjoy a tramp of from ten to twenty miles on summer Sundays in his young manhood. Now he seems to take a peculiar delight in swirling a cloud of dust about the wayfaring walker who finds relaxation in his release from the endless concrete of the city and in the exuberant joy of the turf of the countryside beneath his feet. It may be that the motorist never notices him, except perhaps in passing wonder that anybody should walk abroad these days when nearly everyone else rides. And that pedestrians who seek the broad and likewise smooth and well-worn highway should entertain any other emotion but a sneaking envy for the Ford fraternity, is perhaps a thought that never appears above the steering-wheel.

So, not even the most ardent walker would admit a preference for a striding but comparatively snail's pace these days, knowing for certainty that he wouldn't be believed except by some rare kindred spirit he might meet on the way. And because he feels that he is the last of his tribe, he couldn't muster the temerity to suggest that his favorite side road in the country might be reserved once in a while for the almost extinct brotherhood of walkers who love the country so well that any mile of it is as acceptable as a hundred.

"WHITE COAL" WOULD HELP.

When the coal strike crosses the September line this week it will probably present no comforting change to the household category of consumers in spite of the vague and mildly cheerful predictions or hopes of Mr. S. T. Wedlock. The production of bituminous coal may reach its maximum presently, an encouraging prospect for the users of steam coal, providing that shipping facilities are adequate.

On the anthracite wing of the prolonged dispute negotiations have been ineffectual, and each week of the stalemate in this field of the fuel industry depresses still further the waning optimism of every householder except those who never take a chance on the fullness of their larders and coal bins. Most of us have fallen back on a flimsy belief that the worst will not, or simply cannot, happen, but summer is departing along the corridor of the year with the vendible coal reserves wiped out.

In such a helpless position the public might be inclined to depend on its supply of "white coal" if it had ever been encouraged from that quarter. The power resources of the Central Ontario system under the management of the Hydro-Electric Commission have recently been largely augmented by the linking up of the Ranney Falls generating plant. Persons who are disposed to view the Hydro with the highly colored glasses of the Toronto Globe and Telegram might expect that, after all the years of the Beck control of the Trent powers, harnessed and unharnessed, there would have been such extensive development that the Commission would now have a considerable surplus.

If the husbandry in the lighting of Peterborough's streets these nights is a fair index of the local Hydro power supply there is not much likelihood of the Commission offering "white coal" to relieve the shortage of the Pennsylvania product. For the "staggered" arrangement has evidently been too lavish an expenditure of power, and the lamps have been trimmed to an average of one to every block. It is not surprising, although it is a continual disappointment therefore that, when the special Fuel Committee of the Council were exploring the fuel supply situation, it never occurred to them to enquire into the possible assistance from the Hydro-Electric Commission through the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

The cost of power for heating has been high, but Sir Adam Beck has yet to demonstrate to the people of Ontario that his suppositive executive genius has anywhere produced a supply of electricity on a basis that would begin to compete with the ordinary fuels. Frequent reminding the people of Ontario, and particularly of this Peterborough district, of our wonderful natural advantages refreshes our dreams and ambitions of greatness, but also deepens our disappointment as these dreams recede from us. Their recession has been more rapid in Peterborough since the people began to realize that Beck's "power at cost" allurement was unmitigated equivocation.

In other circumstances the Council might be discussing with the Utilities Commission the possibility of increasing the domestic power load for heating purposes this fall, but the Beck Hydro "service" has been such a disappointment that no citizen of Peterborough mentions it except in self-reproach.

Pick Out the Kind of Radio Receiver Best Suited to Needs

By PAUL F. GODLEY.

"What receiver shall I buy?"

It's the universal question most often asked by the radio enthusiast who comes into the supply store. Instead of leaving it to the salesman, who may be thinking more of his commission than your need, answer it yourself. It's easy if you get an understanding of the several standard sets.

There are two general types of receivers—those using some form of mineral recitifier as detector, and those utilizing the three-element vacuum tube.

Regardless of the type of detector, all receivers are divided into two general classes. First comes those which employ but a single-tuned circuit. Single-circuit receivers are comprised by a means for tuning only the antenna circuit. They are not selective. Though they may continue to serve admirably to introduce radio to a doubting public at a small price, they cannot become permanent.

Two-Circuit.

The two-circuit receiver gives considerably greater selectivity than its forerunner. At the same time one or two additional adjustments are necessary before proper signal strength is attained. These adjustments are learned quickly. Additional trouble is more than offset by freedom from extraneous effects. In either crystal or vacuum tube set of moderate price the two-circuit receiver should be selected by preference. The additional cost is slight.

For those living within 15 miles of a broadcasting station, the crystal receiver will suffice for all time, providing the listener is willing to wear head-phones and is content with the program from the nearby station alone. The two-circuit vacuum tube receiver should treble the range at least.

Regenerative Set.

Perhaps the average listener will be satisfied with nothing less than the regenerative receiver which takes full advantage of the properties of the three-element vacuum tube. Using a single tube, ranges of several hundred miles are to be had with such an outfit during darkness in fall, winter and spring. For nearby programs the single tube may even give sufficient volume to operate a small loud-speaker. When the phones are worn, distant programs come in clearly.

Even in regenerative receivers we have a choice between what is known as the "two-circuit" regenerative receiver and the "three-circuit" regenerative receiver. Both gave considerable amplification of signal, due to the regenerative action. The two-circuit receiver costs about 30 per cent. less than the three-circuit receiver and has but two or three adjusting controls. It also gives less in the way of sensitivity and freedom from interferences. It is for the latter reason that where possible it has been passed by for the slightly more complicated and expensive type.

Amplifiers.

While the regenerative types of receivers bring distant programs in clearly, they will not provide sufficient energy to operate a loud-speaker excepting when signals are from nearby sources. For loud-speaking horns amplifiers must be used. All present-day amplifiers utilize vacuum tubes. The usual type employs two stages of amplification, though where a lecture hall is to be filled, four may be used.

The de luxe set for the average home should consist of a three-circuit regenerative receiver and two-stage amplifier. Most farms will be found equipped in this way eventually.

Inability to erect antennae will call in the future for the use of Armstrong's super-regenerative receiver, particularly in the cities. A desire for the extreme in distance on the part of fan or experimenter suggests immediately the super-heterodyne receiver which is, as Armstrong says, "the Rolls-Royce receiver." The form employs one to three vacuum tubes. The latter eight to twelve.

CHOY LING HEE TROUPE

One of the Big Free Acts Booked For the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, Sept 13-16.

THE CHOY LING HEE TROUPE.

Famous Chinese Athletes whose distinctive feats, peculiar to the Oriental world, are performed in true celestial style. Their feats are many and varied. One of the troupe makes an entirely satisfying repast of burning cotton. The Chinese as fire eaters excel the world in this peculiar feat of the legerdermain and as performed by Choy Ling Hee, it is indeed a thriller, then follows rapidly a mountain of colored papers drawn from his mouth, and he also produces many other unexpected objects. After which, the juggling of bowls of water, contortion feats by a tiny miss, almost a baby, after which the most talked of feat of Oriental mysticism is perormed—spinning small plates on the tips of long, pliable and flexible reeds. While the plates are spinning, it is a real mystery how they hold their balance, the performers do roll overs somersaults and head stands. Sharply pointed and razor edged knives are the thrown about with reckless abandon, and one of the performers leaps head first through five hoops bristling with knives. The slightest miscalculation in making the leap would literally carve him into ribbons.

Second Act.

Then to bring this remarkable entertainment to a fitting and sensational conclusion the girl makes a slide for life down a long, inclined wire, suspended only by her hair.

Voice of the People

Dear Sir,—As I listened to the Rev. Harold Young yesterday morning endeavoring in his able and convincing sermon to impress his hearers with the solemn but undeniable fact that the mere mental acceptance of the truths of Christianity by the individual, group or nation had so far utterly failed to cure the ills of the world and that nothing less than a deep spiritual hungering and thirsting after Christ and His righteousness by the individual, group or nation will bring to this restless, sin-laden world the peace and joy of Christ's kingdom, I was reminded of an inscription in the old cathedral of Lubeck, Germany, which reads as follows:

Thus speaketh Christ our Lord to us:
Ye call me Master, and obey me not.
Ye call me Light, and seek me not,
Ye call me Way, and walk me not,
Ye call me Life, and desire me not.
Ye call me Wise, and follow me not.
Ye call me Fair, and love me not,
Ye call me Rich, and ask me not,
Ye call me Eternal, and seek me not, ...
Ye call me Gracious, and trust me not,
Ye call me Noble, and serve me not,
Ye call me Mighty and honor me not.
Ye call me Just, and fear me not,
If I condemn you, blame me not.

Yours,
HEARER.

MEAN TRICK PLAYED ON LINDSAY MINISTER

LINDSAY, August 28. — Rev. A. L. Brown, pastor of the Queen street Methodist church, was the victim of a mean trick a few nights ago, when some person or persons removed a set of coils from his car, leaving Mr. Brown stranded. Mr. Brown has been summering along the shores of Sturgeon Lake, north of Pleasant Point, and had the privilege of using a farmer's barn as a garage for his car. This fact was aparently known to others as the barn was entered and the coils removed, it is assumed for the purpose of placing in some yacht. Mr. Brown and others have a strong suspicion as to who the guilty parties are and it is possible that the theft may be further ventilated.

PASSENGERS ON FLIGHT HEAR A RADIO CONCERT

PASSENGERS LISTENING IN ON RADIO ON A DETROIT-CLEVELAND FLYING BOAT. LOWER RIGHT, HOWARD E. CAMPBELL, OPERATING THE RADIO SET. CENTRE, ONE OF THE BOATS.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 25—Passengers taking the 90-minute flying trip between Detroit and Cleveland may soon be listening in on radio concerts during their journey.

Experiments with a radio set in the cabin of one of their flying boats have led officials of the company owning them to plan the installation of a permanent set in each boat.

These experiments were made with the co-operation of Howard E. Campbell, chief radio engineer of the Detroit News broadcasting station, WWJ. Campbell installed a three-foot loop antenna with a three-stage radio frequency and three-stage audio frequency set for reception of a special concert broadcast from WWJ.

A loud speaker was also installed, but the noise of the powerful motors overhead drowned out the music from the horn. When ear phones were put in place, however, the motors did not interfere and the music came clearly. At times it was found unnecessary to use the radio-frequency tubes.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

Sutton slipped an arm about her. "Now don't you worry about anything," he directed, kissing her. "Go to sleep and rest up. They won't trouble us again now."

As she nestled beneath the covers another question struck her. "Is Robert——"

"He'll probably be here by the time you wake up. Go to turn over and close your eyes, for Daddy Doctor."

Leaving her, he switched off all the lights but a little lamp on the reading table. He left the door to the balcony ajar, so she could call if anything frightened her. Though she felt a strange, oddly compelling impulse to stop him, to wrap her about him, telling him how much she loved him, how much she appreciated his kindnesses, how he had been the only parent she ever had known, she refrained. She could not know she would never see him again, that her own pet name for him would be the last two words she would ever hear tass his lips.

Sleep did not come easily. She dozed, after a while, but woke once more. Her eyes seemed very rebellious and again she sensed the impulse to call her guardian. Tossing restlessly it seemed to her that the time passed interminably.

Finally she heard Doctor Sutton mount the stairs. She heard him come into the room to see if she was all right, and because she did not wish to distress him she pretended to be asleep. When he left he closed the door. Then she lay, with eyes wide, studying the wall near the little lamp for the sheer lack of something better to do.

Suddenly a most amazing thing happened. The wall, as she watched it, moved. A panel slid aside, noiselessly, revealing the entrance to a secret passageway. In an instant her heart was in her mouth. This was the wholly unexpected explanation to the presence of Canfield in her room, the disappearance of his body, and the escape of Vera. What threatened now? Though she tried to scream she found she could only lie motionless, in fascinated horror. Who—who was the intruder?

It was the fox. With his distinctive noiseless tread Renard stepped into the room boldly, glancing about with quick, practiced eye. He did not seem surprised to find Violet awake but moved to her side at once, placing a hand over her mouth. At that she started to struggle, but too late. He picked her up with ease, as though she were a child, wrapping her bed-covering about her as he did so. Then he carried her into the passageway, closing the panel behind him and descending stairs to the 'evel of the studio floor and Dacca's quarters. As Violet rather surmised, the secret way opened at the other end into the smaller apartment of Paul Noy.

Here another man was waiting. She was given no chance for observation, but was gagged and blindfolded immediately. Some additional covering was wrapped around her. Though she struggled she only succeeded in exhausting herself. No clear recollection of her journey remained with her, except a sensation of covering a great distance, of being carried up and down many stairs at both beginning and end. The machine, she sensed, was a limousine with the curtains drawn. The air within was very close.

Renard spoke just once.

"Vera never did anything thoroughly in her life," he muttered.

After all was over she heard the voice of Vera herself, also raised in complaint. She realized suddenly that she had slept, because the blindfold and gag were removed.

"If he knew how I hated her," murmured Vera, in tones which left no doubt of her feelings, "he wouldn't ask me to get her dressed."

Violet opened her eyes. She was in a tiny room without windows, lighted by a single electric bulb. Vera and another woman, whom she recognized as the one who took her clothes from the House of Horrors, were seated, watching her. She lay on a rough couch bed. On Vera's lap was the summer dress, the perticoat, the shoes and stockings she had been compelled to surrender in the studio, now apparently to be returned to her.

Hurried by the women, who paid no attention to her request for privacy, she donned her things. Then she was taken through several long and crooked corridors to a sort of meeting room, draped and hung entirely in black. Here were dimly shadowed men whom she could not see clearly enough to identify. At the far end sat a shrouded figure at a table between two candles placed on tall stands and furnishing the only light in the chamber. Trembling, Violet was conducted to this individual, the leader of the others.

"Where is the map of the route to the treasure of the Devil God?" he demanded in a sepulchral voice.

"I—I don't know," she faltered.

With a quick gesture her questioner revealed his face, to frighten her. He was the horrible creature of her dream, the cyclops, Evil Eye.

Crying out in terror she leaped back, but her guards held her.

"Where is the map of the route to the treasure of the Devil God?"

Again she shook her head. At that she was whisked away by strong hands. Her wrists and feet were tied. She was taken through a damp hall and flung, helpless, upon stone floor, where she was left alone. No light of any kind penetrated the blackness, no sound the silence of her prison.

DAWN

It was Sunday morning at Lawncrest. The grass was brilliantly green; the walks, sprinkled late the night before, were glistening. Across the street the three-story frame house of the terlings stood proudly in the eastern sun, flaunting to the community its fresh coat of red paint trimmed with white. On the porch, Johnny, the dignified possessor of a new sailor suit and a clipped hair cut, whistled shrilly for Violet.

She was not quite ready, so he went on ahead. The Catholic Church bell was ringing for nine-thirty mass, which meant it was time for Sunday-school at the Presbyterian Church. Violet was late. Yet she could not hurry Katy, for there were snarls in her curls which simply would not come out.

Philip Carter stopped by to call for her. That was quite a thrill because Philip had been promised long trousers when they bought his winter suit, and Philip had taken her behind the barn once and allowed her to watch while he rolled a cigarette—without spilling a bit—and smoked it, blowing the smoke from his nose and wiggling his ears at the same time.

Would Katy never hurry? When she started off finally Violet knew that Sunday-school was nearly over. She would never get a text, never. And when she tried to run something held her, and she couldn't. Sure enough, the Presbyterian bell began to ring. Its deep, booming tones, struck through and through her. Church began in fifteen minutes. Never had she been as late as this. Once more she tried to run, and when she found her muscles would not respond to her will there came over her a strange, terrible, burning, tired feeling—a sensation she had never known before.

Again the deep-toned bell boomed out its call to service. Now she ran, swift, fleet, realizing that people stared at her in surprise to see a little girl all dressed up in white and running like this on the Sabbath day. But the church seemed to be farther and farther away from her. The more effort she used the more distant became her goal. The all-powerful numbing sensation stole over her again. Then she realized it was only a dream, and she remembered.

Evil Eye Vera Shy was in the clutches of her enemies. She lay, uncomfortable, tied and helpless, in some unknown place of horror.

REMARKABLE LETTER

Canadian Woman Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—"I can not speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Life was a misery and work was a burden. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said that he could do nothing for me owing to my condition, but told me to expect another miscarriage. My husband's grandmother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I started it right away and everyone noticed what a different woman I was in a short time. I went and engaged my doctor and he did not know me, I was so well. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a 'fine bouncing baby' to use the doctor's own words. I am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I can not help recommending such a medicine, and anyone seeing me before I took it and seeing me now, can see what it has done for me. It can do the same for anyone in my condition. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 721 McGee St., Winnipeg, Manitoba.

ONE OF LARGEST FUNERALS IN THE HISTORY OF CAVAN

John L. Paterson Was Well-Known in Millbrook and the District.

MILLBROOK, August 28. — The sudden death of John L. Paterson, which occurred last Monday after a brief illness, came as a shock not only to his immediate family circle, but also to the large number of friends whom he had made throughout the years of his residence in Hope and Cavan townships, by his cheerful disposition and upright business methods. Deceased was the second son in a family of four children, three boys and one daughter, and was born in Hope township 74 years ago last March. In 1899 the family moved to Cavan, living for 23 years on the Whitfield farm, northeast of Millbrook, and since then at their present home south of the village. Shortly before their removal from the Whitfield homestead the father died and just four years later their mother also passed to her reward.

The late Mr. Paterson was known throughout the province as a noted horseman, having been interested in this branch of stock raising for the past 62 years, crossing more than once to both Scotland and Ireland for the purchase and importation of thoroughbreds from these world-famous markets. For the last 35 years his specialty was Clydesdales, and while attending the Cobourg horse show this year he won three prizes with the fine horses which he was showing. Contrary to his custom, but urged thereto by intimate friends who were also exhibiting at the show, Mr. Paterson, though in his 74th year, himself drove "Missie Wilton" (which won the championship) on Tuesday afternoon.

He returned from Cobourg on Saturday at noon apparently in his usual good health, but awoke about 2 a.m., suffering from a severe pain in his chest. The doctor was immediately summoned and a nurse placed in charge, though no grave fears were entertained for the first few hours; but heart weakness coupled with a hemorrhage and a filling up of the lungs, resulted fatally on Monday at 3 p.m. The eldest brother, who was a world traveller, and was last in Canada in 1871, died in Australia four years ago, and the immediate surviving relatives, to whom the sympathy of the entire community is extended, are one brother, Harry, and one sister, Margaret Jane, both at home.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, August 23rd, and was one of the largest ever seen in this neighborhood, almost the whole countryside turning out to pay a last tribute of respect to one who not only made many new friendships each passing year, but who also had the happy faculty of retaining the friendships of former years. By actual count 220 cars and between 40 and 50 buggies were in the funeral procession, many having no opportunity of lining up at all before those first started were already at the cemetery (St. Paul's) were interment took place. Rev. C. R. Spencer had charge of the services at the house and at the graveside, Rev. G. S. Gervan being also present and taking some part.

The pall bearers were Dr. Hassard (Clarkham), John Brothwell (Perrytown), John Allen, H. W. Johnston, William McKnight and Joshua Whitfield.

Some of the relatives who were present from a distance included Mr. Robert Logan, and Mrs. R. Men, of Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lang, Mr. A. Lang and Son, of Omemee; Mr. G. N. Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawson, of Port Hope; Mr. Walter Potts, Mrs. Elizabeth Parmer, Mr. and Mrs. William Parmer of Elizabeth, Mr. Proufe, of Cannington, the last named being an intimate personal friend.

MISS BARNARD OF BAILIEBORO GETS PURSE OF MONEY

Her Resignation As Organist of Methodist Church Is Deeply Regretted — Bailieboro News.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 28. — On Thursday afternoon, Aug. 24, the U.M.S. held a quilting bee at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Barnard. A large number attended and three quilts were quilted for the mission fields. At the conclusion of the quilting, lunch was served. During the evening in addition to the W.M.S. a large number of the members of the Methodist church and friends, about one hundred in all, gathered together for the purpose of presenting Miss Hattie Barnard with a purse of money. Miss Barnard, who has filled the position of church organist for several years, recently resigned. An address was read by Harold Dawson and the gift was presented by Hadril Dawson.

Miss Barnard, who was taken by surprise, expressed her appreciation in a few sincere words. Her father, W. H. Barnard, Rev. R. M. Patterson and S. R. Nichols also spoke briefly.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and music, followed by a lunch, provided by the ladies

The Address.

Dear Hattie,—It is with real regret that we learn you are going away, and that we are obliged to dispense with your valuable services. Of these services we can not speak too highly. It has been a splendid thing for Bailieboro Methodist church to have had one as organist who was specially gifted for the work and who cheerfully worked with others and was faithfulness itself in the performance of her work.

Although you may not be with us much in the near future, we shall not forget what you have done. We are sure the choir will endeavor to maintain the higher standard you have given them, and it has been a great pleasure to us to notice the very great improvement in the congregational singing.

We trust that you will take pleasure in the gift we are giving you as the slight token of the appreciation we have just expressed.

May your life be a continuation of such work for the glory of God and the fuhtherance of His work.

Sig/ned on behalf of the church—Harold Dawson, Clifton Lang ,S. R. Nichols.

ACTIVITIES AT SUMMER RESORTS

"Bloomer Girls" Visit Stoney Lake Again This Year—Celebrated Birthday.

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 28.—The "Bloomer Girls" of Toronto, who spend their vacation annually with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clink at their pretty cottage, "Rameses," were present again this season in full force and had an especially happy time. This year they were accompanied by a few young men, which made things even more lively than usual. Practical jokes were played and a friendly rivalry existed between the boys and the girls as to which would keep ahead in the game.

George Clink, of Buffalo, the 16-year-old nephew of Mr. Clink, swam from McCracken's Landing around Juniper Island to "Rameses" on the Mount Julian shore. This is probably the most remarkable swim of the present season. He was two hours and forty-five minutes in the water, and finished fairly strong.

Among the summer visitors at "Rameses" were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smart, Kathleen Smart, Mr. and Mrs. Engersoll, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Clink, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. M[illegible] Kechnie and son Lloyd, M[illegible] Jennie Chick, Eily McL[illegible] Misses Mary Clink, Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin, Shilling, James Cavers, Mrs. E. J. C[illegible]rist, Bernard Florence Canniff[illegible]s Canniff, Misses Stone, Gladys B[illegible] and Marjorie [illegible]ep[illegible]ennett, Margaret [illegible]on.

Had a Birthday.

Master Freddie Young, of Young's Point, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Young, celebrated his sixth birthday on Tuesday last, and entertained a number of his friends to a trip to Stoney Lake. Mrs. F. G. Young and sons, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Brookes joined Mrs. F. Young and her children, Eileen and Freddie, at South Beach, and the party spent a very happy day, no doubt a red-letter day to Freddie.

Stoney Lake's grand old man, T. W. Robinson, who resides now in Peterborough, made a trip to the lakes on Tuesday. Mr. Robinson was a pioneer among the summer colony and established the first store on Stoney Lake at Juniper Island. For many years it was known as "The Store," being the only one on the lake. Mr. Robinson, though rather frail in appearance, enjoyed the day on the lake, and one hopes to see him able to return many times.

Rev. (Dr.) Ag[illegible], of Toronto, was the preacher at the service at Juniper last week, and Miss Ina Allan, of Toronto, soprano soloist. Mrs. Julia Choate Graham was the violinist.

Beau[illegible] Without Grit

Witho[illegible] harm to the teeth

Don't try to whiten teeth with grit that scratches the enamel. That's harmful. Use a soft polishing agent—the Pepsodent agent. Then combat the dingy film twice daily in this new, effective way.

That's what millions of people the world over are doing, largely by dental advice. Look about you and see the beautiful teeth that result.

Clouded by film

Teeth are clouded by a film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Stains enter it, then the film, if left, forms the basis of dingy coats. That's why teeth lose luster. Film is also the basis of tartar.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to that film. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

A new-type tooth paste has been created, based on five modern requirements. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants are embodied in it for daily application.

Old ways wrong

Pepsodent also aids Nature in two essential ways. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth before they ferment and form acids.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids that cause decay.

Every use of Pepsodent gives manifold power to these tooth-protecting [illegible] tooth [illegible]

WHAT THE "SILENT SERVICE" IS DOING TO MAKE PETERBOROUGH A BETTER CITY TO RESIDE IN

Time Has Come When the Civic Administration Should Consider Plans For Perpetuating Such Organizations As the Peterborough Health Association, the Red Cross and Well Babies' Clinic.

SOME OF THE WORK REVIEWED.

Although activities in most lines seem to slacken up with the advent of hot weather there is one element in community life that continues to function, regardless of a mounting thermometer. What might be termed the Silent Service of Good, the spirit of well-doing, has no thought for variations in temperature. The people who are active in good works carry on just as well in August as in December.

Up at Jackson Park, the kiddies are enjoying life. There is going on the transformation of pale, undernourished, often anaemic, small, specimens of humanity into sun-browned, plump little things who play all day under the tall, cool pines or splash in the merry, shallow little brook. "The child is the nation's greatest asset," and in Peterboro the children are getting an increasing share of attention as time goes by. Over two hundred of them cared for in the summer camp of the Health Association, with numerous kindly citizens, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs helping the good work along; the camp for under-privileged boys maintained by the Rotary Club at Clear Lake; outings arranged by Boards of Directors and friends for the little things who live at the Shelter and the Orphanage; the Well Babies' Clinic, with its indispensable service to busy and anxious mothers, with its careful attention and free instruction and advice; its care of those tiny little sprigs of humanity that bawl so lustily in the weighing basket, and lie on the examination table, midget fingers curled about the doctor's hand,—through all of these runs the thread of service to the children, the growing generation.

In their school terms the different Home and School Associations look after the pupils' welfare, supplying them with physical and mental encouragement, in the way of milk for the undernourished, and prizes for the ambitious ones.

The Visiting Nurse.

For the adult portion of the community there is quiet, unfailing service again by the Peterboro Health nurse slipping quietly in and out of the sick [illegible], giving personal attention where needed, bringing comfort in the shape often of fans for [illegible] rooms, cots and tents for the weary indoor sufferer, milk and eggs for all. The Catholic Women's League and the Red Cross Society contribute their share of service, the latter with its Public Health nurse, whose advice and experience are open to anyone who calls upon them.

In and out of city homes, too, goes the Well Babies Clinic Nurse watching over the babies, keeping an eye on the birth rate and its percentage of deaths, giving young mothers practical advice, and instruction in the upbringing of small infants.

"Take up the Torch."

There is one aspect about all these endeavors for good that cannot fail to strike an observer, and that is, who will carry on the work so nobly begun?

The workers in the various organizations are, in the majority of cases, the senior members who conceived and are carrying out the philanthropic ideas which are bearing such excellent fruit. The Well Babies' Clinic, several young girls have become interested in the work, but it is the older members of the other societies who are bearing the burden of endeavor in the Health Association, the Home and School Work, and the Red Cross Society. Will there be enough Elishas provided in the future in the various societies to bear worthily the mantles of their several Elijahs, who now labor so valiantly?

Peterboro is just beginning to discover the importance of public health. It has a very high percentage of infant mortality, and its card of health generally might be a great deal whiter. With the splendid beginnings that have been made in looking after infant, child and adult welfare in the city, with the splendid service afforded the community by the different societies enumerated, it should be a matter of public concern to see that our city continues to progress along the path of public health.

Public Recognition.

The most effectual plan for perpetuating these organizations would be to give them official sanction and standing as auxiliaries to the Board of Health. Since their inception they have virtually been the active agents of the Board, although they have been entirely independent, and if it is deemed desirable both for increased efficiency and for permanency to accord them public recognition, they might be coordinated into a separate department working in conjunction with the Board of Health. Their aims to be, voluntary, necessarily continue the Health Department, as is that of the proposal toward union would probably involve the question of finances. These several associations have raised their funds by subscription, but in as much as their labors have been for the public good and all in directions beyond the scope of the Board of Health, it is reasonable to suggest that the funding of a united organization, embracing the Health Association, the Red Cross, and the Babies' Clinic, for example, should be provided for out of the public treasury.

At any rate, it should not be difficult to lay out plans for such a union, if it meets with the approval of the members of the various associations. One outstanding advantage would be closer cooperation with the Board of Health. Under own initiative the ladies demonstrated their peculiar the charitable assistance rendered to the community change should be considered would in anyway interfere with executive supervision which have carried on so successfully is a subject for careful thought its essential requirements is directing impulse from themselves toward and the whole organization under a civic body with a of permanency under one head.

MAKES HOMES-AND MILLION!

BY MARION HALE.

Mrs. A. B. Maescher of Los Angeles decided to build a home.

It didn't seem an unusual undertaking, and it did seem the one way for her to satisfy her suppressed desires for enough closets and an inconspicious lodging place for hats and shoes as well as the secret urge for beauty and convenience.

So she drew up her plans, and the work began. Before the house was nearly completed, so many people had admired it, and she has been offered such flattering figures for it—human nature couldn't hold out against them, so she sold it.

That was 15 years ago.

It would be easy, she figured, to build another—particularly with all that extra money.

Misguided woman. The fate of the second house was the same as the first, only quicker. So also with a third, fourth and fifth. For a year, she tried desperately to own a home. But she couldn't.

"So I decided I might just as well go into the business and build them for other people," she explains.

From that day to this, the business has grown. She's the leading lady in the business today with from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 worth of work going on all the time.

* * *

She's building a home now for Mary Pickford, has finished one for Charlie Chaplin and Tom Mix and—well, consult the movie directory for other names.

During this time, she has never employed a solicitor. She's simply followed her creed that the home is the most important place in the world and that it should be the most beautiful and the most convenient that it should fit the life and the character of the people who live in it.

"I follow every detail of a house, from the front dor to the back," she explains. "I plan the landscape and the interior decotations. Then everything is harmonious. I plan every home as carefully as if it were my own.

* * *

"I always promise less than I give and try to have some pleasant surprise for my people.

MRS. A. B. MAESCHER

"I employ the finest workmen, the most gifted architects and the best artists I can find. Price is no object if I can get the people I want. Nothing is so expensive as failures.

"I know personally every individual in my employ. If anyone is in trouble, financial or personal I know it, for they come to me with their woes.

"Not only do I believe people should live in beautiful homes, but I believe they should work in harmonious surroundings For that reason my offices and workrooms are as beautiful as I can make them

"I'm going to build a model movie studio next and I'm going to experiment in pictures My girls will all be chaperoned and the atmosphere will be one of culture and refinment I want to see if this can't be reflected in the pictures and react in favor of Hollywood"

Mrs Maescher puts an element of home wherever she goes In her room at the Hotel Astor, where I saw her, she had added a few flowers and scattered some periodicals, rearranged the furniture and cheeriness and comfort radiated

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Oddfellows Decorate Graves—The Campbellford Market -- Hydro News.

IN POLICE COURT

CAMPBELLFORD, August 28.—The Campbellford Oddfellows, headed by the Northumberland Regiment Band, marched in a body on Sunday afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery to decorate the graves of their departed members. The services were conducted by the Rev. H. B. Kenny.

Campbellford Market.

Saturday's market was a heavy one. Large shipments of peaches, pears, plums, melons, and Lawton berries were offered. Buying was brisk throughout the day, and prices were somewhat easier.

In the vegetable stalls there were some exceptionally fine cauliflowers, heaps of Golden Bantam corn, enough tomatoes to supply a canning factory; carrots, beets, celery, cabbage, cucumbers, and everything seasonable — sold at prices which created quick sales.

Busy Saturday Night.

Judging from the line-up of motor cars in town on Saturday night, an observer would be impressed by the fact that Campbellford is surrounded by a very prosperous farming community, and with the improved highways leading to this important centre, merchants are looking forward to even greater tourist trade.

Hydro Notes.

Both wheels are now running at the new power house at Ranney Falls.

There is some talk of power being supplied to the village of Warkworth in the very near future.

Police Notes.

Several motorists were fined last week for infractions of the traffic by-laws, the principal offences being crossing at wrong intersections, speeding, and driving without taillights. Chief Duncalfe has issued his final warning.

Lacrosse News.

Campbellford Midgets won by default in the semi-finals, Deseronto failing to turn out on Friday. This means that the Campbellford boys will play off with Toronto, date to be set by the O. L. A.

Claude Hankinson, secretary of the local team, announces that a game has been arranged for Saturday 2nd September, with the Maitlands, of Toronto. This should prove an intresting game, as the teams are very evenly matched, and the Campbellford boys have been practising hard of late, and are right on edge.

Cheese Markets.

Chees sold on the Campbellford and Stirling markets last week at 14 5-8 cents. It is interesting to note that during the same period last year, the prices ranged from 18 1-4 cents to 19 5-16 cents.

Obituary.

Ephriam Lindsay died on Sunday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, at his home in the Township of Seymour. He had been ailing for some time. Deceased was born in Tweed, and was a son of the late Richard Lindsay.

Lawn Tennis.

Last Friday afternoon the Norwood Tennis Club visited the local tennis club here, and played a friendly game. The afternoon's pleasure was slightly marred by the showers, but the games were most interesting, the score resulting in favour of the Norwood Club.

After the play all were entertained at the home of Mrs. Ferris, Saskatoon Avenue, where dainty refreshments were served.

Foresters' Parade.

On Sunday morning the members of the Ancient Order of Foresters in large numbers, with visiting brethren from Peterborough and other neighbouring towns, marched in a body to the Baptist Church, where they occupied the entire centre pews, and were addressed by the pastor, Rev. H. S. Bennett, B.A. Mr. Bennett gave a very inspiring and practical address from the words found in I. Peter, chapter 3, verses 8 to 12: "Finally, brethren, be of one mind, having compassion one of another; love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous, not rendering evil or railing for railing, but contrawise, blessing." The speaker strongly emphasised the necessity for love, pity, courtesy, and non-retaliation in the daily walk of life.

The music by the choir contributed much to the success of the service.

WEALTH

"If you want to estimate the value of Time," says Irving R. Allen, the Chicago efficiency expert in his volume entitled — "You,"— 'Look about you. The investment — the exchange of Time for money, built the great fortunes of the decade — exchange of Time for knowledge made our scientists—the investment of Time made our music masters; and look a little harder, for it is worth looking for—the proper disposition of Time has brought back to certain men happiness unstinted. And you —yes you—are just as rich in Times as the wealthiest man in the world."

A Guide To What's Good To Get

SOME one has said that if bread and butter were new inventions they would have to be advertised before people would accept them as standard articles of food.

Even in this progressive age, folks are somewhat wary of leaving the beaten path. They stick pretty close to the things they know, when those things come up to their expectations.

That is why alert merchants and manufacturers strive to tell about their products and their services in the advertising columns of the daily paper. They want you to know what they have to offer, in the belief that when you do know, you will be interested, and perhaps inspired, with some of their own enthusiasm.

Thrifty men and women find that it pays to read the advertisements. It enables them to rest assured that they are not overlooking anything. It lets them know where to locate some desired product or service; where to go for "this" or how to get "that" to best advantage. Without its direction they would overlook much and consequently lose much. They would live in ignorance of many things that might add materially to their wealth, health and happiness.

Make advertising your guide to what's good to get.

Read it—reflect on it—it pays!

AN INTERESTING TALK, LTC.

Favorable Comparison.

We believe that the bacon we are shipping to-day will stand favorable comparison with the Danish and that now is the time to create a greater demand for Canadian bacon, and make the English people ask for it, even in preference to Danish. We do not want any of of our customers to sell this bacon as Danish and we do want the people of England to know that this bacon originates in Canada.

We are even now altering the stencilling of our boxes and will not only have the words "Produce of Canada" in four inch letters on these boxes, but are calling our bacon "Matthews' Canadian Bacon" instead of "Matthews' Bacon" as formerly. These words, besides being stencilled in four inch letters on the boxes, will be burnt on the sides with electric branding irons.

The past and present government, the breeders and the packers realize how important it is, that only the best bacon type of hogs be produced and the proposal to grade hogs on the Canadian public markets and at the abattoirs seems to have met with more cordial acceptance from all interests concerned than was ever expected. This grading of hogs has been approved by the Government and will probably become law some time netx month. The packers guarantee to pay a premium of 10 p.c. over the price paid for second grade hogs for select bacon type hogs and it is hoped that the effect of this will be, that all farmers will breed only the best bacon type hogs.

Seven Classes of Hogs.

Under this scheme hogs will be graded into seven classes, namely, select bacon hogs, thick smooth hogs, heavies, extra heavies, shop hogs, lights and feeders and roughs. Government officials will do the grading.

This proposal to grade hogs is creating considerable interest in the United States and is receiving favourable editorial comment from a number of the leading interested journals.

At the present time, there is a larger percentage of select bacon hogs in the Peterboro district than in any other district in Canada. The reason for this is the foresight of old Wm. Davies and George Matthews, who in 1878 brought from England number of Yorkshire boars and gave them to the farmers free of charge.

The Canadian Packing Company, Limited, have in Peterboro, the best equipped packing plant in Canada, and one that they are very proud of. We have never stopped exporting bacon whether the market was good or bad, in order to keep regular continuous supplies on the English market.

The factory is under Federal government inspection, two qualified veterinary surgeons and one layman being on the premises whereby the plant is in operation.

Precaution Against Disease.

From 15 to 20 per cent. of the hogs coming into us show signs of tuberculosis. All hogs passing through our hands are examined alive and then at the time of killing the throat and viscera glands are inspected by these inspectors and if disease is evident there, the body glands are also examined. We are not allowed to use infected parts and often we have to make grease out of the whole carcass. It is impossible for uninspected meat to leave our factory. Tuberculosis in hogs is caused chiefly by tuberculosis in cattle and passes to the hog through the milk.

It is often said that nothing except the squeal is wasted in the modern packing plant of to-day; this is very true. From the ordinary hog we obtain for the Canadian trade, two hams, two bellies, two loins and two shoulders, or for the export trade, two Wiltshire sides (a Wiltshire side being practically half of a dressed hog.) The lean trimmings go into sausage, the fat into lard, the fat that is unfit for lard into grease; the offal is all of value. At the present time we are shipping pickeled ears, snouts and tails. Pigs' hair is used in automonile cushions, and so on.

The packer pays cash for his live stock and never refuses to buy a farmer's hogs, but on account of the changing values of the different cuts from day to day, has a hard time figuring his cost. His stock turns over eight or nine times a year and so he is satisfied to work on a very small margin of profit.

Speed in Handling.

The speed in handling the live stock is remarkable. In Peterboro we kill at the rate of 300 hogs an hour. In the kill each man has a specified task to do and only a short time to do it in.

On account of the fact that the fresh and cured meats must be held a considerable length of time, the packer has to keep a lot of space under refrigeration. During summer and winter these rooms are kept at fixed temperatures varying from zero to 50 degrees, depending upon the purpose for which the room is kept.

Being so well equipped with refrigeration it was only natural that the packers should commence handling produce, buying during the productive season and selling during the non-productive season.

Butter and Eggs.

The storing of butter and eggs has done a lot to stabilize the market so that the price paid for butter and eggs is fairly stationary the year round. At any rate none of the produce goes to waste during the productive season.

Each week a number of people ask to see through our plant, and we are always pleased to show these people any of the operations they care to see. If at any time any of the Rotarians would care to go through our plant they will always be very welcome.

FROCK TRIMMINGS WORK MAGIC

Just one solitary bit of trimming is all that's needed to change a dress into a creation and here are some of the ornaments that turn the trick.

Cabochons of braid, beads or heavy embroidery are used to hold the graceful drapes of the newest frocks securely on one hip.

These are much more than merely fasteners—they are large and colorful and often have pendant fringes of braid or beads. Frequently they are the only touches of color on an otherwise somber dress.

The low waistline call for girdles too and these are often most elaborate. Braid sewn into placques or heavy embroidery of beads and braid are most favored for more elaborate costumes. Simpler dresses retain the low waistline with a sash of the material.

Adopted Mother of 14 Tells How To Rear Children Successfully

BY MARIAN HALE.

The stage mother, so convincing in her role that the public will allow her to play no other, has a counterpart in Mrs. Regina Alder, adopted mother of 14 children.

Life has made a professional mother of her.

Though she has but one son of her own, she has reared more than a dozen others, all orphans. She took them into her home for temporary shelter, and then they just stayed because they couldn't bear to leave her.

Seventeen years ago when her son was nine a neighbor interested her in two orphan boys, and she offered to care for them until a home could be found for them. One boy was five, the other six.

When a home presented itself, the children protested. Twice they were taken from her, and twice they ran away and returned.

* * *

"What could I do?" asks the kindly Mrs. Alder. "I had to let them stay. One stayed until he was 21. He was a real son to me all the time my own was away during the war.

"It was the same way with the rest. They came temporarily, then just stayed.

10 GOLDEN RULES FOR MOTHERS.
By Mrs. Regina Alder.

1. Be good and kind but firm.
2. Teach children love, loyalty and unselfishness.
3. Have children do things for others until it becomes a habit.
4. Let them settle their own scraps.
5. Give them plenty of sleep.
6. Be sympathetic with their troubles.
7. Let them know every day you love them.
8. Give them space to play and teach them to be happy.
9. Let them bring their playmates to their home.
10. Happy children are more important than a tidy home.

"To be sure, a large family doesn't mean a life of ease. I have never kept any help. But I taught the boys to take care of themselves and to play and work together. None has ever been very sick.

"Children seem to me to be the most important things in the world. They need care, love and sympathy just as much as food and shelter.

"Recently my son and my husband have tried to influence me not to take in any more children, and I've promised not to.

"I suggested to some of the older boys that they find other homes, and what do you suppose they did? Just took rooms next door, but live here just the same!

"My house hasn't always been the tidiest one on the block, and I haven't had much time for parties or fancy clothes, but I wouldn't trade my family for any life of ease."

* * *

Needless to say, Mrs. Adler's home is not in the most fashionable section of New York or is it done in the latest style. To tell the truth, it's a bit shabby with furniture that has seen wear and carpets that bear evidences of heavy traffic.

But fourteen children who have been sheltered and mothered there are ready to testify to the world that it's a real home and that Mrs. Alder has made a success of her profession of motherhood.

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

The ribbed mashie, which is about half mashie and half niblick, has a tendency to play short, so the stroke with this club should be made boldly and perhaps a little quicker than with the regulation mashie—just a bit more snap to it. Don't stoop too much; with a more upright swing you get better distance. Do not twist the body around too much on the back stroke. Keep most of the weight on the right leg. Keep the left heel on the ground, or at best don't permit it to leave the ground more than the merest of lifts. The more upright swing will yield also a lower flight, and this is desirable, you will find, because the lower flight, is more accurately judged.

Emmet French, the Ohio professional star, has a powerful mashie stroke, and for distance off his mashie he is improved only by big Jesse Sweetser, the New York amateur, who is 20 years old and as big as French. French is one of the top circle of contenders for the national open championship.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

All those interested in, and members of the C.G.E. Junior Football Club, are requested to attend an important meeting on King Edward Park, at 6.30 p.m. on Tuesday, August 29th.

TUG-OF-WAR AT THE EXHIBITION

Many Teams Expected to Take Part in Test of Strength at Industrial Exhibition.

One of the special features of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will be the tug-of-war contests, and the directors are hoping for a large entry with teams representing not only the local clubs and organizations, but also the counties and villages of this district. Several good prizes are being offered and the competition should be keen.

Teams will consist of ten men to do the pulling and a coach to do the talking, and with the men of this district—as big, as brainy and as brawny as they make them—it looks as if the management would have to get extra strong ropes to stand the strain.

Teams who wish to take part should enter their names with F. J. A. Hall, Secretary; R. Denne or J. W. Frazer of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The following rules will govern the contests:

1.—Ten men shall compose team.

2.—One coach allowed each team.

3.—At the start the rope shall be taut and the centre tape shall be over the centre line and the competitors outside the side lines. During no part of the pull shall the rope be tied or in any way crossed by the anchor man, nor shall he wilfully place either hand on the ground.

4.—The inspectors shall take charge of the teams and see that members of such teams do not wilfully touch the ground with any part of the body other than the feet, and report to the judge any infringement of this rule.

5.—It shall be in the discretion of the judge to disqualify the offending team and award the pull in question to the opposing side, or he may disqualify the offending team from the competition.

6.—A pull shall be won when one team shall have pulled the side tape of the opposing side over their own side line, or if any portoin of the foot of any competitor of the opposing side goes beyond the centre line.

7.—No competitor shall make any hole in the ground with his foot, or in any other way, before the start.

8.—All heats shall be won by two pulls out of three.

9.—No prepared boots or shoes, heel plates (sunken or otherwise), projecting nail tips, springs, Blakeys, points, hollows or projections of any kind shall be allowed.

10.—No gloves or adhesive substance whatever shall be used on the hands or ropes.

11.—Where three teams only compete, the team drawing the bye shall pull off for second prizes if defeated by the winner of the first round.

Lindsay Lost Battle Royal To the Local Ball Players

Heckman on Top in Pitchers' Battle With Oulette —Allen Hit a Home Run

CUMMINGS INJURED.

HECKMAN sent a good hit to right centre in the ninth inning and sent in the run that won the game Saturday afternoon with Lindsay, the final score being 2 to 1. The victory for the locals, with Cobourg's defeat at the hands of Belleville, puts the Petes in undisputed possession of second place for the second half schedule.

The game Saturday was a pitcher's battle from start to finish. Both Heckman and Oulette were working at top form, and at the end of Lindsay's half of the ninth inning everything was equal. Both had fanned ten men, both had walked one, five hits and one run had been collected by each team and each team had two errors scored against them. In the last half of the ninth- however, the Petes got next to Oulette for two hits and the winning run. Swanston, the first man up, got one that he liked and sent it to deep left centre for two bases. Heckman followed with a similar hit to deep right centre and Swanston scored, winning the game.

Allen scored Lindsay's one run when he completed the circuit on one of the longest hits seen on the local diamond. It is no easy job to hit a homer at Riverside, but Allen did the trick in good clean shape in the second inning. The old pill landed in the swamp that lies back of and between the score-board and the left field fence. He touched all the bags and had time to spare before the ball was returned to play. It was the last hit the Greybirds made until the eighth frame, when Ashton got a harmless single and was caught trying to steal second. Coombs also singled in the ninth, but was never in danger of scoring.

The Petes were practically helpless for the first four innings, their only hit being a single, which Heckman got hold of in the second frame, but he only got as far as the keystone sack when the side was retired. In the fifth frame Chris. Bergoine started the fireworks after two men were out when he got under one of Oulette's low ones and banged it to deep left centre for two bases. Wolfe followed with a neat single to centre, on which Bergoine scored, but Wolfe was caught by a fast play when he tried to go to second on the throw to the plate.

A hit in the sixth and another in the eighth got men on the bases for the Petes, but the necessary steam to bring them home was lacking.

Holyman played a grand game at short-stop, taking everything that came his way without even a suspicion of an error. Johnson also turned in some good work and made one particularly good stop when he took Ashton's speedy grounder and pegged him out at first. Shaughnessey also came across with a good throw when it was needed and caught Coombs at second when he tried to stretch a single into a double.

The Greybirds ran into hard luck in the third innings when B. Cummings, who was catching, was struck fair on the end of the middle finger of his right hand with a fast ball. The finger was very badly injured, being split for a good part of its length, and he will undoubtedly be out of the game for the remainder of the season. His withdrawal from the game would have left Lindsay with only eight men, as they had not brought a substitute with them, and the game would then have gone to the Petes by forfeit. Rather than lose the game by default, Cummings returned to the game after having his finger dressed and very pluckily finished out the rest of the game in right field in spite of the pain which he was suffering. His injury necessitated a big change in the Lindsay line-up. H. Cummings went behind the bat, Ashton to third and Allen to second for the remainder of the game.

OWLS WON GOOD GAME FROM C.P.C.

Both Teams Played Short-Handed But Were Well Matched. Burgess Scores.

The Owls and C.P.C. soccer teams played off their league match at the Oval Saturday, the Owls winning, 3 to 0. Both teams were short handed, only eight men a side being played, the result being an epidemic of off-side, the one-man defence causing many a forward attack to fail.

The Owls scored but one goal in the first half, Burgess getting the ball past Curtis. The teams appeared very evenly matched in the first half, both playing hard, while the outstanding players were Burgess for the Owls and Curtis in goal for the packers.

Burgess got his team's second counter after the resumption of play. They missed a chance to score again when Batley handled the ball in the penalty area. Hosker took the kick, but lofted the ball over the bar.

Near the end of the game Bayette made the Owls a present of a goal. The C.P.C. back in clearing spooned the ball through the goal, Curtis being helpless to save.

The players were:

Owls—G. Lowe, R. Ralston, H. Frost, H. Burrows, C. Hotstone, K. Hosker, A. Burgess and J. Roberts.

C.P.C.—W. Curtis, J. Bayette, W. Downer, J. Clark, R. Batley, H. Hotstone, W. Rickard and A. Lasenby.

Referee—Jack Clark.

Diamond Dust

Thirteen is evidently a lucky number for the Petes. Saturday's game was the thirteenth home game of the season and Hook rang up his usual thirteen strike-outs.

* * *

Allen's home run on Saturday was the longest hit seen on the Riverside diamond this season.

* * *

Umpire Colling of Belleville made his first appearance in Peterborough in the Lindsay game on Saturday and did good work.

* * *

The Petes are now in second place, but would be better off in third. If Cobourg had beaten Belleville the locals would have dropped to third place, with Cobourg and Belleville tied for first, and they would have had a much better chance to jump into first position. Now Belleville has but two losses, and the Petes with four will have a difficult job to oust them from the lead for the second half.

* * *

The Lock Works and Adanacs are scheduled for a Junior League game tomorrow evening. If the Adanacs win they have the second half cinched. If the Lock Works win it will make a three-way tie for first.

* * *

The Petes have a week's rest ahead of them. The next game scheduled is in Oshawa on Saturday.

* * *

B. Cummings gave a great exhibition of gameness when he returned to play after his injury on Saturday.

* * *

The Petes have only two more home games scheduled. One with Port Hope on September 6 and one with Oshawa on September 13. One game of the play-off will be played here, but that date has not been arranged yet.

* * *

The local midget series expects to declare a winner by September 9.

Jose Capablanca and M. Bogoljubowski are chess players. Two guys with names like that couldn't be anything else.

JUNIOR LEAGUE GAME WILL BE A FAST ONE.

The Junior City League will have a great game tomorrow evening when the Adanacs and the Lock Works will tangle bats for what may or may not be the final game of the second half. The Lock Works are out of the running for first, but if they win tomorrow they will send the Adanacs, Holy Names and Lakeviews into a three-way tie for first honors. On the other hand, a victory for the Adanacs will give them a strangle hold on the second half and a chance to play off with the Lakeviews for the season's honors.

Both of tomorrow's teams are playing a good brand of ball and both are out to win, if possible, so the game should be a good one.

CHARLEY PICK INVENTS NEW SHOE FOR DIAMOND

Charles Pick, manager of the Sacramento team, and several years ago third baseman with the Leafs, may be responsible for a new baseball shoe being designed. Experience has convinced him that the present principle of long heel spikes is all wrong. Pick is now on crutches as the result of sliding. The same thing happened to him in the East, and from the same cause. "All right for the front spikes to be long," declared Pick, "but short on the heel, little longer than football cleats would be sufficient, and remove a lot of hazards. Unless they put a baseball shoe on the market with short heel spikes, I will file my own down to little more than a quarrer of an inch. I have suffered two broken ankles from wearing the long ones."

NEW SWIMMING RECORD.

MONTREAL, August 28 (Canadian Press). — A Canadian record was broken at the forty-seventh annual aquatic meet of the Montreal Swimming Club on Saturday, when George Vernot finished the 440-yard race in 5 minutes 35 seconds, or 21 seconds better than the mark established by George Hodgson.

F. Tremblay, who finished second, also beat Hodgson's time.

Mourning, Dust and Ashes In the Camp of Dempsey

Jack Kearns Sings His Song of Woe For No One Will Pay a Paltry $500,000 For a Chance to Slap the Champion.

NEW YORK, August 28. — Perfumery Jaques Kearns, pilot of Jack Dempsey, champion of the universe, is around town with a face as long as Cromwell's and a grouch fully matured and bearded.

"I'm the manager of a champion they won't let fight," mourns Jaques. "Prythee, what percentage is there in that?"

And echo answers, "What percentage? What percentage?"

"What have Jack and I done that they treat us thusly?" continues the mournful Mister Kearns. "They let Harry Wills go around the country knocking out the Joplin Ghost, Buddy Jackson, and a string of set-ups no one ever heard of, but the minute the champion and I attempt to make a little chicken feed bowling over Bill Brennan, and Jess Willard, they give us the bum's rush and sic the whole United States Army on us.

"Pretty soon Jack and I are going to bid adieu to the U.S.A. We'll pack up and go down to Mexico City and fight Jack Johnston or Jimmy Coffroth. Or maybe we'll go 'way off down to Buenos Aires and put South America in mourning by licking Luis Firpo. We'll even go over to Yurrup and plaster friend Georges Carpentier again. Believe me, this is a tough world, a tough world!"

We interrupted the mournful musings of Mister Kearns long enough to ask him if Dempsey was thirsting avidly for a fight when he persisted in dodging Harry Wills, the only rival the public considers worthy of testing the champion's ability.

"Who's ducking Harry Wills?" exploded Mister Kearns. "Say, if Dempsey ever hits that Smoke he'll wallop him clear into Darkest Africa! Dodging Wills! Dodging Wills! Say, where do you get that stuff?

"Have I received a single bonev Fido offer for Dempsey to fight Wills? No! Everybody's talking, but saying nothing! Show me the money, show me the place, show me THEY'LL LET US FIGHT, and Dempsey will fight Wils in ten days. Yessuh, in ten days—in ten days!

"Say, everybody in this world but me is manaming Dempsey. And if I did what they want, wouldn't I be a boob? They only want me to fight Wills for nothing. Nothing—that's all!"

Again we interrupted the mournful musings of the doleful Mr. Kearns. We told him we had heard, sub rosa, that a certain party had asked him what were Kearns' terms for a right, and Kearns had replied:

"Five hundred thousand dollars guarantee with two hundred and fifty thousand dollars turned over to me and Jack the minute we sign the articles and the other two hundred and fifty thousand placed in our hands before we enter the ring!"

"Well, I ain't saying whether I demanded those terms or not!" replied Kearns. "Mind you, I ain't sayin' nawthing! But ain't they about right, I ask you, ain't they about right?"

After some one had shoved the smelling salts under our noses we came to sufficiently enough to say that in our opinion that it would be good business for Kearns and Dempsey to accept a percentage of 37½ the limit allowed in this State, inasmuch as Dempsey and Wills would draw a million dollar gate at the Polo Grounds, and Dempsey would be assured a good 375,000, or 375,000 more than he received for fighting Carpentier.

"Percentage?" shrieked Kearns. "Percentage? Why should me and Jack fight for a measly percentage? Say, I've got the champ, haven't I? Then why shouldn't I get what he is worth? What's the matter with me and Jack holding the fight ourselves on a percentage? Why should we hand 50 per cent. of the gate over to some one else who doesn't do anything else but go to the box office and collect? Huh, wouldn't Dempsey and I be the boobs to fight for 37½ per cent. and let them guys walk off with 50 per cent. and more? Huh, I ask you, now wouldn't me?

"Say, anybody that wants to promote a Dempsey-Wills bout has got to do better than a 37½-50 per cent. business. Jack and I ain't starving yet. We ain't got to fight. Not by a jugful. And rather than have any guys gip us out of what's coming to us we won't fight Wills at all.

"Jack is out in Los Angeles waiting for me to give him the word to do what I want. We've got an exhibition on at Michigan City on Labor Day, and I can start booking him on a theatrical tour any time I want. I may accept a few theatrical dates I had to turn down when we arranged the match with Brennan."

And with a flip of his silken handkerchief Mr. Kearns stepped into his Rolls-Royce and languidly remarked, "Home, James," to his liveried chauffeur.

But we have an idea that Kearns will yet be glad, mighty glad, to accept a percentage for Dempsey to defend his title with Wills. Wait a teeny wee bit of a while and see.

LAURIE ARMSTRONG MADE NEW RECORD

Sprinted Fifty Yard Dash in 5 2-5 Seconds

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Laurie Armstrong, of the North End Club, who chased Cyril Coafee so close in his record-breaking century at Calgary recently, set up a new Canadian record and equalled the world's marks for the fifty yard dash at the police sports here Saturday afternoon. He covered the distance in the remarkable time of 5 2-5 seconds. He also equalled the dominion record of 6 3-5 seconds for the sixty yard sprint. Coaffee was clocked in the 100 yards at 9 4-5 seconds.

Little Lessons For the Golfer

(By George O'Neil)

Too many players assume that the finger grip of the clubs, which gives the best sense of touch, is necessarily a light grip. Gripping lightly, they grasp the mashie in such manner they do not have complete mastery over the club. The mashie should be gripped with the fingers, but held very firmly. Look at the ball, take the club up with the left arm, know exactly what you intend to do with the club head—as if you were driving a nail with a hammer—then do it, holding the body and head still. Take just a bit of turf with the mashie—it steadies the ball in its flight.

Mrs. Gourley Dunn-Webb, pictured above, is one of the very few women professional golfers of the country. She is a sister of the fine California pro, John Duncan Dunn. Professional golf offers a fine opportunity for women. We ought to have more of them. Mrs. Webb's swing with the driver shows a fine golf style.

Important Junior Game Tuesday and Juvenile Contest on Wednesday

Adanacs and Lock Works will play a junior series game at Riverside Park to-morrow evening, at 5.30 o'clock, and a win for the Nacs will give them the second half, which means a place in the championship play-off with Lakeviews. Should the locksmiths upset the dope, and defeat the Adanacs, it will be necessary to finish out the schedule.

Lakeview and Maple Leaf juveniles will cross bats again on Wednesday evening at 5.30. To cop second half honors, the Leafs must win this game. Both teams will be strong and an interesting battle is promised.

To complete the four team city rugby league the southenders have decided to organize a team which may be known as the Lakeviews. This will be decided to-night at a meeting to held at eight o'clock on the grounds of the Sacred Heart church. LEASIDE DOWN OSHAWA JUMP IN FLAG CHASE

OSHAWA, Aug. 28.—The Hoose-Peacock motor crew from Leaside drove into Oshawa on Saturday afternoon and what they didn't do to Bert Booth's motor gang of Oshawa is not chronicled in the Baseball Guide of Central Ontario Baseball League. Under the piloting of McGuire, who worked on the mound with a lefthand drive, ably assisted by his fellow assemblies, they stripped Oshawa's gears of the second section race by winning 8-1. "Letty" spotted Oshawa one in the first frame, after which he hung up eight blanks on the scoreboard. Patton, who did the heaving for Oshawa, held Leeside safe for the first two innings, but the Toronto suburbanites came through with three in the third, one in the fifth and two each in the eighth and ninth, and included in the eight runs were two circuit clouts. During the last six frames Oshawa's official scorer was busy registering errors in his box score. This win for Leaside puts them up with the first division teams and shoves Oshawa down into seventh place. The score by innings:

Leaside .....003 010 022—8
Oshawa.....100 000 000—0

Batteries — Maguire and Hoose; Patton and Evans. Umpires—Macdonald, Toronto, at plate; Ted Large, Bowmanville, on base.

A BASEBALL GAME AT CHEMONG PARK

A baseball match of considerable interest to Chemong Parkers will be played at the park Thursday afternoon when the Rendezvous and the cottagers meet in a return battle. The Rendezvous carried off the honours last week but the park nine have been getting into shape and expect to win. The game will be called at three o'clock by Walter Smaill. Fred Jopling, the captain of the Rendezvous team, is not worried over the confidence of the park nine and is already regarding as his own the box of cigars which goes to the winners.

A SECOND ANNUAL CAPITOL SEASON

An Attractive Programme Has Been Provided For Capitol Week in Peterborough.

It is with great pleasure that Manager Abbey of the Capitol Theatre, owned and operated by Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, with head offices in Toronto and theatres in every Canadian city from coast to coast, announces to his patrons the second annual season of Capitol Entertainment at the Capitol Theatre.

Last year the idea was new, the original scheme of N. L. Nathanson, one of the recognized authorities in the moving picture world in America, and managing director of the big corporation owning this chain of moving picture houses. So successful was last year's effort, so fine the programs in all Capitol Theatres, and especially in Peterborough, that it has been deemed advisable by Mr. Nathanson to inaugurate a second season of this entertainment, and September the fourth to September the ninth are the dates selected for Capitol Entertainment week.

Paramount pictures, fine incidental music, artistic presentations, raise the bill offered at the Capitol Theatre to the standard of the highest class amusement to be had anywhere at the lowest price consistent with the value of the entertainment.

The company's policy is always to please, to bring the artistic achievements of the world's master producers, the works of the best musicians, to the small cities and towns as soon as possible after they have been seen in large centres. The value of this, as an educational asset, as a broadening influence in the lives of the general public—is becoming more and more recognized as a powerful factor of modern life.

There will always be small towns—there must always be farms — but before very long, there will be no such thing as isolated districts, with people, who, unable to travel, will lead a monotonous, soul-deadening existence devoid of pleasure or amusement.

Through establishing beautiful Capitol Theatres in all the large cities of Canada, as well as houses in every available locality, Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, has assisted the motor salesman, the Ford manufacturer and other agents in bringing Capitol entertainment even into the rural districts. The farmer and the hired man, as well as the comfortable resident of the small cities and towns, can spend an evening at any time of the company's playhouses, and for an inconsiderable sum watch the screen versions of the world's greatest novels, the efforts of famous artists, and listen to music of the highest order.

Paramount pictures are what the word Paramount means — there is nothing better—so to convince you that this year as well as last, you may have the best amusement in the world, Mr. Abbey has selected for the week of 4th September the first half of Jack Holt in "The Man Unconquerable," and the last half of "The Top of New York"—the whole bill providing a wonderful programme of Capitol entertainment.

MUSICAL COMEDY COMPANY OPENS CANADIAN TOUR

Pleased Large Brockville Audience on Saturday--Singing and Dancing.

Jimmy Evans and his company of musical comedy stars made their initial bow to a Brockville audience on Monday last at the New Theatre and scored an instantaneous hit by their clever singing, dancing, music and witty comedy.

The comedy presented, "Miss Manhattan," was light and airy, but it served to introduce the clever organization to entertainers, and all of the principals, as well as the members of the chorus, were cordially received by the large audience present.

The company, which came here direct from Boston, Mass., is entering upon its first season in Ontario. It enjoys a wide popularity throughout the Maritime Provinces and judging from the manner in which the Brockville audience accorded its favor last night, it will not be long before this attraction has a large following in Ontario.

Handsomely costumed and with a wealth of scenic and electrical embellishments, combined with singing and dancing of merit, the play pleased to no uncertain extent and many favorable comments were heard at the close of the production.

Among the features to win the applause of the audience last night were the singing of "You Can Have Every Light on Broadway," by Miss Grace Gould, prima donna, who also scored with "Days of Sweet Long Ago"; "California," sung with pleasing effect by Miss Kittens Frazer; the violin playing by Miss Florence Pepin, and her singing of "Remember the Rose."

Jimmy Evans, the Irish comedian, a tenor singer of no mean ability, scored decisively with "That Old Irish Mother of Mine," and with Joe Devine, Jewish comedian, won great applause singing "That's How You Can Tell They're Irish." Joe Devine's singing of "Abraham," his own composition, and "Don't" won repeated encores and the singing by the male trio was one of the brightest spots in the pleasing production. Bert Ryans singing of "Mother Eve" and 'Down Yonder," as well as Geo. Wheeler's pleasing bass solo, "The Big Base Viol," were gems.—Brockville Times.

VIOLA DANA SKIDS INTO NEW PICTURE.

Auto Whirls About Twice in Rainstorm for Opening Scene of "Seeing's Believing."

Viola Dana began in a violent and artificial rainstorm, the making of her newest photoplay for Metro, "Seeing's Believing." This picture is a Harry Beaumont production, adapted by Ethel Kennedy from the original story by Rex. Taylor. John Arnold photographed the play.

The initial scene required the building of a street set two blocks long on the Metro lot in Hollywood, and the manufacture of the driving downpour of rain. This was provided by the usual wind machine to send blasts of spray across the street, and by the playing of fire hose upon the roof-tops of the buildings, so that the water would stream down naturally from eave and drain. Illumination of the set came from a battery of powerful lamps, each of 10,000 candle-power strength. Mr. Beaumont, the director, commanded a crew of thirty-five men in the production of the storm.

The action required of the star in this wet set was to drive down the street in a small automobile and skid a little midway. She did, the little car whirling around twice as she applied the brakes.

HATS — FIRST AID TO BEAUTY.

"Did you ever see a woman who was just impossible?" asked Viola Dana, the little Metro star.

"Well, the next time you do, just look at her hat. There will be something wrong there surely, for most poorly dressed women, as far as taste is concerned, starts erring with their hats. Footwear is next.

"A big hat of the 'picture' type, without an appropriate cause, gives the effect of a ship with too many sails spread. It destroys the effect entirely.

"If a girl is of the right size, and has a filmy frock and a picturesque background, against which to appear, the effect of the picture hat is very pleasing. Without the proper accessories, the hat is a failure.

"Women would do well to stick to the small and medium-sized hats if they would be well dressed, as very few are able to secure the right effects with the larger hats.

"Seasonableness and the occasion should enter into the choice of headgear. By that I do not mean just a 'summer and winter' choice of hats, but the choice of the right hat at the right time.

"I like a close-fitting turban, especially for going to the theatre. You can wear it without fear of obstructing the vision of anyone sitting behind you and with the consciousness of being chic and fetching."

RAY HAS SPLENDID SUPPORT IN "SCRAP IRON"

Few pictures have been produced with a better or more carefully selected supporting cast than "Scrap Iron," the First National attraction, starring Charles Ray, which is the feature for three days at the Royal Theatre, beginning today.

Every character, from the principals down to the extras, hundreds of them at that, was picked with the greatest care. There were real pugilists, real timekeepers, referee and fight fans.

Vera Stedman plays the part of Midge as few other girls could play it, and she looks the part to perfection—the slim, tigerish slip of a girl who has fought poverty all her life and uses her wits to keep up apnearances.

Tom O'Brien was a well-known amateur fighter some years back and is the embodiment of the scrapper who forges his way to the front by sheer strength and absence of fear.

Stanton Heck, as the owner of the Athletic Club, would convince anyone, while his henchman, as played by Charles Wheelock, makes everyone believe he is the type of man he impersonates—and he isn't!

Last, but far from least, is Lydia Knott, as the mother of Ray. She provides a gem in the way of character acting, giving one of the most touching mother-performances ever seen on the screen.

Ray pays tribute to his support in this picture. He says that every man, woman, girl and boy gave him of their best, and that the task of directing was rendered much more easy than it would otherwise have been by the willingness and cleverness of everyone connected with the performance. The artists, to a man and woman, are all full of praise for Charles Ray as a director. Several of them made the remark that they considered him one of the finest directors in pictures and this was his first effort in this direction.

VILLAGE CALLS HOLIDAY TO WORK IN FILM COMEDY

A holiday was declared in a little country town near Los Angeles when the company making "Country Chickens," the latest Educational-Punch comedy, went there to take a scene illustrative a run on a small town bank. The director wanted real small town atmosphere—and he got it. The whole village turned out, delighted to join the mob that stormed the village bank for the camera.

"Country Chickens," which features Louise Fazenda, the popular comedian of the kinky curls, will be at the Royal Theatre tonight.

DIPLOMACY STARTS IN THE HOME SAYS ENVOY'S WIFE

MRS. WILLIAMSON S. HOWELL, JR.

Diplomacy like charity should begin at home.

This is the opinion of Mrs. Williamson S. Howell, Jr., wife of our new charge d' affaires in Cuba.

She recently returned from Czechoslovakia, where for two years her husband served as charge d' affaires of the American legation at Prague. When she married him he was second secretary to the American embassy at London.

Her experiences in foreign capitals and in diplomatic circles have strengthened her conviction that the most valuable assistance any wife can render her husband is to establish and maintain an attractive home.

* * *

"The wife of a diplomat in a foreign land represents the home life of her whole nation," she says. "She must reflect the best of our national characteristics.

"She should create, wherever she goes, that atmosphere of hospitality and genuine appreciation of home which every woman at home should do in a smaller way.

"If she has no knowledge of housekeeping and homemaking she must learn it. Knowing and serving good food correctly and a mastery of all the ceremonies and formalities that attend it are a part of her position.

"Even if she does not consider eating so important herself, she must remember that sometimes others do. Europeans, for instance, give much more attention to the technique of a dinner than we do.

"With them it is an event, not an incident. The American hostess who wishes to represent her country fairly will not be careless about such matters.

"After a diplomatic dinner one may have a dozen different nationalities in the drawing-room. This means a dozen different languages, ideals and outlooks. But the hostess must unite all these in mutual interests.

* * *

"Next to creating a good American home wherever she goes, I believe the most important thing to do is to promote the belief in our great national characteristic—health. Not merely physical health, but a healthy mental and normal state.

"One needs this to meet situations squarely, honestly and openly. We need a sane, healthy viewpoint to have the courage of our convictions. We need it to keep ourselves clear of intrigue and duplicity.

"My position has taught me how much diplomacy really begins at the dinner table and how many important decisions are reached over the coffee, and I realize as never before the importance of the home and the woman who makes it.

"And I believe that creating a home and a proper background for her husband is still the most important obligation of a woman."

Mrs. Howell before her marriage was Charlotte Barth of Denver.

Read both halves of the news

LOOKING over all the normal activities of life which hold your interest—your city, your church, your school, your sport, your good works—there is not a single one that has not been promoted and fostered by having public attention focussed upon it in the Daily Newspapers of your community.

Facts about personal happenings of this kind have come to be called news; facts about retail business are spoken of as "advertising." There is no actual difference between the two. Read both.

As a consumer you have as much interest in the day's advertising news as any person has in civic events. How else can you keep informed of what is newest and best to eat, to wear, and to use; how can you know who is selling on the best terms and pledging his name and resources to back the quality and worth of his brand and trade mark?

Daily Newspaper advertising is the soil in which new comforts and economies are grown daily for your benefit. It is news of value and interest to every one of us who must spend money daily just to live.

OBITUARY

MARIAN FLORENCE GAY.

Marian Florence Gay, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gay, of Campbellford, died this morning at Nicholls Hospital. The remains were forwarded to Campbellford this afternoon.

Fashion Hints

SLEEVES.

Paris predicts that the sleeve for winter will be long and tight at the wrist, but fancy in its effect.

ON COATS.

Embroidery is used on fall coats in interesting ways. One of white broadcloth is covered with cut-out designs of red, stitched on with coarse white silk. Another, also white, has designs composed of French knots in yellow.

LINGERIE COLLARS.

Lingerie collars and cuffs are going to be featured on the street frocks for fall. Attractive coat dresses in Poiret twill and piquetine are apparently glad to have a little ornamentation of this nature.

SHAVED RABBIT.

A novelty in furs is shaved rabbit which might be said to resemble white seal, if there were such a fur. It is used largely for short jackets or trimmings. Sometimes it is colored grey, biege or tan.

JACKETS.

Jackets for very elaborate wear are of white caracul, made like an Englishman's coat with open sides and turned-back cuffs. These garments are lined with silver grey silk.

BEEKEEPING--A NEW FEMININE HOBBY

EDITH GAEFE A ND HER PETS.

Edith Gaefe of Cincinnati now earns her living at the typewriter, but hopes some day to accomplish that end with beehives—and bees.

Cultivating bees is her particular hobby and she believes if people ever realized how fascinating this occupation is, beehives would be installed in back-yards just as chicken coops used to be and roof gardens would broadcast invitations to these busy creatures.

"Afraid of them? Certainly not," says she. "I go into a beehive without a bee veil and with bare arms, and never think of fear."

"When working with bees, remember that they sting only to protect their hives against intruders. Let your movements be slow and careful and you can go through any hive without a sting."

BY STUART P. WEST.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 28.—(Special to The Examiner.)—To-day's markets were called upon on the one hand to measure the effect of the emphasis laid over Sunday upon the coal strike, and in order to figure on Germany's reply later in the week under the final call of the Reparations Commission for a plan of taxes.

It was altogether an important and unusually interesting test for the financial situation. Had the cue been taken from the foreign exchanges, one would have said that financial sentiment was more hopeful over the German position than it had been. This hope was based on the seemingly good chance that the majority of the Reparations Commission would vote for a moratorium through the remainder of the year. But as against the best rally that either the mark or the franc had had in over a week there was the sharpest break that has yet occurred in French Government securities. The 7 1-2's of the external dollar loan dropped nearly two points. They sold within less than two points of their extreme low in the early part of the year and were nine points from their top. At the same time the French municipal bonds and the Department of the Seine touched the lowest they have ever sold for since listed on the New York Stock Exchange

The stock market opened somewhat lower. Then followed an hour or so of uncertainty, during which Wall Street pools had the courage to bid up a dozen or so industrial issues. These experiments were not successful, however, in sustaining the general list and in the afternoon, under what was evidently a sharp drive, prices gave way all along the line.

In some of the recent industrial favorites the downward turn was rapid, while the rails at their low point in the later trading were off from half to 3-4 of their advance.

MOTORS ATTACKED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Professionals attacked motors in first hour. Steel stocks were in demand following publication of a Pittsburg dispatch which predicted normal production in steel trade within a month. American Tobacco reached new high of 150. This stock pays $12, is selling below Liggett and Myers and Lorillard which have same dividend rate. American Tobacco earnings are running well in excess of dividend charges. U. S. Steel will conclude first two months of its third quarter on Thursday this week. These months have been highly profitable notwithstanding operations have been forced down to as low as 60 per cent. by coal strike but this has been offset by better prices for Steel.

STOCK MARKET OPINIONS:

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.— W. E. Hutton and Co.—The expected resumption of the Bull market is under way and we continue to advise purchases on all recessions.

Prince and Whitely— Ignore the strike news and continue to buy the rails on all recessions.

J. S. Bache and Co.—A Bull market built up as this one has been on tangible basis which still remains unshaken is due to continue with usual reactions for alonger period.

Tests showed that the descent to 2,700 feet could be made, but that farther was perilous.

CAMPBELLFORD HEIFER BROKE LOOSE AT "EX."

A two-year-old heifer owned by Mr. Alex. Hume, of Campbellford, Ont., created half an hour's excitement and caused the first casualty at the Toronto National Exhibition on Saturday afternoon. The heifer was being unloaded at the Coliseum when it broke loose and, becoming enraged for reasons best known to itself, ran amuck.

Travelling at a high speed through the cattle sheds, it sped to the arena, north then to the live stock building and along the Midway.

In the rush and scramble to avoid the mad heifer little Elsie Walker, 6 years, of 148 Northcote ave., was knocked down and cut behind the ear. She was rushed to the emergency hospital, attended and was able to go about visiting the Exhibition.

Meanwhile the heifer continued its wild course along the midway, doubled back and raced for the Dufferin gates. Had it reached the gates with the mob coming in there is little saying what may have happened.

As it was, several attendants, headed by a Humane Society officer, were able to trap the cow near the Argonant Club and finally mastered it, taking him back to his quarters.

KIWANIS HEAR THE DOCTRINE WHOLE WHEAT

Local Doctors Record Their Disapproval of White Bread and Kindred Refined Products

SPLENDID ADDRESS

The doctrine of nutritious and wholesome food was advanced to the Kiwanis Club to-day by Dr. Graham Macdougall, and his address made such an impression that the club foreswore boiled vegetables, meats, white bread, and coffee, and asked the Empress Hotel to take them back to Nature at the next luncheon.

J. W. Worth, who is in charge of the Commissariat Committee, was instructed to approach the House, on the motion of Dr. E. H. Wood, seconded by Alec Dick, and ascertain what ararngements could be made for including in the menu such items as raw vegetables, raw fruit, whole wheat bread, and milk.

Dr. Macdougall treats his subject skilfully, and his arraignment of refined food was complete. There are 16 elements necessary for the rebuilding of the microscopic body cells that are being constantly worn out and reconstructed, he said. Wheat, oats, milk and eggs contain all these sixteen. In addition to this the body calls for the mysterious vitamines of which some doctors claim there are only two kinds and some as many as six. The ancients even appreciated the importance of vitamines, although they could not define them, and Moses appears to have been impressed with the part they played in maintaining the body in proper functioning order.

Vitality Declining.

That the grandfathers of the present generation were more robust than their grandchildren is an established fact, the doctor said. They were not so subject to cancer and such diseases as diabetes. The decline in vitality has been due to the gradual refinement of the food, he said. The food nowadays is admittedly got up in an attractive way, but the question, the doctor said, was as to its value. Doctors have concluded that the best part of the food has been removed in the refining processes, and it has been ascertained that of the sixteen elements in wheat white bread only delivers about eight to the body and of four others 75 per cent. has been removed.

Dr. Macdougall blamed the high infantile mortality rate on this continent to improper food, and he pointed out that New Zealand, through food reform, had cut its infantile mortality rate to five in one thousand against New York's 88.

Grown-ups are by no means immune from the serious effects of wrong eating, and he claimed that the present generation is not living as long as it should. The death-rate between the ages of 40 and 60 is growing, and he sounded a warning to Kiwanians to keep away from excess sugars and proteins.

Here are a few pointers he handed out to the assemblage:

Eat vegetables raw or boil in very little water, and use this water.

Cut down on meat.

Eat only whole wheat or whole oats.

Fresh fruit every day, winter and summer.

Cut down on sugar.

Dr. Wood's suggestion that the Kiwanis Club act on Dr. Macdougall's advice was loudly acclaimed, and the Kiwanians are eagerly looking forward to the menu of the future.

It was announced that a week from to-morrow the club will visit Lindsay, and C. R. Widdifield, R. Neill, and Leslie Stevens were appointed a transportation committee. Many of the members expressed themselves as anxious to go by automobile.

Walter Stocker presided to-day. Walter Kidd was booster, and was introduced by Martin Roche.

Prizes were won by Douglas Grant, Lloyd Hamilton, and George Henderson.

Guests to-dav were R. S. Robertson, Little Britain; Gordon Monkman, Peterborough; and Alfred Austin, Oshawa.

DIFFERENCES HAVE BEEN CLEARED UP

PARIS, August 29 (Canadian Press). — The Vatican and French Government have composed their differences, with the result that the Benedictine Monks in Quarr Abbey, in the Isle of Wight, are returning to the Mother House of Seleanes, in the Department of Sarthe.

They established themselves in the Isle of Wight twenty years ago, and built a fine new abbey on the ruins of the ancient monastery, and devoted themselves to the reclamation of the old style plain chant.

Their departure from the island is generally regretted. The monks made themselves most welcome neighbours, and they were hospitable to strangers.

SHE LIKES DADDY BETTER MOTHER FIGHTS IN VAIN

DETROIT, Aug. 29.— Mrs. Fay Pabian yesterday attempted to regain by violence the baby whose custody the law denied her. Failing she was led away hysterical.

When Mrs. Pabian and her husband, Frank Pabian, were divorced in Chicago last spring, the court ordered that their 4-year-old daughter, Anita Marie, be placed in a home there. Instead, Pabian brought the child to Detroit, remarried, and established a residence at 993 Warren avenue west. The former wife swore out a warrant, and last night Pabian was arrested for the Chicago police on a charge of kidnapping the child.

Anita Marie told Judge Harry B. Keidan at her father's arraignment, that she liked her father much better than her mother, so Judge Keidan released him without bail and sent Anita Marie home with him. The case came up again yesterday, but the Chicago authorities did not appear to press the charge, and it was dismissed.

As Pabian left the courtroom with the baby in his arms and his new wife at his side, the mother burst into tears and seized Anita Marie's arm. The girl screamed and clung with the other arm to her father's neck. The father wrenched her away from Mrs. Pabian, but the latter renewed the attack and this time succeeded in taking the child.

Then the second Mrs. Pabian sprang to her husband's aid, and Anita Marie was torn from her mother's arms. The divorced wife was fighting frantically when police and bystanders interfered. She had scratched Pabian and the present wife severely and tore their hair.

The mother was kept in a rest room until the others had gone.

"Billy" Doyle is in Mark Twain's Class

Mr. William Doyle, of the Dominion Tax Colletcors' Office, Belleville, was in the city to-day renewing old acquaintances and assuring his many friends here that he is still alive and well. In this respect Mr. Doyle had a busy day, because a despatch carried over the wires a few days ago included his name in the list of casualties resulting from an automobile accident in Hastings township, in which two men were killed and one badly injured. As a matter of fact Mr. Doyle was some forty miles from the scene of the accident, and was therefore fortunate enough to be "not present" when the disaster occurred. Like Mark Twain, Mr. Doyle feels that the report of his death or near death was greatly exaggerated.

FAMILY DEPORTED BY GOVERNMENT

E. J. Scott Was a Cripple and Should Not Have Been Sent to Canada.

After two year's stay in Canada, E. J. Scott with his wife and two children have been deported by the Government. During most of the time they lived in Peterboro, but for the last nine months Mr. Scott was out of work except for one week. He was an ex-soldier and was sent out from Ireland by the British Government. He was a cripple and his disability prevented him from doing heavy work. In sending him back the Canadian authorities have been following their regular policy, it was said, and it was held that Mr. Scot should never have been sent to this country. The cost of his family's return voyage is borne by the steamship company that transported him, and the British Government pays the other expenses.

FURNISHED BURIAL RITUAL BY WIRELESS

A Strange Call to the Cunard Liner Carmania.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—There have been many stories of strange uses to which wireless communication has been put on the high seas, but the Cunard liner Carmania brought in a new one on her arrival here from New York. While off the Irish coast the liner's operator picked up a message asking that the ritual for the burial at sea be sent in full.

This strange request came from the Canadian government steamer, "Canadan Trooper," whose captain found he had no prayer book when confronted with the necessity of burying one of the firemen at sea. The Carmania supplied his need.

OPENING THE NEW HIGHWAY

Interesting Event Will Take Place on Thursday Afternoon of This Week

The official opening of the Provincial Highway from Port Hope to Peterborough will take place on Thursday of this week at Springville. Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Highways, is expected to lead in the ceremony and there will be other officials of the Department and members of the Ontario Legislature and Dominion Parliament present. Addresses will be indulged in and the affair will be capped with a musical programme. The speech-making will commence about 3 o'clock. The ceremony does not mark the completion of the entire road, but only that portion from Peterborough to Kendry. The three year programme of construction on this road will not be fulfillled until next year, when it will become an important part of the Provincial Highway system.

Those who have cars are familiar with the work that has been done on this highway. It is one of the finest sections of road in the province, and will prove a valuable aid in facilitating transportation between Peterborough and points along the highway. Arrangements are being made to make Thursday's opening an important event worthy of the occasion and to this end an elaborate programme has been prepared. A feature of this programme will be an automobile parade in which a prize will be given for the best decorated automobile. The ladies of Springville Presbyterian church and of the district will co-operate in serving a hot supper on the grounds of the Springville church, for which thirty-five cents will be charged. Everybody welcome.

COUNCIL LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO MEET.

Extension of Washington Agreement to Be Considered.

GENEVA, Aug. 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Extension of the Washington agreement for the reduction of naval armaments to include countries not parties to that accord is one of the questions to come before the Council of the League of Nations assembling here to-day to begin preparations for the third assembly. This will probably be recommended in a report to the Council by the Disarmament Commission which was charged by the last assembly with preparation of the treaty on reciprocal agreement between nations tending not only toward naval disarmament but to military as well. The Commission is expected to finish its work this week.

MOTION WAS DENIED.

CHICAGO, August 29 (Canadian Press). — The Railroad Labour Board to-day denied the motion of W. Jett Lauck, labour statistician, that the Board immediately define the principle of a "living wage" in the case of the maintenance of way men who are seeking increased minimum rates of pay. The hearing then adjourned until to-morrow.

HEAVIER RAIL ON THE LINES THROUGH HERE

THE GRAIN TRADE

Grand Trunk Railway officials look forward to a more extensive programme of construction next year, and the Midland division will be made ready for heavier traffic it is announced. The plans call for ninety pound rails throughout, and in some sections 100 pound. In the Victoria Harbour, Midland and Tiffin section this heavy rail has been used this year on account of the hard service the grain movement gives the line. The movement of grain from Georgian Bay ports to Montreal continues and the local shipping to elevators is expected to boom the local railway business.

On an inspection trip through the city, R. H. Fish, general superintendent of Eastern Lines, was pleased to learn that the G.T.R. was awarded first prize in the Horticultural Society competition for beautiful grounds and he commended the work that had been done. The head gardener of the G.T.R. was also in the city, and he viewed with pardonable pride the little oasis of flowers and green that brightens the station and is a result of the efforts of his department of the railway to make more attractive the property of the company.

BANDITS ROB WESTERN BANK

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press)—The Union bank at Foremost, Alta., was robbed by motor bandits about two o'clock this morning. They bound and gagged the clerks sleeping in the rooms above the bank and after making the junior clerk open the outer vault door they blew the inner door and got away with $12,000 cash and $70,000 negotiable securities. The bandits cut the wires leading into the town and blocked the roads.

Last Half-Holiday Thursday, Aug. 31

By a peculiar coincidence, Thursday is not only the last day of August, but it is also the last weekly half-holiday this year for business houses and their staffs; and next week stores will again remain open on Thursday afternoon, continuing that policy till next summer.

This Thursday half-holiday is an established institution now, and commendably so. For it gives merchants and clerks opportunity for outdoor recreation during July and August, from which they return to their daily duties mentally and bodily invigorated, with enhanced content in their calling.

CITY COUNCIL WILL LIMIT PURCHASE OF SOFT COAL SUPPLIES

Original Plan to Spend $20,000 on Coal May Be Curtailed in View of Settlement of Soft Coal Strike.

WOOD SITUATION

The Council meets next Tuesday night, and it is likely that the fuel situation will be thrashed out at great length.

A by-law will be introduced, giving the Fuel Committee authority to spend $20,000 on coal, but it is likely from the cautious stand taken by the aldermen that this sum will not be granted.

The Council will embark on a scheme to buy coal, but not on such an extensive scale as at first planned.

The advice received by Ald. Dr. Holloway on the soft coal situation has been optimistic of lower prices. Ald. Holloway counsels the buying of Pocohontas coal for householders, and he anticipates no suffering if the householders content themselves with a modest supply of this coal and of wood.

The committee expects delivery of about 200 cords of hardwood and mixed wood from Captain Young, of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co. within a few weeks.

Other supplies of wood are in view, and the outlook for hardwood should cause no alarm, Ald. Holloway stated.

If the mines resumed operation today there will be no delivery of anthracite coal until 15th December, the chairman had learned.

Fuel Controller Ellis has warned the people that they must make up their minds to get along on soft coal and hardwood until the first of the year. Every day that the strike continues removes the date of relief farther away.

An oil-burning furnace to many householders offers a possibility of relief from fuel worries, and one of the heating firms in the city is interesting itself in the new type of heating apparatus.

It came through from Jacksonville.

WIDE VARIETY FOR COLLEGE GIRLS

There are so many new and attractive styles for girls that the young woman who is going away to boarding school or college will have a difficult time choosing which to take and which—regretfully—to decide against.

A new version of the slip-on dress is shown with a wide pointed collar instead of the round one which has been popular so long. It has raglan sleeves which are quite full and are gathered in on a tight cuff.

Another simple frock has the new plain front and back with pleated side panels to relieve its severity.

It shows, too, the new tight sleeve. So a just proportion is maintained —the material that come out of the sleeves goes in the length of the skirt.

For Sale Building Lots, Edison Avenue, near Exhibition Grounds, outside City limits, low taxes. Owner here for a few days. Will sell cheap and on easy terms.

When mail is allowed to acumulate, in offices until closing time, it not only places an additional burden on the postal service, but is apt to miss important early afternoon train dispatches. This often causes a whole day's delay in delivery. Mail should be posted as soon as it is ready, and at frequently periods of the day.

Henry Ford Says Plenty of Reserve Coal in the Country

Motor Magnate Has Been Flooded With Offers of Coal at Extortionate Prices.

CAN BUY MINES.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Henry Ford, in announcing Saturday that his plants would be closed September 16 because of conditions in the coal industry began a fight for what he believed is a great principle, it was stated yesterday by an official in close touch with the manufacturer.

Mr. Ford, it was stated, has started what he declared is a fight against alleged profiteering in coal and that he believed he is in a better position perhaps to do than any one else. He feels, it was stated, that by taking up the fight he is doing every other manufacturer, as well as working men throughout the United States a real service.

Mr. Ford denies there is a coal shortage. The investigations of his representatives has convinced him, it was stated, that the coal brokers of the country have an enormous supply of coal on hand. The Ford Motor Company could obtain enough coal to cover a tract ten acres square if it would submit to being victimized by profiteers, it was declared.

For several weeks, it was asserted, the Ford offices at Dearborn have been flooded with offers of coal with deliveries guaranteed. It was declared the prices asked ranged from 100 to 300 per cent. above the normal cost.

The Detroit manufacturer believes that if he yields to what he terms "the hold up" of the coal brokers, every other manufacturer will follow suit and that coal prices will reach an unprecedented figure. One source close to Mr. Ford said the manufacturer had "at the back of his mind" a picture of working men being unable to buy enough coal to keep their families warm because of the prices that eventuallly would be asked "unless its profiteering was nipped in its inception."

The Ford Company recently has received a large number of offers on the part of coal operators to sell mining None of these offers have been seriously considered, however, because of the present transportation conditions. It was explained by persons close to Mr. Ford yesterday that the offering of mines meant but little as they can be purchased now for almost nothing because of the low stocks of coal held by brok-

Alberta Now Free Of Labor Troubles

Mr. Ross added that the Province would make a determined effort to secure a foothold for Alberta coal on the Eastern markets.

GOOD YIELDS OF CROPS IN ALL MANITOBA

Labor Supply Generally Reported Satisfactory—Threshing is Well Under Way in Most Districts.

WEATHER FAVORABLE

WINNIPEG, Man., August 29. — Canadian Press. — The weather during the past week in the prairie provinces has been fair and moderately warm with showers in a few localities. Harvesting has proceeded under practically ideal conditions, it is reported today, in the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway and any interruption by rain has been slight. Encouraging reports of yields are being received and instances of exceptionally good outturns are not common. The labor supply on the whole seems to be good, and while certain districts complain of shortage, principally in Manitoba, this would seem to be a question of distribution of the help available and if the weather continues good, should occasion little inconvenience.

He regrets that they have not seen fit to order Welsh coal and as much as state that he does not think they will be able to carry out their promise to fill city's needs with American bituminous coal. Statement advises householders to prepare to close portions o their houses in order to conserve fuel and suggests that kerosene stoves and other substitutes be pressed into service.

48 MINERS ARE CAUGHT IN GOLD MINE BY A FIRE

Famous Argonaut Gold Mine Scene of Serious Disaster — Mine Rescue Crews Working Hard.

4,500 FEET DEEP.

JACKSON, Cal., August 29 (Canadian Press). — Mine rescue crews worked without avail yesterday in the Argonaut Gold Mine, in which 48 men were entombed at midnight by a fire.

The men were thought to be between the 2,500 and 4,800 foot levels, while the main body of the fire was more than 1,000 feet above them.

Employees of the mine were sent into th Kennedy Mine, which connects with the Argonaut Mine, through a tunnel, but which is closed by a concrete bulkhead, with instructions to break down the bulkhead and enter the Argonaut.

It has been reported that the Kennedy tunnel had collapsed, but the report was not verified.

Early yesterday V. S. Garbarini, of the Argonaut, succeeded in restoring the cut-off air supply to the 2,800-foot level, and efforts were continued to recover the air supply.

The Argonaut recently was drained of flood waters that were poured in the mine when it was on fire, and the State Industrial Accident Commission announced that the soft dirt in the mine was nearly as great a menace to the fire fighters and the rescuers as the fire itself, if the fire burns the timbers in the mine.

The Argonaut, one of the famous gold producers in California, was opened 25 years ago. It is controlled by New York men, and is a short distance from Martell, Amador County.

The Kennedy Mine adjoining was opened in the sixties, and always has been productive.

THIS WOMAN HAS SPIRIT OF PIONEER.

"How the other half lives" doesn't always mean the daily round and trials of people across a continent or an ocean, nor the struggles and difficulties of yellow or brown-skinned races in remote corners of the earth. It applies equally to the men and women near at hand, right in our own Dominion and Province, often in our own county. Not so many miles away from our own city, with its motors and electric lights and movies, lives a woman in whom the pioneer spirit has evidently survived. Married at the age of fifteen, now eighteen years of age, she has two children. Last year, she took off most of the crops in their small patch of workable ground, while her husband was away working. This year, he is at home part of the time helping her, but most of the work devolves upon her, as well as other small jobs which include milking nine cows every day, making the butter which amounted on one recent occasion to forty pounds from a churning, looking after a sizable kitchen garden with such special things as citrons in it and picking a large crop of raspberries.

There is another woman whose husband is partially demented, and stays most of the time in the rough shack which she has made into a home for herself and children. This woman picks her berries with her baby strapped to her back. Her little boy of nine cuts the brushwood which they use in their primitive stove. In the cold weather, one of them stays up through the night to replenish with the poor fuel the fire which keeps them from freezing.

In one of these back-country districts still remain the mute evidences of a tragedy which took toll of seven young lives. In a rude hovel lived a man and wife with their seven children, who went nightly up the rickety ladder leading to the upper, windowless loft. Fire at night trapped the children there, and all were burned, their bodies falling into the dugout below the lower room. And on another road is the place where a man and his wife found refuge after fire in an old root-house underground, the only evidence of their occupancy being the stovepipe thrust up through the earth.

A brighter spot encountered in travels through the rough backwoods district was the neat cabin of an elderly couple. Here, after a plain but substantial meal, from a side-cupboard in the one large room was extracted a phonograph of one of the latest and costliest makes, with a plentiful supply of records to match. The visitor was entertained that evening with music which could not be surpassed in rich city homes, for this old pair had a little money laid by, and had decided, instead of leaving it behind, to bring this enjoyment to their last earthly years.

MICHAEL COLLINS LAID TO REST IN GLASNEVIN

Kitty Kiernan Sends a Lily to Be Placed on the Bier of the Patriot—Both the Rich and Poor of Ireland Mourn His Death.

DUBLIN, Aug. 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Thee body of Michael Collins rests in the soil of the Irish Free State for which he died fighting. It was buried yesterday in the Glasnevin cemetery where lie the bodies of Arthur Griffith and many of his comrades in the struggle of the Free State against the rebels.

The whole Free State mourned; the thousands at the graveside and those who sorrowed in Dublin were but a fraction of the whole. Dublin might have been a city of the dead; a great hush was everywhere, yet almost a million people were there, standing or kneeling in the streets—gentry from the fine houses in the suburbs and the poor from the slums, women wrapped in their shawls carrying their infants or leading their awe-stricken children.

A multitude were grouped in windows and assembled on roof tops, clung uncertainly to chimneys and climbed stone walls and monuments—all to catch a glimpse of the cortege and pray for Michael Collins.

While the requiem mass was being chanted in the cathedral a military despatch rider rode up to the edifice and entered by the main portal. He carried in his hand a single white lily, a token sent by Kitty Kiernan, the dead patriot's fiancee. It was placed on the coffin lid and was tenderly placed there again when the coffin was lowered to the grave.

At the graveside Richard Mulcahy, who succeeds as Commander in Chief of the National Army, speaking of the life work and the ideals of Michael Collins for the Irish Free State, said solemnly:

'Michael Collins can never be buried, for his spirit will live to guide to achievement his ideals."

The sun shown down upon the coffin and soft blue Irish skies made a setting for the nal picture which Collins would himself hae chosen.

Dr. Fogarty, Bishop of Killaloe, was the celebrant of the mass, which was attended by a great gathering of clergy, including Archbishop Dunig, of Brisbane, Australia.

On a catafalque before the high altar rested the coffin covered with a silk Free State tri-color; the catafalque itself was draped in black with a fringe of gold. There were many banners of black about the edifice.

Ireland is a land of the unexpected and the future is uncertain. If, however, one may judge by the expressions of the average citzen and the opinions of the newspapers, the tragic removal of the nation's two great figures, Griffith and Collins, will not weaken the course of the Free State, but on the contrary, will strengthen it, first, because it is backed by public opinion, and second, what is called the martyrdom of Griffith and Collins has rallied the people around the banner of patriotism.

SLAUCHTER OF FIELD MICE BRINGS RATTLESNAKES OUT.

DAYTON, Wash., Aug. 28. — Rattlesnakes are encountered in large numbers along creek bottoms this summer where few were noticed before. They have been forced to seek these damp abodes, it is believed, on account of the poison campaigns against gophers, mice and ground squirrels. Field mice are the natural food of the North-West rattlers, and they have been destroyed in immense numbers by the biological survey demonstrations. In the bottom pastures cows and sheep have been reported killed by rattlers' bites. Ten snakes were killed by one rancher in the South Touchet Valley after one had struck a horse in the nose. Ranchers harvesting alfalfa wear tar paper leggings to ward off sudden attacks by rattlers.

TRADE REVIVAL IS APPARENT IN GT. BRITAIN NOW

Unemployment Figures Have Been Reduced — Trade With Canada Should Be Encouraged.

GOOD PROGRESS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press)—Optimism as to the turning of the tide in Great Britain, is expressed by Major Gordon B. Johnson, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Glasgow, whose territory covers Scotland and Ireland, and who is at present in Ottawa. To the Canadian Press Major Johnson declared that the revival, while slow in progress, had definitely begun, steel and wool industries were most hopeful and even shipbuilding in the Glasgow area has improved. Manufacturers were optimistic, Major Johnson stated, and labor disputes were now practically non-existent. Chaos on the continent was leading Great Britain to look to the rest of the empire more and more in trade matters, though it undoubtedly had the effect of retarding trade recoveries. Unemployment figures had been reduced by some 600,000 from last winter's peak of 2,000,000. Trade conditions were also improving in Ireland, Major Johnson stated. The Belfast linen industry was in much better condition, and shipbuilding there, while depressed, showed signs of recovery. Trade in Ireland generally was greatly reduced in volume but if the Irish Government became firmly established in power Major Johnson stated that he believed Canadian firms desiring export trade should lose no time investigating the posibilities in Ireland.

Speaking of Great Britain, generally, Major Johnston said the reduction of the Bank rate to three percent, the lowest since 1914, reduced railway rates in England, easing of shipping rates and decidely better labor conitions had done much to stimulate business. There was at present a campaign for development of increased trade with the empire, and Canadians Major Johnson urged should take advantage of this by purchasing their imports where an export trade could be built up, rather than in the United States where tariff barriers hampered the selling of Canadian goods.

MINE WHISTLES IN ALBERTA BLOWING

Western Mines Are Not Damaged By Shut Down and Production Started Yesterday.

CALGARY, Alta., August 29. Canadian Press. — Whistles blew and hoists began their creaking journey into the dar interior of coal mines in many Alberta towns yesterday morning for the firts time in five months. Men who left the coal fields are reported to be flocking back for the winter's work, which is far mor attractive from a monetary standpoint than the wages being paid by the farmers or for general labor.

When the hoists lowered the first shift into the mines on Monday morning they began what will undoubtedly be one of the heaviest concentrated perio's of coal production in the history of the fields.

With the markets clear and everybody waiting for coal most of the mines are pla ing to run full time.

Her Two Children Had Diarrhoea Terribly Bad

Anyone suffering from bowel complaints such as diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or any other looseness of the Lowels, will find that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry will give quicker and more permanent relief than any other remedy on the market to-day.

Mrs. Roy Keith, Charlton, Ont., writes:—"I am writing to tell you what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry did for me. Last summer my children had diarrhoea, terribly bad, and they would vomit and pass a great deal of blood. I tried every remedy we could think of, but finally bought a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and about one half of it stopped the diarrhoea altogether. I have told several others about it, and I would not be without it in the house, as I can truthfully say it saved the lives of my two children."

KING OF SIAM.

BANGKOK, Siam, August 29. aCn-Canadian Press. — The marriage of Maha Majiravudh, the King of Siam to his cousin, Princess Lakahi Lavan, was proclaimed on Sunday.

President Harding Would Not Consent to Seizure of Coal and Rail Properties.

OTHER MEANS.

WASHINGTON, August 29. — Canadian Press. — Proposals for Government operation of rail and coal properties in the United States were put aside at least for the present, yesterday and administration leaders both in and out of Congress, centred their best efforts instead upon less drastic measures to meet the industrial emergency.

With the return to Washington of President Harding after an over-Sunday conference with some of his principal advisers on board the yacht Mayflower, it became apparent that no step toward government operation was to become a part of the present administration programme.

Not only was it revealed that the president himself was not disposed definitely to ask for Congressional authority to take over the properties involved in the strike situation, but it was made known also that an influential group of leaders in the Senate and House had taken a position which would make passage of the authorizing legislation extremely difficult.

Meantime Committees in both branches of Congress pointed out for passage later in the week, bills recommended by the administration to strengthen its hand in controlling coal distribution by creating a Federal Fuel Distributing Agency and by giving to the Interstate Commerce Commission broader powers over priority of shipments. In the House the bill will be taken up today under a rule providing for six hours of debate.

In the Senate Committee action was taken after only a short discussion and with members reserving the right to debate the measure on the Senate floor.

Federal Fuel Distributor Spencer announced the disbanding of the voluntary committee by the end of the week and a discontinuance of superpriority orders for the movement of coal.

Special arrangements are being considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission for handling the winters fuel supply of the north-west section while coal movements directed heretofore by Mr. Spencer would be shipped under the existing priority classification of the Commission.

In the anthracite field, reports reaching the White House were so reassuring that it was intiicated an agreement to insure the re-opening of the mines was expected within a very short time.

Secretary Davis, who represented President Harding in discussing set-

THIS WOMAN HAS SPIRIT OF PIONEER.

"How the other half lives" doesn't always mean the daily round and trials of people across a continent or an ocean, nor the struggles and difficulties of yellow or brown-skinned races in remote corners of the earth. It applies equally to the men and women near at hand, right in our own Dominion and Province, often in our own county. Not so many miles away from our own city, with its motors and electric lights and movies, lives a woman in whom the pioneer spirit has evidently survived. Married at the age of fifteen, now eighteen years of age, she has two children. Last year, she took off most of the crops in their small patch of workable ground, while her husband was away working. This year, he is at home part of the time helping her, but most of the work devolves upon her, as well as other small jobs which include milking nine cows every day, making the butter which amounted on one recent occasion to forty pounds from a churning, looking after a sizable kitchen garden with such special things as citrons in it and picking a large crop of raspberries.

There is another woman whose husband is partially demented, and stays most of the time in the rough shack which she has made into a home for herself and children. This woman picks her berries with her baby strapped to her back. Her little boy of nine cuts the brushwood which they use in their primitive stove. In the cold weather, one of them stays up through the night to replenish with the poor fuel the fire which keeps them from freezing.

In one of these back-country districts still remain the mute evidences of a tragedy which took toll of seven young lives. In a rude hovel lived a man and wife with their seven children, who went nightly up the rickety ladder leading to the upper, windowless loft. Fire at night trapped the children there, and all were burned, their bodies falling into the dugout below the lower room. And on another road is the place where a man and his wife found refuge after fire in an old root-house underground, the only evidence of their occupancy being the stovepipe thrust up through the earth.

A brighter spot encountered in travels through the rough backwoods district was the neat cabin of an elderly couple. Here, after a plain but substantial meal, from a side-cupboard in the one large room was extracted a phonograph of one of the latest and costliest makes, with a plentiful supply of records to match. The visitor was entertained that evening with music which could not be surpassed in rich city homes, for this old pair had a little money laid by, and had decided, instead of leaving it behind, to bring this enjoyment to their last earthly years.

MICHAEL COLLINS LAID TO REST IN GLASNEVIN

Kitty Kiernan Sends a Lily to Be Placed on the Bier of the Patriot—Both the Rich and Poor of Ireland Mourn His Death.

DUBLIN, Aug. 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Thee body of Michael Collins rests in the soil of the Irish Free State for which he died fighting. It was buried yesterday in the Glasnevin cemetery where lie the bodies of Arthur Griffith and many of his comrades in the struggle of the Free State against the rebels.

The whole Free State mourned; the thousands at the graveside and those who sorrowed in Dublin were but a fraction of the whole. Dublin might have been a city of the dead; a great hush was everywhere, yet almost a million people were there, standing or kneeling in the streets—gentry from the fine houses in the suburbs and the poor from the slums, women wrapped in their shawls carrying their infants or leading their awe-stricken children.

A multitude were grouped in windows and assembled on roof tops, clung uncertainly to chimneys and climbed stone walls and monuments—all to catch a glimpse of the cortege and pray for Michael Collins.

While the requiem mass was being chanted in the cathedral a military despatch rider rode up to the edifice and entered by the main portal. He carried in his hand a single white lily, a token sent by Kitty Kiernan, the dead patriot's fiancee. It was placed on the coffin lid and was tenderly placed there again when the coffin was lowered to the grave.

At the graveside Richard Mulcahy, who succeeds as Commander in Chief of the National Army, speaking of the life work and the ideals of Michael Collins for the Irish Free State, said solemnly:

'Michael Collins can never be buried, for his spirit will live to guide to achievement his ideals."

The sun shown down upon the coffin and soft blue Irish skies made a setting for the nal picture which Collins would himself hae chosen.

Dr. Fogarty, Bishop of Killaloe, was the celebrant of the mass, which was attended by a great gathering of clergy, including Archbishop Dunig, of Brisbane, Australia.

On a catafalque before the high altar rested the coffin covered with a silk Free State tri-color; the catafalque itself was draped in black with a fringe of gold. There were many banners of black about the edifice.

Ireland is a land of the unexpected and the future is uncertain. If, however, one may judge by the expressions of the average citizen and the opinions of the newspapers, the tragic removal of the nation's two great figures, Griffith and Collins, will not weaken the course of the Free State, but on the contrary, will strengthen it, first, because it is backed by public opinion, and second, what is called the martyrdom of Griffith and Collins has rallied the people around the banner of patriotism.

MONTREAL HAS NO ANTHRACITE

Such is summarized the fuel situation for the coming winter in this city, according to F. L. Wanklyn, one of the two members of the fuel commission for this province, in an interview given here.

SLAUGHTER OF FIELD MICE BRINGS RATTLESNAKES OUT.

DAYTON, Wash., Aug. 28. — Rattlesnakes are encountered in large numbers along creek bottoms this summer where few were noticed before. They have been forced to seek these damp abodes, it is believed, on account of the poison campaigns against gophers, mice and ground squirrels. Field mice are the natural food of the North-West rattlers, and they have been destroyed in immense numbers by the biological survey demonstrations. In the bottom pastures cows and sheep have been reported killed by rattlers' bites. Ten snakes were killed by one rancher in the South Touchet Valley after one had struck a horse in the nose. Ranchers harvesting alfalfa wear tar paper leggings to ward off sudden attacks by rattlers.

TRADE REVIVAL IS APPARENT IN GT. BRITAIN NOW

Unemployment Figures Have Been Reduced — Trade With Canada Should Be Encouraged.

GOOD PROGRESS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press)—Optimism as to the turning of the tide in Great Britain, is expressed by Major Gordon B. Johnson, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Glasgow, whose territory covers Scotland and Ireland, and who is at present in Ottawa. To the Canadian Press Major Johnson declared that the revival, while slow in progress, had definitely begun, steel and wool industries were most hopeful and even shipbuilding in the Glasgow area has improved. Manufacturers were optimistic, Major Johnson stated, and labor disputes were now practically non-existent. Chaos on the continent was leading Great Britain to look to the rest of the empire more and more in trade matters, though it undoubtedly had the effect of retarding trade recoveries. Unemployment figures had been reduced by some 600,000 from last winter's peak of 2,000,000. Trade conditions were also improving in Ireland, Major Johnson stated. The Belfast linen industry was in much better condition, and shipbuilding there, while depressed, showed signs of recovery. Trade in Ireland generally was greatly reduced in volume but if the Irish Government became firmly established in power Major Johnson stated that he believed Canadian firms desiring export trade should lose no time investigating the posibilities in Ireland.

Speaking of Great Britain, generally, Major Johnston said the reduction of the Bank rate to three percent, the lowest since 1914, reduced railway rates in England, easing of shipping rates and decidely better labor conitions had done much to stimulate business. There was at present a campaign for development of increased trade with the empire, and Canadians Major Johnson urged should take advantage of this by purchasing their imports where an export trade could be built up, rather than in the United States where tariff barriers hampered the selling of Canadian goods.

U. S. Government Will Not Operate the Coal Mines

MINE WHISTLES IN ALBERTA BLOWING

Western Mines Are Not Damaged By Shut Down and Production Started Yesterday.

CALGARY, Alta., August 29. Canadian Press. — Whistles blew and hoists began their creaking journey into the dar int.rior of coal mines in many Alberta towns yesterday morning for the firts time in five months. Men who left the coal fields are reported to be flocking back for the winter's work, which is far mor attractive from a monetary standpoint than the wages being paid by the farmers or for general labor.

When the hoists lowered the first shift into the mines on Monday morning they began what will undoubtedly be one of the heaviest concentrated perio s of coal production in the history of the fields.

With the markets clear and everybody waiting for coal most of the mines are pla ing to run full time.

President Harding Would Not Consent to Seizure of Coal and Rail Properties.

OTHER MEANS.

WASHINGTON, August 29. — Canadian Press. — Proposals for Government operation of rail and coal properties in the United States were put aside at least for the present, yesterday and administration leaders both in and out of Congress, centred their best efforts instead upon less drastic measures to meet the industrial emergency.

With the return to Washington of President Harding after an over-Sunday conference with some of his principal advisers on board the yacht Mayflower, it became apparent that no step toward government operation was to become a part of the present administration programme.

Not only was it revealed that the president himself was not disposed definitely to ask for Congressional authority to take over the properties involved in the strike situation, but it was made known also that an influential group of leaders in the Senate and House had taken a position which would make passage of the authorizing legislation extremely difficult.

Meantime Committees in both branches of Congress pointed out for passage later in the week, bills recommended by the administration to strengthen its hand in controlling coal distribution by creating a Federal Fuel Distributing Agency and by giving to the Interstate Commerce Commission broader powers over priority of shipments. In the House the bill will be taken up today under a rule providing for six hours of debate.

In the Senate Committee action was taken after only a short discussion and with members reserving the right to debate the measure on the Senate floor.

Federal Fuel Distributor Spencer announced the disbanding of the voluntary committee by the end of the week and a discontinuance of superpriority orders for the movement of coal.

Special arrangements are being considered by the Interstate Commerce Commission for handling the winters fuel supply of the northwest section while coal movements directed heretofore by Mr. Spencer would be shipped under the existing priority classification of the Commission.

In the anthracite field, reports reaching the White House were so reassuring that it was indicated an agreement to insure the re-opening of the mines was expected within a very short time.

Anyone suffering from bowel complaints such as diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, or any other looseness of the Lowels, will find that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry will give quicker and more permanent relief than any other remedy on the market to-day.

Mrs. Roy Keith, Charlton, Ont., writes:—"I am writing to tell you what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry did for me. Last summer my children had diarrhoea, terribly bad, and they would vomit and pass a great deal of blood. I tried every remedy we could think of, but finally bought a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and about one half of it stopped the diarrhoea altogether. I have told several others about it, and I would not be without it in the house, as I can truthfully say it saved the lives of my two children."

INFORMING THE PEOPLE.

There will be general agreement with the suggestion brought forward by the Farmers' Sun that the public should be, to some extent at least, given an opportunity to study in advance legislation that is proposed to be placed on the statute books in order that a popular verdict could be reached. The Sun believes, and it is right, that the people should have some part in the guiding of legislation. It is suggested that the Government should outline in a general way the measures it proposes to bring down, and thus afford an opportunity to study the effects of the legislation and be in a position to place their views before their representatives. The announcement of such legislation should be official and should be explicit enough to permit intelligent judgment to be made. There does not seem any real objection to such a programme, even if it does upset the old political traditions that new measures must be kept under cover until they are brought down in the House. The people have a right to know what bills are proposed and to be given a chance to consider their effect, and a government that recognizes that right and acts accordingly would find itself gaining new popularity among those whom it has been elected to serve.

A DARK OUTLOOK.

With a fuel famine inevitable and with unemployment conditions not likely to show any improvement over last winter, the situation confronting Peterborough, as well as the majority of other Canadian municipalities, is not one that can by any stretch of the imagination be considered re-assuring. There is no desire on The Examiner's part to create any undue feeling of pessimism in the community, but at the same time this paper would be derelict in its duty if it did not call attention to the fact that widespread distress will be unavoidable this coming winter unless there is a much more sincere and active effort on the part of the City Council in the first place, and of citizens generally, to grapple with the twin problems of fuel scarcity and unemployment. Some steps have, it is true, been taken to avert a fuel famine, but it remains to be seen whether they will prove adequate; as regards the distress that will be caused by unemployment nothing tangible has been presented. There are to be no doles this winter, according to the present impression of the situation. What will take their place? With the suffering that is certain to ensue from lack of fuel, added to the effects of a wide measure of unemployment, the outlook is alarming, and we cannot afford to sit down and wait for winter to come, with no plan of action. It is high time Peterborough got busy.

CENTRAL ONTARIO'S DISUNITY.

The unorganized condition of the municipalities that comprise the Central Ontario power system is a constant source of disappointment to those who realize the consequences of this disunion. Several attempts have been made to bring together representatives of the cities, towns and villages that obtain their power from the Hydro-Electric Commission, but they have been only spasmodic and half-hearted when they should have been persistent and energetic. Organization was contemplated at several meetings held in Peterborough and Port Hope, but nothing permanent was accomplished. Lindsay, Oshawa and Peterborough have particularly shown that they were prepared and eager to establish a community of interest along the lines that have proved successful in Western Ontario, but these efforts failed through the lack of co-operation from the majority of the municipalities in the Central Ontario group. Some of the delegates from the extreme eastern border of the system hampered rather than helped the project by the attitude they assumed, so that as the result of disagreement and indifference and a dragging, listless spirit of unprogressiveness, the Trent power group is unconsolidated, inarticulate and leaderless, the weak sister among the inter-municipal enterprises of Ontario.

This comment is occasioned by the announcement that the Hydro Investigating Commission, of which W. H. Gregory is chairman, wishes to meet delegates from the Central Ontario power system, and to receive from them any suggestions for the improvement of the service or such other representations that may be offered. Mr. T. H. Stinson, of Lindsay, who was the secretary of the abortive association some of the municipalities of this district endeavored to form, has sent out letters requesting the various councils to appoint delegates for a proposed meeting to be held in Port Hope.

Instead of having an organization that would be prepared to lay fully considered proposals before the Gregory Commission, the Central Ontario group is inanimate and uncorporated and altogether unready. This lethargy is characteristic and has been from the inception of the system.

Power shortages occur seriously affecting the whole system, but there is no united protest, no demand for a thorough explanation, no contradiction of press reports that must be injurious to the industrial prospects of Central Ontario, no appeal to the Ontario Government, the actual owners of the system, and most discouraging of all no apparent desire for unity and action either protective or progressive.

No wonder Sir Adam Beck can get away with anything in the Central Ontario power system. It will be interesting to learn who will be appointed by Peterborough's council and what they will have to say to the Gregory Commission with respect to the Beck administration of the Central Ontario power system.

MUST COME FROM PEOPLE.

The speech of the Hon. W. E. Raney, Provincial Attorney-General, at the third international convention of life underwriters in Toronto on Wednesday, is a notable contribution to the cause of Anglo-American understanding and of world peace, says the Hamilton Spectator. Unfortunately, as he himself said, something more than political speeches is needed to bring about the fulfilment of those desires which are common to the heart of humanity at large. "The inhibition of war must, like all other good things in government, come from the people. And when the people come to realize in their hearts that war is hell, and that killing, except in self-defence, is murder, there will be an end of war." The people have, surely, already fully realized that. There may be a few who, for selfish reasons or because of some peculiar kink in their make-up, still regard wars as inevitable and argue that the only way to prevent them is to pile up armaments and so make them practically assured eventualities. But they are in the minority. There is a general will for peace and a universal detestation of the horrors of battle and the equally hideous aftermath of conflict. The trouble is that that will cannot get itself sufficiently asserted. The people are dumb while the politicians play off their party tricks one against the other. This is particularly true of the United States, to whom Mr. Raney was especially appealing.

Premier Lloyd George recently asked, in opening a war memorial in Wales, whether the death of millions of young men in the great war was too high a price to have paid for what that war has accomplished. This doubt obtrudes itself on the consciences of people everywhere. As things are, it does seem too high a price. The ideals which these warriors were called upon to defend were well worth fighting for, and that is why the response was so magnificent. It was to be the war to end all war, for one thing; and it was a war for the preservation of freedom and democracy. Are those ideals as strong to-day as they were during the hot fit of the conflict? Wars still continue and there is no adequate machinery to prevent them. Democracy is in a state of chronic disturbance. And as for freedom "what crimes are committed in its name!"

What is needed is a positive assertion of popular opinion; men and women of good will—the average citizens who go to make up the average state—should unite in demanding action which will bring definite results. Here is the League of Nations, specially devised to accomplish the purposes we have at heart, and yet it remains a thing largely neglected and ignored even by its friends, and rendered almost impotent by its powerful enemies. These enemies derive their strength and support from public apathy more than from any open hostility or opposition to the League. They could very easily be put in their place if those who are sympathetic to the humane objects of the League showed equal aggressiveness.

MR. MORRISON'S SEVEN POINTS.

That staunch Liberal paper, The British Whig, Kingston, is no believer in the Morrisonian creed, nor of the seven Morrison points, which almost calls to mind the famous Wilsonian points of double number. Mr. Morrison has been orating down East recently, and the assumption by him of leadership in a class war is rather amusing to staid old Kingston. The Whig flays the seven points of Mr. Morrison, and shows their fallacy, as enunciated by the U.F.O. Secretary at a picnic at Glenburnie on Tuesday last. Here they are:

1.—We want to establish personal responsibility of the electors.

Why go to the farmers as an easy mark for an insult? When were farmers not responsible as electors and capable of exercising the franchise? The right was never denied them.

2.—We want to promote honest debate of public questions.

If this is so, why deny the right of other speakers to address farmer electors? None are ever invited from outside the U.F.O. organization. Why deny the farmers the privilege of hearing both sides of public questions?

3.—To establish honesty and economy in public business.

All parties say the same thing and none can claim exclusive possession of all virtues and talents. There is no special reason for expecting to find them in the highest degree in the U.F.O. organization.

4.—A fair representation for agriculture.

Nobody disputes this, and it is not a point for agitation or for cleavage between rural and urban citizens.

5.—To secure fair treatment for farmers as producers.

This is a trump card designed to catch the farmer coming and going, for all of his hard luck can thereby be laid at the doors of governments and other classes of citizens who are represented as trying to get the advantage of him, which is nine-tenths falsehood.

6.—To insist on the fulfillment of pledges by governments.

All citizens expect the governments to fulfill pledges, but they cannot always be carried out, and this fact is sufficient excuse for the brilliant idea of the agitator.

7.—To secure real responsible governments, not by order-in-councils or commissions.

Order-in-council government prevailed during the war, but the present Ontario Government is called the commission government. While Mr. Morrison admitted having consulted with Premier Drury on three important occasions, he never once protested against the commissions.

It was four years ago that he compiled these seven points and he declared: "I stand by them to-day as I did then."

There is no doubt about it, but J. J. Morrison is a destructive critic. He is as strong destructively as he is weak constructively. He practically tells the intelligent farmers, and the unintelligent too, that they must remain under the control of the spirit of class-conscious bigotry. After all is said and done, it is believed that the political accident of 1919 in Ontario, the result of which has given much impetus and prominence to the U.F.O. movement, will undo itself on the first occasion the electors of the province have of expressing themselves. Mr. Drury has seen it coming, and is hedging for urban support. The doctrine Mr. Morrison preaches cannot be acceptable to the province as a whole, nor to all the farmers. It is so narrow that its own narrowness ensures condemnation.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At least the Toronto Exhibition furnishes an excuse for the trains being late.

Magistrate Langley's warning to speeders is timely. The coal strike does not prevent many of them from burning up the road.

Peterborough's big Industrial Exhibition is litfle more than two weeks away. The co-operation of the public can make this year's event a record-breaker.

Optimism among the coal dealers, unfortunately, is a poor substitute for anthracite.

The formal opening of the new Provincial highway would be an appropriate occasion to point out that the primary object of constructing this road was not to prove how fast gasoline can drive a car.

Bathing caps at cost price is another evidence that the summer has almost passed into history.

THE MYSTERY MIND

Arthur B. Reeve and John W. Grey

But the church bell? Faint, unaccountable, there came to her ears the echo of the deep tone reminiscent of Sunday-school and her girlhood. First she thought it was a ringing carried from a distance. Finally she identified the sound as near at hand, as though a bell hung over her, as though some living thing were stroking it, gently.

She tried to turn, but her bonds were too secure. Movement was impossible. The damp stone beneath her caused her to ache at every point of contact. The night seemed endless, and of the dawn and her fate she could form not the slightest conception.

She attempted to conjure up the image of Robert in her mind. She felt that even the recollection of Dupont's characteristic tenderness would be a comfort to her now. But into her consciousness there intruded always the figure of Vera Collins. Under the strain of her many ordeals Violet found that the considerations of fear overbalanced her instincts of faith, of hope, and trust.

Again she lived the scene in the artist's bathroom. Again she saw Vera curtsy in the borrowed dress, fascinating Paul Noyes deliberately so as to bend him to her purpose.

Now the ecollection was followed by a peculiar sense of the presence of the snake woman. She closed her eyes, and that, in some manner beyond her comprehension, caused the appearance of a sort of moving tableau, vividly colorful, much as a living motion picture projected into her consciousness. Was it an apparition? Was this psychic sight, clairvoyance? Or was she dreaming again; was it a nightmare?

Whatever it was, she saw the belfry of a church, with a huge bell hung from the end of a rotting rope. She saw Vera and Paul Noyes, the artist, who protested as before, only doing Vera's bidding under the compulsion of her charm. She saw him lean out until he touched the rope. She saw him smear the rope with some substance in his hand, after which he drew back, leaving with the girl. She saw, finally, the appearance of a host of huge, voracious rats, sleek and brown, who attacked the rope greedily, clambering up and down and around and over and under each other, until it swarmed with them.

She shuddered, not understanding. Obviously the artist had placed cheese upon the rope to lure the rats. But why? Did it indicate danger to her, or was it merely a phantasy of her fears?

As if in answer to her questions the dawn broke, very suddenly. A ghostly light began to penetrate through to her prison, so that she could make out the dim outlines of the walls, so that she could grasp her situation. Evidently it was a pit of some sort. The floor was cement, as she could tell from its feel. The ceiling seemed a great distance above her. As the light became stronger it seemed as if there was no ceiling. Was it a tower, or hole in the ground, of great depth?

Suddenly something dropped upon her ankle. She felt a wince of pain. Then the object woke to life, scrambling to feet with claws which she felt, scampering off as if in fear. A rat Unquestionably rat. At that moment there was a perceptible increase in the light, and she grasped the terrible menace of her position. Now she could distinguish above her a hanging bell, a heavy, rusty bell, swaying very slightly in morning breeze. This was the tower of a church. From the dust and dirt and signs of neglect she knew it was an abandoned church.

To her ears, sharpened by fright, there came the steady sound of a gnawing and scraping. The rats They were at the rope. In a moment there was a quick, sharp snap, the parting of a strand Then the steady sound of the tiny busy teeth came to her without interruption until the snap of another strand gave her additional warning of her danger.

She was directly beneath the bell. Its weight was sufficient to cause a fearful mangling death the moment it dropped. In horror she screamed, over and over and over again. In the echoing walls her crys were fright-impelling. Yet she knew they would not carry much beyond the top of the tower. No cry would be heard through the heavy walls of masonry. Meanwhile the barely audible crunching above continued. The light of day increased gradually in strength. And at regular intervals the snapping of the strands brought her more and more near to the end.

She became still, and watched in hopeless, silent horror until the sun rose and cast a tiny spot of brightness upon a bit of upper wall. She took to counting the snapping strands, wondering at the thickness of the rope which could have so many. Then her eyes closed in spite of herself. Nervous exhaustion, fed by fright, claimed her.

She woke to find herself lying still in the pit beneath the bell. The spot of sunlight had moved, testifying to an hour or more of unconsciousness. In sudden wonderment she listened, intently. Had the whole thing been a dream, a nightmare?

Why otherwise did the rope still hold? As she istened ther came the faint quick-clicking snap which had terrified her. Following it was a scratching, like the crunching of a dozen sets of tiny teeth. She screamed.

CLAIRVOYANCE

Dupont examined the bandages of his head gingerly.

"Haven't any Scotch blood in you, have you?" queried the surgeon.

"Scotch blood?" Dupont was still a little dazed. He had returned to consciousness in the dormitory at precinct headquarters without any clear idea of just what had happened to him. "Scotch blood?" he repeated.

"Yes. Next to a negro a Scot is supposed to have the thickest skull outside of a museum."

"Oh" Dupont's smile was very faint "It was a good blow, then?"

The sergeant, the third of the group, spoke up at that. The story of the bricks had gone around. Upon top of that Dupont had found what he had failed to find, the secret passage-way. When the police returned to the scene of their raid all further clues to the gang had been removed.

"Sure," he muttered, "it would have served you right if they'd croaked you. I had a man left there. You could have taken him in with you—you could have called to him when you found the secret door."

"How did you find me? Did your man hear something?"

"He said he heard you cry out and then there was some kind of crash, as if something fell. He rushed in. You were on the floor of the little room behind the false wall."

"There was no sign of who did it?"

"Nothing but a billy lying on the floor."

"Did—did you find a dead man on the bed?"

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.— (Canadian Press).—A novel reason for the favorable situation of Canadian exchange is suggested by the Herald. Commenting on the fact that the Canadian dollar is now virtually at par in the New York market, the Herald says:

"The most prominent cause for the ease in Canadian exchange is the amount of money sent over the border by American bootleggers."

Mrs. C. E. Earl, Toronto, says:

I am pleased to inform you that our boy, Eddie, has been completely cured of Bladder Trouble through using Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets. He is now 14 years old and has not been able to retain his urine which caused us a great deal of worry and trouble. We tried different doctors and medicines but never received any help until advised to try your Tablets. After treating with them for a few weeks they have completely cured him. I would advise mothers who have children afflicted in this way to give them a trial. I will consider it a pleasure to explain his case more fully on request.

Should you or any of your children be afflicted in a similar way we are confident they would produce similar results. Don't fail to give them a trial.

VITAMINES VERY MUCH OVERRATED AS FOOD ARTICLE.

Massachusetts Authority Speaks of Popular Fads and Fancies — Mystery Element.

BOSTON (By Mail).—I have no desire or intention of criticizing the scientific work which has resulted in the discovery of those wonderful unknown substances which are called vitamines; but I wish to point out certain abuses of these discoveries which have been made by commercial abuses, and the relation of these abuses to our food and drug laws and our false advertising law, writes Herman C. Lythgoe, director, division of food and drugs, Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

The belief in the supernatural is even now highly prevalent, and appeals to that belief unusally brings results, other things being equal. The peculiarly mysterious properties of the vitamines have popularized them, and they have been swallowed, hook, line, bob and sinker by the public. It is worthy of note that the same procedure ensued relative to electricity, radium and the Einstein theory. Thirty years ago, electric belts, electric inner soles for shoes, electric batteries, etc., were quite commonly used for the mitigation of real and imaginary diseases, while thirty years after we accomplish better results with electric coffee pots and electric washing machines. Radium was not very popular as a general cure-all, possibly owing to the expense, and the Einstein theory is not adaptable. The vitamines, however, are so constituted that they can and are being sold at high prices to the incredulous, to mitiagte mostly imaginery evils.

Commercial Preparations

I believe that the continued sale of these products is doomed to failure for purely psychological reasons. A proprietary medicine, to be successful, must possess two prime attributes: First, it must have a disagreeable taste or odor, and, second, it must show immediate psychological results. The vitamines must of necessity fail in these attributes, unless, as in some instances, drugs are added, because they are tasteless and because the abundance of vitamines in our daily diet is such that preparations containing these agents would have no visible effect. These commercial preparations are essentially yeast or other vegetable concentrates, and to some are added strychnine, phenolphthalein and organic iron compounds to secure the physiological results so necessary for the commercial success of a proprietary remedy.

No person takes more care in his advertising than the proprietary medicine man. He knows the laws, their limitations, the efficiency of enforcement, and knows that outside of food and drug advertisements there is little or no systematic policing of false advertisements. He is, therefore, careful and the vitamine bunk shows practically 100 per cent efficiency in complying with the food drug and advertising laws. Let us consider the bunk:—

"Weigh yourself—Then take vitamine tablets—and watch the results. Thin, weak, run-down folks do wish to put on good firm, flesh, ect., should try this wonderful nutrition product."

Contrasting Figures

The advertisements show a female figure tipping the scales at ninety-five, with scrawny neck, ungainly figure, flabby tissues and sallow complexion. Facing her is the figure of a buxom female of 125 pounds, with clear skin, firm flesh, and well-rounded figure chock full of vitamines. The advertisement states:—

"We do not claim, however, that vitamines will put flesh on everybody Some people are naturally too thin and will probably remain so in spite of vitamines and everything else."

This advertisement advises obtaining your strychnine from other sources.

Another advertisement of the same proprietary calls attention to a startling exposure, and picturing a young lady in an abbreviated costume, truthfully states:—

"Take one single substance from the blood of the beautiful, healthy, well-formed woman in this picture, and she will become weak, thin, emaciated like the thin, scrawny woman in the picture below, in three or even four big meals a day—put this magic-like substance back and she will become rosy cheeked, strong and vigorous, even on two meals a day."

It again calls attention to the fact that the preparation does not always work, but neglects to add that our daily diets usually contain this one single substance so necessary for our continued existance.

A description of the different product shows two female figures of different weight, appearance and dimensions, the inference being that vitamines did it.

Strychnine for Ehergy

The directions are to first weigh and then measure yourself, then take two tablets with each meal and keep up the process until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy. Note the complete absence of the time factor. The gain in energy is insured by the addition of strychnine to the tablets.

Another advertisement of the same drug is similarly worded. Just above the picture of the young lady chock full of vitamines, pep and strychnine are directions to take some tablets and watch the surprising results. Does this possibly refer to an overdose of strychnine? I hope not. There was one death in this state this year due to too many strychnine tablets in a child.

An advertisement referring to a yeast tablet contains one false statement. Referring to iron and vitamines it says: "Both of these elements are lacking in the average modern diet." They guarantee to "bring satisfactory results or your money back." The proviso cover a multitude of sins.

Certain definite measurements of a young woman are given in another advertisement. In twenty-two days she increases in weight 10 per cent. chest 8.6 per cent, calf 8.3 per cent, arm 5.3 per cent, neck 4.1 per cent. There is still room for improvement. She will be heavier when she reaches the age of forty.

Calories Also

An interesting advertisement designed by a man who recognizes the bunk and takes the bull by the horns says:—

"The discovery and scientific application of the elementary units of body building foods are wonderful helps in rebuilding the ailing. The average person who has robust health and strength does not worry about vitamines and calories; he simply uses ——, —— appetizing and rich in food value."

To attract attention, this advertisement is headed "Vitamines and Calories" The discovery of the "A" vitamine has given a tremendous stimulus to advertisements concerning the dairy interests. The per capita consumption of milk and butter has materially decreased since 1916, but is now increasing, due to reductions in price rather than to the publicity. The general public prefers butter to oleo, but when the prices go too high, the consumption of oleo always increases, and with falling prices it decreases. With increasing milk prices the consumption is curtailed, and with decreasing prices the consumption is increased. The advertising of milk as a food with reference to its vitamine content is in general in accordance with the facts, except that no ment on is made of low or no vitamine milk, which is something more than a scientific curiosity.

Kennedy and Dresher state in the Journal of Biological Chemistry, February, 1922, page 538:—

—, "The presence of vitamines 'A' and 'B' in cow's milk is dependent upon their occurrence in the ration.

2.—"Stall-fed cows will produce a milk rich in vitamines, provided their ration consists of a proper combination of grains and leafy foods."

Milk Advertisment

One milk advertisment is rather peculiarly worded. The originator thereof believes that without vitamines we would only half exist, when, in fact, we would cease to exist.

An advertisement regarding a certain brand of oleo is not false, but is peculiar from a business viewpoint. It calls attention to the high quality of the oleo because of the high vitamine content of the milk used in its manufacture. A strict interpretation of this advertisement would be construed as advice to eat butter. Oleomargarine has reached the point where it can stand upon its own merits, and need not depend upon its slight association with the dairy industry to make its sales effective.

There has recently been put on the market an article consisting of condensed skimmed milk emulsified with coco nut oil. It is devoid of the "A" vitamine, is sold for what it is, and is labelled, "Do not use for infant feeding" and saves considerable skimmed milk which otherwise would go into the sewers. An attempt is being made to prevent the interstate shipment of this article by congressional action for the purpose of saving the lives of children who would be given the article for food. The proponents of this measure do not consider that a mother who would feed her child on improper diet in one respect would continue to select improper diets if one objectionable substance were removed. It would be disastrous to adults if only infants' foods were permitted access to our markets.

The Yeast Fad

The yeast fad is peculiar. Yeast is high in the "B" vitamine, but why eat yeast cakes when so much more palatable foods containing the same substance in abundance are readily available?

A recent yeast advertisement quotes a diet including boiled potatoes and buttered peas, claiming deficiency unless yeast is added. Another states: "Then pay heavily for it in later life," but it also could say, "Thy pay heavily for it now." And still another says: "Add two or three cakes to your own daily diet and note the difference," which statement could readily refer to increased cost of your meals. The statements regarding the "B" vitamine content of yeast are substantially correct, but the insinuations that the general public is subsisting upon a low or vitamine-free diet are incorrect. And yeast is an expensive food.

One cannot grow fat on vitamines alone, neither can one do any work on vitamines alone, but in addition one needs some fat, some carbo-hydrates, a variety of proteins and mineral substances. A deficiency of any of these will produce serious pathological disturbances which require the services of the skilled dietitian, who can make a proper diagnosis of the trouble, rather than those of the proprietary medicine man who does not know you or your trouble. The popular application of the vitamines is to eat three square meals a day and do not worry.

This was well expressed by Dr. H. W. Wiley at the last meeting of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, as follows:—

Milk and greens have vitamines
Enough for little Sid,
So he, at least, will need no yeast,—
A real self-raising kid.

SWEDISH EXPORTS SURVIVED CRISIS.

Statistics Show That They Excel Pre-War Figures.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 29.—(Associated Press).—That Sweden has definitely survived the post war crisis, and is one of the first nations in Europe to show a natural and consistent recovery, appears from the monthly report on the foreign trade of this country during June, which has just been issued.

The export of timber and sawn wood, a staple commodity, has grown so rapidly that the volume is now 97 per cent of the peace-time figures. At the end of June the timber sales were close to 600,000 standards, which is considerably more than half of the normal yearly output. The export of matches is 95 per cent. of the pre-war normal, and it is encouraging that the export of iron ore has even surpassed pre-war figures by three per cent. As regards wood pulp and paper, which America buys from Sweden in large quantities, the figures for the month exceed the 1913 figures for the corresponding month by 18 to 72 per cent. Incidentally it is reported that conversation why the quotations on sulphite pulp are high is the increased demand from the United States for the manufacture of artificial silk. News print, which is shipped in great volume to America, shows an export figure 72 per cent. above that of 1913.

In the line of manufactured industrial products the quantity of electrical machines and apparatus, ball bearings, and telephones is nearly three times that of June, 1913. Cream separators and motors have risen to 50 per cent. of the pre-war figure.

A similar indication of prosperity is seen in the increased imports of raw material needed for Swedish industries. American dealers in copper will be interested to know that Sweden's imports of that material have reached 84 per cent. of the pre-war figure.

SOLVE SERVANT PROBLEM

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Britain hopes to solve its servant problem by establishing a college for the training of young women in domestic science and the useful arts. The government has set aside $250,000 for the purpose. The cost of training an unemployed girl so that she can take a situation in domestic service is $100.

The girls are given a course lasting thirteen weeks, with thirty hours' instruction every week. They are taught cookery, laundry work, housewifery, needle work, infant welfare and hygiene. They are also given instruction in the arts of singing and piano-playing, which are considered indispensable adjuncts to the all-around servant who wishes to brighten her mistress's life with something more than mere culinary accomplishments or household industry.

JENNY LIND RELICS SHOWN IN SWEDEN.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 29.—(Associated Press).—Costumes and other relics of the two Swedish nightingales, Jenny Lind and Christina Nilsson, will be displayed along with a collection of other treasures of theatrical history in Swedens first Dramatic Museum which will be opened during the latter part of August. The collection is being installed in the historic old Royal Theatre in the Castle of Drottningholm, which was patronized nearly 200 years ago by King Gustaf III., a famous protector of drama and the arts.

Among the interesting stage "props" that delighted the gallery gods of the 18th century, and have been stored away ever since in the mouldy vaults of the castle, are a dust-covered set of ocean waves and a couple of chariots, with clouds attached, for the exclusive use of the gods of Olympus. The picture collection, which includes stage settings, costume plates, portraits, etc., covers the theatrical history of various countries, and with respect to certain periods of French history is the most complete in the world. The theatre itself and the stage machinery will be restored to its original character.

Jenny Lind, it will be remembered is the singer who gave music in America its first great impetus when she appeared at Castle Garden, New York, in 1850 under the management of P. T. Barnum.

Women wage-workers in Italy are said to be better organized than in any other country.

SPEED BOAT RACE A DEEP SEA TEST.

HAVANA, CUBA, Aug. 29.—(Associated Press).—Among the conditions it is proposed to impose on entries in the international motor boat races next February between Miami, Fla., and Havana is that the owners of the craft must be aboard during the contests. Another is that the contestants engage in a 20 or 25 mile race off Havana so that the people of Cuban may have an opportunity to view the entry of the Havana Yacht Club, Miss Havana, in action.

According to Rafael Posso, the Havana yachtsman who is representing Cuba, in the negotiations for the race, prizes amounting to $10,000 have been assured through the support given the event by the National Commission on Encouraging Tourist Travel. This sum will be divided in three prizes of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, while the winner of the race will receive a $500 trophy, with $300 and $200 cups to those taking second and third place.

The Miami-Havana race will occupy a unique place in speed boating, according to Mr. Posso, who points out that, while the boats will race in sheltered waters from Miami to the southernmost tip of Florida, in crossing the channel they must be prepared to meet open sea condition which will test the metal of the craft to the utmost and inject an element of personal danger for the contestants.
